is 1,438,112 tons, against 1,550,088 tons at the same uneven dates last year. Since the clearing of the late storm the receipts have been sufficient to relieve the refiners of some anxiety as to their supplies, and to enable the idle Philadelphia refinery to work again. But the meltings have amounted to considerable, and new arrivals will very soon be needed, as only one week's supply of raws is now available. A slight reaction in Europe was taken advantage of here to depress prices, which was successful to the extent of 1-32c. on some sugars in port, but no concession was made on sugars for shipment. The general situation is very favorable, and there is nothing to warrant any considerable decline, unless it might result from financial troubles in Germany. We have a cable from London, however, giving the opinion that Europe will remain steady. We print our latest estimates of the provincial crops of the world, showing 188,967 tons less production this campaign than during the previous season.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The movement of syrups has increased somewhat. The call is not for the very lowest grades as a rule, but for medium bright samples, quoting at 2¼c. or thereabout. Very dark syrups are quoted down as low as 1⅞c., the result of competition between Canadian and United States refiners.

A small business in lower grade New Orleans molasses is reported at from 30c. upwards.

TEAS.

Very good value continues to be obtainable at 14 to 20c., and the demand is busiest in the range lying between these figures. Japans are in rather better request than Congous, though for the latter there is a very good demand. Young Hysons are dull, one cause being the scarcity of low grades, another being the strong bent of the demand for medium grades towards Japans and Congous.

McMeekin & Co.'s February notes on Indian and Ceylon teas says: The offerings of Indian were 132,000 packages, against 122,000 packages in the same month of 1891. The quality from several of the districts was somewhat improved, and the demand continued very strong for all teas with good quality in the cup. The smaller offerings induced a steadier market in the first two weeks, even for common and poor liquoring grades, but in the third and fourth weeks the quantity of such proved too much for the trade. There was in consequence great irregularity of prices, and a fall of ¼d. to ½d. per lb., while large quantities were withdrawn unsold in the auction room. The trade done during the month by wholesale houses has been of small volume, business throughout the country having been much interrupted by the variable weather and the consequent widely spread sickness. In spite of this, the deliveries proved very satisfactory, and the figures are assuming a more healthy aspect, the stock having begun to diminish at an earlier period of the season than usual. The average of Public Sale prices for the month was fully 8¾d. per lb. against 1s. 0¼d. per lb. for the corresponding month of last year. The imports were 8,295,000 lbs., and the deliveries 9.899,000 lbs., leaving in stock on 29th February, 47,558,000 lbs. The offerings of Ceylon were 65,000 packages, against 54,000 packages in the same month of 1891. There was a slight improvement noticeable in quality as compared with the offerings in January, but there was slill a decided absence of really high-class tea, so that anything above the ordinary level was eagerly competed for at full prices. The low grades of thin poor teas being at a very low level are going freely into consumption, and, although the market for these was rather easier in the middle of the month, prices leave off without material change. The average of Public Sale prices for the month was about 9¼d. per lb. against 1s. per lb. for the corresponding month of last year. The quantity to arrive from Ceylon during 1892 is estimated at about 75,000,000 lbs., and as there will again be an increased crop from India, it is likely that lower prices than those now current will rule at some time during the year, as the probable supply appears likely to largely exceed the probable consumption. Against this consideration may be set the largely increased export demand; and some development in home consumption caused by the very low range of values now current. The imports were 5,349,000 lbs. and the deliveries 4,760,000 lbs., leaving in stock on 29th February, 16,370,000 lbs. The business in Java teas has been merely nominal, and the China market continues in a state of depression.

PETROLEUM

A light week's business has been transacted at prices that were current last week.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.27 per barrel. Oil Springs crude $1.27½ per barrel. The week under review has proven the dullest it has been our task to chronicle for some time past. The range of prices has been confined within very narrow limits, although the conditions warrant a change to a higher range of values. The producing situation grows more bluish, and although drilling operations have been pushed with unabated vigor as far as the weather would permit, the results have shown no large increase in the production since the incoming of the present month. The proportion of small wells has not discouraged operators, however, the drillers have all they can do and lots of work ahead, and it is really surprising to see how the old ground is being punched over and over again, but nevertheless the price of crude warrants the drilling of small lots of wells, and the production, though small, pays good interest on the investment. Notwithstanding this outlook as far as the producers are concerned prices remain about the same with a very slightly lower tendency.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Butter neither gains nor loses, but remains in the moderately strong position it took up about a month ago. Predictions of a big advance on current quotations have been standing for some time but so far there is no

EASY WASH DAY

There's a strong inclination among business men these days, to think any claim, out of the common run, for an article, is made solely as an advertising dodge; sometimes with good reason. It's not so with SURPRISE SOAP, it's an actual fact, proven by eight years use, that Surprise does lessen greatly the work of wash day, using it the "Surprise Way." It's simple and easy. READ the directions on the wrapper.

People are after easy wash day's. "Surprise Soap" gives it to them, and they want it. WE MAKE IT.

likelihood of their being realized. There is of course quite a long stretch between the present time and the time when fresh butter may be looked for in quantities, and prices may press upwards in the meantime. It is to be borne in mind, however, that there are very cheap articles that can be used as the substitutes for butter, and these will open a safety valve for the surplus energy of the butter market to be carried off through. Just now, tubs appear to be more generally available than they were. They change hands at 17 to 19c. if they are choice, and occasionally are thought good enough by buyers to be worth 20c. For large rolls the price remains at 16 to 18c., the quality being acceptable. Lower prices rule for lower grades of both tub and roll stock, but for the class designated common, and which is very scarce, there is a searching demand at good prices, 13 to 15c. being those commonly holding. Brockvile dairy has sold on this market at 20c.

Cheese goes into consumption at the ordinary rate of trade. Firm prices outside brace quotations here, which run at 11¾ to 12½c. for good autumns, the under figure being for cars, the upper for very small lots. The demand now and then takes off some summer stock at 9½ to 10c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES — Offerings have not been so numerous. Prices have strengthened but not advanced, $2.25 to $2.50 being those holding for good hard fruit. There are sorts as low as $1.50.

BEANS—Dulness is expected to hang over the market until the spring demand affords some outlet to the stocks held in growers' hands. Prices run from $1 to $1.35, according to quantity and quality.

CRANBERRIES — Consumption usually shrinks materially during Lent, as that season checks the demand for turkeys, and then the turkeys are scarce as well. Stock can be had at $5 now. The range runs from that to $6.

DRIED APPLES—The hopes of holders continue to be deferred by the backwardness of the demand. Prices are unchanged to 4 to 4¼c. outside and 4½ to 5c. for small quantities on spot.

EVAPORATED APPLES—A limited jobbing business at 8 to 8½c. is all there is to report.

EGGS—The present price is a slight advance on figures that have been reached since last issue. They are now 13½ to 14c. for fresh in small lots and 13c. in large lots. Limed are neglected at 12½c.

HIDES—The quotation might almost be stereotyped. It remains at 4½c. for No. 1 green cows'. Cured are 5c. Trade is quiet.

HONEY—Is inanimate at 9 to 10c. for extracted and 14 to 16c. for sections.

HOPS—The views of sellers are about the sole gauge of quotation, and they are firm at 22 to 24c. for choice 91's and and 18 to 20c. for low grade 91's. Yearlings are 18c.

ONIONS—Are firm at $2.50 to $3 per barrel.

POTATOES—Cars are offered at 33c. Buying stands still unless when urged forward by stock wants. Out of store lots are 45c. per bag.

SEEDS—Jobbers are firm in their quotations though prices have weakened outside. Internal strength is imparted by the circumstance that the stock of the country is in few hands. Red clover is $7.50 to $7.80 per bushel, alsike $6.50 to $8, and timothy $1 80 to $2.

SKINS—No change is to be noted in the price of sheep skins, which go at $1.15 to $1.25. Inspected calf skins are 5 to 7c.

TALLOW—Dealers re-sell at 6c., but buy at 5½c. Rough brings 2c.

WOOL—Is quiet and dull at 18c.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

The present is an interval between the winter and the spring run of hogs. Packers are consequently not doing much buying. A few street receipts come forward, but the butchers' demands suffice for the absorption of them. The price holding is rather nominal at $5.75 to $6. Provisions are quite firm but not particularly active.

BACON—Long clear is steady at 7¾ to 8c. Heavy smoked bellies are 10c., medium 10½c., boneless 11c.; backs are 10c., rolls 8½ to 8¾c.

HAMS—Are featureless at 10½ to 11c.

LARD—Tubs of pure are 9¾c., pails 10c.

BARREL PORK—Is quiet at $13 to $14 for United States mess and $15 for Canadian. Short cut is firm at $16 to $16.50.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef fore-quarters are 4½ to 5c., hind-quarters 7 to 8c., lamb 8 to 9c., mutton 7 to 7½c., veal 8½ to 9½c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Choice Florida oranges are higher, $3.75 to $4 being now asked for picked stock. The price ranges downward to $3 for ordinary. Valencia oranges are unchanged at $3.75 to $4. There has been no change in lemons, which still quote at $3.50 to $4.50. Bananas are quiet at $2.50.

FISH AND OYSTERS.

Stocks of oysters are small and the trade is slow, as the season is drawing to a close. The stocks of frozen fish are not heavy, and the demand is fair. Fresh cod are abundant and find little demand, while the prices of white fish and trout have declined, owing to the easy demand. Some kinds of fish are selling very well, but on the whole, the fish trade is counted dull.

SALT.

The movement has been very sluggish for two weeks but prices have been maintained. A car of dairy in sacks has been sold at $1.25 and a car of barrels at $1.20, but the trade in small quantities is very meagre.

DRY GOODS.

The wholesale houses are very busy just now, and trade is fully up to the standard of former years. The first intimation of the work of the combine in cotton goods has been received, and several lines of shirtings have advanced about 25 per cent. Other advances may be looked for, but it may be some time before the full effect will be felt Spring goods are in good demand and prices of such goods as prints are firm.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, March 17, 1892.

The week has shown a slight improvement, and now that the election is over things are sure to pick up. The trade here say their men are doing fairly well and quite a few sorting orders have been recorded lately. As is noted in appended report sugar shows a firmer tendency, and with the help of the refiners the Guild may reach some kind of a settlement soon. In the other lines things remain about the same, teas are still quiet, and coffee has a little better movement, the same remarks apply to

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

The improvement still lies in the future. Flour is wanted, but bids keep obstinately on the under side of present quotations. If the millers would weaken they could make some sales that are very desirable in the matter of magnitude, but they would represent no profit. Exertions are still being made to persuade the government to come to some arrangement with Newfoundland in order to re-open that market to our shippers. Prices are slightly changed in some cases from last week's quotations. Feed is dull and unchanged.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $5.20; strong bakers', $4.85; Ontario patents, $4.40; straight roller, $4.75; extra, $4.10 to $4.15: low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $5.10 to $5.50; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.70 to $4.90; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.90; straight roller, $4.10 to $4.20; extra, $3.95 to $4.00; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

MEAL- Oatmeal is $3.90 to $4.00. Cornmeal is $4.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is $4.50 per barrel.

FEED—Bran is $14 to $15, shorts $15 to $16, mixed feed $23 to $25, cracked corn $1.15, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 33 to 34c.

HAY—is fairly active at $11.50 to $12 for No.1 timothy and $10 to $10.50 for mixed.

STRAW—is steady at $6 to $6.50.

MONTREAL.

Flour is dull and quiet on spot. A few small lots are moving for immediate wants, but prices on the whole are nominal. We quote:—Winter patents, $5 to $5.20; spring patents, $5.20 to $5.40; straight rollers, $4.50 to $4.70; extra, $4 20 to $4.50; superfine, $3.90 to $4; city strong bakers', $5; strong bakers', $4.60 to $4.90.

There is a small demand for oatmeal, which remains as before. We quote $2, on which basis business was done to-day.

Feed is quiet with a moderate call for bran and shorts at quotations. We quote bran $16 to $17, shorts $17 to $18, and moullie $23 to $24.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Flour—There is very little change to note in the flour market, some large stocks were bought in anticipation of a rise in values, but the present outlook is not very favorable for an advance. Manitoba is quoted at $5.85 to $6; Ontario high grade $5.15 to $5.25; Medium Patents $4.90 to $5.

Cornmeal—The millers are talking of higher prices for meal. There is a fair demand at present, and prices are $2.85 to $3.

Oatmeal—There is no change in prices or quantity moving.

Hay—No change in values, with a fair demand.

Oats—The price is the same as last quoted, 41c. to 44c.

all other lines. The French wholesale houses report trade on the pick up in their section.

SUGAR.

The local sugar market here is beginning to grow firmer. The trade have come to the conclusion that nothing is to be gained but much to be lost through the continuance of the war and an effort is being made to restore prices. Advices from London quotes cane as quiet but steady, while beets were firmer. At the meeting of the Guild and refiners the refiners decided that they had done about all they could and that the Guild must fight its own battles so the matter rests where it is for a while as a meeting will be held again soon. Business at the refineries is active but the wholesalers are not pushing trade with the exception of one or two houses who are still in the fight. We quote. Granulated, 4½c.; yellows, low grades, 3½c to 3¾c.; bright yellows, 3⅞c to 4⅛c at the refineries

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.

Business is slow with only small movement at current prices, but we hear of one round lot of American syrup 115 barrels changing hands at 23c. per gallon, and some smaller lots at corresponding prices. Bright Canadian is still held at 2¼c. per lb. In molasses there is not much doing, and the only sale reported is 25 puncheons at 35½c. We quote Barbadoes 35 to 38c., American 28c., syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 30 to 45c. for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

TEAS.

The market continues exceedingly quiet, and what few sales that are being made are very small and not of a character to test actual value at all. The demand from the country is slow and the market is rather in the buyers favor. The best grade teas are in good demand and sell freely at good prices, but low grade Japans are dull and weak. The shipment of 1,000 packages to the west last week helped the market some, but there are still too many here. Indian, Ceylon and low grade blacks are in fair demand.

COFFEES.

In our local market the chief feature of interest is the first direct shipment of Mocha coffee from Adeu to Montreal which has come to Mr. A. Wills. The consignment is of a very high quality and if it is found that there is a market for this quality here, and that the trade is willing to pay for the genuine article, instead of buying the sophisticated goods which pass through London, other consignments will follow regularly. Some small sales have taken place in the local market which have not been affected by the change in values in New York. We quote :—Rio, 18 to 20c.; Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c.; Jamaica, 19 to 21c.; Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c.; Santos, 17½ to 19c.

RICE.

The local rice market is dull and quiet. Advices from primary markets say that Japans are easier, but other kinds are strong.

DRIED FRUIT.

Only a small jobbing movement exists in dried fruit with occassional sorting orders from the country parts. New York advices report a slight improvement in the demand, but the consumptive enquiry is still very slight. Prime valencias move between 4¾ and 5c., layers 6 to 6½c. Patras currants are steady at 5 to 5½c. and Vostizzas in cases 7½ to 8c. Prunes are steady, old Bosinas 4c., new stock at 5¼ to 6c. Dates are in better demand at 5c. ond figs at 10c.

NUTS.

The nut market is quiet and unchanged with no new feature. We quote :—Almonds Tarragona 14 to 15c.; Almonds, Ivica 14 to 15c.; Almonds, common 10 to 11c.; Almonds, hardshell 07 to 08c.; Walnuts, Grenoble, new 12 to 13c.; Walnuts, French 10 to 10½c.; Cocoanuts per 100 $4.50 to $5; Filberts 9 to 10c.; Pecans 16 to 17c.; Peanuts 07 to 10c.

CANNED GOODS.

There is very little movement the past week in canned goods. All lines are in good supply except peas, the stock of which is small and firmly held. None are now offering under $1.15, and some small lots bring $1.25. As noted before there is still that lot of 2000 cases tomatoes looking for a buyer at $1, but no one seems anxious to touch them at that price. About the opening of navigation, however, a general improvement in all lines will no doubt receive more attention. On the whole dealers say that the canned goods trade is bad, but still consider them good property, stocks are none to large to supply spring delivery. We quote:—Lobsters, per case, $7.75 to $8; mackerel, per case, $4.25 to $4.50; sardines, per case, $8.50 to $9.50; salmon, per box, $1.35 to $1.40; clams, 1 lb. tins, per doz., $2; oysters, 1 lb. tins, per doz., $1.40 to $1.45; New Brunswick sardines, per 100, $4.75 to $5; tomatoes, Quebec, $1.05 to $1.10; peaches, per doz., $2 to $2.10; Bartlett pears, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $1.75 to $2; strawberries, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $2.25 to $2.50; pineapples, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $2.30 to $2.40; plums, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $1.25 to $1.75; corn, Erie & Aylmer, per doz., $1 to $1.10; corn, Hoeggs, $1.25 to $1.30; string beans, 2 lb. tins, per doz., 90c. to $1; Lima beans, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $1.20 to $1.25; marrowfat peas, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $1.15 to $1.25; succotash, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $1.80 to $2.

GREEN FRUIT.

Green fruit is unchanged with no new feature to note. There is still a fair enquiry for Floridas at $3 to $3.50 for brights and $2.75 to $3.25 for russets. Valencias still meet with slow sale, although there has been a little more enquiry for them during the past week. They are quoted at $4 to $4.25 a case for 714's and $3 to $3.50 for 420's. Palermo oranges are quoted at $2 to $2.50 per box and bitter at $3 to $3.50. Lemons are quiet, with only a few sales at $2.50 to $3 for choice qualities. Dealers are beginning to talk spring importations, which will be large.

APPLES.

Spies, russets and spitz have been sold in round lots at $2.40 to $2.60. Jobbing lots bring higher figures. A few more cars are offered from the west, and with the stock already here, may tend to weaken prices which are at the moment quoted steady. Some very good profits have been made on shipments to England, one lot of 100 bbls. realizing a clear profit of $1.50 per bbl. The market is quiet and a trifle easy in evaporated fruits, which are quoted at 8c. to 9c., and dried apples at 5c. to 6c. Evaporated peaches are quoted at 12c. to 13c. in 25-lb. boxes.

HOPS.

During the past week we heard of sales of Canadian hops at 22½ and 24c. in two and three bale lots as to quality. A lot was also sold at 15c., but it was not a clean sample. Advices from abroad are not at all encouraging for sellers, and the market may be quoted at 22 to 25c. for good choice stock. There is still a lot of German hops on the market yet, which move off slowly, as the brewers are all well stocked. Pressed hops have a fair jobbing movement, and we quote the old price, viz., 16c. for ¼, ½ and 1 lbs. in 30 lb. boxes.

FISH.

The demand for fish continues to be very disappointing, and holders are unable to get prices quoted in our last report. The smoked and pickled fish market is dull and unchanged. The opening of the week is in fact notable only for the feeling of easiness. We quote : Herring, No. 1, per bbl., $5.00 to $5.05; lake trout, per half bbl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.75 to $9.25; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4.75 to $4.80; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

SMOKED FISH.

We quote :—Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.15 to $1.30; Saint John's bloaters, per box, $1 to $1.10; boneless cod, large boxes, 6 to 7c; do small boxes, 7 to 8c.

PICKLED FISH.

Labrador herring are quoted at $5.50 to $5.75 per bbl, and French Shore at $5 to $5.25. Sea trout $4.50 per half bbl. Salmon is nominally quoted at $12 in bbls. Dry cod $5 to $5.25, and green cod $5.25 to $5.50 for No. 1, and $5.75 for large.

PROVISIONS.

There is not much improvement in the local demand for pork, and dealers do not seem to be quite so firm in their views owing, no doubt, to the uneasiness in the Western markets. We quote: Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.50 to $17.00; mess pork, western, per brl. $16.00 to $16.50; short cut, western, per brl. $17 to $17.25; hams, city cured, per lb. 10½c. to 11c; lard, Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c; bacon per lb. 9c. to 10c; lard, com. refined, per lb. 7¼ to 8c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The butter market is decidedly easier with only a small jobbing business moving. This is particularly true in regard to creamery, and holders admit that to move a round lot they would have to make concessions, in fact many would no doubt be willing to sell at a loss in order to effect a clearance. Dairy is fairly steady, a demand from the Lower Provinces having a good effect on western, and early makes of Townships which are moving at about 17c. We quote:—Creamery, 20 to 22c.; Townships, dairy 18 to 20c.; Morrisburg and Brockville, 18 to 19c.; Western dairy, 16 to 17c.

There is absolutely nothing doing in cheese the market being cleaned up.

EGGS.

The egg market is very weak. Owing to the mild weather the hens have been laying freely and the stocks west of Toronto are said to be very large in consequence. Dealers say there are enough eggs in the country to meet all requirements, and that no more American eggs will have to be brought in. Fresh are quoted at 13 to 14c. to-day, but prices are expected to fall to 10c. before many weeks. Only one dealer here has any stock of limed on hand to speak of, and he is trying hard to effect a clearance, being willing to accept any price from 11c. upwards.

GRAIN.

Wheat is without feature locally. From the West nothing worthy of mention was advised to-day.

Barley is steady, and was dealt in to-day at the old price, 42 1-2c. for feed stock.

Oats show no change, some car lots moving to-day at 29c. per 32 lbs.

We quote values generally as follows:—No. 2 hard Manitoba, $1.03 to $1.04; No. 3 do., 97c.; No. 2 Northern, $1.04.; peas, 73c. to 74c. per 66 pounds; oats, 29c. to 30c. per 32 pounds; corn, 60 to 62c., duty paid; feed barley, 42 to 43c.; good malting do., 60 to 63c.

The stocks in store show an increase of 53,234 bushels wheat, 53,298 bushels of peas, 5,224 bushels of barley, 5,257 bushels of rye, 5,583 barrels of flour, and a decrease of 579 bushels of corn, 51,355 bushels of oats, 97 barrels of oatmeal, compared with a week ago. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 215,430 bushels of wheat, 172,929 bushels of peas, 78,492 bushels of oats, 37,103 bushels of barley, 6,600 bushels of rye, 2,735 barrels of oatmeal, and a decrease of 9,493 bushels of corn, and 1,392 barrels of flour.

The stocks of grain and flour in Montreal on the dates mentioned were as follows.

	Mar. 12, 1892.	Mar. 5, 1892.	Mar. 14, 1891.
Wheat, bush	584,147	530,913	368,717

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N. B., March, 16, 1892.

Sugar—Higher prices have been talked of some time, but to the present there are no changes to quote. Granulated is selling at at 4½ to 4⅝c., yellows at 3.5-5 to 3¾c.

Molasses—Is scarce in this market, with every indication to higher prices. Barbados is the only kind offering, and 36 to 37c. seems the ruling price.

Cheese—Is very scarce, and prices correspondingly high at 12½ to 13c.

Butter—Is also very scarce for good, and readily sells for 18 to 20c.

Fish—We have had several vessels arrive with cargoes which were quickly bought up at good prices. Large cod are $5 to $5.40, medium cod $4.75 to $5, Pollock $2.50 to $2.60 per quintal, mess shad $6.40 to $6.50, No. 1, shad $5.25 to $5.40. Other kinds of pickled fish are scarce. Smoked herring are 9 to 12c.

Beans—Hand picked are selling at $1.55 to $1.60, medium 5c. less.

SOME HINTS TO SALESMEN.

While the Merchants' Review has not been slow to condemn retail storekeepers who are guilty of the folly of over-stocking themselves through the persuasions of salesmen, it cannot absolve from blame those unwise drummers who are chiefly responsible for the disasters that are due to that common error of dealers. If the latter are foolish to over-buy, surely the salesman who has coaxed his customers to take a larger quantity than they ought, on the plea that the price is especially favorable or that there are "only a few more left," or who does not, when the dealers, of their own notion, are inclined to order in excessive quantities, advise against such a course, surely he is equally as foolish. Over-buying does not always prove fatal to a business. If it did, the commercial mortality would be appalling, but it is certainly a common cause of failure, and a regard for his own interests should make the salesman very cautious in taking orders not to tempt his customers to adopt a policy which may prove their ruin and thus reduce the number of his customers. In the more numerous cases where over-buying, as regards the dealers, is less serious in its effects, the salesman responsible therefor generally suffers eventually for his want of sagacity by the loss of the patronage of good customers.

It is so easy to over-stock a store with certain classes of goods that it is perhaps not surprising that the mistake is so often made. One may suffer from the blunder even if one has merely bought too heavily of staple goods, that can be disposed of ultimately without trouble. In this way, however, too much capital for the resources of the dealer may be locked up too long, or the bill may be too heavy to meet when it becomes due. A very fruitful cause of irritation and loss, however, is the purchase of comparatively moderate quantities of goods that are new to the locality in which they are to be sold, and regarding the merits of which the dealer is ignorant. It is not the wisest policy to avoid novelties, because in doing so a dealer may get a reputation for being old-fogyish, besides, novelties often prove good trade-getters. But where there is doubt as to the salableness of a new article, the very smallest quantity only should be purchased as a beginning, until the merchant's doubts are removed. Even an order for a two-dozen lot would be risky in such a case, and a salesman assumes a serious responsibility when he urges the dealer to buy in excess of the minimum quantity. The position which the salesman occupies between his employer, the manufacturer or jobber, and his retail customer, demands that he shall have some regard for the latter's interests. It is his duty to see that, so far as his dealings with the retail class are concerned, no member thereof is injured or placed in danger in order to make the volume of his sales larger and his share of the profits greater, and we hold that a salesman fails in his duty to his patrons if he does not use all the influence he possesses against over-stocking in the retail trade. It is not enough to avoid exerting an influence in favor of over-buying, but to do his full duty the salesman must advise against it whenever his experience or peculiar knowledge suggests that a merchant is about to commit the mistake.

A well-known manufacturer said recently to the writer: "I have a good call for my specialty from city retailers, some of whom buy direct from me, and it would be the easiest thing in the world for me to overstock the majority of them. Indeed I often have to caution them against buying too largely, and tell them that the goods will be liable to become shop-worn before they can sell them. I say: 'Buy what you know you can use within a few weeks, for I am not afraid that I shall lose your next order, and it makes no difference to me whether you buy a gross now and another gross later on, or a couple of gross now.' In this way I keep their confidence and keep them from tying up capital needed in other ways, while at the same time I save my goods from getting dirty and deteriorating in value on the grocer's shelves, to the detriment of the reputation of the goods."

If salesmen generally will take this manufacturer as a pattern over-buying will become as rare as it now is common, and they will lose nothing by the change. If the goods which they sell are honest value, and they enjoy the confidence of their patrons, what difference does it make to them whether the latter buy in small quantities and often, or more seldom and more largely? Merely this, that in the one case they stand a good chance of keeping their customers, while in the other they invite the loss of patronage either through the natural indignation of the victims or their failure in business.—Merchant's Review.

IS THIS WHAT TUPPER MEANT?

Sir Charles Tupper is reported as having said, at the meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce in London, that Canada is about to deal a heavy blow at the United States in retaliation for the McKinley Act. The exact nature of the stroke which is to be delivered was not stated, but Sir Charles probably foreshadowed the intention of the Canadian Government either to abolish altogether, or else greatly reduce the customs tax now imposed on British goods entering this country.

The adoption of such a policy by Canada would not only benefit the people of the Dominion by vastly cheapening many articles of every day consumption and increasing our export trade to Great Britain, but it would effectually destroy the protectionist policy of the United States. If British goods were entered at Halifax and Montreal sixty per cent. cheaper than at New York and Boston, an army of half a million men could not prevent such goods from finding their way across an open frontier thousands of miles in length. With this underground trade continually going on, and steadily growing in volume, the American tariff wall would be forced to come down and Canada would then enjoy an extension of her commerce both with Great Britain and the United States.—News.

WINDOW GLASS: [To find out what break any required size of pane comes under, add its length and breadth together. Thus in a 7x9 pane the length and breadth come to 16 inches; which shows it to be a first-break glass, i.e., not over 25 inches in the sum of its length and breadth.]

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2.00 per year.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

"It is better to have built a dog house than to have dreamed of building a palace."

The Patrons of Industry make a great deal of the plea that they are endeavoring to place the retail trade of the country upon a cash basis. This, they seem to think, ought to compensate the merchant for bargaining away a great part of his profit by entering into a contract with them. The Patrons are the men who can put trade upon a cash basis, if they are earnest in their efforts to do so. They are made up of the very class of people for whose sake trade was ever put upon a credit basis. If the Patrons, and all whom they aim to include in their organization, would pay cash for their goods, there would be nothing left of the credit system to reform. It is simply a matter of cessation on the part of the individuals included or sought to be included in the Patron movement. There is no need of sweeping away anybody or anything. Let the cash be produced, and before its magic influence the system and all its evils will vanish away. That mode of settling the matter is beautifully simple, and is as natural as it is simple. It does not involve the expenses of association, neither does it call for boycotting or co-ercion, and prices will sag down under its gentle influence like the mercury of the barometer under atmospheric pressure.

The beauty of such a solution is, that the diminution in prices it would cause would not be merely in one stratum of the distributing system, but would affect every grade of trader and producer. It would thus be something more than a sacrifice of retailers for the benefit of consumers. The losses of business would be reduced, the cost of trading—the items for bookkeeping, etc.—would be greatly lessened, all the retailers would be left in business, and their volume and weight would widen their margin as much towards the side of the wholesalers as it had shrunk on the side of the consumers. Cash, unhampered by any entanglements of association, would work out the price problem as completely as it would extinguish the credit problem. "Put money in thy purse," and the whole thing is as simple as adding one and one.

Then the occupation of the agitator would be gone. That would be a good riddance for consumers, who are being made the mere tools of designing, self-seeking fomentors of discontent. There is no lot on this earth that is free from attendant difficulties and disapointments, and the man who wishes to play on the passions of any class of people need have only the knack of railing acceptably against things as they are, to make his hearers dissatisfied with everything outside of themselves This is a poor business for a man to follow, but there are many who make a livelihood by it. They know how to draw a dark picture, how to make the yoke gall that was never felt before, and how to produce general exasperation. A great part of the Patron force is due to the incendiary addresses of these men.

Where there are more than two traders in a place that a Patron merchant is doing business in, it is to the interest of the free merchants to come to an agreement in regard to a few things. The Patron merchant is very commonly a general trader. If his opponents agree to a division of trade, each can take one line to sell at prices below those asked for that line by the Patron merchant. If two, or three, or four free stores thus league together they can attract even contracted custom, or can force the Patron merchant down to prices that will soon put him out of the struggle. He will have the brunt of the whole combined trade to meet, and he will pine away under the strain. If this general merchant sells his gray cottons near or at cost, that one sells his tea, another his canned goods, etc., in the same way, the loss will be divided up among several or concentrated upon the Patron merchant, whose inevitable collapse will be hastened by the alliance of his competitors.

What evidence has the Patron that the invoice submitted for his inspection is the one relating to the particular goods he is shown? Here he must take the trader's word. So the bargains of the Patrons rest ultimately upon the verbal representations of the merchant. That is not a very satisfactory basis. The sense that it is not will be an increasing cause of distrust with the Patron, especially if he can get the same goods at lower prices from the merchants who are supposed to have joined hands to preserve their custom. Thus will wane the Patron support, and there is no need of any gift of prophecy to foretell the speedy decline of the trade system the Patrons are endeavoring to build up. There are some merchants now under contract with the Patrons, who openly say that they do not expect the order to last long, that they have given in temporarily to retain the custom of the Patrons until the latter go to pieces, and that when they do go to pieces their trade will still be attached to the store to which it is now contracted.

CALIFORNIA EVAPORATED FRUIT.

A few years ago California evaporated fruit was unheard of as a grocery line in this country. Now it is fast becoming one of the staples of the trade. It is already established upon a substantial basis in popular favor, a basis that promises to widen, as that of the canned goods trade widened. It is only during the last three or four years that California evaporated fruits have been handled on this market. Their beginning was a a modest one. An unpretentious trade by one or two fruit men opened the business. A few lots were sold the first year, but they were good seed, and the next year a larger quantity was disposed of through a larger number of dealers. Finally the wholesale grocery trade took hold of the business, and now several of our grocery jobbers and all our leading fruit men handle evaporated fruits and handle a good many of them. them. Thus the goods have not been on the market more than long enough to get well through their experimental stage. They have been pretty thoroughly tried, being well diffused by the many houses importing them, and the general verdict speaks in increased consumption. There is nothing more delicious than apricot preserves. With a little cream they become ambrosial. It is this quality which is the mainstay of these fruits in popular favor.

The market conditions this year are about equally adverse and favorable to the trade in evaporated fruits, so that any increase or decrease in the sales must be owing to something intrinsic in the goods themselves. Already, as compared with the corresponding portion of former years, the present season shows a very considerable increase. That is a testimony to the inherent excellence of the fruits. The market influences special to the year that were said to balance each other, were the following: On the one hand, the abundance of the Calfornia fruit crop, and the lower price of sugar since the duty was taken off a year ago in the United States; on the other, the abundance of Canadian small fruits and the cheapness of sugar since the duty was taken off last June in this country. Owing to the first set of causes evaporated fruits come about 10c. cheaper than they did a year ago. Apricots that were as high as 22c. last year, are now as low as 12½c. Very good apricots can now be retailed at 15c. But while the factors have been strong for an increase in consumption, they are offset by the second set of conditions given above. Our own small fruits have been very plentiful. In the preserved form, owing to very cheap sugar, they abound more than they ever did before—domestic and factory canning having been very large last summer and fall. Also imported and native dried fruits, as apples, raisins, etc., are very cheap. All this pretty well makes up for the 10c. lower price for evaporated California fruits. Yet the demand for unpeeled peaches and apricots has been very much greater here than it ever was before. Peeled peaches being much higher, selling at 22c., have gone less freely into trade. Plums likewise have not been in as strong request, probably because our own plums were plentiful.

Evaporated fruits are simply an addition to grocery lines, they are not a substitute for some other line that is being displaced by them. For them an expansion of the range of consumption must be made. They therefore benefit trade. The statements that they do not supplant anything else must, however, be made with qualification. They do undoubtedly cover some of the ground formerly taken up by prunes, but as it was usually a matter of comparative price between dried apples and prunes whether the latter should be in great demand or not, the effect of the competition of evaporated fruits is not so obvious in the prune trade.

Prices favor the buyer in apricots, but they are likely to go up on peaches. Chicago buyers were caught on apricots, and bear influences prevail. There is nothing now held at the coast.

MR. L. J. CALLANAN.

Above is the portrait of Mr. L. J. Callanan, the courteous and energetic manager of the Food and Health Exposition now being held in New York. This should have been presented with our report last week of the opening of the exhibition, but for the fact that the cut did not arrive in time.

The Hamilton retail grocers will close at 7 p.m. every day, excepting Saturdays and evenings before holidays, commencing April 4.

SIDE LINES, OR GLIMPSES INTO MY NOTE-BOOK.

TEA.

Everybody has observed when passing the majority of grocery stores in the city, either at the door or exposed in the windows, one or more halfchests or caddies of tea with the alluring legend of the price and quality conspicuously labelled on the same. In fact one almost expects to see this article in the grocery windows, so long has the pernicious habit of showing tea in this manner been indulged in by the average grocer. It is a puzzle to me how such stores can give their customers a satisfactory cup of tea, and how they can retain the patronage of their clients for any length of time. I have endeavored to impress on the minds of such of my connection as profess to do a tea trade the necessity of keeping this delicate article in proper packages or bins, air-tight or nearly so, and I am happy to say have prevailed on them to do so. Were it not for the reason of self-interest I should have done so in any event. I find, and every traveller will admit the truth of my statement, that frequently after having sold a customer a lot of 5 or 10 half-chests of tea, the customer complains of the quality of some of the packages not being equal to the others, weaker, color poorer, etc., when the real trouble is that he has had this particular chest in his window or at the door exposed to light, air, dust and other injurious effects. How under heaven can they be up to standard? This delicate plant whose precious fluid is cheering to mankind the world over, is not a cabbage, turnip or potato, and cannot be handled roughly. In my opinion it is almost if not quite as sensitive to outside injurious influences as butter, and though it is not porous it still has the faculty of absorption. Tea, if emptied at all out of the original package, should be put into a lead-lined tin or bin, and when the clerk has put up the required quantity for his orders he should completely cover the remaining tea in the bin with the lead, and keep out entirely the air and light. How many clerks, and yes, how many proprietors, give this article the attention it requires? Yet everyone of them knows that it is the principal article on which a good margin of profit can be claimed. In my opinion the wholesale tea handlers would materially improve the state of the tea trade by issuing jointly a circular setting forth the necessity of handling tea in the proper manner, and urging upon the retail dealer the necessity of raising the taste of the tea-drinking community by offering them tea that is tea, giving in the circular such hints as the retailer will not fail to take advantage of. The result of such action cannot fail to be anything but satisfactory to all concerned, the importer, jobber, retailer and consumer.

The question might be asked, How is the grocer to show his tea if not exposed conspicuously? No exception could be taken to having a small tin or glass dish of fancy design, or a small tea cannister, say of one or two lbs., in the window or on the counter; this would invariably satisfy the consumer, as not one in ten thousand times does he or she examine into the merits of the tea by drawing and testing it in the store. And in these days of soliciting orders at the houses, does the consumer ever have a sample of tea shown him? Never to my knowledge and belief, except it be by a so-called tea pedlar. And why should the grocer keep his delicate teas exposed any more than a liquor dealer his fancy wines, whiskies and ales? The purchaser asks for such and such a wine and gets it, the label and honesty of the dealer being sufficient guarantee of its quality. A customer could ask for a 25, 35, 40, 50 or 60c. tea, and in every case would he get the article asked for just as well as if he had seen it standing at the door of the grocery store, mingling freely with the flying dust of the street and the odors of the passing garbage wagons. It is a pleasant sight for me to see at least one grocer in this city on Queen street west, who knows how to show teas, not by filling up his windows with eight or ten half chests all open and exposed, but by an occasional display of sufficient whole and unbroken packages, and a small sample on a fancy dish alongside or on top of the packages. And there is no grocer in this city that has such a satisfactory tea trade. Why not all so honor your leading article of profit?

TRADE PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

THE COBBAN MANUFACTURING CO. LTD., issue a Catalogue the very volume of whose contents shows the need of such a book for the information and convenience of the trader. From the Company's warehouse and works at the corner of Hayter and Terauley streets, in this city, a very extensive range of lines is turned out every year. Illustrations, descriptions and quotations are very fully and clearly given in their catalogue. The leading specialties of the business are mirror plates, bevelled glass, framed pictures, looking glasses. The trade will find the book useful and necessary for the purposes of doing business with the Cobban Manufacturing Co.

The Thirteenth Annual Report of the Winnipeg Board of Trade is an encouraging record of Commercial progress in the Province of Manitoba. The accomplishment and prospects of railway enterprises, the laws relating to taxation, winding up of estates, etc., the development of material resources, are matters of importance dealt with in the Report.

Lake Superior Iron Ore Production for the Past Thirty-Six Years, is the title on the cover of a very neat little pamphlet received at this office with the compliments of the Cleveland Iron Trade Review, a paper which stands high as an authority upon iron matters. The contents are purely statistical, a division of the book going to each range, the mines in which are all enumerated, with the production given in tons. The receipts at Lake Erie ports for the past nine years are an important part of the little book, which is a credit to the enterprise of the publishers.

CANNED GOODS MEN MEET.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Packers' Association was held at the Walker House on Wednesday and Thursday of last week. Mr. W. Boulter, Picton, occupied the chair. There were present Messrs. E. De Cew, Ontario Canning Co., Hamilton; W. A. Ferguson, Delhi Canning Co.; W. C. Breckenridge, Norton M'fg Co., Hamilton; W. P. Innes, Simcoe Canning Co., Simcoe and Hamilton; D. Marshall, Aylmer Canning Co.; J. H. Burnie, Dresden Canning and Preserving Co.; H. I. Matthews, Lakeport Preserving Co.; J. B. A. Pigeon, Ottawa Canning Co.; Wm. Miller, A. C. Miller & Co., Picton; L. J. Coryell, Oshawa; A. C. Miller, M.P., Picton. Letters of regret were received from the Phœnix Canning Co., B. R. Nelles, D. W. Douglas, Bowlby Bros., the Belleville Canning Co., the Erie Preserving Co., and A. E. Carpenter. After the minutes of the last annual meeting had been read and adopted, the President delivered his opening address as follows:—

THE DINNER.

The members were invited at the close of their meeting to a dinner at the Rossin House, by the Norton Manufacturing Co. of Hamilton. The following accepted the invitation: W. C. Breckenridge, Hamilton; W. Boulter, Picton; W. A. Ferguson, Delhi; Mr. Marshall, Aylmer; W. P. Innes, Simcoe; W. M. Miller, Picton; H. I. Matthews, Lakeport; J. H. Birney, Dresden; J. B. A. Pigeon, Ottawa; L. J. Coryell, Oshawa, E. DeCew, Hamilton.

Mr. Dryden, the Minister of Agriculture, was present and made a short speech, in which he wished the members every success for the coming season. Being a farmer himself, interested in fruit-growing, he was pleased to have had the opportunity of being with them.

Mr. Boulter thanked Mr. Breckenridge on behalf of the members for the pleasant two hours spent, and Mr. Breckenridge responded.

After supper the President formed a theatre party, thus closing a very enjoyable evening.

The past year has been fairly prosperous to the industry represented. Owing to the unfavorable season of 1890 there was a much larger pack this year than last. Vegetables are about all sold. Owing to the abundant crop of fruits and cheap sugar, a much larger pack was made of fruits than was required. This, taking into consideration the immense amount put up by consumers themselves, leaves us with a large amount of fruits on hand. We will therefore have to consider some scheme for exportation, as the present demand is not sufficient for the amount at present packed. Several towns have been agitating for new canning factories to be established, and it seems strange that moneyed individuals could be persuaded to invest in an industry that is now overdone. Should they go into operation, a repetition of the disastrous year of 1888 will follow. To the old members of the association I would recommend caution for future pack; also promptness in regard to the monthly reports that have been of so much value to us. The reports of the special committees appointed at our last meeting will be laid before you.

The auditors presented their report showing that they had examined the books of the treasurer and found them correct. There was a balance of $295.20 on hand.

Messrs. Breckenridge, Innes and Ferguson presented the report of the committee that had the amalgamation scheme under consideration, and it was adopted. The remainder of the session was spent in considering a scheme for developing the export trade. Some important information was given, and a very interesting discussion took place. Definite action was postponed until May next when a special meeting will be held.

On Thursday morning officers were elected as follows:—

President, — — W. Boulter.
Vice-President, — S. Fenton, jr.
Secretary-Treasurer, — J. B. McLean.

Executive Committee—W. A. Ferguson, W. P. Innes and H. I. Matthews.

Auditors—Wm. Miller and E. DeCew.

The secretary was instructed to prepare a statement of goods on hand April 1.

The association then went into secret session to consider some important questions. A line of action was determined on and committees appointed to carry it out. The meeting then adjourned.

BONUSES AND INSOLVENCY LEGISLATION.

At the meeting of the council of the Toronto Board of Trade held on the 17th inst. the following resolution was submitted as adopted by the Hamilton Board of Trade:

That this Board of Trade recommends that all boards of trade in Ontario be asked to co-operate with this board in obtaining legislation to prevent any municipality from granting any bonus to manufacturers.

After due consideration the council passed the following resolution in answer:

That the council of this board, while admitting the system of granting bonuses to manufacturers has been greatly abused, it cannot see its way clear to recommend any interference with the rights and privileges of municipalities in relation to the matter.

Chairman Blain, of the Legislation Committee, reported that the members of this committee were not a unit in regard to an insolvency bill, and as it was considered advisable to have an expression of opinion from the full board on this matter, it was decided to call a special meeting this week.

IN THE INTEREST OF CANADIAN PORK, EGGS, ETC.

As a result of the representations of Mr. A Gunn of D. Gunn, Flavelle & Co., Toronto, to the Minister of the Interior, that until recent years the whole North-west and Pacific trade was controlled by United States packers, but that now Canadians held all except some Hudson Bay Company's posts and the Indian supplies, and that Canadian "long clear" bacon was now made in sufficient quantity and quality for all requirements, the Minister of the Interior in subsequent tenders for supplies has asked for a large portion of "long clear" bacon. Previously "short clear" bacon only had been used, and as Canadian packers did not produce "short clear" the contracts were always filled by United States dealers. This sent a large sum of Canadian money into the pockets of United States farmers.

One of the biggest deputations of the session on Friday last waited upon the Government with reference to the duty on pork and other matters. The Government was represented by Hon. Mr. Foster, Hon. Mr. Bowell, Hon. Mr. Costigan and Hon. Mr. Dewdney. The pork packers of Canada were represented by Mr. J. W. Flavelle, of Gunn, Flavelle & Co., of Toronto; Mr. William Matthews, of Toronto; Mr. F. W. Fearman, of Hamilton, and Mr. C. M. Acer and Mr. Willlam Strachan, of Montreal. The following members of Parliament were present: Messrs. White, Hughes, Pope, Denison, Fairbairn, Carpenter, Cargill, Cochrane, Ryckman, Hutchins, Moncrieff, Tyrwhitt, McKay, Henderson, Ingram, Madill, Burns, MacDonell (Algoma), Wood (Westmoreland), Adams, Davis, Wilson, O'Brien, Tisdale, Marshall, Roome, Smith Ontario), Masson, Taylor, Coatsworth, Corby, Bennett, Wood (Brockville), Curran, Hazen, McDowall, Stevenson, Miller, McLean and McDonald, of Prince Edward Island and Senator Sanford.

Mr. Fearman, of Hamilton, said the question of the duty on pork was brought before the Ministers last session, and they were now reiterating what was then said. Their complaint was that a portion of the pork imported from the United States was coming in at a lower rate of duty than other portions, and they were now asking that this would be remedied. Last session, after seeing the Government, they left with the understanding that mess pork required by the lumbermen of this country should be admitted at a less rate of duty than other kinds, but they were surprised to find that under the tariff as printed other kinds of pork could be imported at the same rate of duty as mess pork. The fact that other grades of pork could be brought into the country under the duty of 1½ cents was most injurious to the farmers and packers.

Hon. Mr. Foster—Is it the same species of pork?

Mr. Fearman—The same species of pork, but differently cut. You can take a hog and divide it in two; one half pays three cents a pound, and the other one and one-half cents. He went on to point out that the production of pork in this country last year was valued at $2,000,000, and it had increased by a million dollars. The business was growing steadily in Canada. The farmers now had hogs of very good quality, and could supply the people with almost everything required.

Hon. Mr. Foster—Are the farmers of Canada prepared to furnish heavy pork?

Hon. Mr. Bowell—They are beginning to do it.

Mr. Fearman—They have not begun to do it, because there has been no encouragement. (Hear, hear.)

Hon. Mr. Bowell—A gentleman informed me there are now in the Montreal market 15,000 barrels of mess pork that can be purchased by those who require it. If that is so, it is an evidence the Canadian farmer is producing that kind of pork which it was thought he could not produce.

Dr. Sproule pointed out that there had been last year a notable decrease in the importation of the classes of pork upon which the duty had been raised.

Mr. Flavelle showed that whilst the importations of pork had decreased to the extent of $1,000,000 the production of pork in Canada had increased by $2,000,000. He pointed out the possibilities of increase in the production in the North-west, and explained that in the western states the farmer was compelled to put his corn into pork or butter and cheese on account of the distance from a market. The same circumstance would operate in regard to the farmers of the North-west, who would be obliged to turn their attention to the production of all classes of pork. In support of this contention he mentioned that it was reported recently that a cargo of oats from the North-west, which was somewhat damaged, did not sell in Montreal for the amount of the freight, so remote was it from the point of shipment. The members of the deputation were fully warranted in telling the Government that the farmers of Canada were prepared to meet the requirements. Pork was produced in Chicago for speculative purposes; after a certain time, when it was no longer applicable to those purposes, it could be disposed of in any way thought proper. To-day pork was selling in Chicago at $7.50 a barrel, and even after paying all charges they could undersell the Canadian producer.

Hon. Mr. Foster asked if the imposition of an additional cent and a half would stop that.

Mr. Flavelle—"Undoubtedly, at certain seasons." He pointed out that under the wording of the tariff other kinds of pork than that stipulated were being admitted under the 1½ cents rate. The farmers of this country could not only raise pork for home consumption, but he was convinced that in a few years they would be raising it for export.

Mr. Matthews added his views to those already expressed.

The matter of a duty on eggs was next brought up. It was pointed out that while the United States levied a duty on eggs imported from Canada, the Canadian producer was not in any way protected from the south, and it was asked that a duty equal to that of the United States, five cents per doz., be imposed. The competition with eggs from the United States was being felt, it was said, in various parts of the country.

Reference was also made to the duty on lard oil. Here, too, it was pointed out that while the United States manufacturer was heavily protected the Canadian was not given adequate protection in this most important portion of our hog products.

Mr. Pope also brought up the question of an article manufactured from cotton seed oil and sold in place of butter, which is now coming into the country from the United States. It is a sort of second edition of oleomargarine, and it was held should receive attention.

The Ministers promised to give the various matters brought forward full consideration.

Representations have been made to the Government that if the practice of branding U. S. pork as Canadian is allowed to continue it may lead to the genuine Canadian product being discriminated against by the customs laws of France, Germany and other European countries as United States pork is. The Commissioner of Customs has therefore issued the following notification to collectors: "It has been represented to this department that pork, the product of imported hogs slaughtered or cured in bond and exported, has been branded as Canadian. I have to instruct you in no case to allow such pork to be so branded. If it be the product of American hogs it must be branded as such. Your prompt and decisive action (should there be any such packed at your port or at any place under the survey of your port) is required."

THAT'S THE RIGHT OF IT.

The Detroit Herald of Commerce takes the CANADIAN GROCER to task for spelling the word peddler in this wise: pedlar. It considers it a typographical error, and says: "We have looked all through our 5-cent edition of Webster and fail to find any of that kind of peddlers which seem to trouble the people of Canada." Now our Webster gives all three of the spellings with which we head this article. Our contemporary will agree with us that any spelling fails to do justice to this unique specimen of itinerant mendacity—the pest of the housewife and the bete noire of the legitimate merchant.—New England Grocer.

LET THE PATRONS RUN SOMEBODY ELSE'S BUSINESS.

BALLYCROY, March 19, 1892.

EDITOR CANADIAN GROCER :

SIR,—Please find enclosed $2 for renewal of my subscription for THE GROCER for another year. I must say that I appreciate THE GROCER very highly and take an interest in the letters and editorials you publish about the Patrons of Industry, and would very likely have been trapped into taking them up if I had not been a reader of THE GROCER. However, the Patrons in this locality had no trouble in procuring a merchant to comply with their terms, as they were received with open arms by a merchant (three miles from here), who offered to supply them at ten per cent. advance on wholesale prices. Of course they have the privilege of seeing and copying his invoices, and I now have the privilege of seeing some of my customers going past my store to the Patron store. However, I would rather do less business for a while than let the Patrons run the business for me.

Yours truly, J. MCCLELLAND.

OTTAWA LETTER.

The prevailing cold spell has completely stopped business in this city. It is too late in the season for the carrying on of such works as are generally performed in the winter, and too cold for any building or milling operations to go on. Everything will be at a standstill until the warm weather comes in to stay.

Mr. Watson, M. P., Marquette, will move in the House of Commons that binding twine be placed on the free list.

Mr. Marshall, M. P., West Middlesex, has placed on the Order Paper the following motion :

"That contemplating the Government's making certain changes in the Customs duties during the present session, it is expedient to impose a duty of five cents per dozen upon eggs, and six cents per pound on butter coming into Canada ; the same as now imposed by the Government of the United States upon similar products from this country."

The House of Commons has practically done nothing since the opening. The Budget speech will not be delivered before two weeks at the shortest. The general opinion is that there will be no important change in the tariff.

Ottawa, March 16, 1892. A. E. P.

THE CANNED GOODS INDUSTRY IN CANADA.

No trade has developed as rapidly in Canada as the canned goods industry during the past few years. THE CANADIAN GROCER, being the organ of the Canadian Packers' Association, has as in duty bound watched the progress of this branch of business closely. A dozen years ago Canada was an importer of canned goods. The United States sent us the bulk of our supply. Now we export largely not only to the States but also to Great Britain. In the past two years the progress has been marvellous. In the Province of Ontario alone there are exactly four times as many factories, less one, than there were two seasons ago. The industry is just beginning in Manitoba. Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and British Columbia will show an increase this year. These give employment to thousands of people in the factories and on the farm. The capital invested is now proportionately much greater than ever before. A few years ago the machinery was crude. Four years ago each factory made its own tin cans by hand. Now the tin plate enters one end of a machine and comes out at the other a complete air, tight can. Similar improvements have been made in other branches of the factory. To succeed now it is necessary to have the newest and most improved machinery. The leading Canadian packers are said to be much more enterprising in this respect than their American contemporaries, for they do not hesitate to throw out a valuable machine to put a better one in its place.

LOBSTER FISHERY REGULATIONS.

While the lobster canners who the other day waited on the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, objected to the proposal of a $50 license fee, on the ground that it would discriminate in favor of the large packers as against the small ones, and to the nine-inch minimum, they were in favor of the present close time. They suggested that in lieu of the license fee a nominal charge of a cent or so per case of four dozen cans would be quite sufficient, and by collecting that amount by way of a stamp to be affixed to each case the department would be enabled to keep track of the product and a general supervision over the industry, and that such stamp being affixed, the goods would be given a character in the markets to which they may be sent ; that a continuance of the regulations fixing nine inches as the minimum length would mean a continuance of the impracticability of enforcing such, but if eight inches were named the regulation could be enforced with good results ; that the licensing system per se would be good in principle, and that under it the department could regulate and control the fishery and settle disputes between fishermen, and give some security of tenure of territory to packers. The Minister intimated that he would favorably consider the suggestions made, and that he would not press his proposal as regards the $50 ; that he would adopt the idea of imposing a slight fee, but not as a tax, on the product of the fishery, and that before going before Parliament he would acquaint the deputation of the course decided upon.

LONDON GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association of London was held in Sherwood Hall on the 9th inst., with the president, Mr. W. H. Ferguson, in the chair.

The meeting opened at 8.15 p.m. with a fair representation of members present. The principal officers were all at their respective stations.

The minutes of last meeting were read and adopted.

The following printing accounts were passed and ordered to be paid :—R. Southam, $70 ; Free Press Printing Co., $1.35.

A communication from the British American Starch Co. was read and was considered satisfactory, it being in answer to a letter from the association regarding their advertising the wholesale prices of their stock in the daily press. This the members of the association consider injurious to the retail trade, as it placed the prices before the general public. The British American Starch Co. stated that their object in using the daily papers was to reach the trade in the least possible time, letting them know the stand they were taking, but that they would discontinue in future publishing the price-list in the public press, agreeing with the association that anything having a tendency to reduce the small margin of profit of the retailer should be avoided.

The early closing movement was brought up for discussion, and the feeling of a large portion of the members present was that there was a great improvement of late in the matter of early closing and that this question was gradually working its own cure. The public were being educated to it and were making a practice of doing their trading earlier, and the grocers are now able to close considerably earlier than they did in the past. The members of this association did not feel that they were justified in closing their doors in the face of customers at any stated hour, but if the general public are in favor of early closing they have it in their power by doing their trading earlier in the day.

The question of the action of the Government analyst with regard to imposing fines on the grocer, when in reality in many cases it is the manufacturer that is to blame, and also that consumers are partly accountable, as they demand a cheap article, much cheaper than can be manufactured pure—was considered. The members of this association were recommended to guard against the penalty by seeing that all goods sold by them are stamped "compound" if not strictly pure.

After some other business of local interest was disposed of, the meeting adjourned at 9:45 p.m.

SALES MADE OR PENDING.

T. Ashley, dealer in fruits, flour and feed, Walkerton, Ont., has sold out to George Rowe.

Ray & Lockhart, grocers and fruiters, New Glasgow, N. S., have sold out to James Cavaugh.

S. G. Marling, general merchant, Craven, N. W. T., has bought out G. S. Rise of Pense, and will move to the latter place.

J. L. Burgess, general merchant, of Drumbo, has sold his stock-in-trade to Charles Wilson, of that place, for $2,100, and turned over the proceeds to a Toronto wholesale house, who were large creditors. The other creditors, whose claims amount to about $3,000, are looking for their money. Burgess has also assigned his book assets, nominally worth $1,800, to a Toronto firm, whose claim of $4,000 is thus almost wholly paid.

PARTNERSHIPS FORMED AND DISSOLVED.

Jno. Ross & Co., wholesale grocers, Quebec, have dissolved.

Douglas & Eaton, general merchants, Maitland, N.S., have dissolved.

E. A. Adams, grocer, Walkerton, has taken as partner Mr. T. Ashley, and the firm name is Adams & Ashley.

REMOVALS AND DEATHS.

Ephren Boucher, wholesale fruit dealer, Montreal, is dead.

FIRES.

Repsteim & Co. and T. W. Robinson, general merchants lost heavily by a large fire at Moosejaw, last week.

DIFFICULTIES, ASSIGNMENTS, COMPROMISES.

Wm. Carmichael, Collingwood, has assigned to E. Fair.

J. N. Lemay, general merchant, St Couie, Que., has assigned.

E. C. Ingles, general merchants Foster, Que,, has assigned.

Jas. Bruce, general merchant, Carman, Man., has compromised.

James Scott & Co., grocers, Halifax, N. S., are offering to compromise.

Attwell & Co., general merchants, Norman, Ont., have assigned.

J. E. Lavergne, general merchant, Ste. Louise, Que., has assigned

A. Trudeau, general merchant, Windsor Mills, Que., has compromised.

Jas. Cunningham, grocer, Toronto, has assigned to Henry Barber & Co.

A meeting of the creditors of Geo. Doering, Wellesley, Ont., has been called.

The sheriff is in possession of the grocery stock of C. S. Philips, who commenced at Galt about two years ago on borrowed capital of $1,000. This has since been reduced. His expenses being out of proportion to his sales, he has found an assignment necessary.

W. A. Caldwell, flour and feed dealer, Jarvis, Ont., has been in business five years. He did fairly well until he began selling seed on long credit. Now he has assigned.

Mrs. M. C. Collins, general storekeeper, Watford, has failed. About two years ago she and her husband removed from Blenheim and opened business in her name. She owes $3,800, and has nominal assets of $2,000.

WHY MERCHANTS FAIL.

The New Haven Palladium has the following editorial contribution from Mr. George Henderson, the New Haven manager of the mercantile agency of R. G. Dun & Co. It has interest for every active business man :

Statisticans claim that ninety per cent, of all who enter mercantile pursuits make a failure. This is an appalling statement and if true some good cause for it must be patent. The changes in business concerns throughout the United States and Canada, are computed at two thousand per day. Not necessarily are all these failures, for included in the changes are dissolutions, retirements, deaths, changes of ownership and fires. There are at the present time nearly 1,217,000 business names in the two countries, and that about one-half of these should be involved in changes during the course of three hundred working days is remarkable.

Personal environments seldom alter the individual financial condition of a merchant, except in so far as rises in values are concerned, hence, as thorough a knowledge of the character, capacity and capital of a debtor as can be had, is as inseparable to the dispenser of credit as a compass is to a mariner. Business operations are becoming more and more empheral in their character, consequently more faith is needed in the transaction thereof, and faith without knowledge is simple superstition—a rudderless vessel intended to widen commerce upon.

The great number of failures is not among men of limited means, but among men of limited knowledge. Abundance of capital at the start is not essential to a successful business man. A good character, an industrious disposition economical habits and a knowledge of the business undertaken, are qualifications that capital cannot make ammends for. Take for example a mechanic, making good wages. He has been able to save a few hundred dollars. He is allured into the belief that keeping a shop is an easy life and all that is necessary is to tie up a few parcels to do business. Ten chances to one he pays too much for the old stock to begin with. He knows nothing of values. He is easily overstocked by energetic salesmen. He has not learned to say no to undesirable credit risks. His paltry savings are soon represented by figures on the wrong side of the ledger. He has to depend upon immediate sales to liquidate current obligations. A few dull days overtake him and his paper is protested. This compromises his credit, then where is he ?

An assignment follows, stock is seized by creditors and he is out of business penniless and with a dear bought experience. These scenes are repeated day after day in almost every instance where a man goes into a business he knows nothing about. An examination of the books of the assignor reveals the fact that he owes twenty or thirty different wholesalers. Is there not something strange about that ? Is the man entirely to blame for his failure ? His lack of business knowledge induced him to scatter his indebtedness and it is very easy to understand that indulgence is more readily obtained from a few than many.

Aversion to taking stock is a dangerous habit to fall into. No merchant is safe who neglects to take stock at least once a year. Future operations can only be satisfactorily guaged by the condition of the present. A merchant who does not take stock regularly is doing business on guess work. In case of fire how can he swear positively to what he has lost, and what proof has the insurance company that they owe what the man claims ?

The largest and most conservative houses of the country are now insisting upon their debtors taking stock at least once a year and in carrying ample insurance. They further insist upon a copy of their debtors' balance sheet being placed in their hands every time one is drawn off. There is nothing unreasonable in that. Surely a creditor is justified in satisfying himself as to the advisability of entertaining a debtor's account. When a new account is to be opened a statement of the prospective debtor's financial condition and information relative to the man personally, should be reviewed. How is a wholesale house to discriminate between the good and the bad without data ? The thing is impossible. Investigation respecting a desirable credit list promotes, encourages and strengthens commerce, and is, if anything, more of a benefit, if confidence is deserved, to the inquired about than to the inquirer, and when the risk is undesirable the fact that it is known is a boon to the whole community. The percentage of failures would be lessened materially if the dispensers of credit were less indulgent and knew more of their debtors. Trade would be steadier and the transaction of business void of many of its irksome responsibilities.

Reports from Havana says : The sugar trust in the north is bearing their sugar market and business is suspended in this product. This is more discouraging to planters, who are contending with heavy storms, fires, lack of field hands, and the breaking of machinery. Altogether the outlook for Cuba is very bad for the year 1892, which at the beginning promised so much.

DIFFERENT RETAIL PRICES.

In the columns of our esteemed contemporary The Grocer a somewhat animated correspondence is being carried on respecting the morality and policy of having more than one retail price for the same article. As might have been anticipated, there are various views on the subject, but it is just a trifle disconcerting to gather that the majority of the correspondents of our contemporary favour the adoption of what one of them terms "a little strategy," or, in other words, that the tradesman should try to suit the price to the customer. There are, it is true, many letter-writers who take an unmistakably accurate view of the matter, and who criticise any such plan in a ruthless and righteously-indignant manner, but it seems to be the fact that a large number of grocers make it a standing rule of their business to "get what they can." We do not think the same practice prevails to any extent in connection with the ironmongery business, but if such were the case we should certainly feel called upon to condemn it on what we deem to be sound and valid grounds. We should adopt the words of one of the correspondeuts of The Grocer, who says, inter alia :—"I hold that the principal of strategy is deception, and deception, whether tacit or spoken, is virtually a lie. To expose two quantities of the same article for sale at different prices is to tacitly imply a difference of quality ; and I ask, is it not reasonable, and a necessay consequence, that a customer seeing the article ticketed, should conclude that the higher-priced is the better quality, and so be deceived? And what can the assistant say when challenged, unless he prevaricate (which arouses suspicion) or lie (which produces worst results)? If there be no ticket displayed, the grocer trades upon the ignorance of the public, which is surely cowardly." Of the truth of these observations there can be no doubt, but there are many other objections to variable prices, just as there are numerous advantages in having a fixed single price for every article in stock. French tradesmen know this when they make as they do a great feature of the "prix fixe," and our own drapers appreciate the situation fully by insisting upon the fact that all their goods are marked with the sale prices in "plain figures." Customers know these points also, and they invariably prefer to deal at shops where they have reasonable confidence in the existence of only one price. They are quite right in manifesting that preference, and in doing their best to obtain their purchases at a price which is at once the best and the same as that paid by all the other customers of the same tradesmen. Apart from the honesty of the single-price plan it is obviously by far the most simple and most convenient. Once the principle of variable prices is admitted its incidence cannot be governed with exactitude, and the salesmen, who must be demoralised by the system, cannot be blamed if, in their anxiety to push sales, they exceed the limits laid down for their approximate guidance. That the variable plan must sooner or later operate to the disadvantage and loss of the tradesman who adopts it is so obvious as to need no discussion. Persons who deal at the same shop are very apt to compare prices, and if Mrs. Smith finds that she pays more than Mrs. Jones it is certain that the former, at all events, will transfer her custom to some establishment where more straightforward practices are in vogue. Even the customer who may suppose that he or she obtains the lowest terms is always in a state of uncertainty lest some other customer should be treated better, and finally is pretty sure to become an ardent convert to the simpler and honester system. From almost every point of view, indeed, the plan of having different prices for the same article stands condemned. It may, possibly, be more easily "worked" in relation to groceries than other classes of goods, but in no business is it wise or even honest.—The Ironmonger,

GOOD BUSINESS SUGGESTIONS.

In the regulations suggested by the President, and recently published by the Secretary of the Treasury, some excellent rules for business are laid down. They are applied to the "efficiency record" of all employes in places known as the classified service, and are to be used as a basis for promotion. There are seven of them and include punctuality, attendance, industry, aptitude, accuracy, conduct and ability.

These elements of efficiency may be very properly applied to all business conduct. Young men would do well to consider them seriously and look for their hidden meaning, or seek to realize the whole meaning of them. It would be well to secure a copy of the rules and read them thoroughly. It is too often the case with young men in business that they simply try to hold their positions. They are not interested in the business or welfare of their employer and do not possess within themselves ambition enough to do their work so as to merit promotion.

Some explanations are given in connection with the above rules as to what is meant by the different elements. Punctuality means, in short, to be on time. The office hours are fixed within certain limits, and if an employe is late he loses one dollar for each five minutes of delay. That seems rather a severe rule, but it would work in nine cases out of ten. After an employe had been late a few times he would soon be cured. Punctuality is a great time saver, and time is money. In the busy life of the present day if a man gets behind at the beginning, he is likely to either remain behind or have an everlastingly hard time of it to catch up with the tail end of the procession. The expression is a common one, that "some men have three hands, a right hand, a left hand and a little behind hand." It is sad to state that there are to-day too many three handed young men.

By attendance, more is meant than simply to be present in the office. The term in its fullest sense means that a man should be occupied all the time, seeking all the while to get at a full understanding of the business in all its details. According to the rules, if a clerk neglects his work, one dollar is deducted for every five minutes lost, except in case of sickness.

In regard to industry the rules explain that clerks are expected to be both prompt in their attention to duty and to manifest no disposition to shirk.

A young man who possesses within himself the elements of success will not require the watchful eyes of superior officers to enforce his regard for such rules as are outlined herewith. He will be able to cultivate any one of the elements, for each is susceptible of such cultivation. Take, for example, the habit of punctuality and of giving careful attention to the work in hand. The more industrious a man is, the less disposition does he show towards idleness, and the more careful will he be to do his full share. The readiness to receive instruction and the readiness in applying such instruction to a quick performance of work will increase as it is practiced.

If a man once begins to be careless and slovenly in the performance of his work he will go from bad to worse, while, on the other hand, if he cultivates accuracy he will grow more and more to find enjoyment in his employment, and it will be a pleasure to him to see everything done exactly right. His behavior should be practiced until it becomes natural and then it will be easy.

Small details in the office where employed, such as rude speech, conversation during office hours, lack of courtesy toward superiors and uncouth habits, will all have their influence against a man's promotion. Good conduct, combined with other qualities will recommend an employe to his superior.

Ability, even, is a quality which may be improved upon by cultivation. Very much that we call natural ability is simply a resolute determination to overcome all obstacles that are in the way, no matter at what cost of time and labor. There is, to be sure, such a thing as dullness and stupidity, which belongs to a man and he cannot help it, but such cases do not pertain to the condition of the average young man of to-day. If a man lacks education let him attend an evening school, of which there are a number in the cities, or he can improve his mind by well chosen reading matter. Where there's a will there's a way, and a young man who really desires it will find plenty of chances for self-improvement.

A man ought to think about the business in which he is engaged as if it were his own, and seek to improve it in every possible way. His employer's interests should be his interests and he should serve him even better than he would himself.

Any young man who starts out with a fixed determination to be punctual, faithful in his attendance, energetic in his work, apt in its performance, accurate in whatever he undertakes, careful of his conduct, with a determination to improve himself, thereby increasing his ability, that young man is sure of promotion. Every employer is looking for just that kind of men, and the eminent positions of trust will be occupied by these men who have proven themselves worthy.—Ex.

The projected canning factory at Amherstburg is being pushed by go-head citizens there.

John Blewett, one of the oldest merchants of Napanee, has died with painful suddenness.

D. W. Turnbull, grocer, Aylmer, is in London at the bedside of his father who is very ill.

The resignation of Mr. L. A. Boyer, inspector of flour and meal at Montreal, has been accepted.

Mr. J. H. Price, formerly of Wallaceburg, has gone to London, and will be connected with a wholesale grocery house.

At Suckling's sales the stock of Hugh S. Rose, Strathroy, amounting to $15,000, was sold to T. S. Macrault of that town for 72c. on the dollar.

There is quite a boom at Wallace, N.S., in lobster factory building. There are four additional factories going up on the Wallace coast.

The license commissioners for the city of London have resolved that after the issue of licenses in May next no city grocer shall have a license to sell liquors.

The St. Croix Soap M'fg. Co., have got out a hanger that is intended for retail stores. It is likely to arrest the attention if "color" can be depended on to attract notice.

According to information contained in the new Port Huron directory there are more retail grocery stores than any other line of business in the city. They number 64.

D. Williams & Son, pickle manufacturers, Colborne street, who assigned recently, are offering their creditors a composition of fifteen cents on the dollar, with liabilities $4,700 and assets $1,700.

An order amounting to $800 or $900 from the Patrons of Industry has, it is said, been accepted by a wholesale house. It was being figured on by a Front street retail house, but they could not meet the lower prices given by the wholesale firm.

Mr. F. Young, head clerk for Messrs. Ferguson & Co., London, has decided to go into business on his own account, and has bought a half interest in the firm of Messrs. Marlatt & Spears, Aylmer, Mr. Marlatt retiring. The firm of Messrs. Ferguson & Co. wish Mr. Young success. He aso carries with him the best wishes of all enjoying his acquaintance during the eighteen years he has been with Messrs. Ferguson & Co.

Mr. Richardson informs the Bruce Herald that he will buy eggs by weight this year. So will Wilson, of Seaforth, and other dealers in Western Ontario, as eggs are virtually sold by weight in the English market.

At a recent meeting of the city council of Calgary, the offer of Mr. D McLean, of Lakefield, Ont., to build a 100-barrel flour mill, was accepted. Mr. McLean receives a bonus of $3,000 and exemption from taxation for ten years, he to find his own site.

Mr. Homer, of Homer & Co., Gravenhurst, was in the city on Saturday. He says business in his district is very satisfactory. The Patrons have not invaded it, the farmers there being too intelligent a lot to be carried away by the oily tongued organizers.

Messrs. H. A. Nelson & Sons are putting up a line of matches called the Railroad Matches, which they guarantee suitable for any climate. They are packed in neat pasteboard boxes, making a considerable saving in weight. They are fully described on page 13.

A disastrous fire occurred at the small village of North Gower, Ont., the other night. The stone warehouse and all outbuildings, together with a large stock of goods and three splendid houses, were burned. The premises and stock were owned by George Craig, a merchant of that place. The loss is placed at between $30,000 and $40,000, and it is stated there is an insurance of about $20,000.

Mr. John Moule, grocer, London, will vacate the old stand where the fire occurred some six or eight weeks ago, having disposed of nearly all the stock slightly damaged by water, and will open out a new stock of groceries in the stand on Dundas street, which is now being refitted with all the latest improvements necessary for conducting a first-class business. The stand is a good one for the business, having an entrance from Dundas street and the Market Square.

Great preparations are being made by exporters of fruits to receive and ship the largest crop of pineapples ever sent from Havana, some people estimating that shipments will reach 200,000 barrels of from six to ten dozen pines in each barrel. The pines are classified as extra. Nos. 1, 2 and 3, and are shipped principally to New York, whence they are distributed all over the United States. A small quantity goes to New Orleans. The Cuban pineapple cultivation is increasing every year, large tracts of the finest lands within a radius of 15 and 20 miles of Havana being devoted to this industry.

The following grocers were those whose names were proposed for membership in the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association at the last meeting of that body: Messrs. H. O. Shaver, J. Lanskill, T. Shaw, R. Jackson, J. Reid, W. B. Cherry, Somers Bros., Jas. Shields, J. F. McCleary, W. Hutchison, A. Reid, J. Ringer, D. Perkins, J. McEvoy, A. Lamb, J. Wardell, Wm. Luttrel, D. J. Macdonald, J. McClintock, Geo. Taylor, G. Noble, A. Hudgin, R. P. Scidmore, M H. Young, W. G. Campbell, H. J. Clancy, S. K. Chapman, R. Higgins, W. S. Dulmage. These names were handed in for proposal by Mr. R. M. Corrie, the active secretary.

Messrs. Kenny, of Halifax, and McKay, of Hamilton, M.P.'s, interviewed the Minister of Finance in reference to the importation of the low grade article brought into the country as molasses. Mr. Adam Brown, exhon. commissioner to Jamaica, was asked to join the deputation in the interest of the West India trade. The matter was fully discussed. The Minister, in answer to the statements made, said the question was a very important one and would receive the careful consideration which it deserved, both on account of the inferior article being imported and its bearing on the West India trade, which Canada is doing so much to cultivate.

The committee representing the Retail Grocers' Association called upon all the wholesale grocers and received positive assurance from them that in future they would not sell to ordinary consumers. The committee informed them that if they found that any firm had transgressed, its name would be published. It was understood that no objection would be urged to wholesalers selling to large hotels and public institutions, for if the trade here did not supply them the jobbers in other cities would do so.

Fred. Jones, retail grocer's clerk, was married to Miss Ida Allan in New York last week.

The sugar makers must have been taken back when the blizzard struck them last week.

The contract has been given a Montreal firm to erect and finish a creamery at Glen Ray, Ont.

R. E. Boyd & Co., brush and broom manufacturers, say they have all they can attend to in this line just now.

Mr. T. W. Costigan, one of Montreal's largest tea brokers, has just returned to town after a short business trip.

E. Gleason a West Brome general merchant has compromised at 40c. on the dollar. He was recently burnt out and only partially insured.

Eastern Townships butter sold in St, John's Que., last week for 24 and 25c. per pound, and maple syrups at 80 to 90c. per gallon.

John McCammon, the Megantic grocer, was in town last week buying goods. He says trade is beginning to pick up down that way.

Mrs. J. B. H. Mongenais, widow of the late J. B. H. Mongenais, of the firm of Messrs. Dufresne & Mongenais, grocers, died last week.

Cheesemakers in Cowansville district are requested to attend a meeting there on the 26th of this month, when important matters will be discussed.

The Inland Revenue officers are making quite a few hauls lately. Most of them are made on small corner grocers, who sell liquor without a license.

Mr. D. S. Hislop, of Messrs. Hislop, Meldrum & Co, has left for England presumably to make arrangements for the coming season's export egg trade.

Messrs. C. Lacaille & Co., wholesale grocers, had a small fire at their place of business at the corner of St. Dezin and St. Paul streets. No damage was done.

Miss Hirsch, daughter of Mr. Jacob Hirsch, of the firm of Messrs. Finlayson, Hirsch & Co., wholesale liquor merchants, was married to Mr. Jacobs of New York last week.

Donald McMillan, one of Cornwall's oldest and most respected citizens died last week. Mr. McMillan at one time carried on the largest general store in Cornwall.

The Montreal Warehousing Co., held its annual meeting last week. The following gentlemen were elected directors; Messrs. L. J. Sargent, J. S. Hall, R. Wright, W. M. Ramsay and Thos. Davidson. At a subsequent meeting the Board elected Mr. L. J. Sargent president, J. S. Hall vice-president and managing director, and Geo. H. Hanna, manager and secretary.

Peter McFarlane of Huntingdon, Que., who acted as deputy cheese factory inspector last season, has been promoted by the government to the head inspectorship for the province.

Mr. Ransom, of the firm of Ransom, Forbes & Co., wholesale grocers, who has been laid up for some time, is no better. The trade in general will be sorry to hear this, as Mr. Ransom is well liked by everyone.

Messrs. A. D. Porcheron and Geo. A. Muntz, of Montreal, were in St. Johns on Wednesday last. Their visit had reference to the possible removal of the Porcheron tobacco factory from Montreal to that town. The concern employs from 100 to 150 hands. The proprietors do not ask a cash bonus, but as a compensation for the cost of removal, they make the request of an allowance of five per cent. on the amount of wages paid by them. The proposition is now before the town Council.

As buyers will not make early purchases the early closing movement will likely be a failure in Kingston.

The Saturday night early closing by-law went into effect last week in Ingersoll, and was well observed by all merchants, every store in town being closed at 10 o'clock sharp.

An enthusiastic meeting was held at the Crawford house, Windsor, to talk over the prospects of a canning factory for Windsor. Mr. Moore, of Wallaceburg, was present and gave facts and figures to show the benefits to be derived from such an institution. The matter is being taken hold of by local capitalists, and a prospectus will be issued in a few days. Arrangements are also being made to organize a company to push the enterprise.

The big tank in the Hamilton glass works burst Monday night in some unaccountable manner, and there was an enormous overflow of melted glass. The tank has a capacity of one hundred tons, but it was not full at the time of the break or the damage might have been greater. As it is the loss will amount to about $1,000. The glass ran rapidly over the floor and out on to Macaulay street, where the unusual spectacle was witnessed by crowds of interested spectators. About forty hands will be shut out of employment until the necessary repairs are effected.

The Toronto Children's Aid Society, whose work for destitute children is so well and favorably known, is going to give out contribution boxes. They are of iron and of very neat design, and don't occupy much room. Any of our readers who will place on the counter or fasten one in a prominent place in the store can very much help the society in its funds. Will any who will do so write the secretary, J. Stuart Coleman, 32 Church street, at once, as upon the offers made will depend the number of boxes ordered of the manufacturers. In writing they should state whether they wish the box to be loose or a fixture. The appropriate mottoe of the society is: "It is wiser and less expensive to save children than to punish criminals."

TORONTO MARKET.

TORONTO, March 24, 1892.

GROCERIES.

The moment's needs continue to furnish the main force of the market. These, however, are increasing. Sorting orders cover a wider scope than they did, and at the same time come oftener. There have been fewer retailers from a distance in town, but this is because the bulk of the sugar is bought that is likely to be carried far ahead for speculation, at least before summer freights are due. The ordinary orders for current business are sent for the most part through travellers. All large shipments that can be, will be held back until the first of April to get the advantage of the lower freights. Everything counts when close prices are so general as they are to-day. The condition of trade as to volume is generally voted satisfactory for the time of year, when weather and roads are usually broken. The rush for sugar has pretty well spent itself; tea is not in as strong request as it was; canned goods are moving steadily into consumption; rice is firmer; dried fruits are dull; starch is having a reaction of dulness, and prices are higher. Payments are not complained of.

COFFEES.

A proclamation of President Harrison, imposing a duty on the coffee of Venezuela and one or two other South American republics, because of the lack of reciprocal concessions by those countries, was made, then suspended and finally given force. This left the coffee market outside in some uncertainty, but speculative influence was on the side of advance in Brazil coffees—Santos and Rios. The market has on the whole taken this direction. Supplies here are fuller than they were a week ago, and better grades of Brazil are in stock. The price ranges from 17½ to 22c. Mochas are firm, as also are Javas, from 27c. upwards. A rather moderate movement is to be noted in all descriptions.

DRIED FRUIT.

Easy prices are not a matter merely of the present, according to indications, but appear to be good for the remainder of the crop year. Buyers feel that they have nothing to gain, but may stand a chance to lose, by stocking now far ahead of immediate requirements. Hence business is as dull as prices are weak and easy. Valencia raisins are obtainable at from 4½c. up for off-stalk. The stock in the London market is reported to be 1500 tons. Sultanas are plentiful from 10c. upwards. Fancy bakers keep a demand going. Travellers report it hard to sell any raisins at paying prices or in large quantities. Currants present no new feature. The range of quality is still wide, and that is adverse to prices. Anybody who has a grade to quote at 4¾c. is sure to bring down the prices of somebody else who has not so low a grade. The lowest price that appears to be warranted is 5c., but lower quotations have been made. Currants are being bought to arrive in May, which it is said can be jobbed at 4½c. or lower. The low offers made for delivery after the opening of St. Lawerence navigation are said to have caused the withdrawal of the samples of one Grecian shipper. Prunes are steady and in moderate demand at 5¼ to 5½c. for casks, and from 6¼c. for cases. Evaporated California fruit is a fair selling line just now, plums quoting at 12c., apricots ot 12½c., unpeeled peaches 12½c., peeled peaches 22c.

NUTS.

A lot is now and then called for in a letter order, but the trade is of inconsiderable volume. Filberts and almonds are the leaders in what small movement there is. Prices are steady. Cocoanuts are very quiet, San Blas quoting at 6c. and Baracoas at 5c.

RICE AND SPICES.

Stocks of rice on spot are small. Higher prices will probably have to be paid, according to advices from the mills. It is claimed that the cost of rough rice is now the highest that it has ever been known to be, owing to the failure of crop in India and Siam. Being short on large purchases on Java and South American account has brought Burmah into the field as a buyer instead of a seller. The mills consequently want ⅛c. per lb. on contract prices of last season, and say they ought to have ¼c. The price of A and B accordingly is quoted at 4 to 4⅛c.

Spices have no call but the ordinary every day demand, the momentum of the special winter consumption being exhausted. No change is to be noted in prices.

The London Oracle says that in the spice market business has been just about as dull as it could be, and everybody interested has been crying out at the horrible state of depression ruling. Black Singapore pepper has only been dealt in to a small extent. At the opening, January-March shipment sold at 3d, and sellers, and later June-August brought 3⅛d, closing with near at hand at 3 1-32d. Nothing done in white Singapore to arrive, but in sale, dullish to good fair sold at 5⅛ to 5⅜d. being rather better. On the spot, white Penang sold at 4⅝d. which

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.

Here and there retailers' fall purchases of vegetables are beginning to run out, and a revival of interest in the market is being shown by several large traders, who are on the lookout for fresh supplies. Some have already laid in their spring stock, and have made a test of the market that satisfied them of its intrinsic strength. In some cases days would pass before an initial offer would culminate in a deal, but in the end the buyer would have to come the whole distance between his experimental figure and the seller's practical one. In lots of 50 cases efforts to bear the market would usually begin 5c. below the quotation, then 2½c., and finally close with the jobber's price. The demand for canned vegetables, irrespective of spring replenishment of large stocks, is good, nearly every order for sundry groceries calling for from one to five cases of vegetables. Peas and tomatoes are firm at $1.05 to $1.10. The stock is in such limited compass that holders are sanguine of an advance. The views as to corn, too, are that there will be no surplus by the time renewal from the new crop is due. It is the vegetable that has longest to run. The price is steady at $1 to $1.05, the lower figure quoting for brands that do not rank first-class. The demand for corn is increasing, in fact that for all canned vegetables is opening out. Fruits are getting into the current of trade now. A few odd cases go out with assorting orders now and then. Peaches are firm at $2 to $2.25 for 2-lb. and $3 to $3.25 for 3 lb. cans. Strawberries are next in activity to peaches. All fruits are steady at Prices Current quotations. The cutting on salmon has been brought up rather sharply by the failure of the supply of talls of certain brands, notably Horse Shoe, which is now very scarce. Lots changed hands among wholesalers at $1.40 towards the close of the week, and now the few who have any to sell want $1.42½ to $1.45. Flats are rather high-priced to go freely, but as the season of chief demand is yet in the future they stand a good chance to go out at well-maintained prices. Lobsters are steady and quiet

MONTREAL.

Outside a small jobbing trade there is absolutely nothing doing in canned goods. The 2,000 cases which have been on the market for so long a time are now being pushed forward. An offer of 90c was made for the lot last week, but the deal was not closed. The market here is quiet, and dealers who are stocked say that they are satisfied with their stock. We quote:—Lobsters, per case, $7.75 to $8; mackerel, per case, $4.25 to $4.50; sardines, per case, $8.50 to $9.50; salmon, per box, $1.35 to $1.40; clams, 1 lb. tins, per doz., $2; oysters, 1 lb. tins, per doz., $1.40 to $1.45; New Brunswick sardines, per 100, $4.75 to $5; tomatoes, Quebec, $1.05 to $1 10; peaches, per doz., $2 to $2.10; Bartlett pears, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $1.75 to $2; strawberries, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $2.25 to $2.50; pineapples, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $2.30 to $2.40; plums, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $1.25 to $1.75; corn, Erie & Aylmer, per doz., $1 to $1.10; corn, Hoeggs, $1.25 to $1.30; string beans, 2 lb. tins, per doz., 90c. to $1; Lima beans, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $1.20 to $1.25; marrowfat peas, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $1.15 to $1.25; succotash, 2 lb. tins, per doz., $1.80 to $2.

is also an advance on the price ruling last week. Zanzibar cloves have been very severely left alone, with reports of only a few hundred bales, May-June delivery, at 33-16d; now no sellers under 3¼d. It will not be surprising to hear that cloves are being well taken in hand before very long. Cochin ginger is dull of sale, and 2s decline has been accepted. Chilies are very much dearer.

SUGAR.

Wholesalers are not usually thankful that the money in the pockets of the retail trade is limited, but they are very well pleased that there was not more available for investment in sugar at present prices. As it was, there was an unlooked for rush to buy, up till the end of last week, and the assurance of buyers who went in to get sugar for summer trade was the best indication the year's business has yet shown that money is not so very scarce among certain grades of retailers. It was plentiful enough to spoil the early spring trade at least for the jobbers, who still cling to the hope that something may yet be done for the protection of the wholesalers' margin. Instances have been reported to the Guild of sales for delivery after the first of April, for the purpose not only of securing summer freights, but of evading the clause fixing the time limit to 30 days. This is reported to have been done by means of dating ahead. The half chest of tea and barrel of sugar are still coupled by some houses who find an occasional customer willing to buy these goods together. Other houses regard it as a means of flim-flamming the retailer out of a profit. The starting point for prices is still 3½c. for yellow and 4½c. for granulated. But these are preferential prices, open only to old customers who are to be treated to as good as is going. Slow-paying customers are the only ones taxed with a profit. The sugar market has not substantially changed. The price of raw is still firm. Refiners maintain their prices. Cars sell 4½c. f.o.b. Montreal.

Willett & Gray's weekly Sugar Statistical says:—Raws—The large receipts of the week delayed business until near the close, when several cargoes changed hands at former firm prices, both for New York and outports. The changed conditions of refiners, as we give them elsewhere, may prevent the anticipated advance in raw sugar, but should lead to very little, if any decline, owing to the strong conditions existing everywhere, if we except Germany, where financial distress apparently prevails to some extent. Cuba has had many rainy days recently, which has interfered with grinding, and the weather which shall exist at the end of the crop, say in May and June, will be of the utmost consequence. No news of special importance this week from other cane countries and the beet crop.

Refined—After an advance of 1-16 to ⅛c. early in the week the demand suddenly ceased, because of the large purchases which had been previously made and which must be absorbed by the country before a new demand comes. In the meantime the markets remain strong, and the next change will be an advance, but not immediately.

TEA KETTLE VS. WASH BOILER

A teakettle doesn't hold much water, but there's hot water enough in it to do an ordinary wash. There's no boiling or scalding the clothes needed with Surprise Soap. That's different from the heavy wash boiler; the steam about the house; the muss of it. It's a striking difference between SURPRISE and other Soaps. Your customers appreciate Surprise on this account. It has been on trial eight years, and there's money in it.

TORONTO : Wright & Copp, 40 Wellington St. East.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Low prices cannot force the sale of syrups against dulness in the demand, which is probably due in part to the large quantity of preserved fruit that is in the households of the country. Values run in the old lines from 1⅞c. up.

Molasses shows no sign of improvement. Locally the demand is very quiet. It never amounts to much in this province at the best, as compared with Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. New molasses is reported to be 1c. lower in Barbados. Prices are unchanged.

TEAS.

A slight decline in business is admitted by most jobbers. Retail buyers, not being deterred by the same restrictions in time as apply to some other staples, make larger purchases when they do buy. Their operations have not benefited prices materially, as despite the output, values are as easy as ever. Japans are most favored still, Congous are next, Young Hysons last. Buying is on the upper side of 13c. as a rule. Young Hysons at 15c. are very good sellers.

The enquiry for Indian teas steadily increases, the demand being chiefly for medium Pekoes. From London we learn that the more confident tone noticed last week has been well maintained. There is apparently a little more enquiry for the common sorts. although no quotable change in prices can be recorded. Medium sorts remain steady at last week's rates, and finer to finest grades are in great demand, and realise good prices, there being a great scarcity of really desirable liquoring invoices. The smaller sales of Ceylon teas helped the market, and there was more general competition. Common and medium grades ruled steadily, while good medium, with strength and point, were in more request, buyers often paying a slight advance. Fine and finest sold rather irregularly, but full prices were obtained for most of the best lines. A great many invoices have shown signs of the unfavourable weather prevalent at the time of manufacture, the dry leaf being mixed and brownish, and the liquor lacking fulness, which has to some extent caused an apparent reduction in values. Recent advices, however, report an improvement in the teas coming forward. Compared with February, 1891, a material expansion is to be recorded in the exports from here, those for the past month having amounted to 272,000lbs., against 94,000lbs. The average is about 9d. per lb., against 9d. per lb. last week.

MARKET NOTES.

The price of starch has been advanced ¼c. by the St. Lawrence and the Edwardsburg companies. In Prices Current the changes are made. No action has been yet taken by the British America Co. The discount of the two former firms remain 10 and 3 per cent.

COOK'S FRIEND BAKING POWDER.

The Best Grocers Make a point of Keeping it always in Stock.

Cheese, put up in a handsome glass jar. It is one of the most attractive looking lines to be seen in stock, and is certainly a very superior cheese. Wright & Copp are the agents on this market.

Mr. John Wilkins of this city has associated himself and the maple syrup and sugar business of his firm at Adamsville with Messrs. Clemes Bros., Toronto, the Front street importers and wholesale fruit merchants. Mr. Wilkins says the Eastern Townships farmers are ready at a day's notice to commence "tapping." Up to Monday last the weather has kept too cold.

W. Boulter & Sons, whose name has been so long and favorably associated with the "Lion" brand of canned goods, complain that another packer has been using that name on his labels. In future the former firm will use the word "Boulter" on their labels. When any retailer buys the "Lion" brand he should see that it is Boulter's.

PETROLEUM.

The price of Canadian refined is 14 to 14½cc. to retailers outside of the city. City traders pay ½c. more for cartage, making the range 14½ to 15c. The usual limited movement for this time of year is reported. Empties are 65c.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.25 per barrel; Oil Springs crude $1.25 per bbl. The course of crude prices during the week under review, while gradually tending downward, has not been decisively indicative of a permanent decline. Business on the oil exchange has continued very dull throughout the week, and few features of interest have transpired. The almost complete absence of speculative interest on the part of any outside operators combines to be a feature of discouragement, and the purchase of the raw material is in the hands of a few local manufacturers. The price of refined oil keeps very low, and the chances are that the fall trade for 1892 will still witness the keenest kind of competition between manufacturers of illuminating oil. A few years ago a refiners' syndicate would have been the result of this competition, but to-day it looks very much like a war to the knife affair.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

One turnover puts butter almost in the last hands at once, so scant is the supply. Common as well as choice grades find ready sale at good prices. The class in greatest abundance is medium, and there is far from any excess of that. Store tubs are more numerous, as large rolls are being made up into that form by some country buyers. Large rolls preponderate, however. The scarcity of butter is not a mere local matter, caused by purchases at outside railway points on Montreal account. There is nothing to be got by such modes of collecting, as there are no accumulations of past makes in the country, and current production is easily absorbed locally. The scarcity of dairy butter would appear to be beneficial to the trade in creamery butter. That description, however, finds little general sale at maintained prices, and any demand for it that has developed is due to concessions on recent quotations. Butter that was held at 26c. is now readily offered at 22c., and not too freely taken. Good dairy tubs are 16 to 20c., medium are 13 to 15c., and common 11 to 13c.

Cheese is in steady demand at firm prices, 12½c. holding for small lots of choice late autumns. Half creams are quiet at 10c.

The Cheese Committee of the Home and Foreign Produce Exchange, Limited, London, England, report for February that since their last address of March, 1891, they have carefully watched for an improvement in the make and boxing of cheese, as well as the important point of care in shipping. In the States, whence they had expected some improvement, they deplore a retrograde movement, as the quality of the product has still further receded in popular esteem. On all hands complaints are made that unless the cheese is sold to the consumer almost instantly on arrival, the result is disastrous. As a consequence during the most important four months of the season the market pays 2s. to 3s. per cwt. less to the United States than to their neighbours in Canada. In Canada some sections have shown a marked improvement, and certainly the reputation of the country is progressive—the exception being the fodders, which arrived on this market very dry and holey. The boxes are still a weak point. With a tendency to make larger and heavier cheese, it is essential that the packages should be stout, sound and well fitting. The improvement made by the shipping companies in the delivery from Montreal, via. Thames Haven has greatly helped them. They can now land cheese by the direct steamers within 12 days, and at as small an expense as any other port. The special feature of the season has been the rapid advance which London has made as an importing centre for cheese, and it is now the leading market in Great Britain—the direct and "through" imports largely exceeding any other port. Merchants have proved equal to the situation, and have shown themselves capable of dealing properly with the increased supply. It is worth the attention of producers to study and cater for the wants of so large a number of potential customers.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES—As the weather softens and the question of keeping becomes more difficult, the market eases, particularly as former shipments abroad were large and the stock in the country is considerable. The range is $1.25 to $2.50, with a tendency to make $2.25 the highest quotation.

BEANS—Perhaps the market was never in a more unhealthy state than it is now. Offers are free at 90c., and buyers show no desire to take advantage of the drop. Growers appear to have a large quantity of stock to sell. Choice hand-picked can be bought at $1 to $1.05 in cars. Re-selling is done at $1 10 to $1.20.

CRANBERRIES—Abundance of stock, exhaustion of the regular seasonable demand, and varieties of quality depress the price to as low as $4.50 per barrel. Very good stock is obtainable at $5.

DRIED APPLES—The price is scarcely more than nominal, 4¾c. being the outside figure at the moment. The stock does not appear to be excessive, but there is no demand.

EVAPORATED APPLES.—The line of value has been forced down by sheer neglect on the part of the demand, and 7 to 7½c. are the figures that rule now. Some holders who stood out for higher prices when the corner was being attempted some months ago are now sorry they did not sell.

EGGS.—The market is exceptionally dull and weak. Heavy supplies are met by a re-

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

The flour trade does not make much progress, as buyers in the east are not readily brought to pay the prices shippers here hold out for. The lower price of wheat seconds the offers of buyers and tends to weaken the holders of stocks. Potatoes still tend downwards. This also depresses prices. The shipping business is therefore light. Locally the usual consumptive demand keeps up. Feed is steady but in only moderate demand.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $5.20; strong bakers', $4.85; Ontario patents, $4.40; straight roller, $4.75; extra, $4.10 to $4.15: low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $5.10 to $5.50; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.70 to $4.90; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.90; straight roller, $4.10 to $4.20; extra, $3.95 to $4.00; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

MEAL—Oatmeal is $3.90 to $4.00. Cornmeal is $4.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is $4.50 per barrel.

FEED—Bran is $14 to $15, shorts $15 to $16, mixed feed $23 to $25, cracked corn $1.15, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 33 to 34c.

HAY—is fairly active at $11.50 to $12 for No.1 timothy and $10 to $10.50 for mixed.

STRAW—is steady at $6 to $6.50.

MONTREAL.

Flour to-day was dull, and the small jobbing call did not liven the market up to any great extent. Values are more or less nominal. We quote:—Winter patents, $5 to $5.20; spring patents, $5.20 to $5.40; straight rollers, $4.50 to $4.70; extra, $4 20 to $4.25; superfine, $3.90 to $4.00; city strong bakers', $5; strong bakers', $4.60 to $4.90.

The oatmeal market remains very dull, the further reduction in prices noted to-day having failed up to time of writing to effect any alteration in the character of the demand. The stock in store on Saturday last showed an increase of 999 barrels when compared with the same day of the week just previous, and an increase of 3745 when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote:—Granulated, bbls. $3.95 to $4; Rolled, bbls. $3.95 to $4; Standard, bbls. $3.85 to $3.90; Granulated in bags $1.92 1-2 to $1.95; Rolled, in bags $1.92½ to $1.95 Standard, in bags $1.85 to $1.90.

Feed is steady on the whole, bran and shorts finding some call. We quote bran $15 to $16, shorts $16 to $17 and moullie $23 to $24.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Flour—The market is yet purely local and prices are unchanged, though lower figures are talked of. Prices are $5.85 to $5.95 for Manitoba; Ontario High grades are $5.15 to $5.20., while Medium Patents are quoted at $4.85 to $5. 05.

Corn Meal—A fair demand with prices steady.

ceding consumptive demand. Some expectations of a duty on United States eggs were entertained, but did not affect the market. The price is now 11½ to 12c for fresh, and limed are not wanted.

HIDES—Stock is very grubby just now. It is not particularly plentiful though. Green are on a basis of 4½c., the price of No. 1, cows'. Cured go as fast as they are offered, at 5c.

HONEY—Cheap syrups, cheap fruits of all descriptions, and now the early incoming of maple syrup are taking the larger share of the demand that the honey market requires to be strong. Prices are 9 to 10c. for extracted, and 14 to 16c. for sections.

HOPS—The brewers have not made any notable move since last report, and prices continue to be the mere quotations of sellers, who may not be able to maintain their views in actual transactions. They are 18 to 24c. for 91's according to quality, and 18c. for yearlings.

ONIONS—Are firm at a somewhat lower price than held last week. The value is now $2.25 to $2.75. Milder weather enables shippers to send forward supplies.

POTATOES—The signs point to a continuance of the present unremunerative market. Offers on track have gone as low as 30c., with 32½c. the rule. Out of store prices rarely get above 40c. per bag.

SEEDS—No great interest is shown by buyers. Prices are $7.50 to $8.50 for red clover, $6 to $8 for alsike, $1.80 to $2 for timothy.

SKINS—Sheepskins are in fairly good supply at $1.10 to $1.25. Calfskins are more plentiful at 5 to 7c.

WOOL—The price, 18c., is unchanged. Dealers do not care to pay it, and sellers do not care to take it.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

Small rail lots of dressed hogs continue to come in and the street supply is shrinking. Values are unaltered at $5.75 to $6. As a change in the duty was anticipated, all the United States hogs in bond on Tuesday, the day before the appearance of the budget, were taken out. The same cause, the expectation of an increase in duty, had a temporarily firming effect on the market for native hogs and products. An inquiry for two cars of short cut was received by one house on Tuesday. Long clear is in stronger interest at the moment among purchasers of supplies for mines and lumber camps. All products are firm.

BACON—Long clear is unchanged at 7¾ to 8c. Heavy smoked bellies are 10c., medium 10½c., boneless 11c., backs 10½c., rolls 8 to 8½c.

HAMS—The price for lots of any size is 10½c.

LARD—The price is firmer at 9¾ to 10¼c. for tubs and pails. The higher price of pure and the scarcity of common grades of butter cause compound to come into some demand at 7½ to 8½c.

BARREL PORK—United States mess is unchanged at $13 to $14 and Canadian at $15. Short cut is $16 to $16.50.

DRESSED MEATS—The supply is waning under milder weather. Beef forequarters are 4½ to 5c., hindquarters 7½ to 8c.; lamb is 8 to 9½c., mutton 7 to 7½c., veal 8½ to 9½c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Supplies of California oranges are now coming forward. Several cars have already been received. The Riverside seedlings so far to hand do not show desirable quality; having been touched with frost, their keeping qualities are affected. The navels on the other hand arrive in good condition and show good quality. The Riversides are $3.50, the navels $4.50 to $5. Florida oranges are not quite so firm as they were, the arrival of California oranges having tended to ease the price of the former. They still quote, however, at $3.75 to $4.25. Valencias are steady at $4.50. New Messina oranges are also in stock and selling at $3.50. Lemons are quite firm at $3.50. Bananas are more plentiful, cars being now handled. The fruit arrives green and is matured in banana rooms. The price is $1.75 to $2.25. New Jersey sweet potatoes are likewise on the market, and very bright samples they are. The price is $4 to $4.50 per barrel. Pineapples are steady at 22 to 25c.

FISH AND OYSTERS.

The fresh fish trade has been somewhat brisker than usual this week, but prices are easy. Lake Huron white fish are down to 6c., and Manitoba white fish are worth from 7 to 7½c. The stocks are fairly large yet and the tendency is towards lower prices. The volume of the fish trade has been very much less than the corresponding period of last year, due to a great extent to the attitude of the church. The oyster trade is practically over.

SALT.

The trade in car lots has been slow, but prices remain firm Small quantities have been in better demand than for some time.

DRY GOODS.

The wholesale trade find business a little above the average for this period of the year. The trade in spring goods continues brisk and the indications are that the total volume will be fully up to moderate expectations. Payments are very fair and the feeling of the trade generally is good.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, March 24, 1892.

The week has shown no noticeable change and the wholesale houses generally speak of trade as on the pick up. The men out are doing fairly well, but some houses say they might do better, while others are well satisfied with the orders that are coming in. Sugar shows a firmer tendency, and although the trade are not pushing it it is in good demand. All other lines are about on the same footing as they were last week, except apples, which are higher and in good demand. The French trade say they are satisfied with business in their section of the country. Importers and agents say they are getting good orders for spring delivery, especially in the pickle and sauce business. Payments on the whole have been coming in fairly.

SUGAR.

While the wholesale houses report a good demand for all grades of sugar, there is only a fair movement from the refineries. The refiners here are still very firm in their ideas of values, and will not shade quotations even for large lots, in fact it is rumored that they are asking 4.9-16. The wholesale grocers are evidently holding off for lower prices, and are generally not pushing off sugar very greatly. Some of the wholesalers are still selling at 4⅜c., as they think this is a good

Advices from New York state that granulated has advanced another eight of a cent being 4⅜ now, and very firm at the advance, raws are a trifle easier on the whole the tone of the market is firm. Locally the market here has been very active this past week, and the demand was fully equal to the supply at the refineries. We quote :—Granulated, 4½c.; yellows, low grades, 3½c. to 3¾c.; bright yellows, 3⅞c to 4⅛c at the refineries.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.

Syrups continue in slow demand, Canadian being offered at 1¾ to 2¾c per pound. There is a good deal of business done in American syrups as there is every expectation of the advance in the duty shortly. Their is a fair jobbing trade in molasses at 35c for Barbadoes and 27 to 28 for New Orleans, several sales of Barbadoes aggregating about one hundred puncheous at the above figure. Latest advices from the Island report the market easier. We quote Barbadoes 35 to 38c., American 28c., syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 30 to 45c. for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

TEAS.

There is a good movement in all the best lines of teas at good prices, but low grade Japans are still moving slowly. There was a sale made last week of 150 packages of fine drawing gouds which brought 18¾c. Outside of this sale there is not much doing except for best lines. Indian and Ceylon teas are having their usual sales.

COFFEES.

A small drop took place in coffee a couple of days ago, but this has been recovered and the market is about in the same position as it was last week. Locally the market here is steady and firm, some sales on London account have transpired, and the consignment noted last week that came direct from Aden has been placed and another will quickly follow. We quote :—Rio, 18 to 20c.; Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c.; Jamaica, 19 to 21c.; Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c.; Santos, 17½ to 19c.

RICE.

The rice market is dull and unchanged, with no new feature to note. Advices from primary state that Japans are steady but other kinds strong.

DRIED FRUIT.

Jobbers are doing a fair trade in dried fruits, there is also some enquiry for old stock, about 60 to 70c. per box, but the quantity here in first hands is very small. In fact the only transaction of importance was the sale of a round lot of ordinary off-stock Valencia at 4c. Values on prime stock rule steady, but 5c. is an extreme outside price, and 4¾c. is nearer the general idea for prime stalk. Some buyers have been moving and values are steady at 6c. Currants are easier, with only a moderate jobbing call at 5½c. Prunes are unchanged. New Bosnais from 5½ to 6c., and there is very little old stock here, about 100 boxes being the extent of it, for which they are asking 4c. Figs are fairly active at the old figure, viz., 6 to 10c.; dates are easier at 4½ to 5c. according to quality.

NUTS.

Nuts move quietly from jobbers' hands, with no change in prices since our last report. We quote as follows :—Almonds, Tarragona 14 to 15c.; Almonds, Ivica 14 to 15c.; Almonds, common 10 to 11c.; Almonds, hardshell 07 to 08c.; Walnuts, Grenoble, new 12 to 13c.; Walnuts, French 10 to 10½c.; Cocoanuts per 100 $4.50 to $5; Filberts 9 to 10c.; Pecans 16 to 17c.; Peanuts 07 to 10c.

GREEN FRUIT.

There is a fair trade doing in green fruit, with few new features. Valencia oranges are higher, owing to the advance in Liverpool, at $4 for 420's and $4.50 for 714's. Palermo's bring $2 to $2.50, while Floridas are scarce and bring $3.25 to $3.75; Jamaicas in barrels bring $6.50 to $7. In lemons it is expected importations this spring will be heavy, and four steamers have already been chartered. The market here now is quiet, with business on a limited scale at $2.50 to $3, as to quality, anything fancy bringing better prices. Strawberries, bananas and pineapples have a few sales at high prices and we quote strawberries 50 to 55c. per box, bananas at $2.75 to $3.25 per bunch, and pineapples 25 to 30c. apiece.

APPLES.

The apple market has been stiffening up during the past few days under diminishing supplies, and now the fact that there has been some buying up of country rather out of the ordinary is rousing some interest. Some of these purchases are for shipment, for although States have been fareing badly, choice Canadian stock have generally found favorable markets. Locally the absence of Linten observances has been the chief factor and now prices are firm at $3.00 to $4.00 per barrel, which is comparatively high. As noted last week some good profits were made on English shipments. In evaporated the market remains firm and unchanged at 8 to 9c., dried are dull and bring 5 to 6c., evaporated peaches bring 12 to 13c. in 25 pound tins.

HOPS.

The hop market is about the same as it was last week and outside of a few jobbing sales there is no new feature in the tone of the market. Choice Canadian brings from 22 to 24c. There has been a few bales of German hops sold for 18c but they were not a clean sample. Pressed hops are having better call lately and we quote the old figures viz 18c 3 per cent 30 days.

FISH.

The consumption has been a little larger since our last report and it has not been found necessary to make any further reductions. The demand is still of a mild order and British Columbia fresh salmon is selling very slowly. Cod and haddock are low and are selling at 2½ to 3c per pound. The demand for frozen herrings is very fair but prices are lower, sales being reported at $1.25 to $1.35 for average stock. We quote : Herring, No. 1, per bbl., $5.00 to $5.05; lake trout, per half bbl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.75 to $9.25; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4 75 to $4.80; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

SMOKED FISH.

We quote :—Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.15 to $1.30; Saint John's bloaters, per box, $1 to $1.10; boneless cod, large boxes, 6 to 7c; do small boxes, 7 to 8c.

PICKLED FISH.

Labrador herring are quoted at $5.50 to $5.75 per bbl, and French Shore at $5 to $5.25. Sea trout $4.50 per half bbl. Salmon is nominally quoted at $12 in bbls. Dry cod $5 to $5.25, and green cod $5.25 to $5.50 for No. 1, and $5.75 for large.

PROVISIONS.

The local provision market continues dull and neglected and there is less business than usual for this time of the year, and the feeling is easier but values are nevertheless withstanding the pressure of the declining market in Chicago better than might be supposed. We quote as follows. Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.50 to $17.00; mess pork, western, per brl. $16.00 to $16.50; short cut, western, per brl. $17 to $17.25; hams, city cured, per lb. 10½c. to 11c; lard, Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c; bacon per lb. 9c. to 10c; lard, com. refined, per lb. 7¼ to 8c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The butter market does not pick up, and with no export demand to mention dealers who are jobbing out here are commencing to complain. The supply is not heavy for the season, but the local demand is very disappointing and only goes to prove that it can never be depended on where there is no other outlet available. Some stock is moving to the Maritime provinces, principally undergrade Townships, at 16½ to 17c. but the deals are unimportant. Values remain about as before. We quote :—Creamery, 20 to 22c.; Townships, dairy 18 to 20c.; Morrisburg and Brockville, 18 to 19c.; Western dairy, 16 to 17c.

Cheese is without any new feature, and aside of consigned stocks being jobbed to the retail grocers here, there is not much doing.

EGGS.

The egg market is becoming more demoralized every day, and the continued liberal arrivals coming upon a market already fully supplied has a bad effect, and new laid stock is offered at 12½ to 13c.

GRAIN.

Wheat is without change, and there was nothing particular regarding the coarse grains to-day.

We quote values generally as follows :—No. 2 hard Manitoba, $1.03; No. 3 do., 97c.; No. 2 Northern, $1.04.; peas, 72c. to 74c. per 66 pounds; oats, 31c. per 32 pounds, for Quebec; Ontario, 34c. per 34 pounds; corn, 60 to 62c., duty paid; feed barley, 42 to 43c.; good malting do., nominal.

The stocks in store show an increase of 34,916 wheat, 579 corn, 18,874 peas, 39,413 oats, 6,200 barley, 888 rye, 3,502 flour, and 999 oatmeal compared with a week ago. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 293,523 wheat, 204,237 peas, 105,128 oats, 41,046 barley, 7,290 rye, 3,745 oatmeal, and a decrease of 8,075 corn, and 452 flour.

The stocks of grain and flour in Montreal on the dates mentioned were as follows.

	Mar. 19, 1892.	Mar. 12, 1892.	Mar. 20, 1891.
Wheat, bush	629,063	584,147	385,540

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N. B., March, 23, 1892.

Business shows very little improvement over last week, though the prospects are looking brighter for a good spring trade.

The price of molasses keeps steady, though the quantity offering is light.

BUTTER—Is still very scarce and prices are somewhat higher, 18 to 21c. as to quality.

BEANS—Are lower than they have been known for years, and it would seem as if the present time were the most favorable for laying in stocks. Mediums in quantities are $1.30, and hand picked $1.40 to $1.50.

EGGS—Are coming in more plentiful and prices are somewhat easier.

FISH—Cod are ruling about the same as last quoted. Pollock are still scarce, and prices are some higher.

The internal organism of the traveling man should be a mixture of mule, ostrich, and camel. Part mule, that he may be able to sleep on his feet if no better accomodations may be at hand; part ostrich, that he may be able to eat and digest any thing set before him; and part camel, that he may, if necessary, go a long time between drinks.—Ex.

The council of the St. John (N.B.) Board of Trade have adopted a resolution that Parliament be requested to re-enact the insolvency law of 1875, as amended in the subsequent year, with certain changes. The changes suggested are the addition of provisions for settlement by composition as in England; that an official assignee be always taken, and that the release of the debtor be made more difficult than formerly, where the amount paid is less than 50 cents on the dollar.

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday's yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

JOHN BAKER EDWARDS, P.L.D., D.C.L., F.C.S.,

Public Analyst for the District of Montreal, and Professor of Chemistry.

CHEMICAL LABORATORY, MEDICAL FACULTY, MCGILL UNIVERSITY.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

"Diligence is the mother of good fortune."

Commercial opinion is making a strong rally in behalf of a national Insolvency Act. The need for such a measure has been a crying one ever since the repeal of the Act of 1875, and the cause gathers momentum every year. Failures multiply, and sinister influences play an increasingly large part in the occurrence of them. The fraudulent debtor is not nearly so retiring and covert in his operations as he was a few years ago. He knows that the key of the position is in his hands, and the creditors will always parley, if there is a chance of thereby getting any money, rather than risk that chance by bringing the rogue to justice. They do not often enough insist on unconditional surrender. The surrender is on their part in fact, while the terms are dictated in such cases by the man who fails in order to make money. The failure and reinstatement of such a man usually works far-reaching mischief. It causes a disturbance of local trade conditions that may shake the solvency of half-a-dozen deserving merchants. The impact upon the commercial atmosphere causes upsetting waves often a long distance away. It is said that four per cent. of all the failures last year were due to fraud. That proportion might suffice to bring about twenty per cent. of the failures that are assigned to other causes. One town is in memory just now, wherein a few years ago a very large dry goods and grocery store ran a meteoric career. It went the pace that kills, but its failure was no financial suicide, though that failure and the preceding ruinous competition that had been kept up by the house, brought real enough death to many stores in that town, and to several stores in smaller places in the district tributary to the market of that town. The number of fraudulent failures is very small, compared with the number of failures necessitated by fraud.

There is sad need of a Dominion Insolvent Act that will not be rendered nugatory by lax discharge provisions. That is not the only thing that is wanted, though. An application of an insolvent Act to any particular case is one end of a process. The other end is hardly less important; it is the credit system. If that were corrected, it would be possible to get along tolerably well with the present imperfect provincial insolvent laws. But the two ends of the process match each other fairly well. Credit is freely dispensed, failures are numerous and costly. An attendant evil, which has a big share in the production of failures, is the constant strain on capital that doing business without a profit keeps up. Prices are sacrificed as if profits were of no account, and the thrill of savage joy that a trader feels when he makes a sale at a lower price than a competitor asked, seems to compensate him for the pecuniary sacrifice. Price-cutting though is more in the relation of an effect than of a cause to the frequency of assignments. If settlements can be easily secured there is less need to be careful about profits. But credit-giving needs to be restricted on all hands, not only in the matter of time, but also in that of amount and of financial basis. To make a stringent Insolvent Act without arriving at some resolution for the regulation and restraint of credit-giving, would be like stopping every avenue of exit and keeping up a race of which the only object would be to get out. The present insolvent legislation suits the general conditions of credit: both are lax. Let the credit system be fitted to the plan of insolvent legislation that the boards of trade are engaged in drafting.

Reform, like charity, begins at home. If a patient is determined to take every chance of exposure to catch a certain disease, his application to a physician for a specific for that disease cannot be regarded as serious evidence of a desire for health. Medicine would be as likely to kill as cure, where equal chances are freely given for the progress of the ailment. In the same way, a strict insolvent Act would not be in keeping with a lax credit system and over-worked competition. An insolvent Act would no doubt check the excesses of credit and competition, but it is not a radical means of checking them. The merchants of the country need to adopt some conservative ideas before trade is prepared for drastic insolvency legislation.

A national insolvency Act is called for and it is hoped a satisfactory one may be passed during the present session of Parliament. Even if all the provincial insolvency laws were good, they ought to be superseded by a federal Act, for the difference in these laws is a grave drawback. An Ontario merchant is apt to be ignorant of the course he should take to retain his claim on goods sold to a customer in Nova Scotia. This diversity should be removed. Insolvency matters should be regulated by federal law, as trade matters, postage matters, and many other interests that are inter-provincial in their relation.

MERCHANTS' TAXES.

At last there is some likelihood that the merchants of Ontario will be put upon an equal footing with their fellow-citizens in the matter of municipal taxation. Two bills aiming to do them that simple justice have been brought before the present session of the Provincial Legislature. One of them, that introduced by Mr. Waters, was withdrawn upon the motion for its second reading, in deference to the sense of the house that it was too radical and comprehensive. This sense would probably not have been so strong if the other bill, Mr. Tait's, had not been before the house. It is moderate in its scope, and has the support of the mercantile interests of the province. It is a proposal to amend the Assessment Act by the provision that the capital of any person which is invested in any wholesale or retail mercantile business, and the stock-in-trade, book debts and other assets held for the purposes of or in connection with said business, shall not be taxed, but the income or profits derived from such capital shall be liable to be assessed. Briefly, it proposes to change the basis of merchants' taxes from capital to net income. Two sessions ago a measure to change the basis of merchants' taxes from capital to rental value of premises was passed by the Ontario Legislature. This is known as the Permissive Act. It was rendered inoperative by a provision which made its adoption a matter of local choice. Municipal councils were made the custodians of the merchants' rights, and those rights had to be suspended when votes and a strong and sure source of revenue came up for consideration. Something was gained, however. Before the passing of the Permissive Act both the Provincial Legislature and the municipal councils stood between the merchants and justice. After that measure became law the municipal councils were the only obstacle in the way of equal rights to the merchant.

Grossly unfair as it is to make capital the basis of taxation, it is not so bad as a purely arbitrary basis, one which there is no rule of getting at but the caprice or judgment of the assessor, which is almost certain to err on the long side. Guesswork, with a percentage added, is the real basis on which our merchants have been taxed. If their actual capital had been really the basis, the total revenue derived from them would most probably have been very much less. But why should capital be taxed? In every other application but that of merchandise and manufacture it has long been emancipated in this province. Money on deposit is also supposed to be taxed, but it is hard to get at. Capital, then, unless employed in commerce, manufacture, and rarely when on deposit, is never taxed in this province. Bank stocks, mortgages, bonds, debentures, general securities, grain in transit, the capital of the farmer in stock and plant, are untaxed. Our system of taxation is a rather hybrid one. It was copied in the first instance from that of New York State where all capital is taxed. But it departs from that of New York in its exemption of bank stocks, mortgages, debentures, etc. In these exemptions it imitates the principle that prevails in Europe, where taxation for local purposes is entirely on rental value. No country or part of a country in the world has anything like our merchants' tax. Ontario alone makes a discrimation against the merchant class. The merchant cannot escape it as the man whose money is on deposit can. An illustration, by the way, of the injustice of taxing capital on deposit, is illustrated by a real incident that came under notice. A widow happened to mention to the assessor that she had $60,000 in the bank. It was at once taxed, while of all the rest of the money on deposit in that bank, probably no other yielded a municipal tax. The rich bank directors have the use of it at about 3 per cent. but pay no tax but on dividends.

A differential tax which takes in the merchant class alone is not a less arbitrary and illogical thing than a special tax which would take in only one particular nationality in the community. Imagine all Englishmen required to pay a tax on their capital, while the capital of Irishmen, Scotchmen and all the rest would be exempt. Which class is selected is immaterial. It is as indefensible in one case as in another. Nationality is as rational a principle of selection as occupation. Nor do extra privileges go with extra burdens. The real estate class have the privileges, though they pay only on the value of the land and premises. If a trader fails with the goods of a wholesaler on his shelves, does the wholesaler who pays taxes both on his premises and his capital have any special protection? He does not. On the contrary, he must look on while the landlord exercises his preferential right of distraining for rent on the very goods the wholesaler is a creditor for. The business man has no extra vote in virtue of his taxes on capital.

The country merchants suffer most, for their tax on realty is most generally on their own capital, as they are most usually the owners of their own stores. Take the instance of a man who has $10,000 capital to start with, and uses this to buy a lot and erect a store: To get the money to buy a stock of goods he gives a mortgage on his realty as security for a loan of say $8,000. Such a man pays a tax on nearly twice this capital. He has a capital of $10,000, but pays a tax on $18,000.

The personalty tax is absurdly unequal, because it rests upon the very irregular stratum of human veracity. Take three merchants, A, B and C, in the same town, doing a business of equal magnitude. A lives sumptuously and just manages to hold his assets and liabilities in a state of chronic balance. He candidly shows the condition of his affairs to the assessor, and is credited with having no personalty to assess. He therefore escapes the tax. B is a shrewd, economical business man, and has all his stock paid for, but being something of a liar, he professes to have a very small margin of the stock to call his own. His personalty tax is accordingly a small affair. C is a thrifty, frugal man, making money fast, and the assured owner of every cent's worth in his business. He is a very honest man, and owns up to the property he has in the store. That man bears the full brunt of the personalty tax. The knavish and the improvident trader escape, but the honest and prosperous man is caught every time. And C gets no more benefit from the municipality than A or B does.

A grocer and a millionaire live on opposite sides of the same street. The capital in the grocer's store is heavily taxed, but is the capital in the millionaire's house? It is not. The grocer is trading on a capital of $5,000, while his wealthy neighbor has works of art and costly furniture within his house to the value of $100,000. But the struggling capital is what is taxed. Yet who gets the special privileges when they go round? If the family in the mansion leaves for the seaside the police department is asked to have a man constantly near the house to protect it and the untaxed property it contains. The request is graciously granted. If the grocer, who pays a heavy tax on the premises and an unjust one on his capital, presumes to ask such a favor, he is chided for his effrontery. In Ontario we follow merchandise with taxes as if it were a proscribed calling. The carter who draws goods from warehouse to station must pay a tax on his lowly business, but the class of people who deign to wear the streets out with their carriages in pursuit of pleasure pay no tax on the capital they have in horses and carriages. In Philadelphia everything is the other way. The exemptions are in favor of the small owner of furniture and horses.

The merchants of Toronto are giving strong support to Mr. Tait's bill. A deputation urging the passage of it waited upon the government a few days ago. It was received by Mr. Hardy. It included the chief commercial men of the city. All the wholesale grocery houses were represented. Mr. Paul Campbell, who has made the subject of municipal taxation very especially his own, presented the views of the mercantile class in an able speech. Mr. Hugh Blain, Mr. A. M. Smith and others also spoke upon the question, the latter showing that the taxes and rent his firm paid were about equal. The following other wholesale grocers were on hand: Messrs. John Sloan, James Ince, T. Kinnear, J. W. Lang, H. P. Eckardt, W. W. Keighley, J. F. Eby, H. C. Boomer, W. Logan (representing Davidson & Hay). The usual conventional answer that their views would be considered was given.

CUT PRICES AND READY MONEY.

The desire to get a hold of ready money, and the belief that the possession of that will enable a trader to redeem nearly anything he chooses to sacrifice in order to get it, are responsible for very much of the price-cutting that is done. It is wonderful what faith in the power of money is shown by men who have long experience in business. Stock with them is like paper which is risky and has to run some time before it is matured, and they treat the stock as they would such paper, by conceding a discount on its trade value, that ready money may be obtained from it. They exaggerate the value of the money, or of their own buying ability. They easily convince themselves that a brilliant stroke of buying will recover more than they have given up for the sake of turning former goods into cash. Their hopes are always buoyant, their realities always unsatisfactory. The next turnover is the thing they have chief confidence in, what they have now a chance of making money upon must be used to draw custom. Their buying, not their selling, is what they look to.

This is akin to gambling. It commonly ends as gambling does, for in the ups and downs of business, such a man will rarely from choice take to a conservative course. He can, in fact, do so from choice, only when he is in one of the "up" alternations, just when he is usually most sanguine as to the efficacy of slaughtering prices. He will have to cease perforce some time when he is in one of the "downs" of business. A gambler seldom quits playing for large stakes through motives of self-reform; he usually quits because he has no more to put up. That is the way, too, with the business man who has such a superabundance of "go" in him that he feels the restraints of profit too irksome, and refuses to be held back by them. He never falls into disciplined ideas, though he may now and then catch fortune at the tide, but generally succumbs to reverse.

Money is of course always a better asset than merchandise. But a man who has to make a living out of merchandise is supposed to be able to obtain better returns from it than he could make from money simply. The profits of business ought to be larger than interest on capital. If they were not, it would never pay a merchant to borrow money for the purpose of investing it in business. From this way of looking at the matter, therefore, goods ought to be better potential assets than money is. Money represents mere capital. Stock represents something more. It represents judgment in selection, care in buying, acquaintance with the market, and calculation of a given store's selling capacity. The goods should therefore represent capital, interest on capital, store expenses and salary. Why then should they be rushed off as something to be discounted for the sake of money? Goods ought not to be sacrificed till their value is discounted by purely market influences. If they have become damaged by fire, exposure, shop wear, etc., if they are superseded by something new, a reduction in their value must be made in compliance with an inevitable market law. If there is an excess of goods, or a lack of buyers, or if the goods are likely to deteriorate with holding, it is better to save part of the value than risk all of it. In such cases a reduction of price is rational. But cutting is very irrational.

FOR A DOMINION INSOLVENT ACT.

President Baird presided over a general meeting of the Toronto Board of Trade on the 24th inst., convened for the purpose of discussing "whether an insolvency bill is advisable in the interests of the trade and commerce of the country." There were present: Messrs. George Bertram, E. Gurney, H. Blain, H. N. Baird, E. J. Clark, P. Burns, John Drynan, Warring Kennedy, Paul Campbell, W. J. Gale W. W. Copp, John Scott, J. W. Crowther, W. Wilson, C. Warren, W. Christie, C. B. Watts, A. Cavanagh, G M. Rose, S. Caldecott, C. Cockshutt, J. Macdonald, W. J. Gage, R. Jenkins, George Ridout, T. O. Anderson, S. R. Briggs, A. Darling, C. Pearson, J. C. Copp, J. Donogh, James Cooper, J. W. Long, A. R. Hargraft, J. S. McMaster, H. C. Dixon, W. H. Knowlton, John Brown, T. H. Cleghorn, E. Buchan, R. Kilgour, A. W. Smith, C. Pipon, P. Howland, P. Hughes, John Muldrew, T. G. Williamson, F. J. Stewart, H. P. Eckardt, P. Jamieson, J. Lugsdin, J. T. Mathews, J Lamb, F. B. Polson, Joseph Kilgour, S. B. Brush, Robert McClain, R. W. Elliot, H. D. Warren, D. Miller, George McMurrich, R. W. Spence, W. W. Taylor, D. B. Harman.

Mr. S. Caldecott, in order to test the feeling of the meeting on the matter, moved this resolution:

That in the opinion of this board it is desirable that there should be an insolvency Act with a discharge clause properly guarded, applicable to the whole Dominion, for the equitable distribution of the assets of bankrupt estates, and that the council be and are hereby instructed to cause such an Act to be prepared, and to join the other boards of trade in pressing upon the Government the necessity which exists for having the same passed at the present session of Parliament.

Mr. Caldecott, speaking in support of his motion, said that there were 1,100,000 traders in the United States and Canada and among these there were 14,240 failures last year. Each of the provinces had different laws concerning business embarrassments, and, in consequence, it is difficult for an Ontario merchant to find out how to collect his money from an embarrassed creditor. He cited the case of a Halifax man who made a preferential assignment and thus defrauded a Toronto house out of its portion. Even worse things take place in Ontario, as a man may give a chattel mortgage on his property to an abettor and thus prevent creditors getting justice. The present state of things has fostered the growth of dishonesty in business. In 1882 the number of failures was 755 and in 1891 it had risen to 1,846. In 1890 fraud was responsible for only one and one-eighth per cent. of the failures, but in 1891 the percentage had risen to four. A discharge clause should be inserted in the bill, as a man should be given his freedom if his estate is taken away from him.

Mr. Hugh Blain seconded the motion, and said the business irritation between the provinces should be removed by the passing of a suitable insolvency law.

Mr. George Bertram said a measure guaranteeing the equal distribution of an involved man's assets was needed. He was opposed to the discharge clause, unless it was properly hedged in. He thought the wholesale men were responsible for a great deal of the retailers' troubles, as credit was given too easily.

Mr. Paul Campbell differed with Mr. E. Gurney on the question of the law of 1875 being "an abomination." Speaking of Mr. Hugh Blain's strictures on the credit system of the dry goods trade, he stated that the grocery men made a practice of refusing extensions to country dealers, and at the same time they advise them to seek renewals from the dry goods men. An insolvency law would benefit the honest trader.

Other members spoke upon the question and the motion was put and carried.

The council of the Toronto Board of Trade met on Saturday. They referred the insolvency resolution passed at the general meeting to the Legislative Committee, with instructions to act in conjunction with other boards of trade in pressing upon the Government the necessity of an insolvency bill.

A COOL AND SLIPPERY COMBINE.

The eight ice dealers of this city have entered into a combine which takes the form of a joint stock company. They claim that such union is necessary to make possible a business in pure ice, as in the state of competition previous to this move, only bay ice could be sold at the prices going. The company is to be known as the Toronto Ice Supply and Cold Storage Company (Lt'd.), with a capital stock of $100,000. Incorporation will be asked for immediately. About 100,000 tons of ice is used in Toronto per year, or 40,000 tons for domestic use and 60,000 tons for cooling purposes. The new company propose to erect an immense ice house at Frenchman's Bay, down the lake, where the supply for domestic purposes will be stored. It will be brought to the city as needed in a steam barge, specially constructed for this purpose.

The dealers assert most positively that this company is in no sense a combine, and that they confidently expect to furnish ice at even cheaper rates than have hitherto been charged. The price for domestic ice has already been fixed, and is about the same as last year. Cards will be distributed in a few days announcing the prices to be charged. Similar companies furnish all the ice in Buffalo, Montreal and other cities, and, it is claimed, with perfect satisfaction to the consumers. Each of the dealers will put in his ice at a valuation, and stock will be taken accordingly. The city will be divided into routes in such a way as to effect a considerable saving of time in delivery. The company will erect a large building for cold storage purposes, and expect to make this an important department of their business.

SIDE LINES, OR, GLIMPSES INTO MY NOTE BOOK.

I am pleased to notice such an emphatic endorsation of my views relative to the necessity of paying strict and careful attention to the tea and butter departments of the retail grocer's store, as is contained in the following article, clipped from a late issue of the New York Commercial Enquirer.

"There is a man in the retail line who has made so much money that he could retire to-day from business, live a hundred years more, live well at that, even to the extent of owning and maintaining properly a yacht—he could even back a newspaper—yes, and at the end of the century still have enough money left to buy a white elephant. I asked him if he had made all his money in groceries. 'Every penny of it' was his reply, 'and I am proud to say I have never resorted to any trick to do so either; straight goods and full measure every time, that's my motto' and by way of emphasis he brought his fist down on the counter with a loud thump. 'And to what do you attribute your remarkable success.' I asked. 'You may call it remarkable or not just as you've a mind to, but I have always believed in building up my tea and butter trade to the highest degree. I have acted upon that belief and have paid strict attention to these two items, and it has made me.'"

As I remarked in my previous notes on these subjects there is not a question of doubt but that the principles of business followed by this "wise man of the East" will bring success to any and every grocer acting on them. Here are two of our principal articles of diet in daily consumption in every family in the land, rich or poor, so very susceptible to outside injurious influences as to require the most careful attention of the dealer, and how are they handled and served? It really distresses me in my wanderings through the city to observe the carelessness of the average grocer in the handling of butter and tea, and the wonder to me is how under the Blue Alsatian mountains they do any business in these articles. Probably their trade demands quantity and not quality, and their tea patrons use the delicate plant of the East like our primitive forefathers on its first introduction into England, boil it and serve it as a vegetable. And do you wonder at the increase of indigestion, dyspepsia, shattered nerves and insomnia when you contemplate on the stuff that is sold as tea? I don't I've got 'em all four.

HEC. SECORD.

Some people are loudly extolling the merits of the skil, a fish found in the seas of British Columbia, north of the Charlotte Islands, weighing from 4 to 12 pounds, and in form something like a pike. Connoisseurs consider it the finest fish in the market.

A TALK ABOUT TEA.

The managing director of the National Wholesale Tea Supply Association (Mr. Slaney) gave the young grocers' assistants of Manchester some advice about tea a few nights since. There was, we are told, an exhibition of a collection of specimens, curiosities, etc., which Mr. Slaney had been able to obtain through the kindness of many of the leading tea brokers in London. One specimen of tea, valued at from £50 to £60 per lb., the produce of an Indian estate, gained special attention. Mr. Slaney gave his audience some very good advice, as well as a description of the teas supplying the English market, first dealing with the products of our colonies India and Ceylon, and then with those of China and other countries. In giving some hints on obtaining a knowledge of tea, Mr. Slaney said: "In no branch of business does the axiom that 'knowledge is power' apply with more force that in a knowledge of tea. The opportunities of the grocers' assistants of to-day, speaking generally, are somewhat meagre, and it is difficult in many cases to get to know anything about this article. The only course is to make best use of the opportunities you have, not to remain satisfied with them, but to endeavor to extend them wherever practicable. Those who are favorably placed with an intelligent employer who studies tea and keeps a variety of stock, and can obtain access to the testing and blending-rooms, have opportunity of picking up knowledge."

Referring to the consumers' taste in tea, and the efforts the grocer should make to meet it, Mr. Slaney said: "Amongst the working class population, generally speaking, tea with strength is preferred to fine tea of high quality and less strength. A cup of tea made from a rasping, pungent Indian Pekoe Souchong and thick, strong broken Pekoe would be appreciated, where a cup made from a choice Darjeeling tea, costing four times the money, would not please. Many dealers pay great regard to the weight or bulk of a tea, preferring heavy close leaf, because, I suppose, users get more weight into their teaspoons when measuring into the teapot; hence tea-mills are used to reduce the size of some of the excellent liquoring teas, whose only fault is their possessing a large or ugly leaf. The steel roller operates and licks it into shape, enabling the users to blend these descriptions to advantage along with other teas at a higher cost, because, after all, the appearance has something to do with regulating the price or value."

"Never deal in tea," Mr, Slaney added, "that is objectionable in flavor, or that you would hesitate to drink yourself. Avoid earthy, minty, sour or coarse teas, or teas which, owing to the scarcity of wood in the districts in which they are grown, are packed in wood from Japan having a cedar or drug-like odour, which is soon conveyed from the chest to the tea. Avoid by all means keeping or storing tea in proximity to any strong-smelling articles, such as soap, cheese, oranges, apples, etc. Keep tea in a dry, warm room, where it will improve. Let your blended tea be prepared a time before sale. A fresh blend, made up from identically the same teas and in the same proportions as one blended a fortnight before, will not taste near so well as the older one, whose flavors have assimilated by the teas lying together. Let your customers see that in pushing the sale of tea your aim is to please them, not to effect just one sale and no more, and if you are assured that the goods you handle are equal to the best of any of your competitors, whoever they be, success will be likely to attend your efforts. I might take up more time by going into the subject, "How to match blends." This is a higher branch, and, like analysis in chemistry, requires deep study. One hint here may be useful. Adopt the narrowing down process, and come to an accurate conclusion of the kinds or varieties that you suppose are not present; then, having fewer kinds to deal with, you more readily judge the constituents of the sample under notice. In a case of this kind observe the appearance in dry leaf and infused leaf—the leaf infusion under treatment of varying time, say five, seven or ten minutes, spreading out the leaf on white paper and judging by complexion of leaves. Testing the liquor against both originals of the teas you suppose to predominate, and blends you consider similar will, with constant practice, enable you to perform both the analytical and synthetical processes required when you wish to match or follow any particular blend." —Exchange.

Bank Teller—"This check, madam, isn't filled in." Madam—"Isn't what?" Bank Teller—"It has your husband's name signed to it, but it does not state how much money you wan't." Madam—"Oh, is that all?" Well, I'll take all there is."—Harper's Bazar.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries has decided to grant interim fishing licenses to all fishermen bona fide British subjects, for use on the Fraser river, B.C. Until the report of the Royal Fisheries Commission is received at Ottawa, and permanent regulations are fixed, these licenses will hold good. It will probably be a month or more before the new fishing laws are issued, and in the meantime fishermen will be able to catch the spring run. No licenses are being issued to the canneries yet, and the market fishermen are being awarded a smaller number than in former years. Ten dollars is deposited for each permit, and will go to pay for the regular license when ordered.

Business Changes

PARTNERSHIPS FORMED AND DISSOLVED.

Lee & Gallon, commission agents, Montreal, have dissolved partnership.

J. P. Mott & Co., manufacturers of spices and soaps, Halifax, N. S., have dissolved.

J.G. Hearle, soap manufacturer, Montreal, Que., has been succeeded by W. B. Chapman.

REMOVALS AND DEATHS.

J. F. Gibbons, general merchant, Morrisburg, Ont., is dead.

C. S. Green, of Dearborne & Co., spice merchants, St. John, N. B., is dead.

FIRES.

The Empire Tea Co., Toronto, suffered by a fire last week.

J. F. Copland, grocer, Toronto, Ont., was partially burned out last week.

McKay & Guest's flour mill, Renfrew, Ont., has been destroyed by fire. Loss 35,000, insured for $16,000.

Annie McQueen and S. Schooley, two general merchants of Gladstone, Man., have suffered losses by fires.

McDougall's store at Eddyville, Ont. was destroyed with all its contents on Friday night. The loss was $5,000, the insurance $1,500.

Chas. Elliot, general merchant, Robert Stewart and Alex. Sutherland, grocers were burnt out by a fire in Bradford on the 22nd inst. Elliot's loss was about $16,000, with insurance $10,000; Stewart's loss $2,000, no insurance, and Sutherland's loss was about $300.

ASSIGNMENTS, DIFFICULTIES, COMPROMISES.

COLLECTING INTEREST ON OVERDUE ACCOUNTS

When an account is not paid when due, says an exchange, interest should be charged on all excess time taken. This is right, perfectly legitimate and good business logic. Still many retailers, for one reason or another, do not pay their bills when due, and even in some instances after taking thirty, sixty or ninety days extra time, making great complaints if interest is added. Now there are, of course, many retailers who when their bill is about due, if they can not meet it, will write, stating they are hard up, ask for a slight extension, and request the jobber to add interest, but these are the exception and not the rule. However, as that may be, the wholesale merchant is not a banker, and retailers should get more in the habit of borrowing from their interior banks and discounting their bills with the jobbers. The retail dealers would then soon ascertain the facts that banks do not loan money without interest, and this should teach them that the charge of the jobber is perfectly correct and just, and that it should not be objected to, but paid without question. There is another point in relation to the above that retailers should not overlook, and that is that many jobbers are compelled, from the lack of capital, to borrow money from their city banks in order to carry their customers and meet their own bills, and interest must be paid on every dollar they borrow. If retail dealers would borrow from their local banks, and discount their bills, jobbers could run their business on from twenty-five to thirty per cent. less capital. Discount all your bills for one year and see how much money you will save." It will be enough to pay for a good clerk.

If all retailers would adopt the plan of sending out monthly statements, the same as jobbers, it would facilitate their making collections. Most retailers send out statements twice per year, and frequently an account gets very large during that time, consequently it is much harder for the consumer to pay, and to go still further, it is just so much harder for the jobber, who suffers from lack of collections on the part of the retail dealer. We note with pleasure that some retailers have already started in the good work of sending out monthly statements and reports have reached us that it works splendidly, that it makes collections better, and that it is growing in favor with the consumer, who was at first inclined to take exception to it. If every retailer in the country would turn over a new leaf and send out monthly statements, such a revolution would take place in collections that both retailers and wholesalers would be astonished. The small dealer would make more money by discounting his bills, and the jobber would save interest by running his business on less capital. Do not wait for your neighbor and competitor to start in this good work, but commence yourself, and others are sure to follow.

STORE HINTS.

In some old city there were four gates. Over No. 1 was the inscription, "Be Bold;" over No. 2, "Be Bold;" over No. 3, "Be Bold;" over No. 4, "Be Not Too Bold." We solicit inscriptions for the doors of groceries. The field is open to all competitors. For instance, "Hustle," "Hustle," "Hustle," "Don't Hustle Too Much."

W. D. Howells says you may speak rather disrespectfully of a woman's daughter, but if you insinuate that she brings you bad butter, you do so at your peril. The truth of this observation can be vouched for by nearly every dealer. Yes, Mr. Howells is a realist.

Do you personally use new goods which you undertake to sell? It will greatly assist you if you do, and perhaps prolong your life. Anyway, you can sell more intelligently.

Do you ever study the statistics presented in your trade journal, or in the documents issued by the Government? By the way, not nearly as many merchants avail themselves of these latter publications as should be the case. They can be obtained on request, and the Consular reports, issued monthly, are full of interest. Send for the reports of the different departments, the Statistical Abstract, etc., and make a study of them. It will pay you to keep posted.

Do you notice some days that everybody is cross and out of sorts and nothing suits them? Did you ever reflect that the trouble lies with yourself, not the "other fellows?"

Do you give any attention to the moral and intellectual welfare of your clerks? If not, you are not doing your duty as a man.

What can be more unattractive than a store window full of tea chests or wooden cracker boxes? And yet that seems to be about the range of vision some men have when they "decorate" their windows. With the endless variety of beautiful shelf goods, and the neatly packed dried fruits, they might make a regular food exposition on a small scale. Besides, it will be money in your pocket.

Be clean and tidy in your personal appearance. Nothing is more disgusting to a consumer than to be waited on by a grocer whose hands look as though they had been for some time strangers to soap and water.

If you have several customers with the same family name, be extremely careful in making charges against them on your books. I have seen much trouble caused from this neglect.

Do you get to the store in the morning and have things "going" before your customers arrive, or do you wait till they call you out of bed? Both plans work well—in their respective directions.

Do you lock your store an hour at noon that you and your clerks may dine in peace? If so, the man across the way is gathering your transients in.

Is yours the only store at the corners? If so, do you feel perfectly content to think that you are making no more money one year than another, notwithstanding the fact that you are surrounded by a more numerous constituency, which is, as a rule, better off in worldly possessions than ever? If you are satisfied, why enough has been said. There is no use talking with you.

Do you try to make your store rival in neatness the house over which your wife presides?

Do you do as you would be done by—or as nearly so as your conscience will permit?

Are you interested in many ventures outside your legitimate business?—Jerome C. in American Grocer.

CALLING FOR ORDERS.

TORONTO, March 25th, 1892.

Mr. W. S. Williams, Toronto, speaking to THE GROCER on canvassing for trade, says he does not agree with the views expressed by many of the writers. He thinks it is a less expensive way of doing business. His experience is that it costs less to canvass for trade than if the orders came to you at different times during the week; besides, retailers are enabled to get their customers by canvassing. He points out in his own case, he has a number of customers in a distant part of the city; he goes there on a certain day in each week, they all give him orders, he returns with them to his store, has them filled, and the waggon delivers them all in the same trip. If he did not take these orders at the one time they would come at different times and on different days during the week, which would mean a separate trip of the waggon to deliver each order.

MAPLE SUGAR.

EDITOR CANADIAN GROCER:

SIR,—In your issue of February 12th, under the above heading, a St. Albans, Vt., correspondent to the Boston Journal is made to utter some very erroneous and misleading statements.

Perhaps the most glaring and wilful perversion of the facts, or that which exhibits his remarkable ignorance of the subject, is where he states that "the product of Canadian maples has a stronger flavor and is darker in color than that produced from Vermont maple sap, making it better for purposes of adulteration." It may not be known to many of your readers that the section called the Eastern Townships is divided from Vermont only by the imaginary boundary lines. Along the border, from the mountains and hillsides of that State, facing the north, may be seen with the naked eye hundreds of thousands of magnificent maple trees in the counties of Missisquoi, Brome and Stanstead, the Canadian territory immediately adjoining Uncle Sam's little sugar country. Does this St. Albans man (?) (surely a woman, as such correspondent would be more discreet), imagine that the readers of the Boston Journal, among whom are numbers of Canadians and New Englanders who have passed years of their youth in quiet homes along the border, are "so thick in the head," to use a slangy but expressive phrase, as to believe such arrant nonsense? If nature has made trees on one side of an imaginary line to produce better-flavored sap than that of those on the opposite side, or even within a few miles of such line, then I think it high time that we petition Providence to change the flavor to a "finer" one in the young and aspiring maples which are gradually being brought into active service by our farmers.

I may just say that the owners of the youngsters are probably just as good Christians as the Vermonters, many of them being descendants of United Empire Loyalists. They are withal as intelligent as their neighbors, are blessed with their share of worldly gear, and finally the modern utensils they employ in the manufacture of their delicious maple syrup and sugar are of a character to compare favorably with those used in the New England States.

Hoping that I have not trespassed too far on the space of your valued paper, if you will allow me on some future occasion, I may endeavor to show that some other statements made by the Vermonter are equally misleading. I am, yours very respectfully,

AN EASTERN TOWNSHIPER.

March 21st, 1892.

DOES ADVERTISING IN TRADE PAPERS PAY?

To pay or not to pay—that is the main question.

The advertiser may put the inquiry in this way: Does such and such a paper reach the very class I wish to interest and sell to?

The answer cannot be given in a single sentence.

There is a great difference in our trade papers. One paper may while another may not reach the special class an advertiser would cater to.

How is he going to find that out except by making the experiment? There is no other way. The trade paper must be tried and judged by results.

The staple argument of the trade newspaper owner or agent is, that his paper goes to all the people doing business in a certain line. Hence an advertisement will surely reach them.

To this rule their are some exceptions. Talking the other day with a manufacturer of bakers' and confectioners' utensils, who has only a small card in his trade journal, I asked the reason. He said: "My business is with restaurants, hotels, steamship lines, etc., but I sell largely to German bakers, candy men and others, who seldom, or never, see a bakers' and confectioners' paper. So what use would it be for me to advertise my wares in the paper?"

Quoting this opinion to a liberal advertiser in a shoe and leather paper, he said that in his business the trade paper was a necessity. The commission merchants announce to tanners and curriers that they receive consignments of leather, and to shoe manufacturers that they sell leather.

As a rule trade papers are well edited. They may be owned by a business man, but the editor is sure to be a journalist. Hence, all the latest movements in the trades are reported promptly and accurately.

Those who expect to keep up with the times and with competitors must take and read their class paper. Thus they keep posted, and there is no excuse for not knowing the news and advertisers.

It is significant that the largest firms and corporations in different branches of trade are the most liberal advertisers. In many cases there is no need of exploiting their wares. They are long and favorably known in the trade, and customers know them by reputation or name.

Take the great iron papers (I mention no names), and in their pages you find the splendid advertisements of millionaire concerns. Who think that these advertisers want "to create a demand" for their products?

Take the great and flourishing dry goods papers. There, too, you find the full page "ads" of merchant princes, who do not especially desire "to attract attention." But when these dry goods men make a "drive" in a line of staples, or have "bargains," it is made known in their trade papers.

I do not suppose that the cards of the Fifth Avenue Hotel or of the Hoffman House in hotel papers bring many new or additional guests. But all the same, there is a good reason for their places before the public eye.

As a prominent merchant of this city said to me recently, "We put our advertisement in such and such a paper to show the people that we are still doing business at the old stand."

The number of miscellaneous advertisements in some really flourishing trade papers is small. I have before me a copy of a boot and shoe journal. Out of 255 advertisemeuts 12 only may be classed as miscellaneous.

This is, however, far below the average, unless a trade paper occupies a limited field, or draws from a narrow range of advertisers.

Advertising in trade papers must pay, or else so shrewd an advertiser as John Wanamaker, for example, would not use such mediums. His business engages a large audience. His problem is, of course, how to reach all sorts and conditions of people.

Finally, the trade-paper man must have an argument—one that pays. He must answer the prospective advertisers questions, meet his objections and overcome many difficulties.

I do not undertake to supply arguments for solicitors. But there is a golden rule for all cases, and I do not mind stating it.

Make the advertiser see that he is getting the full value of his money.

Try it.—L. J. Vance.

A fire at Point Edward consumed the grocery store and stock of James Fraser, J. F. O'Neil's grocery was destroyed at the same time. There was some insurance in both cases. An incendiary is supposed to have started the fire.

LET THE PATRONS BEGIN AT HOME.

Some wholesome advice that the farmers would be the richer if they would act upon it, is given by a writer who signs himself "Uncle Tobias," in The Farmer's Advocate. It is in the course of a controversy, to which reference is made in the letter, which is herewith published :

Mr. Chas. Braithwaite, of Portage la Prairie, in the Dec'r. number of the Farmer's Advocate has taken me to task for my uncalled-for remarks upon the organization called the Patrons of Industry. Now, nothing was further from my thoughts and intentions than to throw any discredit upon the organization, or to do it any injury. My motive was purely and simply this : To put the Patrons on their guard, and not allow themselves to be carried away like so many children by the wonderful and unreasonable stories and promises made by the organizers of these societies. I would say to all members and would-be future members, also, of this or any other society, "go slow." Think for yourselves. Don't take all these organizers tell you as gospel. "Boil it down." Yes; and it will bear boiling down one-half, or even three parts into one, and then be a good thing. "Rome was not built in a day." Neither can the Patrons of Industry do everything in a month, or year, or even five years. What business or concern of any repute, or even professional man, has come to the front and stayed there in less than five or even ten years' time. This is your great danger. You are going to fast, and doing and undertaking to much for the age and experience of your organization.

Another point lost sight of. Your members or patrons must be educated and prepared for these radical changes. But how many are so educated or prepared to turn over and jump out of buying and trading on credit to paying cash for everything they want? I venture, not one in ten. How are these members going to pay cash when they are already in debt to the country storekeeper? Look at the hundreds, yes, thousands of farmers who are gulled and fooled into buying all sorts of things they don't want ; and still worse, of buying what they really do want from pedlars and tramps and rascals of all descriptions that are scouring the country and persuading and tempting the farmers into buying goods and all sorts of things that are worthless, and dear at half the money. These poor deluded farmers pay for such rubbish, when the very same goods, I care not what it is, can be bought in their nearest town or city for less money from respectable, reliable dealers and merchants, whose goods are worth the money asked for them, and should they by any accident or mistake prove otherwise, can be returned. Why farmers buy such goods, is what astonishes me ; and why don't the organizers of the Patrons of Industry start a crusade against these worthless fellows instead of against the quiet, inoffensive, honest country trader and storekeeper. Now, there would be "common sense and consistency" in this, would there not? Let the heads and leaders of the Patrons of Industry take up this, and they will have the hearty support of every class of the community. Let them educate their members on this idea. Again, I say, "go slow." Don't undertake too much. Get your members into line and touch on some other points before dictating to the merchant what his profits shall be. Get them to read and thinking more for themselves. How many members take a good agricultural paper? Teach them to read and study out both sides of the question. Don't for one moment think that all who don't think or do just as you do or would, are all wrong, either on political or any other question. No man ever made a greater mistake, and no man who reads and thinks on only one side of any question can form a fair or honest opinion.

But Mr. Braithwaite has entirly misunderstood my remarks and mistaken my meaning, when he says that I am not consistent with regard to combines. I did not say one word against farmers combining, but rather against their mode of procedure. By all means let them combine. But by all means let their combinations be consistent and fair, and on good business principles. If this is done they will succeed. But be careful and moderate, and don't brag and shout and trumpet your work and intentions all over the country, and in everybody's ear. Do the other combines do that? No, sir. They know enough to keep their business to themselves until they are ready to act or take some decided step. Not so with the Patrons. Their business, their intentions, their future plans, and all and everything, are paraded before the public, and, as it were, for the especial benefit of these other combines they (the Patrons) are opposing. This is just what they want, and they are all this time laughing in their sleeve at the ignorance and cupidity of the farmers. And just here I want to impress it upon all the leaders of this Patron movement, that before you can be ultimately successful you will have to educate at least a portion of your members in good business methods, and calm, quiet, cool judgment and actions. Until this is done the other fellows have the advantage, and they will use it, too,—mark that ! Why, if the members of your Society had one-quarter the business ability and knowledge that your opponents have, you could fight them without any trouble : yes, and bring them to time. Here is another point for the leaders of Patrons to take hold of and profit by, and use to the advantage and for the benefit of your members, viz., Business methods of doing your business. Get them up out of the ruts and mire of a slipshod, guess-work, kind of "go-as-you-please" way of doing their business. Teach your members how to save money and make money by being good, shrewd, honorable business men. I for one do think that this would pay every member of the Patrons of Industry much better, and in the end be more lasting and satisfactory than by trying to dictate to any business man what his profit shall be. How many Patrons know each how his business stands, and whethsr he is going behind or making money? How many Patrons keep even an ordinary cash-book? How many Patrons can tell me how much it costs them to live? How many can tell me how much money they handle or turn over in a year? How many Patrons can tell me how much per annum their cows or sheep or stock of any kind brings them in? How many Patrons know or can tell me how much it costs to keep each cow or sheep or horse or anything else on their farm? Here is where all ye organizers of the Patrons of Industry should begin. Do the other fellows who organize combines run their business in this way? No, sir ; they do not. If they did, I would have no trouble in telling just how long they would last and when they would burst.

Another point and I am done for this time. I have heard good, calm, cool-headed business men and friends of the farmer say, "Don't waste your time and energy in trying to do something that is far-fetched and very uncertain, but go to work and start out with the determination to meet these questions" by "lessening the cost and increasing the production." Now, if the Patrons would engrave this upon their foreheads, or into the heads of every member, and live up to this principle, they would soon be out of the mire and ruts. Lets every Patron get up and start out with the determination that he is going to increase his yield of grain per acre twenty-five per cent.; his yield per cow, in butter or cheese, ten, fifteen or twenty dollars per head. Let the leaders and organizers of the Patrons send and get a copy of the report of the Bureau of Industries and figure out for the benefit and instruction of themselves and their audience the enormous amount this extra yield per acre, or per cow, would bring, and it will astonish both them and their audience. Yes ; and this increase will benefit them far more than the paltry reduction they will get on the cost of goods by asking the country storekeeper to sell them at twelve per cent. over cost. This is the kind of doctrine the organizers should talk and preach. They will then have the hearty support of all reasonable and sensible men in all lines of business and pursuits of life.

Tanglefoot does cumber the locomotion of the usually agile house-fly, but the name does not suggest anything as to the celerity with which that sticky flypaper makes its way over the face of this continent. The manufacturers, The O. & W. Thum Co. find a constant call for stock from such widely sundered parts of America as British Columbia, Quebec, Texas, California, Louisiana, Virginia, New York and Maine. Australia also uses a lot of Tanglefoot.

Chat by the Way

Mr. J. F. Eby of Eby Blain & Co. is in New York this week.

The stock and effects of the firm of Bray & McInnis, New Westminster, B. C., were sold by Deputy-Sheriff Armstong on the 16th inst, and realized from fair to high prices.

Mr. George E. Church, Burke's Falls, is adding a stock of millinery to his already extensive general business in that thriving town. He was in Toronto last week making purchases.

Mr. James A. Hunter, general merchant, Durham, was in this city this week. Though but young in years he is one of the shrewdest and most successful business men of Western Ontario.

The Hospital Committee, of the Hamilton City Council, recommended the tender for the years supplies of groceries to the City hospital and the House of Refuge, to Mr. J. J. Watt, at $3,935.

William L. Temple, a wholesale tea merchant at Halifax, N. S., failed a few days ago owing $20,000 to English houses. He is said to have lived very extravagantly and to have been an out and out rogue.

Fire broke out in the store and dwelling house, occupied by Charles Copeland, on Talbot street east, Blenheim, a few days ago, and before the fire brigade arrived at the scene the fire had gained oonsiderable headway.

The manufacturers of St. John, N. B., declare, in answer to a demand of local labor representatives, that they cannot afford to adopt a nine hours' working day, so long as other commercial districts of Canada continue under a ten hours' system.

Mr. John J. Holmes, junior member of the enterprising young firm of Latimer & Holmes, general merchants, Creemore, was married on Wednesday, of last week, to Miss Lila Willis, daughter of Edwin Willis, Esq., Woodstock, by the Rev. Mr. Elliott, Methodist Minister. The couple went east on a wedding tour.

Mr. J. Longeway, Orangeville, who sold his grocery business about a year ago to devote his entire time to the wholesale liquor trade, is doing even better than he anticipated. He is going to British Columbia shortly for a six weeks' trip. He was in Toronto Monday and favored THE GROCER with a call. He has been a subscriber for some years.

A serious fire took place the other afternoon in the large building on the corner of St. Catharine and St. Lawrence streets, Montreal, and occupied as a general store. The fire started in the cellar and spread rapidly to the store, which was filled with people at the time. The stock was badly damaged, and the loss will amount to about $20,000. The store was operated by a wealthy French syndicate.

The Woodstock Evening Sentinel-Review has an article on the Patrons of Industry in its issue of the 19th inst. It is very temperate in tone, gives the farmers' side of the case with fairness, and even concedes points that appear to be at least debatable, but it squarely states that the store contract arrangement is impracticable and mischievous.

The death is announced of Geo. W. Shaver, who, some years ago, succeeded Messrs. Jaffray & Ryan in the grocery business in Toronto, which he was subsequently obliged to dispose of on account of ill health. Mr. Shaver removed shortly afterwards to Caledonia, where his death occurred rather unexpectedly last Thursday from inflammation of the lungs. He had been in Toronto but a few days before. He leaves a wife but no family.

A deputation consisting of Mr. W. Boulter, of Picton, and Mr. Matthews, of Lakeport, were introduced to the Minister of Finance and presented a case with regard to the duty on peaches and berries. They pointed out that the duty on both raw and dried peaches is one cent per pound, though in dried peaches fifty-two pounds of raw is reduced to six pounds. They asked that to equalize this matter the duty on dried peaches be increased to five cents per pound. Regarding berries the duty is three cents per pound raw and only one cent per pound dry. They asked that this also be equalized.

Some of the local wholesale trade are doing good work in defeating the aims of the Patrons of Industry by discouraging their customers from taking up the scheme. A case in point : a merchant in a large inland manufacturing town had almost concluded a deal with the agent and committee of the Patrons. When on a visit to the city he casually mentioned the matter to one of the wholesale merchants. The merchant in question explained the unbusiness like principle involved in such a scheme. The retailer at once admitted that his wholesale friend was right, and decided to reconsider the matter. He has lately advised the house that reconsideration was for his benefit, for he dropped them and concluded to do business on business principles.

A deputation waited upon the First Minister the other morning and proposed : That in order to give still further encouragement to the export trade, on all articles manufactured in Canada and exported to other countries the manufacturer be granted a rebate of the amount of the duty which he has paid upon the material that entered into the construction of the article exported. Hon. Mr. Abbott promised full consideration of the proposal. The deputation consisted of Mr. Chilian Jones, of Gananoque ; Mr. J. S. Larke, of Oshawa ; Mr. Wellington Boulter, of Picton,, and Mr. J. Matthews, of Lockport, and they were accompanied by Messrs, Wood (Brockville) Taylor, Sproule, Smith and McKay, M. P.'s.

Montreal has lost one of its best-known citizens by the death of Mr. John Duncan, senior partner of the firm of John Duncan & Co., tea importers. The deceased came to that city from Hamilton, Ont., in 1866, previous to which he had been a member of the firm of G. J. Foster & Co., of that place. On his arrival in Montreal, he opened a tea importing house under the title of Duncan & Foster, and upon the death of the junior partner the name was changed to Duncan & Co. In 1880, Mr. Duncan took into partnership Messrs. W. Hutchins and John Patterson, and seven years ago the firm opened a branch house in Yokohama, of which Mr. Patterson took charge. Deceased was a director of the Merchants' Bank and of the Montreal Telegraph Company.

Some weeks ago Phillip Gough, general grocer, Halifax, assigned with heavy liabilities and insignificant assets, and skipped. Many wholesale houses were creditors and several accommodation notes were afloat. Upon promise of immunity from punishment Gough returned to Halifax and made a confession of his business methods. He was one of five partners, another of whom was a prominent city official. They agreed to get as much goods as they could upon credit, divide the proceeds, then Gough, the only recognized member of the firm, was to previously have given his blind partners a bill of sale and assign. The other partners failed to pay Gough the proportion agreed upon, but gave him $800 on account, with which to skip, and promised to send the balance. They failed to keep their promise and therefore Gough returned, made his confession and paid the creditors $700 of his $800. The other members of the conspiracy are to be punished.

A reputation for truthfulness is indispensable to permanent and satisfying success.

ALMERIA GRAPES.

The importance of the trade in these grapes will give a special interest to some account of their country of origin. From the small town of Almeria, whence they take their name, there are shipped annually between August 25 and November 15th to 20th, between 500,000 and 900,000 barrels of these grapes, England being the largest consumer, but large quantities are also shipped to New York, both by direct steamers and in transit via Liverpool.

The geographical situation of Almeria is peculiar. The usual means of getting to the town is by steamer sailing from Malaga, which is half way between there and Gibraltar. There is also a coasting steamer leaving regularly once a week from Carthagena to Almeria, and these two routes command most of the passenger traffic; the mails, however, proceed by coach from Lorca, in the adjacent province of Murcia, the nearest railway station to the town of Almeria being about 90 miles distant, and those travellers who are not afraid of a 20 hours journey by coach over bad roads, occasionally impassable after a heavy rainfall, can avail themselves of this route. It is rarely visited by tourists, owing to its inaccessibility, and in consequence of this it is a thoroughly old-fashioned Spanish town, maintaining the customs and habits of the remote past. The visits of travellers have passed this place and left it in isolation. As an illustration of the slight impression that modern ideas have made upon the natives, a story is told of a traveller, who being pitifully impressed with the difficulties under which grape growers labored in getting their fruit from the interior of the country to the port of shipment, attempted to promote a narrow gauge tramway, and in consequence barely escaped with his life from the indignant people, who foresaw a loss of livelihood in the subtle proposition.

The principal source of income in Almeria is derived from grapes minerals and esparte; the population of the town proper numbers about 30,000, but the grapes are not grown in the immediate neighborhood of the town, but in the country within a radius of fifty miles, back from the sea into the interior, to the slopes of the Sierra Nevada mountains. Almost all the inhabitants are engaged in grape growing. The yield of each vineyard ranges from 50 to 2,000 barrels containing from 40 to 50 pounds net. The fruit, as is well known, is white in color, and has astonishing tenacity of life. Early in the season, great quantities of red grapes or "uvacastiza" are also shipped and meet with a ready sale in the English markets. The grapes are grown on trellises over which the vines are trailed to a height of about six feet, and generally forming an arbor. The grapes begin to ripen about the middle of August, and are usually harvested by October 1. Each grower has a house in his vineyard, with slatted sides, and in this house the grapes are 'sweated;' this is to toughen the skins. They are taken from the vines in clusters and carefully laid in these houses to the depth of two feet, and are left there two days. Great drops of water ooze out and drop from the berries during this time. When the grower wishes to prepare his fruit for shipment he takes it from the sweat house and carefully inspects each bunch. All decayed or inferior grapes are cut from the bunch, which is laid on one side ready for packing. The barrels used for this purpose are made of oak, about one half as tall as a flour barrel, and a little less in circumference. The packer takes a barrel and sprinkles about two inches of fine ground cork in the bottom, and then lays round on top of this the bunches of fruit. After that he covers the layer of grapes with a layer of ground cork, shaking it down so that it fills any apertures that may have been left between the bunches. Inasmuch as the grape grows with the fruit wide apart on the stem, this cork also shakes into these little openings between the fruit. This operation is continued until the barrel is nearly full, when about two to three inches of the cork are packed on the top and then the cover is nailed to the barrel. The package thus becomes perfectly air-tight, and when the growers' private brand is placed on top the barrel is ready for shipment. The grower having packed ten or twenty barrels of grapes, proceeds to load from 4 to 6 of them on the back of a donkey or mule by means of a double net, which holds an equal quantity on each side of the animal. He then starts for Almeria, and his donkey being heavily laden, the driver or muleteer is obliged to walk the entire distance. Having reached Almeria the barrels are placed in a store, or on the quay and forwarded where the grower desires. The quality varies greatly, depending on where the grape is grown. The large districts in Spain where the very fine fruit is produced are Oahnes and Alhama, on the slopes of the Sierra Nevada, and Dalias on the plain. The grapes coming from these districts are of a pinkish white character, and are eagerly sought after, as possessing extra keeping qualities and the finest flavour. What is most astonishing about these grapes is the length of time they keep good and sound. Everything is packed and shipped from Almeria, as a rule by November 15, and the jobbing trade rarely dispose of the last of the fruit before the first of the following April.—The Provision Trades' Gazette.

THOSE FASHIONABLE CANES.

BUSINESS PRINCIPLES.

From a trader of experience and recognized position we have the following admirable suggestions in regard to the principles which should be observed in connection with the purchase of goods. While the right is conceded to buy at as advantageous terms as possible, attention is called to certain unbusinesslike practices which sometimes are encountered in the trade. We take especial pleasure in laying before our readers these excellent maxims :

The tradesman who expects to win success must study carefully the economies, look carefully after purchases, try by every honorable means to get the lowest prices the market affords. No manufacturer or wholesale dealer will care less for your orders, or have less respect for you, if you try to buy at the very bottom price. Secure any and every advantage you can in low freights, in time or in cash discount. Carefully look over invoices and insist that prices and terms are in every respect as agreed.

On the other hand be just as careful not to exact a cent that does not belong to you. If you find, after making a purchase at an agreed price, that you could have done better, it is quite right to call the attention of your correspondent to this fact, you have no right, however, to make the deduction without the consent of the other party.

Be very sure you are right in making claims for shortages. Some careleess clerk may have mislaid a package.

Do not take a cash discount from a bill after the agreed time.

When your bills are due, if for any reason you cannot meet them, write plainly to your creditor explaining reason for delay.

Always answer request for money when bills are due.

Never return goods without previously writing to the shipper. If the mistake has been his in sending them, he cannot refuse to take them back. If you have made an error in ordering something you cannot sell, you can doubtless in most cases arrange for return and credit or exchange, but you should have instructions from the seller before returning.

Most wholesale hardware houses and manufacturers make a charge for package and cartage, and do not include this item in their expense account. Unless you have a specific agreement that this item should not be charged you have no more right to deduct it from your invoice than any other item.

The dealer who makes unreasonable claims, returns good without reason, exacts terms and makes deductions in settlement that he is not entitled to, is "penny wise and pound foolish." He not only inflicts loss upon his business correspondents, but he injures himself. The fact of his making these unreasonable exactions is soon known to the trade, and however strong he may be, financially, there is less desire to sell him goods. He cannot go into the market on equal terms with his neighbor, who, perhaps, has no more money, but who lives up carefully to his agreements and asks for nothing he is not fully entitled to.—Ex.

DO PEDDLERS DISSEMINATE DISEASE.

Some few weeks ago a half dozen pack peddlers, hailing from the city of New York, thoroughly covered that section of Connecticut in the vicinity of the town of Canterbury. These venders forced their way into houses, and, opening their packs, displayed their cheap wares for the women to buy. They were generally successful, because the women bought of them to get rid of them. Two weeks after this invasion the community was startled by an outbreak of scarlet fever and diptheria. It was ascertained in the investigation into the causes of the epidemic, that the sickness was confined to those houses in which the peddlers undid their packs. Deaths have already occurred, and the scourge is spreading. A newspaper dispatch from Canterbury says that "in no family where the peddlers failed to get into the house, has either disease appeared. It is the general opinion of the physicians who are attending the sick that the seeds of the diseases were spread by the peddlers and came from their filthy packs."

The Philadelphia Item, commenting on the above, says:—Physicians and sanitarians have for a long time entertained the suspicion that the peddler and his pack are dangerous and fruitful sources of disseminating contagious diseases, such as fevers, small pox and diptheria. More than once the attention of the medical fraternity and health officials have been directed to this suspected channel of contagion. Heretofore the proofs have been lacking, although it was reasonably certain that they existed.

We have now the proofs furnished us that such is really the fact.

What a pointed warning for mothers with tender children under their care !

It is tolerably well known that these industrious peddlers, when at home in the cities, lodge in the slums, or in quarters which are given up wholly to the invading army of foreigners who come to us empty in both hand and pocket. Our readers do not have to be told how these miserable people huddle together like sheep, two and three families promiscuously in a room ; that filth and uncleanliness abounds, as it has been too often described. It is these quarters which are a perpetual menace to the health of cities and give the health authorities the gravest concern. There they sleep in crowded rooms without ventilation and in poisoned atmospheres. They live upon unwholesome food, and are veritable windfalls for contagious diseases.

It is from these shambles, reeking with filth, disease, and ofttimes with vermin, that the peddlers in most cases go forth in the morning on their day's tramp, scattering over city and country, pushing their way into houses in their eagerness to make a sale.

How easy for them to carry the seeds of disease, and particularly of diptheria and scarlet fever, the enemies of childhood ? In the case of the typhus fever outbreak in New York, it has been established that that disease was carried from an infected lodging house to other places.

Women should be extremely careful about receiving a peddler and his pack into their houses, and particularly if he be a dirty specimen of his class. He may have slept the last night in a crowded house in which there were cases of scarlet fever or diptheria, and the microbes may be in his clothes or his packs.

It will be found far cheaper in the end to buy goods from a reputable dealer, even if the great inducement of a bargain is not always thrown in.—New England Grocer.

TORONTO MARKET.

TORONTO, March 31, 1892.

GROCERIES.

The improvement observed last week has in the main continued. Last Friday and Saturday were good days with the wholesalers. Some decline from the rate of activity of those days is natural as the month made its way towards its close. The end of a month is always a time of more or less suspended buying. New engagements are put off till the opening of the new month. No momentous changes have taken place. Sugar is not exciting so much interest among buyers, and sellers are all the better pleased, as long as there is ray of hope for a re-establishment of the list, by some authority, either that of the refiners or that of the united jobbers. Tea is in good demand. Canned goods are going out steadily. General groceries are fairly active. Prices show no signs of improving. Dried fruits—notably Valencia raisins and currants—are very low. Rice is higher. Payments are reasonably good.

COFFEES.

Coffee is receiving its fair proportion of the general attention. A steady outward movement may be chronicled for this week. Values are invariable from week to week. Stocks of common grades are ample, and Rios go out at 17½ to 20c. Mochas are 28 to 30c. Javas shade down farther, a grade being now in stock to sell at 25c.

DRIED FRUIT.

The dealer who has the fewest Valencia raisins has most cause to be satisfied with his position in respect to trade in that staple. The price of old off-stalk is 80c. to $1 per box, and of new off-stalk is 3¾ to 5½c. per lb. Indeed 3¾c. is susceptible of shading, and sales have been made as low as 3½c. Worse raisins have been sold at 5½c. in times gone by. The pressure of heavy supplies from outside is attenuating prices fast. Though no lower quotations may be reached—and there is no warrant for believing that they will not—the present moment is not especially inviting to buyers, as they foresee a continuance of dulness under the incubus of so heavy a supply. Currants are dull and rather weak. The range for Provincials in barrels is 4 to 5¾c., in half barrels 5 to 6¼c. The first direct steamer, the Escalona, has left Patras, where it is reported she took on but 100 tons for the Canadian market. The primary market is as dull as outside distributing centres, and offers for new stock are low. The market for Sultanas is quite stiff, with but a limited demand on spot. The range of prices is 9½ to 13c. Of Malaga raisins only loose muscatels and black-baskets are now in stock. The former sell at $2 to $2.25, the latter at $3 to $3.50.

NUTS.

The trade in nuts is of such small proportions and so utterly featureless that it is difficult to make any comment upon the market. The list in Prices Current hardly needs an explanatory word, so little is there to be said.

RICE AND SPICES.

The lowest price at which Aracan rice now sells from jobbers' hands is 4c., and the quotation runs up to 4⅛c. Japan rice, Montreal milled, is 5c., but foreign milled is 6c. Java rice sells about as easily as Japan rice, the price being 6½ to 7c. Genuine old Carolina is 9½ to 10c.

Spices pursue the very even tenor of their way. The prices of a week ago are those of to-day, and the volume of business is unchanged, a rather quiet trade being the general experience of spice men and grocers.

SUGAR.

Jobbers are not advertising the inside prices that can be wrung from them, but all the same they are conceding those prices. The basis of quotation is 3⅝c. for yellow, and 4⅜c. for granulated, and these prices are shaded when occasion calls for lower figures. The principle that rules appears to be that it is better to lose a little on sugar and make something on other goods that may be included in the purchaser's order, than let the sale go to somebody else. The conservative houses, however, are not making any effort to attach new custom by the force of easy prices on sugar. The old customers continue to get the favor. If the list ever does come into effect again all the houses that have established custom, naturally want to have all their patrons to begin with, and for this they are willing to make a little sacrifice to customers. The position of the sugar market is not materially changed. Raw is intrinsically strong, though pressure to realize, and the manœuvres of the Sugar Trust in the United States are forcing holders to give way occasionally. There appears to be no diminution of the prospect of a shortage in the beet crop equal to that estimated by M. Licht.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS.

But little change is perceptible in the syrup trade, and such as there is in the way of improvement. Grades are to be had from 1⅞ to 3½c., the lowest being very dark.

Business in molasses is unimportant. Orders are always for small parcels, and they come forward very sparingly. No change is to be noted in the quotations as last given in Prices Current.

TEAS.

There is still strong inquiry from New York, Detroit, Chicago and other United States points for Japans of medium and upward grades. Some sales have been made which tend to lighten supplies on this and the Montreal market. The fact that such inquiry and business do exist points to a state of scarcity in the primary market that augurs well for prices of stock held here. The quantity of teas jobbed out is about as large as ever, a very good week's business being generally reported. Indian and Ceylon teas are going out quite freely. Of Indian teas Darjeelings range from 35 to 50c., Assam Pekoes 20 to 40c., Pekoe Souchongs

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.

Nobody looks for the market to take a new tack. The thing expected, and gradually being prepared for by buyers, is an upward movement in all vegetables. The interest of jobbers at other points is beginning to be felt anew in the form of inquiries for round lots of assorted goods and of peas. Some transactions have taken place and others are in progress; the price is pretty much a matter of choice with the holder, and his views prevail in the end. The buyer has to come up with his offer or leave the goods. No very marked change in the conditions noted last week has taken place. The orders from retailers are quite numerous; a greater proportion of them are large. Nearly all sundry orders call for a few cases of vegetables. Stocks on spot are showing the effect of the quiet but continuous draft. Prices do not answer to it by any quotable change in the staple vegetables, but time is a firming influence, and quotations now are strong at the figures given last week, that is, at $1.05 to $1.10. Ordinary sized lots of staple vegetables, whether of separate lines or assortments, are $1.10. Corn is partaking in the general strength, and good brands are $1.10. It is hard to get tomatoes as a separate line in any size of lot at less than $1.10. Pumpkins and beans are coming into interest with buyers now. The former are steady at 90c. to $1, the latter at $1. Fraser River salmon in flat tins continues scarce. Horse shoe is firm at $1.45. Sardines are higher, quarters being 12½c., and halves 20c. Mackerel is easier at 95c. to $1.10. Lobster is quiet at prices on our list. Fruits are slightly more active. Strawberries are obtainable from $2 upwards.

MARKETS—Continued.

18 to 30c. Of Ceylon teas, Broken Pekoes are 35 to 45c., Pekoes 20 to 40c., Pekoe Souchongs 17 to 35c.

Indian teas have been quiet during the past week. From London we hear the quantity of tea offered during the week has been small, and there is no feature of interest to chronicle. A large proportion of the offerings has consisted of poor liquoring, undesirable sorts, and common grades have sold without quotable change, although there is perhaps a slight tendency to firmness. Good liquoring, useful sorts have again been in great request, and these teas show advances on late prices. The market closes with a firm feeling.

MARKET NOTES.

Canadian merchants and exporters opening business with Great Britain should place themselves in communication with Meglaughlin, Marshall & Co., 304 Corn Exchange, Manchester, Eng. They have a good connection, and are well thought of by Canadians who have already done business with them. They have branches at Liverpool and Glasgow.

Mr. W. F. Wilkins of Adamsville, Que., wired Messrs. Clemes Bros., of this city on the 26th inst., as follows: "Tapping well under way. Having first good sap weather to-day." Clemes Bros., expect to be able to fill all orders they have received, and any others that may be sent them very shortly.

The advance in price of Cheese is due to the fact that stocks in this country are very light, the high price paid by the English buyers having taken the bulk of the stock that was carried over the winter. F. W. Fearman, of Hamilton, however, believes that Canadian, as well as the English buyers should have some of the fine Cheese made here, and has a stock selected from the best factories in Western Ontario.

PETROLEUM

Canadian refined continues to be jobbed out in the city at 14½ to 16c, and shipped outside at 14 to 14½c., the difference being for cartage. The usual limits to business this season are now operative.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.29 per barrel; Oil Springs crude $1.29 per bbl. During the past week a firm and steady rise in the price of crude has been manifest, and will, we think, continue for sometime. As we said in our last we can see no reason why it should decline in price at all, but on the contrary everything would indicate a steady market for some time to come. The refined market is in about the same chaotic state as it has been during the past six months, but hopes are entertained that it will eventually come out of it all right, and finally recover its legitimate business basis.

TEA KETTLE VS. WASH BOILER

A teakettle doesn't hold much water, but there's hot water enough in it to do an ordinary wash. There's no boiling or scalding the clothes needed with Surprise Soap. That's different from the heavy wash boiler; the steam about the house; the muss of it. It's a striking difference between SURPRISE and other Soaps. Your customers appreciate Surprise on this account. It has been on trial eight years, and there's money in it.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The balance still tips on the side of the demand. With all the makeshifts that consumers can resort to when butter is dear, the call for supplies continues to be but incompletely met by producers. Cheap syrups, cheap dried and evaporated apples, cheap canned fruit and cheap honey no doubt have a powerfully moderating effect upon the price of butter. If the market for these commodities were but moderately strong, the value of butter would be much higher than it is. Two or three good-sized deals in rolls have taken place, whereby the ownership of lots in the neighborhood of 1,000 lbs. have changed hands. Rolls are still the leading description supplied. Dairy tubs are about in the same proportion now as they were last week. Common and store tub is as much wanted and as hard to get as it was a week ago. The stringency in the supply is felt in all descriptions of homemade butter, and yet creamery sells freely only when prices are reduced. Good large roll butter is 16 to 18c., tubs are 17 to 19 and sometimes 20c., common grades are 13 to 15c., creamery tub is 21 to 24c.

Cheese holds its own as the time wears on. The value is unaltered, good fall stock being a ready seller at 12c. in ordinary lots, 12¼c. in small parcels and 11½ to 11¾c. in cars and round lots generally. Half creams are 10c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES—The market has taken a turn in favor of sellers. Very ordinary stock runs out at $2 and $2.50 per barrel, but any choice hard stock or fancy color commands $3 to 3.50.

BEANS—The stagnation which was a feature in last week's report is undisturbed, and 90c. to $1 are the best prices growers can get for quantities. Re-selling prices are $1.10 to $1.20.

CRANBERRIES—The stock on spot is shrinking into small proportions, and none too soon, as the demand has been languishing for several weeks past. Prices are dull at $4.50 to $5.50.

DRIED APPLES—No change in the situation has been affected by the small business of this week. The sellers' price is 4¾c., while buying is indifferent at 4 to 4¼c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—No new business is reported, though sellers are to be found who would take 8c. if they could get it, but that is the outside price to retailers.

EGGS—Heavy supplies and spiritless demand keep the price down to 11c.

HIDES—Not a particle of change has over the market. No. 1 green cows' are 4½c. Cured hides are quiet at 5c.

HONEY—Sales are not of as frequent occurrence as buyers would like. No change is to be noted in prices, 9 to 10c. holding for extracted and 14 to 16c. for sections.

HOPS—The figures that represent sellers' ideas are unchanged at 18 to 24c. Yearlings are 18c.

ONIONS—Shipping is not so much held back by weather and prices are scarcely so firm as they were, though a decline in supplies is beginning to tell in favor of sellers. They quote at $2.25 to $2.75.

POTATOES—Free offers relieve the mind of buyers from all anxiety with respect to supplies, as 30c. on track is often a taking bid. Out of store prices are 40 to 54c.

SEEDS—Weakness in prices is the feature now most prominent Clover is easier as a consequence of some shipments which were forwarded from the United States to England being recalled under signs of scarcity on this side. The price it is jobbed out at is $7.35 to $7.50. Alsike as well appears to be more plentiful than it was supposed to be, and quotes at $7 to $8.50. Timothy is $1.65 to $1.85.

SKINS—Sheepskins are steady at $1.10 to $1.25. Calfskins are offered and taken freely at 5 to 7c.

TALLOW—Refined is taken at 5½c., and jobbed out at 6c. Rough is unchanged at 2c.

WOOL—The market shows no reviving symptoms, and 18c. remains the best price for fleeces.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

Hogs are seldom offered now, but a quotation is nominally kept up at $5.75 to $6.10. Products are steady, no very considerable run being experienced on anything, though long clear receives a fair measure of attention. The speculative interest in barrel pork aroused by the announcement that the budget was about to be brought down has flickered out with the appearance of that message and the lack of any proposal in it to stiffen the duty on mess pork.

BACON—Long clear is steady at 7¾ to 8c. Smoked bellies go at 10c. for heavy, 10½c. for medium, 11c. for boneless; backs are 10½c.; rolls are 8 to 8½c.

HAMS—Large lots are 10½c.

LARD—Pure is still firm at 9¾ to 10¼c. in tubs and pails. Compound is 7½ to 8½c.

BARREL PORK—The price of U. S. mess is steady at $13 to $14, of Canadian $15. Short cut is firm at $16 to $16.50.

DRESSED MEATS—A decline in receipts is experienced. Beef in fore quarters is 4½ to 5½c., in hind quartes 7½ to 8½c., lamb is 8 to 9½c., veal is 8½ to 9½c., mutton is 7 to 7½c.

GREEN FRUIT.

All foreign markets are advancing fast on oranges. Prices here are this week as a consequence stiffer, a condition which the local relation of supply and demand tends to intensify. Floridas are scarce on spot and very firm at $4 to $4.50. Valencias are much higher everywhere, the quotation now standing at $5.50 to $6 in jobbing quantities here. Messinas are coming into stock gradually and selling at $3.50 to $4. The two great classes of California oranges, the Seedlings and the Navels, are being brought on the market at the rate of five or six cars per week. In each class there are four varieties. The range for seedlings is $3.50 to $4, and for Navels $4.50 to $5.50. Lemons are quiet and continue low-priced. Palermos and Messinas quote equally at $3 to $4. Bananas are more plentiful at $1.75 to $2.50. Pineapples grade downward farther on account of lack of color in some stock now to hand. The range is $2 to $3.50. Sweet potatoes are unchanged at $4 to $4.50 for Jerseys.

FISH.

The trade in fish has been very fair during the past week. Fresh salmon has been in good demand notwithstanding that the price had risen to 22c. per lb. Other prices are easy, pike being quoted at 4c., Manitoba white fish at 7c., and salmon trout at 7c. The stocks of some kinds of fish are very small, and herring and cod are not obtainable in any considerable quantities.

SALT.

Trade has been fairly brisk in salt this week, two cars of sacs, coarse, at 70c., one car of dairy at $1.25, and two cars of bbls. at $1.20., having been moved. There has also been an increase in the movement in small quantities.

DRY GOODS.

The trade among the wholesale dry good houses has been but fair during the past week. Most of the large orders have been filled and business will be somewhat quieter until the repeat orders become brisker. Payments are very good and the general feeling of the trade is very fair.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, March 31, 1892.

The week has shown no new feature and the trade here report their men doing well, and now as the spring advances business will no doubt improve. Still more sugar is in good demand at steady prices, and although the refiners are not pushing sales, quite a few have transpired during the week at 4 9-16c. The wholesale trade have got tired of cutting prices and have gone back to the old figures. The French houses say their men are doing well and that payments are good.

SUGAR.

The refiners here report a good demand for sugar, but the wholesale trades are not pushing it. There is not much granulated stock on hand just now, and orders are coming in freely for it at 4½c.; the refiners are asking 1-16c. higher for prompt delivery. The backbone is apparently knocked out of the competition among the wholesale grocery houses, who have raised their figure to the half. The market on the whole is firmer, but the wholesale trade are not buying freely and must be holding off for lower prices. The two large French houses have also raised their price to the halt. We quote granulated 4½ to 4 9-16c.; yellows, low grade, 3½ to 3¾c., and yellows bright 3¾ to 4¼c.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.

There is only a small demand for Canadian syrups at the old figures, viz., 1¾ to 2¾c. per lb. American seem to have more call on this market and some pretty fair lots have been brought in lately. Molasses is moving in a jobbing way at the old price; quite a few sales have been made this week at 35c. The latest advices from Barbadoes says the market is quiet and unchanged. Barbadoes 35 to 38c., American 28c., syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 30 to 45c. for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

TEAS.

There has been a fair movement in teas during the week, High grade Japans are in the same steady demand, but are very

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

Business in flour still lacks the stimulus of a demand that acts only in short intervals, mistrustful of the stability of the market. The dulness in wheat is the cause of this reserve. That is lower, and has no immediate prospect of being higher very soon. The outlook for next crop is not sufficiently clear yet to become a factor in the situation. Orders of more than local account are sparingly given for flour. Bids are all low. Feed is steady, and wanting generally an undertone of strength.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $5.20; strong bakers', $4.85; Ontario patents, $4.40; straight roller, $4.75; extra, $4.10 to $4.15: low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $5.10 to $5.50; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.70 to $4.90; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.90; straight roller, $4.10 to $4.20; extra, $3.95 to $4.00; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

MEAL—Oatmeal is $3.90 to $4.00. Cornmeal is $4.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is $4.50 per barrel.

FEED—Bran is $14 to $15, shorts $15 to $16, mixed feed $23 to $25, cracked corn $1.15, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 31 to 32c.

HAY—is fairly active at $11.50 to $12 for No.1 timothy and $10 to $10.50 for mixed.

STRAW—is steady at $6 to $6.50.

MONTREAL.

Flour sales continue within narrow compass, and full prices are obtainable only on small lots. The constant downward trend of wheat in the great grain centres renders local buyers cautious and business on export account impossible. The demand from Newfoundland, usually an encouraging feature at this season, is conspicuous by its absence, and the breaking up of the roads militates against trade with country buyers. The week therefore must be said to open upon a decidedly discouraging condition of affairs. The stock in store on Saturday last showed an increase of 3267 barrels as compared with the same day of the previous week and an increase of 4493 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year We quote:—Patent, spring $5 to $5.20; patent, winter $5 to $5.10; straight roller, $4.50 to $4.65; extra, $4 15 to $4.30; superfine, $3.90 to $4.05; fine, $3.30 to $3.65; strong bakers, $4.60 to $5 00.

Oatmeal—There is no alteration perceptible. Trade is quiet and buyers continually demand concession. The stock in store on Saturday last showed a decrease of 96 barrels when compared with the same day of the week previous and an increase of 3,649 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote:—Granulated, bbls. $3.95 to $4; Rolled, bbls. $3.95 to $4; Standard, bbls. $3.85 to $3.90; Granulated in bags $1.92 1-2 to $1.95; Rolled, in bags $1.92½ to $1.95 Standard, in bags $1.85 to $1.90.

Feed is steady, with some demand for bran and shorts. We quote bran $16, shorts $17, and moullie $23.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

The condition of the flour market is unchanged. There is very little outside demand, and the local trade is well supplied. Prices are quoted a shade easier and seem likely to remain steady. Manitoba is quoted at $5.75 to $5.85; Ontario High grades $5.10 to $5.15.; Medium Patents $4.80 to $5.

Oatmeal—The market is dull and prices somewhat lower, with a limited demand. Present quotations are for rolled $5.30 to $5.40.

scarce, there is also a small movement in blacks. We hear that the block of 2,000 packages, which has been held by a bank for sometime has been withdrawn from the market for the present. A broker representing a New York house sold 1,700 packages of low grade Japans ranging from 11½ to 13c.

COFFEES.

The demand for coffee is not active, but there is a fair business doing. Jamaicas moving quietly at a slightly higher price than Rios. There is another consignment coming direct from Aden soon, which is likely to have the same success as the last shipment which was closed out quickly. We quote :—Rio, 18 to 20c., Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c.; Jamaica; 19 to 21c.; Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c. ; Santos, 17½ to 19c.

RICE.

The rice market is strong, and it is reported that quite a turnover was made during the week among the wholesale houses, and those who have more than a sufficient stock are reaping the benefits of the advanced prices. We quote Standard $4 to $4.10, Japan $4.50 to $5, Patnas $4.10 to $4.75, and Carolina $7 to $8.

DRIED FRUIT.

The dried fruit market is quiet and prices are hard to quote, and outside of a small jobbing business there is nothing new to note. Valencia raisins are selling at 4¾c., but stock can be had at almost any price owing to the wide difference in quality. Currants about the same at 5c. The majority of jobbers here hold light stocks and some improvement is looked for in the near future. We quote :—Valencias, ordinary, 3½ to 4c. ; No. 1 off stalk, 4½c. ; layers, 6c. to 6¼c.; Patras currants, 5 to 5¼c.; Vostizzas, in cases, 7½ to 8c.; provincial currants, 4⅞ to 5½c.

NUTS.

Nuts are dull and unchanged, and outside of a small jobbing trade there is nothing doing. We quote as follows :—Almonds, Tarragona 14 to 15c.; Almonds, Ivica 14 to 15c. ; Almonds, common 10 to 11c. ; Almonds, hardshell 07 to 08c.; Walnuts, Grenoble, new 12 to 13c.; Walnuts, French 10 to 10½c.; Cocoanuts per 100 $4.50 to $5 ; Filberts 9 to 10c.; Pecans 16 to 17c.; Peanuts 07 to 10c.

GREEN FRUIT.

The movement in green fruit is not specially active. Oranges have advanced in price since our last and are steady at the following prices:—Valencias, $5 to $5 50; Jamaicas in barrels bring from $6.50 to $7, and Floridas are steady at $3 50 to $3.75. Lemons are quiet now and will be till the spring opens, when the direct steamers are booked to arrive, when there will no doubt be quite a stir. The market here just now is steady at the old prices—viz., $2.50 to $3. Strawberries, pineapples and bananas all have a small sale and we quote strawberries 50 to 55c. per box, bananas at $2.75 to $3.25 per bunch, and pineapples 25 to 30c. apiece.

APPLES.

The apple market is firm and stocks here are light. We quote $3 to $4 for prime stock. Evaporated apples are quiet at 8 to 8½c., dried bring from 5 to 6c. Evaporated peaches in tins, 12 to 13c.

HOPS.

Trane is not reviving, but small arrivals and offerings tend to keep the market firm, and Canadian are quoted at 20 to 24c. according to qnality. Pressed hops have the same movement at 18c.

FISH.

There has been very little call for fish during the week, and the market is still therefore well supplied. We quote as follows : Herring, No. 1, per bbl., $4.50 to $4.60; lake trout, per half bbl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.25 to $8.75; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

SMOKED FISH.

We quote :—Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.15 to $1.30 ; Saint John's bloaters, per box, $1 to $1.10 ; boneless cod, large boxes, 6 to 7c ; do small boxes, 7 to 8c.

PICKLED FISH.

Labrador herring are quoted at $5.50 to $5.75 per bbl, and French Shore at $5 to $5.25. Sea trout $4.50 per half bbl. Salmon is nominally quoted at $12 in bbls. Dry cod $5 to $5.25, and green cod $5.25 to $5.50 for No. 1, and $5.75 for large.

PROVISIONS.

The local provision market is without particular change. The demand is slow and prices for pork unchanged, one packer issuing a circular to-day in which short cut is quoted at $17. We quote as follows: Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.50 to $17.00 ; mess pork, western, per brl. $16.00 to $16.50; short cut, western, per brl. $17 to $17.25; hams, city cured, per lb. 9½c. to 10½c; lard, Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c ; bacon per lb. 9c. to 10c ; lard, com. refined, per lb. 7¼ to 7¾c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Butter does not show any new feature. A small jobbing trade is doing at about quotations, and that is all the business there is to note. We quote :—Creamery, 20 to 22c. ; Townships, dairy 18 to 20c.; Morrisburg and Brockville, 18 to 19c. ; Western dairy, 16 to 17c.

Cheese does not, of course, furnish anything on spot, but the steady refusal of the public cable to advance indicates that the market over in Great Britain is not so brisk as people expected. In fact in some of the later deals on a 11¾ basis there will have to be some close figuring if prices are to be believed.

EGGS.

The egg market rules quiet, but was a little firmer to-day, 11 to 12c. being the figure for fresh. A few limed eggs are still on the market and are being jobbed off at 7 to 8c.

GRAIN.

Nothing doing in wheat. No. 1 regular is offered in store here at about equal to 78c., while there was buying at North Bay by Western men at that price. Feed wheat continues in demand at the same prices.

Barley is nominally unchanged.

Peas are unchanged still, but are duller west in consequence of the decline in the cable.

Oats remain quiet at former figures.

We quote values generally as follows :—No. 2 hard Manitoba, $1.03 ; No. 3 do., 97c.; No. 2 Northern, $1.04.; peas, 72c. to 74c. per 66 pounds ; oats, 31c. per 32 pounds, for Quebec ; Ontario, 34c. per 34 pounds ; corn, 60 to 62c., duty paid ; feed barley, 42 to 43c. ; good malting do., nominal.

The stocks in store in Montreal compared with those of a week ago show a decrease of 90,379 bushels of wheat, 555 bushels of corn, 3,931 bushels of barley, 96 barrels oatmeal, and an increase of 19091 bushels of peas, 62,253 bushels of oats, and 736 bushels of rye. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 131,561 bushels of wheat, 222,569 bushels of peas, 158,851 bushels of oats, 30,517 barley, 8,026 bushels of rye, 3,649 barrels of oatmeal and a decrease of 7,875 bushels of corn.

The stocks of grain and flour in Montreal on the dates mentioned were as follows.

	Mar. 26, 1892.	Mar. 19, 1892.	Mar. 28, 1891.
Wheat, bush	538,694	629,063	407,133

CANNED GOODS —Are beginning to move a little more freely, with no change in quotations.

SUGAR—In yellows the market is somewhat easier. Granulated holds steady and is quoted at 4 to 4⅜c., yellows at 3⅜c.

SYRUPS—Old stocks are pretty well reduced and sell quite readily, with quotations same as last.

BUTTER — Is very scarce, with prices higher. Fair quality is quickly bought up at 18 to 20c., while choice stock are selling at 22 to 24c.

EGGS—Are coming in more freely, and prices are gradually dropping; 14 to 16c. are the selling prices.

FISH—Dry cod are somewhat lower in price. Smoked herring 9 to 11c., shad, mess, $6.25 to $6.50.

BEANS—Are moving very slowly. The market is well supplied and prices are steady.

A TRANSACTION IN MOLASSES.

A rather peculiar action was decided by the Court of Appeals in Montreal the other day. The plaintiffs were Messrs. Vipond & Sons, and the defendants Tiffin Bros. In March, 1891, both parties gave an order for molasses to Goodhew & Sons, brokers, Vipond & Sons' order being for 200 puncheons and Tiffin Bros.' for 300. The orders of the two firms were given separately and independently, the understanding being that Tiffin's order should be filled first. Subsequently, the price of molasses rising, Tiffin Bros. increased their order to 1,000 puncheons. While the order was being filled the brokers received a telegram that 250 puncheons had been secured, and later another one to the effect that 550 puncheons had been bought, and without authorization from their principals, they told the two firms that these quantities would be divided between them in proportion to their orders. Now, it is customary to send with the orders for molasses, a credit on a bank here for the amount. Messrs Tiffin sent a credit on the Bank of Montreal. Messrs. Vipond did not. Finally, when 1,000 puncheons had been secured, the vendors shipped them to Messrs. Tiffin and drew on them for the amount. Then Vipond & Sons went to Tiffin Bros. and claimed 200 of the puncheons as theirs, offering to repay the amount. They were refused, and thereupon they brought this action for the amount of the probable profits they would have made on the 200 puncheons. The Court of Appeals holds that all the molasses consigned to Messrs. Tiffin Bros. and got by them must be theirs, and confirms the judgment, dismissing the action. If the plaintiffs have any ground for action, it is further said, it must be against the vendors of the molasses.

POINTS FOR TRAVELLING MEN.

Honesty is the best policy. This proverb has come down to us with the indorsement of the ages. It has also varied applications. At this place I would impress its applicability in the matter of the statements of the traveller to his prospective customer. The benefit resulting from the boasting of large sales is very problematical, to say the least. The customer is not likely to be induced to buy any more than he wants by any such devices, and their only effect on the sensible man is to make the boaster ridiculous in his eyes. It does not take much power of discernment to see that his purpose in resorting to them is to add to his own importance. A good memory is said to be essential to the successful liar, and this sort of boasting is not so much unlike lying as to make the good memory unnecessary. A ludicrous illustration of this matter was recently related. A traveller who was given to boasting of his large sales, and who was suspected of drawing somewhat on his imagination for his facts, was indulging his propensity in the presence of a company of fellow travellers, one of whom quietly took notes of the figures as he gave them. The result was that he not only lost the respect of his companions, but the circumstance having been reported outside, he became the butt of ridicule among his customers.

Occasionally a traveller gets too big for his position, and attempts to bolster himself up by claiming to have a proprietary interest in the house, that he is none of your common, every day "travellers," but that he is a sort of a "special," and is just out taking a look over the trade, as it were, and as a rule, makes only the larger towns. He, perhaps, imagines that this sort of talk raises him in the estimation of the customer; it doesn't, however. The chances are, moreover, that some rival will give him away, and, thus stripped of his borrowed plumage, his influence is very much impared. The traveller must never feel above his business. When he is attacked with this species of big head it is high time his services were dispensed with.—The Travelling Salesman.

The sixth annual report of the President of the Port Arthur Board of Trade very fully covers the ground that comes under the purview of commercial observation. The population of Algoma is shown to have doubled in the last decade, numbering now 42,000 people. The elevating capacity controlled by Port Arthur is shown to be 4,000,000 bushels. The Board is recommended to take up vigorously the matter of elevator development, as on that depends the destiny of the town as a grain market similar to Duluth and Chicago. The need of a flouring mill is pointed out. The lumber trade is shown to be very prosperous. The adverse effect of the Act of a year ago, which imposed a royalty tax on mining lands, is dwelt upon. The report is thoughtful and encouraging and is creditable to the business sagacity of Mr. Marks, the capable President of the Board.

THE CORNER GROCER.

Schmidt and his clerk Herman had just finished loading the delivery waggon and started the boy on his way when officer Tooley dropped in to tell them that a chicken had escaped from the coop at the rear of the store. "Now, Herman, yoost see! Go, fix dem coops, und give dem shickens some vawter. I exshpose dey been dry like a vooden leg, onerwise dey doan try gittin' loose," said Schmidt. "Sometimes Herman is bin a careful and vatching clerk," he continued, "und sometimes as donnerwedder lazy like der deffel; I bin telling him about dem shickens yesterday already, aber, I doan pleeve hes bin give em more as a pound corn in two days. Now dot shicken's gone! How you go to make dot loss up?" asked Schmidt as he hung up a sign on the chandelier which read: "Hier wirt Deutch und English geshprochen." "Say, officer," said Schmidt, "yoost vait till I cuts dis leedle child some bacon avay, I like to ask you someting—oh, here is Herman—say, Herman, give dis leedle geerl for 10 cent bacon, und wrap up der shange; she got a quwater of a tawler; give her one of dem vanilla bean wafers. Dot's Krep's geerl, he vorks in der prewery und gets paid efery oner veek; his gredit is good, aber he doan vant some."

"Now, Tooley, vot I like to ask you ish dis: You bin selling tickets by der Fair Grounds vonst, don't you?"

"Yes," said Officer Tooley, "I sold tickets there one season."

"Vell," asked Schmidt, "Off you make a mistake by dem change how you know it is bin done?

"Easy enough to know that," said the officer. "I was given so many tickets and I had to turn in so much money."

"Yah, dot's all right," said Schmidt; "aber hers. You give him his ticket und his shange mit once, don't you? Or wie you do dot anyhow you gif him — — you take from him feerst his money, ain't it und den you gif him his ticket und his shange? (Say Herman, here's comin dot fellow for dem empty finegar barrels. Help him load em up—six, und one visky barrel.")

"I took the purchaser's money, then handed him his ticket with his change, always," said the officer. Why? Did somebody get too much shange from you?"

"No—oh, no—no, I tink not," said Schmidt. "Dot is, I doan know oxactly how many money I have got, as I doan got a register, aber I doan tink I makin de wrong shange," said Schmidt, as he picked a couple of feathers out of the red onion barrel. "Dem der fellow vot I pin dinkin of is all right, I know dot. He comes in here dis morning und laughing he says, 'Ah, mine frinde Schmidt, wie gehts?' und I say, 'gehts open.' Dot makes him laugh, und he say, 'Oh, you Schmidt, you deffil; you bin always got somedings new to say!' Vell, I pin counting eggs aber I vipes dem bran fon my fingers und ask him vot it is. He say. 'Vot! you forget me so soon? I pin vorkin for dem city. He's got a yob on de City Hall, he say, und he likes to look at my gas mixer or vot he call it.'"

"Your gas meter," volunteered the officer. "He was, perhaps, an inspector."

"A vot? I likes to know yoost his yob ish."

"A gas inspector," repeated the officer.

"So!" said Schmidt. "I pleeve he is been doing somedings mit gas, for he looks around my mixer—er my—vot you call dot? meeter, oh yah. Now he say to me—I been giving a lady some lardt in a dishes—he say, 'Vell, Schmidt, efery dings is good here around—bis auf wiedersehen,' und he is going out ven he say, 'Ah, Schmidt, you got some cigars?' I say, 'shure,' und I get from der shelf a box und he take one owed. Den he say, 'Geminy, Schmidt, dot's all de money I got—nothing smaller,' und he gif me a finf dawler pill. I lay dem change on der counter—I'm pooty sure I did—may be not; anyhow, he say, 'Hello, Schmidt, here is a nickel—yoost give me dot fimf dawler back again,' vitch I did, und he given to me de nickel. Vell, dot looks all right, aber he gets dot shange too, maybe, eh? I ask him once some time ven I come on der City Hall," said Schmidt, as he partially raised the lid of a hominy bin and leaned back on the edge of it.

Officer Tooley laughed long and heartily, and in amazement Schmidt asked:

"Vy you laugh so tam big?"

"Why, you have been flim-flammed," said Tooley.

"Flimmer-flam! vots dot?" asked Schmidt, as he scanned himself from head to foot.

"That fellow," said the officer, "was not a gas inspector, he was a confidence man. He got your change, $5 bill, cigar, and all. Ha, ha, ha."

"Say, Tooley, doan you fool mit me. A virm vot ish too much shtep on is boun to turn up side down."

"I'm not fooling you," said Tooley, "that fellow 'worked' you. He don't belong to the City Hall any more than you do."

"Ouf I find him, does der law let me kill him? asked Schmidt, excitedly.

"Not quite," said the officer, "but how in the world did he 'do' you. Haven't you read of those fellows who make a practice of such things for a living?"

"No," said Schmidt "did he do dees tings already before?"

"Certainly," answered the officer. "Every day you read of such fellows as he is."

"Now, py goodness, I git me a zeitung. Herman, he always say, no use to sphend money for bapers, awer, I been fooled much by dese schmoot fellows, yund yoost letz veek dot Intergrocer Schtatement' man vas here, aber Herman he keep me back from taking von year's inscriptions. Now, you see vot it is. I'm de tam fool, und I tink I,m schmardt. Letz veek a schmall boy been coming in here und he say he haf a letter from my vife who is up town buying dry goods. I reads dem letter und it was from my vife. She say:

"Schmitt: Blease gif dis poy finf dawler, I doan take enough along.

MARIE."

"Dot poy gits dem five dawlers, und ven mine vife comes home, she say she doan been sending dot boy, see! He schwindles me too, by Jeeminently dis ish one son of a gun of a guntry. Before I come ofer here mine friend writing me und he say: 'Dis is a pully country, come ofer.' Hier gehts geradt wie in Deutchland, but I bin not seeing so many schwindlers in mine country."

As officer Tooley walked out, Schmidt said to Herman:

"Yoost delephone dot cash re—gister man to come down here, und bring a machine mit, I likes to know how schlow I bin gettin rich."

Then Schmidt hung up a sign: "Eggs, 20 cents; fresh, 25 cents," and rolled his apron up and went to lunch, after giving Herman instructions to put new sawdust under the syrup faucets.—W. E. Robertson in Interstate Grocer.

THE GROCER OF THE FUTURE.

Yes, the grocer of the future
Will be what they call "all-round;"
He will aim at something higher
Than the making of a pound.

He will play upon the organ,
He will play upon the flute,
He will write sweet "lyric" poems
On his sugar and his fruit.

Mathematics pure or mixed, sir,
He will do with wondrous ease;
Euclid he will know by heart, sir,
And all modern histories.

Philosophic he will be, sir,
French and German he will speak,
Metaphysics he will study,
And, of course, a little Greek.

He will be a jolly fellow,
Smoke his pipe and help the poor,
And have cushioned seats in summer,
Just outside his grocery store.

And in winter tea and muffins
For each buyer he will get,
And, of course, he'll lend umbrellas,
Gratis, when the weather's wet.

And on Saturdays he'll sing, sir,
Serio-comic songs galore,
As he plays upon his banjo
In the middle of his store.

And when daisies fleck the meadows
And the woods are full of flow'rs,
He will wander thro' them, dreaming
Of a happier land than ours.

Won't he be a splendid fellow?
Well, he's coming, so they say,
Let us hope with all his learning
He will make the grocery pay.

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

JOHN BAKER EDWARDS, P.L.D., D.C.L., F.C.S.,

Public Analyst for the District of Montreal, and Professor of Chemistry.

CHEMICAL LABORATORY, MEDICAL FACULTY, MCGILL UNIVERSITY.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested e sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

Keep thy shop and the shop will keep thee.

It is an unreasonable and unjust law which makes the grocer the scapegoat of manufacturers who produce impure goods. In the case of the manufacturer or wholesaler charged with selling adulterated goods, the package is allowed to speak for itself. Upon its evidence the accusation stands or falls. The word "compound," plainly marked on the package, saves the accused, if the mixture be one of the permitted sort. Why should not the same evidence be acceptable in the defence, as it is in the prosecution of a grocer? A package of coffee bears the word "compound" upon it, a grocer makes a sale from its contents to some one who wants a pound of 30-cent coffee, the buyer turns out to be a detective in the service of the Inland Revenue department, the coffee is officially analyzed, is found to contain chicory, the grocer is billed with the costs of examination ($14), and may feel thankful that he is not fined fifty dollars for violating the Adulteration Act. In a case of this kind the detective makes it a point to know nothing but the bald facts—that he asked for coffee, that he was given what was contained in the package submitted for analysis, that he was not advised of any mixture, and that the stuff was therefore sold for coffee, not "coffee compound." Probably he saw no package; if he did, and noted the word "compound" on it, he did not see fit to pay any attention to it, choosing to rest his case upon the facts, that coffee he asked for, and coffee compound he got. The law says that harmless compounds must be "sold and offered for sale as compounds." Should the grocer sell to the informer from an original package which does not bear the word "compound," and the article of food so sold turn out to be impure, the informer can trust the evidence of his eyes in that case, and will be sure to remember that the package had not the saving word upon it.

The grocery trade is becoming as ticklish a calling as that of the druggist. In his own defence the grocer will have to label his parcels "compound," when they contain anything to dilute the pure article. Coffees, spices, etc., must no longer be defined simply by the price, but by the term "compound" or "pure." A customer wants a 25 cent coffee, and so words the order. The grocer must re-word it inquiringly in the form "25 cent coffee compound." There must be this clear understanding between the buyer and seller, for the latter to keep within the law. People will never learn to use the defining word in giving orders, but that is no reason why the grocer should expose himself to the danger of prosecution. It is not always an angel you are entertaining unawares, but sometimes a minion of the Inland Revenue Department, and it is as well to acquire the habit of caution.

THE GROCER upholds pure goods, and deplores the causes which have led to so general a vitiation of quality. Adulteration comes of unbridled competition, of which the motto; Cheapness at any sacrifice. Many consumers who buy cheap goods are unaware that the quality is debased to the price, and believe that the price is lowered to the quality. It is well that these should be protected, and the law holding the manufacturer responsible is in the public good. But it should not make the trader sponsor of the manufacturer. If the grocer had any special privileges to balance his special responsibilities in this matter, there would be no cause of complaint. But license or other protection usually goes with the liability of inspection in every other calling. The druggist is made responsible for the consequences of mistakes made by himself or, in matters of quantity, by the physician whose prescription he has to fill; but the trade of the druggist is protected by legal requirements as to examination, service and professional course, that narrow the gate for the entrance of competitors. The saloon keeper must submit to inspection and regulation, but he is protected by a license fee and a limitation of competition. The grocer alone has to submit to vexatious espionage and be exposed to the risks of prosecution, without a single compensating privilege. It is right that the public should have a fair chance to choose between pure and impure articles of food, but this should be possible without introducing Noah Claypole into the grocery trade. The inspector, if there is to be one, should be a member of the trade, acquainted with the situation in which the grocer is placed, and prepared to distinguish between cases of fraudulent intent and mere inadvertence. But a regular informer, chosen because of some lowly service as a party hack, can do no good to the cause of purity. Where inspection is carried on for the sake of the inspector rather than of the public, who have made no complaint about adulterated coffee, it is apt to be oppressive

PURCHASING POWER.

Is your dollar as good as any other man's? Maybe it is and maybe it is not. A dollar is a hundred cents anywhere, no matter in whose hands it is, but some men can make it do a hundred and ten cents' worth of buying, while others can make it do only ninety cents' worth. There are more possibilities in the mere application of money than are dreamt of in some merchants' philosophy. There is close analogy between "purchase" as used in mechanics and as used in business. The money gives the medium and basis of leverage, the force laid out depends upon the agency which is handling it. A hundred pound man at the end of a crowbar in position will not raise as much as a two-hundred-pound man on the same lever. Money has a relative as well as an absolute value. This is illustrated in the differences of result attained by equal amounts in different hands. With one man ten thousand dollars will vanish to zero in five years, with another it will grow to fifteen thousand dollars in the same time, and all the conditions may be equal between the same two men, with the exception of the disparity in their buying ability. One man applies his money to the market as an engineer applies force to matter, with an eye to the maximum of effect with the minimum of energy. Another lays out his money as if he were simply making an exchange, instead of buying. There is usually a vast difference in the total result at the end of a lifetime. Buying is something more than converting money into merchandise.

A dollar can be made go farther just now in the grocery trade than it could a year ago. The balance is on the side of money as against merchandise; usually it is, of course, but is much more so now than it commonly is. Hence, the present is a buyers' market. Prices rule low on the general average and distribution is divided up. The retailer has therefore advantages that he cannot afford to ignore. If he does, his competitor will not, and the local balance of trade will shift to the competitor's side. If A can go into a wholesale grocer's sample room and buy a certain quality of tea at 16c., B has himself to blame if he buys the same description of tea from the same wholesaler at 18c. It is not desirable to depress prices unduly, but it is material that each man should look out for the lowest that anybody else can secure. It is by attending to this that the tendencies of competition can be withstood.

A trader may have a special point of vantage as a buyer, in his readiness to pay spot cash every time, in his ability to place large orders, in his knowledge of the market, in his judgment of quality and value, or in some other strong point. Competitors who have no distinguishing strong point as buyers must usually pay higher—sometimes considerably higher—prices than he does. Perhaps it ought to be thus, that every man should get the benefit of his own gifts or resources, but less favored competitors cannot allow themselves to be handicapped. They can make a specialty of close buying as a matter of principle, and should never capitulate to a quotation till they find out if they cannot better it. They should remember that no matter how unequal retailers may be in the eye of sellers, they are all equal in the eye of buyers, and it is the buyers who lay on the level. The smallest retailer must sell at the lowest price his big rival chooses to fix, and the smallest retailer should get all he can get in the way of concessions.

MERCHANTS' TAXES.

The bill proposing to change the basis of taxation for merchants from capital to net income, has unfortunately met with a colder reception in the Ontario Legislature than its friends expected, and as a result of the report of the Municipal Committee, was withdrawn. The argument that appeared to prevail most against the measure was that of J. K. Kerr, speaking for a deputation from the city Ratepayers' Association. He said that if the bill passed it would be unjust to real estate owners, and also to those who invested in municipal debentures, on the understanding that there would not be any radical change in the basis of assessment. Such a change as proposed would, he held, militate against the value of municipal securities. There appeared to be an opinion among some of the members of the committee that the bill would have too disturbing an effect upon the whole assessment law, and that this should be looked into before the bill was recommended to the House. The breadth of the general asssessment question, it was felt, entitled it to a session of the legislature for its special consideration. Some members appeared to be so little acquainted with the question that they regarded it as a move in the direction of exemption. It is to be hoped that the principle of the measure will receive fairer treatment next year.

TRADE IN JAPAN TEA.

According to private advices from Yokohama, the shipments of Japan tea from that port and Kobe to the United States and Canada for the season 1891-92 show an increase of 2,277,049 lbs. over those for the season 1890-91. This difference, and indeed more than this difference, is credited to the Canadian trade, for the imports of the United States show a falling off of 1,577,413 lbs. from those of that country a year ago. This balance is redressed by the volume of sales assigned to Canada and turned into an increase of 2,277,049 lbs. for the American continent, by an increase of 3,854,462 lbs. in Canadian purchases for the season 1891-92. The decline in United States imports was entirely in purchases on western account, Chicago and the west having taken 2,735,042 lbs. less than was shipped to the same quarter a year ago. The explanation given for this shrinkage in the western demand is that the imports of the year before (1890-91) were so very much above those of 1889-90 that a falling off was to be looked for. The Pacific and Atlantic centres of distribution took above half a million lbs. each more this season than they did last.

The gain in Canadian imports is not what it appears to be, as the figures are taken from invoices shipped via Suez Canal and bearing the "Canada clause." A large part of the tea so marked is as likely to reach New York as Canada. The aim of that clause is to get the tea into this country free of duty, a privilege here accorded to all tea shipped direct from the country of growth. Tea sent here from the United States has to pay a duty of 10 per cent. It is to avoid this that the Canada clause is resorted to by shippers, who, if they fail to find a market in the United States, want to be in a position to enter our ports free of duty.

The United States trade of 1890-'91 was speculative to some extent, while that of Canada was normal during the same period, this country being less affected by silver fluctuations than the United States. Hence ours was comparatively a more receptive market during last season.

The total increase of 2,277,039 lbs. to the United States and Canada has been owing to excessive shipments of common teas. Heavy losses on these make it it improbable that the same course will be followed in the coming season. The same advice states that crop prospects are favorable, but as there is a month of uncertain weather to be passed through before the leaf is ready for picking, crop prospects are an unknown quantity in the situation. Smaller shipments are expected to go forward this year on account of the large ones of the past two years.

SHORT SALMON PACK.

It is announced that all the managers of companies controlling canneries and most of the individual canners have signed an agreement to only put up a half pack this year. This is done on account of the large quantities of salmon carried over from last season. It is expected that it will have a salutary effect upon the salmon market. The heavy stocks on hand have no doubt induced the parties concerned to come to this resolve. Considering cost of production, etc., salmon have undoubetedly ruled very low—too low in fact to afford such a profit as might reasonably be expected. The runs have latterly been heavy, a circumstance of which some canners have taken the utmost advantage, with the result that has now to be deplored—an over pack. The belief that the course indicated above would in all likelihood be followed has already had the effect of strengthening the market, and if the policy resolved on be consistently persued—the indications being also that the run this year will be light—better times in this branch of trade may be looked for.—B. AN ELEGY IN A COUNTRY STORE.

Sit down a minit, Mister, an' write a line or two,
An' let me tell my story—you'll say it's sad though true ;
But some things hez their bright sides as well as darkest shades,
An' clouds are never brighter than when the sunlight fades.

There's trouble, disappointment an' trials all through life,
An' tho' yer peaceful-minded yer bound ter hev some strife ;
But settle at four cross-roads an' keep a country store,
An' ye'll find yer troubles greater than e'er they were before.

But, 'scuse me, I'm a wanderin' a little off my text,
An' if ye'll tell yer paper when yer a writin' next,
How old Hank Smith of Johnsville was hooked an' done up brown,
Ye'll do a wondrous kindness to every country town.

I've kep' a store in Johnsville nigh onto twenty year,
An' every man an' woman to my old heart is dear,
I've paid what's due of taxes an' helped ter make the town,
An' many a totterin' farmer I've kep from breakin' down.

My bizness wos progressin', an' though my wants were few,
I couldn't lay a surplus by, as some I know well do—
Like old Ben Jones, the Deacon, down on the township line,
Who owns three hundred acres, the finest of the fine.

One day a deputation of farmers came to town,
An' called on me to offer their trade an' spot cash down ;
They'd writin's, papers, letters, rules, by-laws an' the like,
Just like the honest workmen, preparin' for a strike.

An' Deacon Jones was leader an' read the rules to me,
An' Rodd of Township Logan, he of Concession Three,
Got up and painted to me the glories of the deal,
An' like a fool I signed it—they stamped it with a seal.

I was to get the business of a hundred farmers sure,
On only ONE condition—'twas simple an' secure—
That I should sell them freely, for cash, you understand,
There goods, an' only charge them—a twelve per cent demand.

They said they'd buy all goods from me and pay me down the cash,
An' that the other merchants here would all go plunk to smash,
That I would do a roarin' trade an' make my money fast,
An' all my neighbors would get left for robbin' in the past.

I signed the paper as I said—they stamped an' sealed it too—
An' smilin' left my little store—that day I'll always rue.
At first they swarmed into the place an' ordered goodly lots,
Looked at my bills, put down the cash, an' grinned like idiots.

But Roberts 'cross the road from me, who'd kicked the whole gang out,
Cut sugar down below my cost, which raised a deuced shout,
An' Brown, up near the market, sent out a card to say,
That "Patrons or no Patrons," who had the cash to pay,

Could get what good's they wanted at less than Patron price—
He put his prices lower than for living would suffice.
An' every store around me, both in our town an' out,
Was cuttin' things below me, of that there was no doubt.

I kind er felt uneasy to see such tricks be made,
An' knew that I was losin' each blessed day more trade,
The Patrons seemed to vanish and leave no trail behind—
My neighbors was asmilin'—they didn't seem to mind.

An' then my trade in town got mad an' passed my store each day,
An' bought their goods from "Hustler" Brown or Roberts cross the way.
They wouldn't deal, they told me so, with any man who sold
To greedy men of wealth like Jones, for twelve per cent. of gold.

The Patrons didn't seem to come like once they used to do,
An' I began to see that things was gettin' mighty blue,
My business got into a mess, my bills could not be paid,
The wholesale house got dunnin' me—said "payments must be made."

I wondered what the matter was, an' couldn't make it out,
Until one night I met old Jones ('twas him without a doubt),
Aloadin' up his democrat in front of Brown's old stand.
I tumbled to the racket then—I saw the rascal's hand.

That night when I got home again I read the writin's through
To see just what the bargain was, an' what we had to do.
'Twas clear as daylight now to me—I'D BOUND MYSELF TO SELL,
While they had not agreed to BUY, except it suited well.

An' when my prices seemed too high, though I was sellin' straight,
They either went to other towns or came at night quite late,
An' bought what goods they wanted from Roberts or from Brown,
Who worked together, strange to say, to beat my prices down.

I knew then just how things would go. I knew it, though too late,
That I was bound to clean bust up as sure as fate is fate.
I couldn't buck agin Old Brown, an' Roberts too was rich.
While they were making money, I was nearly in the ditch.

Next mornin' I hung out a card, with letters large an' red,
An' told the public—as I thought the Patrons was all dead,
An' that, though I was near the same, I'd drop the whole gang hot
An' sell my goods like honest men—I'd do it or be shot.

An' Mister, say, when you reach town, jest tell yer printer-man
To write an' show the merchants how they work their little plan.
An' if you'll only tell 'em straight, I'm sure you'll have success
An' many a trustin' brother will pause, an' think an' bless—

CANADIAN BUTTER IN ENGLAND.

A correspondent writes :—"Whether Canada will supersede Denmark in British winter butter market is an open question, but there is no doubt that the quality of the first important consignment that their representatives here have received is nearly equal to the best Danish. It is well packed, and the samples received have obtained the highest commendation of several of the leading British produce merchants. The Dominion Government have long been doing their utmost to forward the interests of agriculturists in Canada, and if this consignment is to be taken as a sample of what not only the Government farms can do, but also the Canadian farmer at large, it is safe to predict that our cousins will receive a fair share of the millions that have hitherto annually left the country for that necessary produce."—The Grocers' Chronicle.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR ADULTERATED GROCERIES.

SHELBURNE, March 31, 1892.

EDITOR CANADIAN GROCER :

DEAR SIR,—In regard to the adulteration of coffee, spices, etc., I am in favor of a law of some kind to suppress it, but I am not in favor of pouncing upon the party selling adulterated goods, and putting him to a lot of expense and trouble, unless it can be shown that he was doing so knowingly and with intent to deceive. My idea is to let the officials get samples of goods sold in the regular way, viz., by buying them from the retailer, and if upon analysis they prove adulterated let the party selling show that he bought honest goods, and thought he was selling such, which he ought to be able to do by his invoice or copy of order. If he can show himself innocent, then let the law take hold of the wholesale compounder and vendor of the goods, and make him pay the costs of analysis, etc.

I don't think that there are many retailers who adulterate goods, for there are so many spice, and baking powder firms doing business throughout the country now, with all the improved machinery for compounding, etc., that it has got down to a fine art, and it would hardly pay a retailer to bother with it. Besides he would run a greater risk of being detected than parties right in the business. Let the law strike at the fountain head, the wholesale compounder and vendor of adulterated coffee, spices, etc., and I think it would soon cease. Of course if the retailer knowingly sells adulterated stuff as pure "salt him" by all means, but I think he should get a chance to prove himself innocent of fraud before he is judged guilty of such.

Yours truly,
RETAIL GROCER.

CHATHAM RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

ANNUAL MEETING.

When the meeting was called to order at 2.30 on the 17th ult., there was a large crowd of members present. Jno. McCorvie, Esq., president, occupied the chair. After the opening of the meeting Mr. Kitchen asked for the financial report, which was read by the president, and on motion was adopted as read. After a few remarks regarding the flourishing condition of the Association financially, it was moved by Messrs. Kitchen and Spashett that the meeting proceed with the election of officers.

The President stated that before proceeding he wished to read a communication from Mr. Berube, manager of the Chatham collecting agency, in regard to acting as secretary.

Officers were elected as follows :—Mr. Williamson, president ; Mr. J. E. Johnston, vice-president ; Mr. J. Wilson, re-appointed treasurer. The election of secretary was laid over for one week.

After a few remarks from the newly elected officers, and a neat speech from the retiring president, the meeting adjourned for one week.

SPECIAL MEETING.

The meeting was called to order at 2.30 p. m., and was very large. Mr. Williamson, president, was in the chair. After the opening of the meeting, Messrs. Gray, Sowerby, McConnell and Crow, were admitted as members.

Mr. McCorvie stated that his committee had waited on Mr. Berube, who consented to act as secretary on terms already stated.

On motion, Mr. Berube was appointed secretary.

After the appointment of some committees and other business, Mr. Heyward in a few well-chosen words, moved a vote of thanks to the retiring secretary, which was seconded by Mr. J. A. Wilson with a few remarks. After the passing of some accounts the meeting adjourned for one week.

GREAT CHANCE IN THE RICE TRADE.

A great change has taken place in the rice trade during the past few years, and a fundamental alteration in its whole nature is, by degrees, coming about, which is felt more keenly as regards the rice milling interests in London than Liverpool. The shippers of Burmah, Japan and elsewhere, instead of shipping rice in its rough state, mill it before shipment, so that it is practically ready for use, and cargoes of cleaned rice are now shipped from Burmah and Japan direct to the Mediterranean ports, which in former years used to be milled and shipped from London or Liverpool; but, in some instances, to obtain exceptionally fine grades for the home trade, a further remilling and sifting is done here. The British rice millers have, therefore, to a very large extent, lost their vocation, so far as the commoner qualities are concerned, and, either from lack of enterprise or because it does not pay them, they have not moved with the times in milling the finest rice, the trade in which has, therefore, gone to Germany and Holland, whence all our finer sorts of highly cleaned Java are now drawn. The importers of cleaned rice to this country have not yet altogether recognized the nature of this change, and they have continued to offer their imports either in cargoes or in very large lots, as is done with rough rice. This still, to a large extent, keeps the trade in the hand of the millers, who buy and sell as merchants or dealers, instead of as millers as they used to do. No one can object to this, or wish them anything but prosperity in their new departures as rice dealers. At the same time the importers will do well, in their own interests, if they give the opportunity for somewhat smaller buyers to operate, who do not buy and sell by the cargo. By so doing they would bring about more competition, and undoubtedly in the long run get a better average price, by enabling the regular rice dealers, who never had mills, to buy in Mincing Lane, either at public sale or privately, in lots of a few hundred bags at a time.

According to Dr. Konig, who has also experimented largely with foods, the amount of nutritive value in one pound of rice is four times as great as that contained in the same weight of potatoes. Rice has a special advantage over potatoes and other vegetables in that it is always obtainable and will keep in good condition for an indefinite period. In order, however, that the fullest advantage should be obtained from the use of rice, it is essential that it should be properly prepared and cooked.

The following are two simple methods of cooking rice, both of which are largely adopted in countries where it is the staple article of food :

1. Rub the rice vigorously between the hands in cold and frequently renewed water until the water remains quite clear. Place it then with plenty of water on a brisk fire, and leave it to boil about ten or fifteen minutes. The grains must be soft, but should not split. This done, pour it into a strainer and run cold water over it until the water comes out quite clear, and place it on the hot stove-top as is done with boiled potatoes, shaking it about occasionally in order to aid the process of drying.

2. Thoroughly wash the rice, at first in cold water, then in tepid, and lastly in hot water. Place it then in a well closing vessel, and add for every cup of rice two cups of water. Bring this rapidly to boil, and let it boil until all the water has steamed away, put a few pieces of butter on the rice and take the vessel off the fire. This mode of preparation requires one hour.

The advantage of preparing rice in this way is, that the whole of the nutritive value contained in it is retained in the grain, and so cooked it will be found a very cheap, wholesome and agreeable substitute for potatoes or any other vegetables.

The shipments of rice from the different East India and Asiatic ports in 1891 were 1,041,726 tons, the largest quantity ever shipped in one year, with the exception of 1888, when the shipments were 1,042,864 tons. The imports of rice into Europe in 1891 were 811,676 tons; the exports and consumption were 823,255 tons; the stocks 96-974 tons.—London Produce Market Review

Family Grocery Business in Toronto for Sale.

On account of my wine trade growing so extensively, I am compelled to move that branch of the business from 282 Queen St. West, to the centre of the city, and have secured a store at 79 Yonge St., and extensive Wine Vaults under 77 and 79 Yonge, and 2, 4 and 6 King St. It will consequently be impossible for me to give attention to my large grocery business at 280 Queen St. West.

I am therefore reluctantly compelled to offer it for sale. One of the best family grocery business, in the city, is and has been done there for years. The above is an opportunity seldom met with.

PROTECTING THE SUGAR MONOPOLY.

By the purchase or rather admission into the Trust of the refinery of Claus Spreckels at Philadelphia, the Sugar Trust completed its operations for the control of the sugar refineries of the country. The following are the refineries now owned absolutely by the Trust, with their daily capacity in barrels :

The Havemeyer & Elder S. R. Co., Brooklyn	8,000
The Brooklyn S. R. Co., Brooklyn	3,000
The Decastro & Donner S. R. Co., Brooklyn	3,000
The Havemeyer S. R. Co., Brooklyn	3,500
The Havemeyer S. R. Co., Jersey City	500
The F. O. Matthiesson & Wiechers S. R. Co., Jersey City	4,500
The Standard S. R. Co., Boston	3,000
The Boston S. R. Co., Boston	1,500
The Continental S. R. Co., Boston	500
The Forest City S R. Co., Portland	500
The St. Louis S. R. Co., St. Louis	1,000
The Louisiana S. R. Co., New Orleans	3,000
The Louisiana S. R. Co., New Orleans, and the Planters' S. R. Co., New Orleans	3,000
The Franklin S. R. Co., Philadelphia	6,000
The E. C. Knight S. R. Co., Philadelphia	1,300
The Spreckels S. R. Co., Philadelphia	3,500
The Deleware S. R. Co., Philadelphia	500
The Baltimore S. R. Co., Baltimore	1,500
Total daily capacity	44,800

The above plants are known to be absolutely controlled by the Trust; the five last mentioned being the recent acquisitions. The only other refineries in the country are: The Revere Sugar Refinery, Boston, with a daily capacity 1,000 barrels; the California refinery of Claus Spreckels, capacity 1,600 barrels, and the American Refinery of Havemeyer & Elder, also in California, capacity 2,000 barrels. The Revere Refinery is owned by Nash, Spaulding & Co., who are large stockholders in the Sugar Trust, and, though their refinery is not yet in the Trust, it is run in harmony with it. Some time ago. Havemeyer & Elder and Spreckels formed an auxiliary company, the stock of which is held equally by them, to which they leased their California plants. The gentlemen are large stockholders in the Trust, and also run their refineries in harmony with the Trust. There is, therefore, not a single working refinery in the country not practically in the Trust or in harmony with it, and the latter has therefore the most complete monopoly of any Trust in the United States.

The capitalization of the Trust previous to last January was $50,000,000, of which $25,000,000 was seven per cent cumulative preferred stock and $25,000,000 common stock. When the Directors determined to buy up the then independent plants, the stockholders were asked to authorize the issue of $25,000,000 of additional stock, one half of which was to be preferred and one half common. This was done, and it was largely with this stock that the Trust paid for the plants recently acquired. At the time of the reorganization of the Trust, the stockholders also authorized the Directors to issue $10,000,000 of bonds to be secured by a mortgage bearing not over six per cent interest, on the active refineries, to be used in carrying on the business of the Trust as occasion should require. The total capitalization of the Trust is therefore $85,000,000, made up of $75,000,000 of capital stock and $10,000,000 of bonds.

At the time of the formation of the Sugar Trust in 1887, the actual value of the establishments taken in was about $15,000,000. The recent additions and the changes made in the old plants make the actual value of the plants, in the opinion of experts, about $35,000,000. All of the capital above this represents undistributed earnings, good will, etc, and water—very largely the latter.

This is the present actual situation of the Sugar Trust. So far as production in the United States is concerned, it has no competitor, and can therefore regulate prices here at its pleasure. From foreign competition it is protected by the tariff of ½ a cent per pound on refined sugar. To this must be added about ⅛ of a cent per pound of natural protection. The real protection which the Trust enjoys is therefore not less than ⅝ of a cent per pound. This puts it in the power of the Trust to raise prices here over ⅝ of a cent above the foreign price before foreign sugar can be brought in.

Immediately after the control of the plants at Philadelphia was assured, the price of standard granulated was advanced from 4 to 4⅜ cents per pound, the present price.

The difference between the standards of raw and refined sugars was then ⅝ of a cent per pound ; it is now 1¼ cents per pound. This difference is as great as it was during the palmiest days of the Trust in 1888 and 1889, and can be maintained under the present tariff without attracting foreign competition.

The cost of refining, all items considered, varies according to the situation and capacity of the plants from ½ to ⅝ of a cent per pound. The profit of refining at present prices is therefore not less than ⅝ of a cent per pound, or $2.03 per barrel.

It is not expected that the consumption of sugar this year will be less than last year, when about 12,600,000 barrels passed through the hands of the refiners. If therefore the Trust maintains the present difference between raw and refined (and there is nothing to prevent it doing so) its profits from refining alone will not be less than $25,600,000, or over 73 per cent on the actual investment, or 34 per cent on its present capital.

The only means by which the extortion of these enormous profits from consumers can be stopped is by putting refined sugar upon the free list. As long as the duty of ½ a cent per pound is maintained, it means that the Sugar Trust will be able to tax each family from $1.65 to $1.75 per year on the sugar they use. There is no justification for the present duty, for the refiners have often admitted that they can refine sugar at a less cost than it can be done in any other country in the world. The argument advanced two years ago in favor of the duty, on the ground that it would put independent refiners at the mercy of the Trust, is no longer tenable now that the trust has complete control.

Nor can the labor argument be advanced in justification of the duty. The wages paid are lower than in any other industry. In the largest refinery in the Trust the wages are from 15 to 15½ cents per hour, and the workmen employed are Hungarians and Poles. The character of the work is such that at this low rate even Italians find it easier to make a living selling fruit or working on street improvements. The present duty is practically prohibitory, and the needs of the revenue can not be offered as an excuse for its retention, for practically no revenue is now received. It is time for Congress to deprive this monopoly of the power to tax cosumers. If the House should pass a free sugar bill the Senate would hardly dare to reject it. None of the tariff bills now in the House is likely to become law, but a free sugar bill could hardly be opposed by the Senate or President, and would afford real relief.—New York Daily Commercial Bulletin.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE.

Said one of Boston's thrifty business men the other day : "Do you know that I attribute a great part of my success in life to cleanliness? Cleanliness is next to godliness, but it must also be considered as having something to do with our material prosperity.

"Why, I never think of meeting a business acquaintance for the purpose of talking over our commercial relations without first getting a shave and putting on a nice Prince Albert coat that I keep especially for occasions of that kind.

"Personal appearance has a great deal to do with our associations with our fellow men. If you walk into the presence of a merchant in a slipshod manner, with your coat unbuttoned and covered with dust, he immediately says to himself : 'This man doesn't amount to much.' It makes little difference to him how well posted you may be on the matters which have called you together, he cannot subdue the thought that you are hardly the person he wishes to confide in.

I may carry this idea to extremes, in that I pay unusual attention to my personal attire, even when one of my partners sends me word that he wants to consult with me on some question affecting our business relations, If I have sufficient time to get shaved before our meeting, I never fail to do so, neither do I miss my Prince Albert. When I meet him I want to feel that I am as good as he, and at the same time I don't want him to think he is any better than I am.

"People may ridicule a sentiment of this kind as much as they like, but I can tell you, my boy, there is more to this question of neatness than you imagine."

There is doubtless a good deal of truth—yes, a very great deal of truth—in the above observations ; but we have known—and do know—business men who pay little attention to their personal appearance, and yet are eminently successful. The exceptions probably only go to prove the general rule.—New England Grocer.

TO CANNING MEN.

The Bucklin Can Filler Co., Keyport, N. J., are to the front with their "Cyclone" machine for making tomato pulp for ketchup, and preparing pumpkin and squash for canning. The accompanying cut will give readers an idea of the machine, which does its work very rapidly and absolutely without waste. In addition to this it is continuous in action and self-cleaning. The machine is built of hardwood and steel, and is guaranteed to last for years. There is an extra steel sieve and frame-work furnished with every machine, so that there is no delay in case of a mishap. In packing pumpkin this machine does all the work of peeling and sifting without waste. In this the saving over ordinary methods, the company claim, the macgine will pay for itself more than once during a season's work. The "Cyclone" is now being manufactured in Canada. ORDERING GOODS.

An item containing several suggestions as to the ordering of goods has recently been given a wide circulation in the trade press, and our knowledge of the laxity of many retailers in regard to preparing orders convinces us that the publication of the advice was very timely. In a condensed shape the advice referred to was as follows: Write legibly, give exact description of goods and shipping directions, and do not forget the signature. "What nonsense!" we imagine some reader saying to himself; "surely every dealer knows how to order goods properly." We don't dispute the assertion; the trouble is that nine out of ten dealers don't take sufficient pains to fill out orders correctly. The work is greatly facilitated by the order blanks which many salesmen furnish their customers; yet we have seen dozens of such blanks filled in and mailed by retailers to jobbing houses and manufacturers, that have contained no indications of the grades and prices of the goods wanted. "Send me a barrel of mackerel and a box of laundry starch. "Please ship right away a half chest of tea." "Send another tub of butter; must have it Tuesday, sure." "Ship at once 50 lbs. coffee and 25 lbs. tea." How is the person receiving such orders as these to know what grade of goods is wanted? Yet the above are true copies of orders received within the present week by a salesman of our acquaintance. Other salesmen have informed us that not 25 per cent. of the orders received by them are properly made out. Of course they generally get filled all right, because the salesmen are posted regarding their customers' requirements. But consider the delay in hunting up previous invoices in order to make sure that the articles to be shipped are just what the customer needs—a delay that may cause serious inconvenience, even loss, to the retailer. Consider, also the temptation to the salesman to substitute slow-selling goods or goods that may pay a better profit, when a customer orders simply "a tub of butter" or "a half-chest of tea," etc., etc. If the house is out of the kind of goods which the salesman believes the dealer wants but has not explicitly mentioned, the latter at least has no ground for complaint if he gets something entirely different from that which he had in mind when drafting his order, for it would be unreasonable to expect a jobber to put himself to the trouble of procuring goods to fill an order regarding which there is more or less doubt. But it ought to be unnecessary to dwell on the folly of merchants who are so careless regarding one of the most important duties connected with the distributive trade. The mere fact that it is unbusinesslike to send out an order which may tax all the brains of the most acute salesman to fathom, should be sufficient to bring about an improvement.—Merchants' Review.

JAPANESE TEA FARMS.

In a visit to Japan four years ago, says a writer in the New York Telegram while studying the tea question, I went very carefully over many of the Japanese tea farms. You must know that tea was introduced into China about thousand years ago. When it was first brought over it was so costly that only the Japanese noblemen could afford it, and some three hundred years ago, I am told, the Mikado had a tea officer on his staff to look after his tea gardens. Now every farm has its little patch of tea plants. The best of the tea comes from Kiota, from the famous tea gardens Uji.

A new tea plantation in Japan is started from the seed. This is gathered in October from the plant, put in a mixture of sand and earth and dampened to keep it fresh until spring. The tea plant is a species of camellia, a short, stocky bush, three to five feet high, with white, waxy flowers. Its leaves are dark green, and it would make a beautiful shrub for hedges. The best soil for a tea farm is virgin forest land, but that is remarkably scarce in Japan, and the land that has been cropped for centuries is generally used. The soil must be well drained, and it is essential that water should not lodge around the roots of the plant. Many of the tea farms for this reason are on hillsides, arranged in a kind of terrace.

The seeds gathered in the fall are planted in the spring in circles about two feet in diameter, each circle containing about thirty seeds, with the centres of the circles making up the garden about five feet apart. These two-foot circles in a few years form a compact bush, and each year it is carefully cultivated as well as heavily manured. During the third year of its growth the plants have leaves ready for the picking, and a tea plant is at its very best between its fifth and its tenth year. There are at least three pickings a year, and a good tea farm should yield an average of 2,500 pounds of tea to the acre.

The picking of the tea is done by girls with small baskets which are in turn emptied into great baskets, carried by coolies to the firing room, where it is sorted, sweated, rolled, steamed and dried. The process is a long one before the tea is packed in large earthern jars to be taken to the seacoast, where it is made ready for export. The large firing establishments at Kobe prepare the tea by another drying for shipping to the American market. It is during this last firing that the coloring matter, if used at all, is put into the tea. The idea of your people that green is always colored is a mistake as the natural color of the leaf is green and the sun dried tea is green. The crops that are picked late in the season have not this high color, and for this reason the coloring matter is used. It consists of a mixture of indigo and soapstone, which is thrown into the pan while it is on the fire.

KEEP WITHIN THE LIMIT.

Clerks in a store should remember that the way to amass a competency is to keep their expenses lower than their income. A few dollars saved each week or each month is that much better than being overdrawn ten cents. Do not be in too much of a hurry to get rich. Establish and maintain a good reputation, and by fair means manage to salt down a little every pay-day. The time may come when your good name will help you out at the bank or with the wholesaler when you are sufficiently educated to go into business for yourself, for no man is competent to engage in business on his own account until he has served an apprenticeship. The first question the jobber will ask when credit is asked for, "What's his reputation." This will cut more of a figure than the amount of your capital.—Ex.

KEEP ON TIME.

An exchange is of the opinion that if all the money lost through delays in giving orders could be gotten together in one pile, the aggregate would make a good round sum. We all know full well that tardiness in purchasing stock has cost us much money, and yet, somehow or other, we never manage to keep on time in this respect.

Travelling salesmen say it is an every-day occurrence to find some of their customers so nearly out of a certain article that it is impossible to get a fresh supply in on time to meet the requirements of the consumers. A salesman tells of an instance that aptly illustrates this point. "My customer," said the salesman, "had quite a run on a certain brand of goods. I never called upon him when his stock was full. I urged upon him to always send in his order when he saw he was running short, and even went to the trouble of writing out blank orders. It did no good. His customers would call only to be disappointed, and would therefore go some place else for the next desirable brand. The last time I called there he complained bitterly about the loss of some of his best trade."

There is more in this than may appear at first sight. Buyers are sensitive, and when they think that the dealer is ignoring them they hasten to some other store. The dealer himself would not long patronize a house that did not look after his interests. A little promptness always saves trouble, even if it don't retain a customer. Every dealer understands that it is not always possible to fill an unusual order the day it is received, yet some of them seem to work upon the plan that to keep a customer waiting several days would indicate to him that they are doing a rushing business. The customer don't regard it in that light, however. It works against the interest of both wholesaler and retailer to keep a customer waiting when it is possible to be prompt. Only the houses that are regular in their methods do a large business for any length of time.

WHERE THE JOKE COMES IN.

The Wrong Class—"Do I have to stick this stamp on myself?" asked a dude of the clerk at the post office. "Oh, no," replied the clerk. "You couldn't go in the mail bags, and besides, that is a letter stamp, and you are not first class mail matter."—N. Y. Sun.

Willie—Oh, pretty well. He thinks I can lick him.

Papa—Why, did he say so?

Housekeeper—"Have you any Mocha coffee?" Small Dealer—"Yes, mum." "Genuine Mocha?" "Just imported, mum." "Import it yourself?" "Oh, yes, mum. I send my orders direct to the Sultan, mum." "Humph! How much have you on hand?" "'Bout sixty pounds, mum." "You have, eh? Sixty pounds? I read in the paper this very morning that not over fifty pounds of genuine Mocha reaches this country annually." "Yes, mum, that's true. I had 'bout ten pounds left over from last year."—New York Weekly.

"I cannot see why I do not get along better. I am not one of those fellows who want the earth, either." "No; what you want is the sand."

He didn't read the papers, for they hadn't any news;
At least they didn't coincide with his especial views.
And when he came to town one-day, with criticism ripe,
He climbed to an electric lamp to light his ancient pipe.
He hadn't read the papers—but he knew just what was best;
He simply touched the wires and—the fluid did the rest.

Uncle John—"There was an accident on the bridge to-day, and I got caught in the jam."

Little Roger—"I got caught in the jam once, and walked lame for a week."—Puck.

"Speaking of alliterations," said a New York lawyer the other day, "I am reminded of what I heard in a down East grocery store last summer:

"'Gut eny good m'lasses, George?' asked a farmer's wife of the grocer.

"'Good's I ever had in the store, Mrs. Littlefield,' answered the grocer.

"'Waall, put me up tew gall'ns, George.'

"A week or so later Deacon Littlefield called the grocer to account for selling his wife a poorer quality of molasses than she had been accustomed to.

"'It's good 'nough in Injine puddin',' he said, 'an' brown bread, but, George, I gin ye my word as a de'kin, it's terrible teejis in tea.'—New York Times.

All the managers in Victoria, B. C., controlling canneries, and most of the individual canners, signed an agreement on Saturday to put up only half a pack this year. The reason of this action is on account of the large quantities of salmon carried over from last year. It is expected that this will have a salutary effect upon the salmon market, which at present is not in a very satisfactory condition.

CANADIAN PRODUCE.

Some time ago we commented on the fact that the experimental dairy stations belonging to the Dominion Government of Canada had been very successful in their efforts to improve the quality of the cheese sent to this market, and we are very glad to find, if we may judge from a first consignment of winter made creamery butter from the same source, which is being shown by the agents here, Messrs. A. Clement & Son, 4 Greenwood street, Manchester, that they are likely to be quite as successful in their efforts in bringing to perfection the system of winter dairying as practised in Denmark and Sweden. The quality of the butter received is distinctly fine, one of the lots especially being the finest Canadian butter ever seen on this market. Several leading experts have expressed themselves as being both surprised and pleased with it. The only fault which can be found with it is in the color, which is rather high, but this probably could be easily remedied. If bulk can be sent equal to this parcel it would be welcomed by the trade generally.—Manchester Grocers' Review.

CLOSING AT NOON.

Over in Liverpool the grocers are agitating a movement for early closing their stores for an hour each day at noon. They argue that the grocer and his clerks are just as much entitled to the hour as other merchants and laborers, and that in a little time the people of the community would adjust themselves to the arrangement and nobody be any the worse in the long run.

In commenting on this suggestion, the New England Grocer remarks that while this may be an innovation in Liverpool, that in Switzerland most of the stores are closed from 12 till 2, while in Bermuda the proprietor of a store shuts it up whenever he feels like it, or whenever he happens to have any business calling him elsewhere.

Of course this is very much like a great many business customs that have grown up through long-continued usage, and which in time come to be accepted without question. It belongs in the same category as the question of long or short hours, and must be decided principally by the local influences which are found bearing on the case. In the rural districts and the smaller towns the rule is that the less business there is to do the longer time it takes to do it. Where the leisurely village ways prevail, under which, no matter how light the task, it requires all day to do it, the plan might come to be generally adopted without serious objection on the part of the customers. But in the principal towns and cities it can hardly be made to work. The grocery store is of all others an emergency store. The hour of the noon-day meal is the time when unexpected wants are most apt to appear, and these must be met at the grocery store. Even if a few dealers should adopt the custom, there would be enough who would not, to make anything like unanimity practically impossible. Neither would it do any good to abuse the men who refused to conform to the custom. As long as competition in all lines continues so keen, and human nature remains as it is, we must be content to see men in the same line of trade taking the most diverse views as to what is really to their own best interests.—Toledo Business World.

THE WEST INDIA LINE.

The announcement that the Duart Castle was to proceed direct from Bermuda to Halifax has set a number of our merchants on edge, and of course they feel badly over the way St. John is being treated. A large lot of goods was held over from the last trip, and that, combined with the accumulation since, make quite a large shipment to go forward. When the last boat arrived here from Halifax, instead of having room for about five thousand barrels, space was only left for a little over 800 barrels. Our shippers were indignant, and naturally afraid that the same state of things will occur again. The contract states that St. John shall be the first port of call to and from the West Indies, and no deviation was allowed. The excuse was made last time that owing to the boats coming so close together Messrs. Pickford & Black thought it best to charter one of the steamers to load sugar for Halifax instead of coming direct to St. John. Unfortunately, through stress of weather, the vessel was delayed longer than was expected. The excuse this time seems to be that Messrs. Pickford & Black were requested by the imperial authorities to convey 153 English soldiers from Bermuda to Halifax. The troopship Atlas was not permitted to call for them owing to sickness. It is also stated that the imperial authorities were not willing that the troops should first come to St. John and be sent to Halifax by rail, and and consequently Messrs. Pickford & Black yielded to the pressure of the imperial authorities—doubtless for the money there was in it—and deviated from the contract terms. Not only are our exporters angry, but our importers are angry also. The molasses market in the West Indies has a downward tendency, and prices are dropping. Now if there is any of that commodity on board for St. John merchants, an extra week's delay may cause a serious loss especially if the shipments are heavy. Both telegrams and letters have been sent to Minister Foster and Mr. E. McLeod, M. P., calling attention to the wrong that is being perpetrated upon St. John merchants by the West India steamers deviating from the lines laid down in the contract, which is said to be as binding as it is possible to make it. It is said, however, that about half of the Duart Castle will be left for St. John shippers. Whether it will or will not probably depends upon "circumstances.—St. John Globe.

Lloyd's bonded warehouse in St. John, N. B., was partially burned on Monday. There was considerable loss on goods.

Messrs. Keenleyside Bros., of Sarnia, have sold one of their stocks amounting to $12,000, to Coats & Hamilton. The senior member of the latter firm is Fred. J. Coats, formerly with Smallman & Ingram, of this city.

As will be seen by advertisement, Mr. Wm. Mara, the well-known retail grocer and wine merchant, is giving up his grocery trade and going extensively into the wine business. He is offering his fine grocery business for sale. It is one of the best in the city. He has leased 79 Yonge street for offices, and the vaults will be under 77 and 79 Yonge street and 2, 4 and 6 King street east. This corner is the most valuable stand in the city. He will open about the middle of May.

Mr. Robert Gurd, of the London Broom Factory of London, Ont., reports business in his line active. A representative of THE GROCER in calling on him found a full staff of hands busy working to fill orders. The success of this establishment is to a large extent due to the fact that Mr. Robert Gurd is a practical broom maker and thoroughly understands every part of the business, and oversees and manages the business himself. He therefore knows the class of goods sent out and can with confidence guarantee satisfaction. He has to a great extent confined his trade to Western Ontario, but the quality of his goods has gradually extended his trade, and now, principally through the wholesale houses of this city, his special lines are being shipped throughout the whole Dominion. A sample order will prove the value of the goods.

A certain storekeeper in Richmond, Ind., with some knowledge of electricity and considerable ingenuity in getting up window attractions, recently constructed an electrical fly-catcher that is unique. It consists of a small induction coil, giving about a quarter-inch spark, with a couple of cells of battery and a series of fine wires strung on board, very much as in the musical instrument called the zither. Each alternate wire is connected to a terminal of coil, and the sliding regulator so adjusted that the spark will not quite strike across between wires until an unlucky fly alights on one wire, when the projecting body receives a spark, and the victim takes a header between the wires and leaves the field clear for the next comer.—Mixed Stocks.

Mr. Bedford, of the Brandon Experimental farm, at a meeting of the Farmers' Institute, said he thought a starch factory would be a success in Manitoba, as potatoes can be raised so cheaply and in such unlimited quantities.

It is proposed to appoint one or two inspectors at shipping points like Montreal, Halifax and St. John to grade apples, so that the price of certain brands may not be deteriorated by the mixing of different grades. The shippers themselves are willing to defray the cost of inspection, believing that the higher price they will receive in England for inspected fruit will more than pay the inspection fees.

Mr. Foster was waited upon the other day by Mr. George Musson, of Toronto, who was introduced by Messrs. Coatsworth and Cockburn. Mr. Musson stated that inferior molasses is being brought in from the United States, and his request to the Minister was for a rearrangement of the tariff for the protection both of himself and of the Canadian consumer of molasses.

A circular has been issued by the United States Treasury Department modifying the existing regulations regarding the transit of goods in sealed cars from one point in Canada to another point in Canada, by way of the United States, so as to no longer require a full statemeent of values in the triplicate manifests. The instructions contained in department Circular No. 68, of May 2 1884, is modified so as to read as follows: "When cars from Canada arrive at a frontier port of the United States duly secured with Canadian seals, manifests or invoices in triplicate showing the character of the merchandise in said cars and its quantity or weight, shall be filed with the Collector of Customs, who will, if there is no reason to doubt that the manifests contain true statements of the contents of the cars affix to such cars the seals prescribed by the Customs regulations, and allow the same to go forward. One copy of each manifest or invoice will be retained for file in the Collectors's office; one copy will be sent by mail to the Collector at the port of exit, and one copy will be delivered to the conductor o the train.

Says the New York Commercial Bulletin: It is reported that considerable attention is being given to the raising of nutmegs in Jamaica, and a letter from a planter methods as follows: "The mode adopted here for preparing nutmegs for the London market is very simple. The nutmegs are picked up from under the trees daily, and brought into the 'boucan,' where the mace is peeled off and pressed flat between heavy blocks of wood, where it is left for two or three days, then put into a case and left til it reaches the proper color. The nutmegs are put into receptacles with fine wire-mesh bottoms, so that the air can pass. These receptacles remain in the 'boucan,' and are left there for three weeks or a month, until the nut begins to shake inside the shell. They are then exposed to the sun for a couple of hours a day for two or three days. After this they are cracked. Great care is necessary here, for if the outside shell is struck too hard it makes a black spot on the nutmeg, which affects the value considerably. When cracked, the nuts are sorted according to size, put into ordinary flour barrels and hipped."

MONTREAL TRADE CHAT.

E. W. Farwell, of the McFarlane Milling Co., Sherbrooke, is in town, staying at the Windsor.

Mr. W. E. Kirby, the St. Urbain street grocer, had a mean trick played on him the other night. Someone got into his stable and cut the heads off about thirty hens and left them on the floor.

Laporte, Martin & Co., wholesale grocers, whose premises were expropriated on Notre Dame street some time ago, have now sent in a petition to the City Council, asking that the law be amended so that they may be awarded interest to commence from the date of the award.

The business of John Duncan & Co., tea merchants, is to be carried on under the old style, Mr. William Hutchins and Mr. Patterson forming the firm. The estate of the deceased merchant is placed at from one to two millions.

The annual meeting of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co. (Lt'd.) was held in the office of the company on Monday afternoon, when the old Board of Directors was re-elected as follows: James Crathern, Robert Hampson, J. M. Douglas, W. R. Elmenhoost, A. Baumgarten, and Theodore Tabatt.

Reports from the Townships say that the weather is bright and clear, and that sap has run since last Friday. Also that quite a few farmers have given up making sugar and that syrup will be the line they will stick to. This is owing to the price of cane sugar being so low.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, April 7, 1892.

GROCERIES.

There are few facts in this week's record of the market upon which to hinge a report differing materially from that of last week. The demand is steady rather than brisk, but it provides sufficient power to keep trade moving satisfactorily, everything being considered. The general report of last month's trade, of which the aggregate is now cast up by wholesalers, is encouraging. Compared with March of a year ago, it shows a decided improvement in money's worth. That, taken in connection with the facts that prices now are much lower than they were a year ago, and particularly that the price of sugar is lower by the duty and the wholesaler's profit off since March of 1891, points to a very considerable increase in the quantity of goods handled during the past month. The movement of sugar has declined; the stocks of desirable tea are small; dried fruits remain low-priced; canned goods are firm and showing signs of advance; general groceries are fairly active. April trade has not opened so brightly as the closing days of March warranted traders in expecting it would. The weather is uncommonly fine, roads in the country are reported to be generally good, and money is no scarcer.

COFFEES.

Good Brazil coffees can be had as high as 20c., and lower grades as low as 17c. Choice Rios are in fair supply and in rather brisk demand at 20c. The trade, however, does not call for large stocks, and the moderate supplies on hand are likely to suffice for a considerable period at the present rate of demand. The usual limited sale of fine Javas and Mochas is reported at the range of quotations noted in Prices Current.

DRIED FRUIT.

The dried fruit market is not apt to get out of the depression into which it has been sinking deeper for some weeks past. Valencia raisins, fairly acceptable off stalk fruit, of last year's growth, are as low as 3½c., and there is nothing special in a 3¾c. quotation. There is little to impel purchasing on a very large or general scale, as nearly all other forms of fruit—fresh, evaporated, preserved—are very cheap, and now possibly rhubarb will further narrow the consumption of dried fruits. Sultanas are a fair selling line, but the buyers are mostly biscuit manufacturers. Currants are dull and weak at from 4½c upwards. Prunes move slowly at unchanged prices, that is 5 to 5¼c. in casks and 6¼ to 7½c. in cases.

NUTS.

Cocoanuts have some call. Stocks are pretty well filled with this class of nuts, which sell at 5 to 6c. Walnuts are in occasional request, as are filberts and almonds. There are no changes to take note of.

RICE AND SPICES.

Some business in rice is cropping up. Prices retain their firmness, and only those who had stock on hand before the advance are in a position to sell A and B so low as 3⅞c. The majority of wholesalers ask 4 to 4⅛c. Fine, foreign-milled Japan rice is worth 6c., though domestic-milled is a cent lower.

In spices there is little to excite interest, the old beaten paths being followed unvaryingly by every line. Such demand as there is is being filled at quotations in Prices Current.

SUGAR.

Experiences vary in the sugar trade. Some houses report a continuance of the active demand that characterized the late winter trade, but more vote the trade to be just now quite dull. The average which an observer would strike from these reports is rather under

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.

It would need a much quieter spell than the present to disturb the firmness of the canned goods market. Substantial business continues to be done, but what gives strength to the market is the prospective disparity in the supply as compared with the demand that will be active between now and midsummer. The jobbers talk of advancing prices in the near future on all staple vegetables. Quotations remain at $1.05 to $1.10. Peas show signs of early exhaustion this year, and more than one jobber predicts that they will fall short of the demand. Tomatoes are likewise in smaller compass than they usually are so early in the spring. Corn is not by any means likely to be excessive if present indications are borne out. No one who holds corn is eager to sacrifice it. On the part of buyers the feeling appears to be that canned vegetables will lose nothing by holding, and inquiries for round lots against the coming season's demand are being received more freely. Actual trade, however, has so far been in the way of filling general orders with a quota of canned vegetables that nearly every one of such orders calls for. In anything but vegetables the trade lags. Salmon is in limited demand at the moment, the scarcity of talls in certain staple lines being some deterrent to business, while the demand appears to be in an offspell as well. A shipment of salmon to sell at $1.30 has just come on the market. Standard brands, however, such as the Horseshoe, are steady at $1.45.

MONTREAL.

There is no large movement to report in the above line. Trade here is still quiet with a little better demand for small lots of corn, peas and tomatoes. On the whole prospects are more encouraging and prices without change.

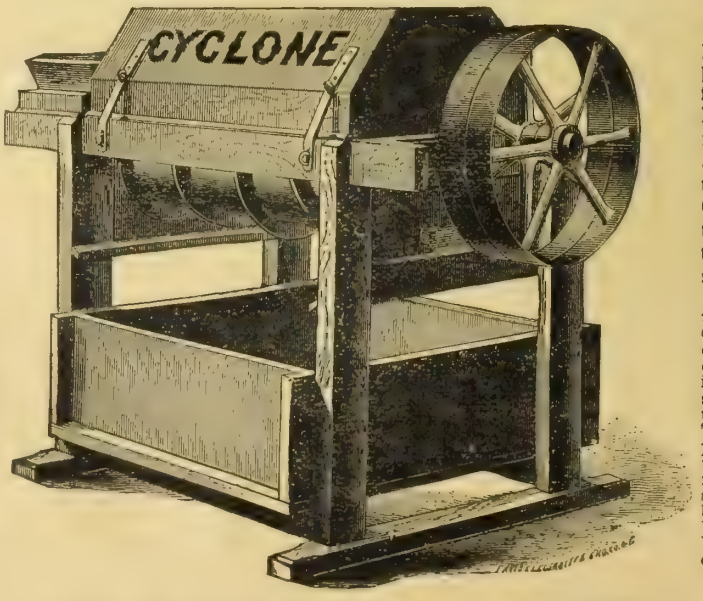
To Canning Men.-OUR CYCLONE PULP MACHINE



For making tomato pulp and preparing pumpkin and squash for canning is very well known to all the canners in the United States, and a few of them are in use in Canada. The high tariff has prevented their being used extensively heretofore.

We are now manufacturing these machines at Oakville, Ont., to enable our Canadian friends to obtain them without paying a heavy duty; but we shall make only a few of them unless ordered. Those who contemplate purchasing, should send their orders promptly to insure the saving of duty, as late orders will have to be filled from stock in the United States which will be subject to a 30 per cent duty.

than above a moderate state of activity. The demand is chiefly for low grade sugars. Price, not quality, rules in the choice. Rhubarb is now coming in, and while it determines the demand for a large quantity of sugar, it also determines the quality, which for the main part is rather dark. There has been some disappointment in the summer freights inaugurated on Monday, as they are only 2c. instead of 4c. lower as was expected, per hundred on sugar. The rate is now 14c. from Montreal. The railways may come down the other 2c. when the boats begin running, but that is not likely to be for a month yet. Expectations of a further decrease in freights cause holding back of shipments of goods sold on contract. Some raw sugar has been brought on this market. With the low prices that rule for refined, there does not seem to be much of a margin for the jobber who will sell below 3½c.

Willett & Gray, New York, in their Weekly Statistical, say: A further decline of ⅛c. was made early in the week for both Muscovados and Centrifugals, bringing the former to 2¾c. for fair refining 89° test sugars, which is a lower price by ⅛c. per lb. than it ever sold at in bond in the United States previous to 1886. In 1886 it touched 2.60c., and in 1887 it touched 2.48c. In 1888 and 1889 the lowest was 2.79c., but in the years of the sugar trust, 1890 and 1891, it touched 2.60c. again, and in 1892 it is very near the same point again, notwithstanding that the statistical position of sugar is vastly more favorable for higher prices now than in either of the years of low prices mentioned This is a good example of the influence of large manufacturers, controlling a trade, to cheapen the price of the raw material, to the benefit of the consumers of the manufactured article, as is shown in another place in this paper. We do not see, however, under the existing strong statistical position of raw sugar, how it is possible to expect any lower prices for the present campaign, unless the financial and political conditions abroad should lead to a further selling movement before the United States buyers are ready to take hold of the beet sugar. It is useless to ignore a certain danger in this direction, which no doubt has an influence on Cuba and other countries, to sell all the sugars they can while they have the monopoly of the business of supplying our buyers, as they have had since the beginning of the year. A decline to 13s. c. and f. for beet sugar would, however, begin a competition from abroad.

There has been no change in prices during the week, and very little demand until at the close, when a slightly improved enquiry is coming from grocers, who have exhausted their previous purchases and are ready to buy again. As anticipated by us two weeks ago, the Spreckels refinery is now closed for a period of time, having run out its supplies, and needing a new cooperage arrangement. The Delaware Company, who has a capacity of 800 barrels per day is also running out.

The deficient production will, however, be made good by the reopening of the Greenpoint and the Decastro houses of the American Sugar Refining Company, which have for a long time been idle. The Greenpoint is new, and one of the best equipped for cheap manufacture. Grocers can rely upon having a full supply of refined at all times at sufficiently low prices to induce the largest possible consumptive demand. Prices from now on will very likely follow the course of the raw sugar market.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS.

A small trade in molasses is all that jobbers report. Prices remain stationary.

Syrups are very dull. The prices do not display much strength whenever business is proposed. Low grades quote from 1⅞c. upwards, and the sale of syrups is very limited.

TEAS.

The stocks of medium Japans on this market are running low. The demand from Detroit and Chicago has continued through the week and has exhausted the available supply of medium to fine Japans. Scarcely any of the early crop teas are held here now. Our supply is in low grades almost altogether. Ceylon teas are getting the benefit of the shortage in Japans and are having a brisk market, grades to retail at 25c. being especially salable. Ceylon teas are in the greater request because of a recent decline in price.

Messrs. Gow, Wilson, and Stanton, in their Report, March 25, say: The firmer tone noticed last week has been even more pronounced, and the impression appears to be gaining ground that the lowest prices have been passed for the present, and that with diminishing supplies from India and moderate offerings from Ceylon, the outlook has a more hopeful appearance. The very low range of prices so long ruling for such teas as make up the bulk of the home consumption compares in a marked manner with rates for similar teas at this time last year, when they were several pence per lb. dearer. To the present low rates of Indian and Ceylon teas of this class may probably be attributed the great falling off which is again so noticeable in the home consumption of China tea. Clearances of all tea from the 1st inst. are considerably in excess of the same time last year. Closing invoices have been sold from several gardens. The market for teas with quality is, if anything, dearer; while medium teas also, in some cases, show an advance upon last week's rates, the commonest grades being also better competed for. The quality of many of the autumn flavored invoices was good, and some high averages have in consequence been obtained.

cellent sugar weather, and the large evaporators are taxed to their utmost in keeping pace with the copious flow of sap. First make is now being sent forward to market.

The British America Starch Co. has advanced its prices ¼c. all round. The list in our Prices Current is amended in accordance with this change.

The new process Ivorine Starch of the St. Lawrence Starch Co. is proving itself a selling line. In the short time it has been on the market it has made rapid headway in popular favor. Put up in an attractive package, it is a fine shelf line, and readily takes the eye of the purchaser. The quality of the starch does the rest.

PETROLEUM.

The local market maintains its steadiness, 14½ to 15c. being prices for lots delivered in the city and 14 to 14½c. for quantities to buyers outside.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports : Petrolia crude $1.29 per barrel, Oil Springs crude $1.29½ per barrel. Although prices for our raw material are somewhat on the droop, the trade expansion looked for is coming slowly. There is no doubt but that buyers would become a little uneasy if there were any further break in the price of the refined article, and jobbers and retailers in all places would feel the same as to their future investments. One thing there can be no doubt of, however, and that is the fact that the Canadian crude oil business, as far as the producers are concerned, never was in a more satisfactory condition and on a more solid and substantial basis. Of course money is not as plentiful as many would desire, but anyway with this as a drawback, enterprise is scarcely halting, and those that are in a position to do so continue their drilling operations and other investments with their usual confidence.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Dealers who have orders on their books find it difficult to fill them these days, owing to shortage in the supply. The tone of prices is strong and the range of quotations pretty much the same as it was a week ago. The best dairy tub is good for 20 and in some cases 21c., while for lower grades above common the price runs from 16c. upwards. Choice butter is of course the scarcest, good medium is but little more plentiful, and common grades are as hard to get as any description. The price of common butter is 13 to 15c. Creamery tubs, contrary to the course of the market for other kinds, are easing, and receiving but limited attention at 18 to 20c. The price is being shaded to effect business sufficient to get all stock placed before resumption of work at the creameries. A better local market may probably obtain before the spring is far on, but creamery prices are not in the meantime likely to rise, unless prime quality is offered.

Cheese pursues an unvaried course. Round lots of fall cheese are exchanged at 11¼ to 11½c., and the jobbing price is 12 to 12½c. Summer makes and half creams are being cleared up at 9½c. to 10c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES—There is good inquiry for apples at the moment, and a firm domestic market at $3.25 for choice hard fruit, with the scale sliding downward for quality all the way to $2.

BEANS—No immediate recovery in the price is probable. Offers are still free at 90c. to $1. Out of store prices are $1.10 to $1.20.

CRANBERRIES—The season is about over, and nearly anybody's offer will effect a purchase, as quality and quantity both rule in favor of low figures. Those holding now are $4 to $5.

DRIED APPLES.—No change either in price or in activity has taken place. Buyers offer only 4 to 4¼c., sellers are not eager to close with these offers, the stock in the country is probably not excessive, but consumption is inconsiderable. Sellers get as high as 4¾c.

EVAPORATED APPLES.—Very few and small are the transactions that break the monotony of dulness. Prices are 7½ to 8½c.

EGGS.—The egg market regains strength every day. The range for fresh stock in cases is 12½ to 13½c. Delivery is backward, and as Easter approaches the demand strengthens. Sales to arrive have been made at 12½c.

HIDES—Green hides are less plentiful with the close of winter, when slaughtering falls off very considerably. The quotation is unchanged at 4½c. for No. 1 cows'. Cured are dull at 5c.

HONEY—Finds little sale. The prices remain at 9 to 10c. for extracted, and 14 to 16c. for sections.

HOPS—Choice stock is firmly held at 21 to 24c., wind-whipped or other second-class stock goes as low as 18c., while yearlings are worth 16 to 18c.

ONIONS—The demand is relatively larger as compared with the supply, owing to a decline in the latter. Prices are firm at $2.25 to $2.75.

POTATOES—Holders of stock are more anxious to sell at 30 and 32c. on track than traders are to buy. Out of store lots are 45c.

SEEDS—A rather quiet jobbing trade is reported. Red clover goes out at $6.60 to $6.90, alsike at $7 to $9, timothy at $1.70 to $1.80.

TALLOW—The usual volume of offerings of crude at 2c. is heard of. Refined is bought at 5½c. and sold at 6c.

WOOL—The relation between the supply and demand has not been disturbed this week, and the price of fleeces stands at 18c.

PROVISIONS.

Business in provisions is now a more considerable matter than it was, and orders for supplies are coming forward quite freely. Long clear is creating some interest. The orders, however, are more numerous than they are large. The supply of hogs has fallen to a low point, and quotations begin to be nominal in the absence of deals.

BACON—Long clear is steady at 7¾c., with 8c. asked for small lots. Smoked bellies go at 10c. for heavy, 10½c. for medium, 11c. for boneless; backs are 10½c., rolls are 8 to 8½c.

HAMS—Smoked hams are 10½ to 11c. For sweet-pickled the price is 10c.

LARD—Tubs of pure are 10c., pails 10¼c. Compound is fairly active at 8 to 8½c.

BARREL PORK—United States heavy mess quotes ut $13 to $14, Canadian at $15, short cut at $16 to $16.50. A fair demand exists.

DRESSED HOGS—These are nominal at $5.90 to $6.10.

GREEN FRUIT.

Lemons are slightly lower, the quotation this week being $3 to $3.75. Oranges continue in their upward course, and are firm

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

Little to note in the way of change has happened in the flour market which remains dull and unpromising of much shipping trade at present prices. Inquiries are not lacking, but they are always for lower prices than are quoted here. The general drift of the market appears to be downward, if the tendency of the wheat market is not arrested. In feed there has been little change, though an inclination towards lower prices is observable.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are : Manitoba patents, $5.20 to 5.50; strong bakers',$4.85; Ontario patents,$4.40; straight roller, $4.75; extra, $4.10 to $4.15 : low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

Car prices are : Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $5.10 to $5.50; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.70 to $4.90; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.90 ; straight roller, $3.95 to $4.00; extra, $3.75 to $4.00; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

MEAL- Oatmeal is $3.90 to $4.00. Cornmeal is $4.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is $4.50 per barrel.

FEED—Bran is $14 to $15, shorts $15 to $16, mixed feed $23 to $25, cracked corn $1.15, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 31 to 32c.

HAY—is fairly active at $11.50 to $12 for No.1 timothy and $10 to $10.50 for mixed.

STRAW—is steady at $6 to $6.50.

MONTREAL.

Flour—Purchasers would seem to be awaiting future developments, orders from city and country customers alike being few to-day, even for the most popular grades. The stock in store on Saturday last showed an increase of 5012 barrels when compared with the same day of the previous week, and an increase of 4455 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote:—Patent, spring $5 to $5.20; patent, winter $5 to $5.10; straight roller, $4.50 to $4.65 ; extra, $4 15 to $4.30 ; superfine, $3.90 to $4.05; fine, $3.30 to $3.65; strong bakers, $4.60 to $5 00.

Oatmeal—Dullness still prevails and the drift of prices is to an even lower basis. The stock in store on Saturday last showed an increase of 673 barrels when compared with the same day of the week previous and an increase of 4347 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote :—Granulated, bbls. $3.95 to $4 ; Rolled, bbls. $3.95 to $4 ; Standard, bbls. $3.85 to $3.90 ; Granulated in bags $1.92 1-2 to $1.95 ; Rolled, in bags $1.92½ to $1.95 Standard, in bags $1.85 to $1.90.

Feed—Purchases continue moderate in extent and prices are steady. We quote bran at $15.50, shorts at $16 to $17 and mouille at $20 to $23.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Flour—The tone of the flour market seems for lower prices. Orders are coming in quite freely, though not for as large amounts as usual. Manitoba patent is quoted at $5.70 to $5.80, Ontario high grade at $5.05 to $5.15, medium patents at $4.80 to $4.95.

Cornmeal—Is in better demand, with indications for slightly easier prices. It is quoted at $3.80 to $3.90.

Oatmeal—The market is quiet and but little is selling, at $4.20 to $4.30.

Feed—Is steady and quoted at $21 to $22 per ton.

MARKETS—Continued.

at the following quotations : Floridas $4.50 to $5, Valencias $5.50 to $6, Messinas $4, Riverside Seedlings $3.25 to $4, Navels $4 25 to $4.75. The supply of oranges is now chiefly from the Pacific coast. Bananas range from $1.50 to $2.75. A few reds are now on the market, and sell at $2 to $2.50. Pineapples are 18 to 25c., sweet potatoes $4.50. Trade in all fruits now is quite active since the opening of the month.

FISH.

As the Lenten season draws to a close, it becomes more apparent that the volume of the fish trade will be insignificant compared with former years. During this week, prices have dropped still lower, on account of the dulness in trade. White fish and trout are slow at 6c., pike at 3 to 4c., and mackerel at 7c. Frozen sea herrings are quoted at $1.25 to $1.50 per hundred. Pickled and dried fish are holding better prices and the trade in these lines is fairly good. Flounders and smelts are out of the market altogether, and this week will finish the stocks of mackerel.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

The following is the wholesale price list for maple syrup in screw top cans : Tall Round Can,—say 11 lbs. gross 80c. ; Half Can,—say 5¾ lbs., gross 42½c. ; Small Can, say 2½ lbs., gross per doz., $2.40.

IN BULK.—Kegs. per Imp. Gal. (12 to 15 gals. each.) 90c. ; Small Bbls., per Imp. Gal- 90c.

Pure Maple Sugar, in 1 lb Cakes, per lb. 8½c. ; Pure Maple Sugar say in 3 to 5 lb. Cakes, per lb. 8c. Discount 5 per cent. Terms : Net cash in 10 days.

SALT.

Trade has been quiet with regard to car lots, only three carloads having been moved, but prices remain firm and steady. The trade in small quantities has been quite brisk, as the local retail dealers seem to find quite a demand.

DRY GOODS.

There has been little change in the position of the dry goods trade during the past week. Spring orders continue to come in, although most of the best orders have been placed. Most lines are selling well, especially in the staples, such as prints, cottons and tweeds. The payments in general are very satisfactory and retail merchants seem hopeful for a prosperous spring season.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, April 7, 1892.

Business at this point is about the same as it was last week Sugar and teas are firm and in good demand, dried fruits are dull and unchanged and devoid of any new feature. The wholesale trade here say business is about the same as it was this time last year, also that their men are doing a fair trade on the road. The French houses seem to be satisfied with the state of trade in their section of the country. Payments are fair and only a few extentions were asked and on the whole the market here looks brighter.

SUGAR.

The sugar market is quiet, but will no doubt brighten up now that the low freights have gone into effect. One refinery is still quoting 4½ for granulated, but the others' price is 4 9-16c. It is reported here that one Montreal house offered it laid down in Corn wall at 4⅝c. for granulated and 3⅝c. for yellows. If this be true, some house is still at the cutting, which we thought had been stopped. The rest of the wholesale trade here are not pushing sales, and still hold out for the high price. On the whole the market shows a firmer tendency. We quote granulated 4½ to 4 9-16c. ; yellows, low grade, 3½ to 3¾c., and yellows bright 3¾ to 4¼c.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There is not much doing in syrups, the market being still dull and quiet, and outside of a small jobbing movement in Canadian there is nothing new to note and prices remain unchanged at 1¾ to 2¾c. The grocers report a fair enquiry for molasses in a jobbing way at 35c. Latest advices from Barbadoes quote 12c. as the first cost, which is equal to 29c. in Montreal ; but we hear of the purchase of a lot of 200 puncheons at 11c. This is 2 to 3c. lower than the quotations of a week ago. We quote Barbadoes 35 to 38c., American 28c. ; syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 30 to 45c. for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

MAPLE SUGAR AND SYRUP.

Maple sugar is beginning to come in more freely, but the market is in a bad state to receive it. New sugar can be bought for 6c. per pound and syrups at 5c. In fact some holders would be glad to get 3c. to effect a clearance. The cause of the bad market is the big supply of old stock.

TEA.

Low grade Japans are in fair enquiry. The stock in first hands here has been considerably reduced, some 900 packages having changed hands during the week, at 10 to 12c. As there will be no more of these teas received till next fall, they are meeting with more favor lately. High grade Japans are scarce and more enquired after. There is nothing doing in black. Indian and Ceylon teas have the same steady sale at regular prices.

COFFEES.

The coffee market remains about the same as last week with a fair business doing. We quote :—Rio, 18 to 20c., Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c.; Jamaica; 19to 21c.; Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c. ; Santos, 17½ to 19c.

RICE.

The local rice trade is confined to a small movement among wholesale houses and as noted last week the houses that were stocked heavily are now reaping the benefits of the advanced prices. Advices from primary points continue very strong. We quote Standard $4 to $4.10, Japan $4.50 to $5, Patnas $4.10 to $4.75, and Carolina $7 to $8.

DRIED FRUIT.

The dried fruit market continues quiet and unchanged with values nominally the same. There is a very fair business doing in the best line of raisins for table use. Currants run about the same as last week, viz., 4¾ to 5c. We quote :—Valencias, ordinary, 3½ to 4c. ; No. 1 off stalk, 4½c. ; layers, 6c. to 6¼c.; Patras currants, 5 to 5¼c.; Vostizzas, in cases, 7½ to 8c.; provincial currants, 4⅞ to 5½c.

NUTS.

Nuts are still dull with only a small trade doing We quote as follows :—Almonds, Tarragona 13 to 13½c.; Almonds, Ivica 12 to 13c. ; Almonds, common 10 to 11c. ; Almonds, hardshell 07 to 08c.; Walnuts, Grenoble, new 11 to 12c. ; Walnuts,

MONTREAL MARKETS—Continued.

French 10 to 10½c.; Cocoanuts per 100 $4.50 to $5; Filberts 9 to 10c.; Pecans 16 to 17c.; Peanuts 07 to 10c.

GREEN FRUIT.

In green fruit the only feature is the firmness in oranges, which have advanced all round. Valencias are now selling at $5.50 to $6,00, an advance of over $1.00. Floridas are 50c. higher at $3.75 to $4.25 per box. Jamacas in barrels are offered at $7 to $7.50. The supply of lemons here is equal to the demand, and prices are easy with a fair trade doing. We quote $2.25 to $3.25 per box. Strawberries, pineapples and bananas are meeting with fair sales and we quote strawberries 50 to 55c. per box, bananas at $2.75 to $3.25 per bunch, and pineapples 25 to 30c. apiece.

APPLES.

The apple market here is firm under light stocks, and prices generally are the same as last week. We quote 3 to 4c. for prime stock. Evaporated apples are quiet at 8 to 8½c., dried bring from 5 to 6c. Evaporated peaches in tins, 12 13c.

HOPS.

The local market here is firm owing to stronger foreign advices and really choice stock bring 24c. Brewers here are well supplied and outside of small trade there is nothing to say.

FISH.

There has been an entire absence of any new or interesting feature in the market for pickled fish during the week. The situation may be summed up by saying there is little doing and that holders are meeting buyers promptly at quotations with the feeling a little easy. Prices are as follows: Herring, No. 1, per bbl., $4.50 to $4.60; lake trout, per half bbl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.25 to $8.75; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

Smoked fish are in fair demand at the old prices. We quote: Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.15 to $1.30; Saint John's bloaters, per box, $1 to $1.10; boneless cod, large boxes, 6 to 7c; do small boxes, 7 to 8c.

PROVISIONS.

Business is altogether of a jobbing character at the old prices. Dealers speak hopefully however of the future, an improvement in the demand generally manifesting itself as the season advances. The demand is still small, and we quote: Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.50 to $17.00; mess pork, western, per brl. $16.00 to $16.50; short cut, western, per brl. $17 to $17.25; hams, city cured, per lb. 9½c. to 10½c; lard, Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c; bacon per lb. 9c. to 10c; lard, com. refined, per lb. 7¼ to 7¾c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The butter market does not improve in point of activity, and with gradually increasing arrivals of fresh new stock holders of old creamery will find it more difficult to get out at a profit or even at cost, for all their goods were high priced. There is an ordinary jobbing business doing at the moment, fresh dairy from the Townships finding ready sale at full figures, for we hear of 22 to 23c. being paid for nice jobbing parcels. Old stock as we have said moves very slowly, and although there is no quotable change in prices the tendency is lower. We quote:—Creamery, 20 to 22c.; Townships, dairy, new, 22 to 23c.; Morrisburg and Brockville, 18 to 19c.; Western dairy, 16 to 17c.

In cheese there is only a small trade doing of consigned lots to the retail grocers.

EGGS.

The egg market holds steady under a fair demand. The receipts were more liberal today, but receivers were well cleaned up before night at 11½ to 12c. being the range, the outside being the idea for single case selected stock.

GRAIN.

Wheat dull and nominal, and nothing doing in the coarser grains.

We quote values generally as follows:—No. 2 hard Manitoba, 95 to 98c; No. 3 do., 87 to 90c.; No. 2 Northern, 90 to 95c. peas, 72c. to 74c per 66 pounds; oats, 31c per 32 pounds, for Quebec; Ontario, 34c. per 34 pounds; corn, 55 to 60c., duty paid; feed barley, 42 to 43c.; good malting do., nominal.

Compared with a week ago there is an increase in the stocks in store of 632,000 bushels of wheat, 17,953 bushels of peas, 67,892 bushels of oats, 3,494 bushels of barley, 174 bushels of rye, 5,018 barrels of flour, 673 barrels of oatmeal. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 144,952 bushels of wheat, 231,753 bushels of peas, 215,198 bushels of oats, 8,942 bushels barley, 15,047 bushels of rye, 4,455 barrels of flour, 4,347 barrels of oatmeal.

The stocks in store on the dates mentioned were as follows:

	April 2, 1892.	April 3, 1892.	April 4 1891.
Wheat, bush.....	584,326	583,694	439,374

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N. B., April, 7, 1892.

Quite an improvement is noticable in trade the past week, especially along the wharves, as the coasting vessels are making their appearance for the first time this spring. Molasses is very scarce, also butter and cheese. All other lines the trade is well supplied with. Money is coming in more freely, and still further improvement in business is looked for.

MOLASSES—The market is almost bare. What is offering is very inferior in quality. Some new is expected by steamer in a few days.

SUGAR—There is no change. The amount selling is not large, and prices are: Granulated $4.40 to 4⅝, yellows 3⅜ to 3⅝.

PRODUCE.

BEANS—are $1.25 to $1.45.

EGGS—are gradually getting lower in price. Last sales were made at 12c. to 13c.

BUTTER—no change has taken place in the butter market. Butter is still very scarce, and prices are the same as last quoted.

FISH—Dry cod are quoted at $4.50 to $5. Pollock $2.50 to $2.75, smoked herring 10 to 12c.

MEATS—Beef is $12.50 to $13. Clear pork $17 to $17.25.

Count de Roffignac has decided to leave Whitewood and take up his residence in Long Island, New York, where he has large real estate interests. He has sold his coffee mill and chickory plantation at Whitewood to a syndicate of his countrymen.

ADVERTISE TO YOUR OWN PUBLIC.

In your advertising never lose sight of the people you are addressing. If you wish to reach the so-called great middle-class, the cheap trade or the millionaire trade, whatever your purpose is, remember that the advertisement, to pay, must be along the lines of taste, ideas, interests. The trade of your store, if you have been in trade long, will assume a certain character. If you are in a country town, carrying a general assortment of merchandise and pretty nearly the same lines as all the other dealers have, your advertisements should be made up of special offers which your shrewd buying has brought to your net. Never let the tendency of your advertising or your buying be downward. Have your sales-people always impressing the fact that a good article is the better investment. When you induce a customer to buy a better article than she intended you will be more likely to have her praising you and your goods than if you sell her a cheap thing, and it only does what it really should do—its duty according to its cost.

One great feature should never be lost sight of in advertising, and that is, the purpose to form in the mind of the public a constant and continued association of ideas connecting the name of the firm and merchandise they sell. This is where a crest or design comes in good stead. Have it on your wrapping paper, your price tags, your advertisements, your signs, everywhere.

Use a peculiar kind of type, an original method of expressing ideas; a watchword is a good thing to weave into the mind fabric of your township. Persistent efforts to the end that everyone in town, from the school children up, shall be acquainted with the "Red Cross of Stallings & Co." Now, if you, will state to yourself that you know a man whose methods of advertising is away from the old lines, and has the mark of originality about it, and then ask yourself whether it impressed you, you will get a good reason for seriously instituting a new state of affairs in your advertising. Have the goods and name so burned into the brains of the community that the result—readers, good and firm—naturally come together.—Economist.

A. E. Halle & Co., general merchants, Grenville, Que., are offering to compromise.

W. McDonald, grocer and commission merchant Calgary, N. W. T. has assigned.

H. G. Taylor, grocer, Windsor, Ont., has assigned, and the stock is advertised for sale by tender.

Jardine, Smith & Co., general merchants, Collingwood, Ont., have assigned in trust to G. E. Moberly.

Geo. Shillington, hardware merchant and grocer, Carberry N. W. T. has assigned to S. A. D. Bertand.

Dudne Breeze, wholesale grocer, St. John N. B., has assigned to James C. Robertson for the benefit of his creditors. The liabilities are between $25,000 and $30,000. There are some preferences.

N. B.—The old STANDARD BRAND of HORSESHOE CANNED SALMON still takes the lead, and affords the greatest satisfaction to both dealer and consumer, and for uniform excellence in quality and weight has no equal.

Baffles Human Conception.

Nature's all-powerful healer is discovered and when imbibed freely radiates the arterial network of the body, absorbs and rushes off all effete, deadly poisonous matter. Also it contains all the sixteen elements of ripe molecular life, builds up every weak part, restores nerve and vital power, is the sunshine of life, the wonderful. So say all that use St. Leon Water. World, Feb. 13th, 1892.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

Truth is better than a falsehood even in an advertisement.

It is hard for a new manufacturer to become initiated upon the supply list of the wholesale grocery market in this city. No new brands receive a cordial welcome except such as come with the name upon them of some producer who has won a reputation for himself by some other article. All the magic is in the name. Quality has nothing to do with the matter, and the best line has to put in sometimes a long probationary period before it is taken up by wholesale grocers. They are not very open to argument upon the question of merit, and prefer to cling to that which has their confidence rather than venture upon that which has no commercial record. But a good line is worth pushing upon such a market, as the very difficulty of displacing stand-bys proves that the wholesalers do not readily forsake what they have once adopted. This is a distinguishing temper of the wholesale grocers of Toronto, and while to some degree observable in the wholesalers of other cities is not nearly so pronounced. Innovation is the great point with some jobbers, but conservatism rules among those in Toronto. With them a name once made and upheld is secure.

The deputation from the Montreal Board of Trade which waited on the Minister of Customs to urge the adoption of some means to put an end to diversity in appraisements at different ports of entry, had the support of the whole importing trade at their backs. Importers have too long been without redress or practical source of appeal against the rulings of local appraisers. Not having any standard to which to conform, these officers frequently differ very much in their individual ideas as to the classification of the same description of article. That anomaly virtually invests the local appraiser with absolute power. His deliverances in tariff exegetics apparently cannot be reversed. There is a Board of Customs to which all disputed questions are supposed to be referred, but its mediation between the importer and local appraiser is hard to bring about, for the simple reason that it never, or rarely ever, meets. If it would do its duty properly, the importers of the country would not now be calling for the appointment of a chief appraiser. It is remarkable that commerce is without any protection against the arbitrary rulings of men who are often too inexperienced in the handling of goods that admit of equivocal description. Assessors of value for taxation have a check upon their reports in the Court of Revision, and assessment for taxes is not a whit more important than appraisement for customs.

In the spring the salesman's fancy gravely turns to thoughts of closing—and closing early. Last year there was a fair amount of progress made in the early closing movement, and the scope of the reign of darkness—literal and metaphorical—was considerably reduced. The campaign is being resumed with better heart this spring, on account of the hopeful results of last year's agitation, an agitation which enlisted the press, the pulpit and the buying public in several places. Let it be hoped that employees will be still more disposed to shorten the working day for the good of themselves and their help. The five o'clock closing hour will soon be due in the wholesale grocery trade of this city. Last year the situation looked promising for the establishment of that hour as the time for closing all year round. It would be a gracious and highly appreciated act of the wholesalers if they would go the whole year, and begin on the first of May with the understanding that they should close at 5 o'clock every day until the first of May, '93. The employes stayed cheerfully at their posts last summer, and gave up their hour many an evening when the rush for sugar was at its height.

In a speech upon the insolvency question, delivered before the Halifax Board of Trade a few days ago, Mr. Fyshe said some wise things, and among others this: "There are three interests involved in this matter, the interests of the insolvents, the interest of the creditors and the interest of the public; compared with the other two interests that of the insolvents is utterly insignificant, and it transgresses all reason and common sense that they, after all the mischief and waste they have already brought on their creditors and the community, should be treated as a favored class, petted and helped as if they had been benefactors to the community instead of drags on it, while better and abler men are treated as of no account in comparison, and the interest of the general public practically ignored. It is not the matter of the bankrupt's discharge, but this of compromising with him and allowing him to continue in business, which really is the key to the whole subject, and it is hardly worth while discussing any other part of it."

MR. W. A. FERGUSON.

A native of the land where I respire.
—Byron.

Mr. W. A Ferguson was born in the county of Prince Edward, Ont., in the year 1846, and is of Scottish descent. After having received a common school education, he commenced for himself at fourteen years of age, choosing to earn his own living rather than go to school, as many another Canadian boy has chosen, and from fourteen years of age to twenty-three worked at farming and lumbering. In his twenty-fourth year he took up fire insurance, and soon became connected with the leading fire and life companies doing business in Canada, and built up a large and remunerative business, which is still carried on by Ferguson Bros., who during all the period of their business career have never had a claim disputed or unpaid. In the spring of 1878 the Delhi Fruit and Vegetable Canning Co. was organized, with Jacob Sovereen, A. and R. Crysler, and W. A. Ferguson equal partners. The out-put the first year was about 30,000 cans. This was the third factory of the kind in the Dominion. After two years of experimenting the company found their capital so badly impaired that it was one time decided to abandon the enterprise, which possibly would have been done had not Mr. Ferguson volunteered to give up his other business and devote his time wholly to the canning business. Forming a partnership with his brother, J. H. Ferguson, and handing the insurance business over to him, he threw his whole energy into the affairs of the cannery. The company re-subscribed their capital, and took in two additional partners—James McKnight and George Kent, both wealthy lumbermen. This gave the company a strong financial standing, Mr. Ferguson was given power to act as sole manager, and the company started with new life. But want of experience seemed to continue the great drawback. The canning business has more minute details to look after than most other branches of business. The cost is made of fractional parts, the raw material is perishable, water requires to be pure, steam must be just so hot, steam gauges must be kept in perfect order, and the whole business is of so complicated a nature, and the material is so perishable that with all the business energy of Mr. Ferguson the financial part could not be called a success until he had mastered the whole business, could supervise every part, and judge himself as to its fitness. But when once he felt that he understood the business, the company commenced to push it, and soon introduced their goods into every part of the Dominion. In 1885 it became necessary to enlarge their works, and the company decided on building new premises, and they now occupy the largest and best equipped canning factory in the Dominion, having a capacity of 50,000 cans daily. In locating their new factory two essential points were kept in view—namely, pure spring water and perfect drainage. The factory is situated on the brow of a hill, with a ravine below and a running stream, and all refuse is shot down a chute into this ravine and carried away by the stream. This keeps the air pure and the factory sweet and clean, which is one of the greatest difficulties about a canning factory. After moving into their new premises they not only enlarged their output, but increased the varieties of goods manufactured, adding jams, jellies, mince meat, catsups and soups to their already large line, and now turn out the largest assortment of goods of any one firm in the Dominion. Their goods are scattered all over the Dominion, and no first-class grocery stock is considered complete without an assortment of Delhi canned goods.

MR. W. A. FERGUSON.

Mr. Ferguson's motto is "Excel," and the many first prizes and gold medals won by his brands bear testimony as to how well he has succeeded. In the fall of 1891 a branch was started in the town of Niagara for canning peaches and tomatoes. This is the only factory in the centre of the peach-growing district, and where the fruit can be picked every day and canned within a few hours after being picked, it is a great advantage, and the goods turned out from this branch last fall are most highly spoken of. The company last season introduced machines for threshing peas out of the straw, something entirely new. These machines have a capacity of 100 loads of peas a day, are run by steam power and enable the farmer to harvest a field of 5 or 10 acres in one day, that would require a week in the old way of hand picking. They also enable the company to can the peas much fresher than the old way of hand picking. These are the only two in use in Canada. During the busy season some 450 hands are employed, mostly boys, girls and women. The premises are run night and day, and Mr. Ferguson may be found on the scene of activity at all hours. To manage such a business requires a man of quick and cool judgment and iron constitution and a determination that knows no surrender.

Mr. Ferguson has the gift, which is not very generally divided up among men, of persistency in a set purpose. The history of the canning establishment his name is connected with amply illustrates this. It requires pluck to take hold of an industrial project to make a success of it when it has once disappointed the hopes of its promoters. Mr. Ferguson was possessed of the necessary pluck and had in him the right metal to succeed. He acted upon what is a cardinal principle with all truly successful men, that before you can improve anything else you must improve yourself. He made himself thoroughly acquainted with the ins and outs of the business he had chosen, spared no pains in the application of this knowledge, and made personal supervision a prime necessity. It requires a strong mind to receive and steadily turn to practical account one idea. The one idea that Mr. Ferguson never deviated from may be deduced from the products of his cannery, and is this: It pays to maintain quality.

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Retail Grocers' Association of Toronto held its regular monthly meeting in Richmond Hall on Monday night. The following were present :—President Booth (in the chair), Messrs. Barron, Clark, Gibson, Saunders, Hawthorn, Chapman, Anderson, Dulmage, Hambly, White, McCulloch, Westren, Jackson, Williamson, McMillan, Johnson, Sykes, Roberts, Sinclair, Mills and Secretary Corrie.

Such of the above as were present for the first time were introduced individually by the secretary to all the other members.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The following names were read, proposed for membership and admitted : Messrs. Anderson, Hambly, Hawthorn, McCrae, Fry.

SELLING TO CONSUMERS.

In behalf of the committee that waited on the wholesale grocers to remonstrate against the practice of selling to consumers, Mr. Gibson reported that the committee was received courteously, that all the wholesalers alleged their innocence except one, and all promised to sell nothing to consumers hereafter. The committee informed all the wholesalers that information of such sales being made would be acted on by the Association, and the names of wholesalers who should break their promise would be reported for publication in the trade and daily papers, and that such unfair business would be advertised as widely as possible, and the influence of the Association used to divert trade to wholesalers who dealt fairly by the retailers.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Secretary reported the receipt of half a dozen copies of the Adulteration Act, in response to his request for the same from the Inland Revenue Department.

The tender of thanks to the members of the Executive Committee of the City Council was reported by the secretary, and the reply thereto of Ald. Saunders.

A request from Barrie to forward a copy of by-laws as a basis for forming an association was read, but the Secretary said he had run out of copies.

The communications were received.

The following accounts were read and passed, except the second, which was referred to the executive :—Rent, $11.75 ; a baseball account for the Travellers' picnic, $6 ; stamps, 28c. ; the secretary's commission on new members, $22.

THE PEDDLING BY-LAW.

Mr. Gibson moved, seconded by Mr. Williamson, that a committee be appointed to wait on the Mayor to draw his attention to the fact that a good deal of peddling is done in violation of the license by-law. The committee appointed were Messrs. Mills, Gibson and Barron.

ADULTERATION.

The President read clauses of the Adulteration Act defining adulteration.

Mr. Clark moved, seconded by Mr. Sykes, that the Association petition the Minister of Inland Revenue to allow coffee with a certain proportion of chicory in it to rank as unadulterated.

Mr. White did not see that legislation was necessary to enable the grocer to sell chicory in coffee, if the customer asked for it, as the law now allows the trader to sell mixtures as mixtures.

Mr. Sykes did not like the present regulation. It is of course within the grocer's right to mix if he is careful to sell as a mixture, but that does not protect the grocer from the insidious work of detectives. He believed that nearly everybody prefers two ounces of chicory to a pound of coffee, and such proportion should entitle the coffee to be classed as pure. He had an experience of inspection in connection with the tobacco trade, when he was put to an expense of $13 or $14 because a label became displaced. The trade should be protected against such chances in the coffee trade, and he believed the proposal in the motion answered the needs of the case.

Mr. Gibson preferred the law the way it now was. That enables the grocer to shade quality to suit his customers, is sanctioned by the law within conditions, and is not worse than putting water in whiskey.

Mr. Clark withdrew his motion, stating that his object in making it was to elicit discussion.

THE CONVENTION QUESTIONS.

The discussion of the questions submitted by the delegates who met here in October last was taken up at the point to which it was brought at the meeting before last.

No. 12. How is the peddling business conducted in your locality ?

The secretary was instructed to answer this by a statement of the local law on peddling, and a memorandum of the steps taken by the association to regulate peddling, and of the attempts at evasion of the law referred to in a resolution passed in the early part of this meeting.

No. 13. What action has been taken with regard to its suppression ? The answer to this was involved in the instructions to the secretary with reference to question 12.

No. 14. Can you suggest further steps with reference to its suppression ?

No. 15. What license fee, if any, is paid in your locality ?

The two latter questions were treated as coming under the directions given under question 12, and as all were a mere matter of record the secretary could get the facts from the minute book.

The general question of peddling was given some attention during the discussion of these particulars. The difficulty of dealing with growers and discriminating between the genuine and the so-called growers was touched upon. The former have free ingress to the market, and under the Municipal Act, no city that has not a charter can put a license fee upon them.

Mr. Gibson said the genuine growers were not objects of complaint. They always stood out for full prices. The cutting pedlars who sailed under the colors of the growers, were not growers, but pedlars pure and simple, who pursued their calling on the strength of their cultivating half an acre of land. He would go in for putting the onus of enforcing the law upon the police.

No. 16. Do you think it desirable to hold a Retail Merchant's Convention ? If so, where, and when would you suggest its being held?

Mr. Clark approved the idea of a convention. The closer the relations among the trade the better. An idea that he entertained and hoped some time to see realized was the incorporation of the whole grocery trade, an apprenticeship system established, and entrance into the trade determined by success in passing an examination.

Mr. Mills had nothing to say against the proposal to call a convention, but saw little encouragement in the attitude of outside associations to warrant the consideration of it here. The circulars sent out had been quite generally ignored, and answers were returned by hardly any. The feeling of outside associations had evidently cooled down since the break in the sugar combine, which break reduced the motives for a convention. Also things were in an unsettled,transitional state in the Guild, and until they began to take more tangible form,a convention would be at a loss to know what matters were to be dealt with in this relation. Of course there were many matters not touched on in this circular which would come within scope of discussion at a convention.

Mr. Gibson agreed with Mr. Mills that a convention would have plenty to do if it met, as numberless questions demanded the attention of the whole trade. For example, the soap men were putting their best toilet goods into the hands of dry goods men after a name had been made for these soaps by the great advertising they received through being handled by grocers. The dry goods trade was always certain to take up some of the best things. They never bothered with sugar, currants, etc.

Mr. White thought Mr. Mills' objection to the idea of a convention being discussed, because answers had not been returned from other associations, was hardly consistent while Toronto itself was still considering the questions and had made no return of answers to them.

The question was finally answered as follows : We think a convention desirable. Would suggest Hamilton as a good central point. Would name August as a rough indication of a suitable time.

There was a disposition to be indifferent as to whether Hamilton or Toronto should be the place of meeting, and Hamilton was named out of consideration for outsiders, for whom the most central point was supposed to be the most convenient. Toronto would probably have been suggested as likely to be agreeable to all visitors, but the feeling that it might look selfish for the local Association to name its own city prevailed.

EARLY CLOSING.

Some desultory discussion took place upon early closing, but did not issue in the adoption of any resolution.

Mr. Clark said the fault with the present early closing Act was its not defining "grocer." That left a loophole for a great many evasions on the part of traders who carried along with groceries other lines as well.

Mr. Hambly, Mr. Hawthorn, Mr. Chapman, Mr. Mills and Mr. Johnson all spoke favorably of 8 o'clock as a closing hour ; and all except the last appeared to think closing on Wednesday afternoon impracticable.

Mr. White had closed at 7 since the first of January and lost nothing by it. He and two other neighboring grocers had observed this rule. He thought it more easily carried out in winter, though, than in summer, and would not be tied down to a particular hour during the latter season unless all within range of competition would agree to the same hour.

Mr. Williamson had closed at 7 since the first of June last and had not lost enough business by so doing to balance the saving in gas.

Mr. Sykes had studied the interests of his own business, and those he considered had warranted him in the past in keeping his store open after 7. His course was to some extent determined by the late-hour competition he had to face from the fruit and flour and feed men.

Mr. Gibson made a few humorous remarks upon the subject, and the meeting adjourned.

THE E. B. EDDY WORKS,

HULL, QUE.

The name of E. B. Eddy is known throughout the length and breadth of Canada, and everywhere he is acknowledged to be one of the shrewdest and most successful business men in the Dominion. About 40 years ago he started business in the little Village of Hull, and before long had acquired a considerable portion of the water power afforded by the Chaudiere Falls. Match making was his first venture, and at different times were added the making of pails, tubs, lumber, doors and sashes, indurated fibre ware, pulp, sulphite, and last, but by no means least, the manufacture of various kinds of paper. In 1886 he deemed it advisable to form a joint stock company, and since that time the various branches of the business have been carried on under the name of the E. B. Eddy Company.

Four thousand five hundred horse power is required to drive the machinery of the Company, and upwards of 1,800 hands are employed the year round. These two facts will give some idea of the enormous business carried on by this company, whose wares are sold from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and whose reputation for honest, square dealing is second to none in the Dominion.

The capacity of the machinery is as follows: Indurated fibre mill, 8 presses, capacity 600 articles daily; wood pulp mills, 8 grinders, 16 tons daily; sulphite fibre mill, 4 digesters, 13 tons daily; woodboard mill, 2 machines, 10 tons daily; woodboard mill, 2 machines, 10 tons daily; paper mill No. 1, 98-inch four-driver machine, 10 tons daily; 86-inch cylinder machine, 10 tons daily; paper mill No. 2, 76-inch cylinder machine, 2 tons (tissue) daily; small woodboard machine, 2 tons daily; Jordan engines, 6, and beating engines, 16, of a capacity of 1,000 pounds each.

Everywhere throughout these factories order and cleanliness exist, and that, too, without the air of restraint that is often marked in very orderly factories. Evidently the spirit that animates the management permeates every department of this very varied business.

The buildings are lighted by electricity from four dynamos and over four score of large arc lights, and several hundred small ones are used.

The factories as seen from the Chaudiere entrance into Hull convey no adequate idea of their true size. When seen from the vantage of a visitor, they cover acres. They are clustered loosely; the great paper mill, the stone paper mill, the box factory, machine shop, warerooms and the hooped-ware factory to the left of the road; a group, including the match factory, the indurated-ware works, the sash and door and washboard factories on the other side—a straggling mass of stone buildings, connected above by galleries and tramways, and presenting only an end to the street. The match factory is incomparably the largest in Canada, and possibly the largest in the world under one roof, much larger than all others in the Dominion together. It is a busy place, with many departments, for it takes about as many people to make a good sulphur match as to make a pin. The hum of machinery is everywhere; the rooms are closely filled with employes, mostly bright looking French-Canadian girls. A confused orderliness reigns. The debris, which almost invariably litters factories where wood is the material used, is here absent. Unfinished matches that fall to the floor are almost the only waste to be seen; these are gathered up and removed regularly to avoid risk of fire.

E. B. EDDY.

At Eddy's, matches are made with great rapidity and with very little manual labor involved in the process, and entirely without the waste and loss incurred by the old-time methods. In the cutting machines the pine, first cut into blocks and cross-cut, is split by knife-combs into match sticks the length of two matches, and then poured off on to a belt conveyor, which carries it to the reeling machines. This work is done so rapidly that the uninitiated eye finds it difficult to discover how the result is brought about. The matches are now prepared for dipping by the reeling machines, of which there are a score or two. In the oscillating feeder of the machine the match splints are shaken into position, side by side, one layer in thickness, and so pass through—an unbroken stream—onto a double line of tape, and are then rapidly wound, with the tape, around a little hub into a "wheel" or roll about two feet across and to match lengths—about 4½ inches—in thickness. So evenly is this done that a flat plate laid on either end of the wheel would touch every match splint. This evenness ensures uniform distribution of the sulphur and phosphorous dips, and as each match is separated by the reeling process from every other match in the wheel, the adhesion of the matches when dipped is prevented. A roll requires half a minute or a little more to complete. As it is finished it is whipped off, and another hub and set of tapes substituted. The wheels pass to the dipping room where they are dipped at both ends into sulphur, and when cool, touched on the phosphorous mixture, which, kept evenly fluid throughout by steam heat, never takes fire. After drying thoroughly, a cutter and unwinder now cuts the rolls into two wheels and unwind them. In the boxing room, a busy and most interesting apartment, girls with wonderfully nimble fingers gather from the tables the matches in half-handfuls and cram them into little paper boxes. Each quarter-gross as completed goes into a cardboard box and is passed to another department for packing and shipment. So great, when united with natural apitude, is the skill acquired by the girls in filling the little boxes, that these scarcely differ in the number of matches

Family Grocery Business in Toronto for Sale.

On account of my wine trade growing so extensively, I am compelled to move that branch of the business from 282 Queen St. West, to the centre of the city, and have secured a store at 79 Yonge St., and extensive Wine Vaults under 77 and 79 Yonge, and 2, 4 and 6 King St. It will consequently be impossible for me to give attention to my large grocery business at 280 Queen St. West.

I am therefore reluctantly compelled to offer it for sale. One of the best family grocery business, in the city, is and has been done there for years. The above is an opportunity seldom met with.

each contains. And the work is done with marvellous despatch—a box in about three seconds.

Of course there are departments devoted to incidentals of the match business, such as places where the selected pine is stored and rooms for making and stamping by machinery the wooden boxes, large and small. The stamping is thoroughly done, for the company takes care that every person who purchases a box shall know that it is Eddy's matches that are giving him satisfaction.

One of the most interesting mechanical rooms in Canada is that given to the making of the small paper boxes. Here over 700 boxes are made per minute. Great perpendicular cylinder or wheels made of hundreds of pieces of burnished steel constitute the prominent part of the machines, which were invented and made by the company on the premises. The machine, notwithstanding the time and thought consumed in inventing and perfecting it—rather in consequence of that time and thought—has the profound merit of simplicity, a merit phenomenally rare in machines made up, as those are, of about 3,000 separate pieces of metal. By these machines a band of tough paper, unwinding off a roll, is cut, grooved into seams, printed with a label, glued and pressed in rigid form as boxes. Of such boxes each machine turns out 185 per minute. Machines of similar construction, but without the printing apparatus, make the little covers. Unquestionably this is the crowning achievement Canada has made in mechanism. Perhaps it may justly be placed first on this continent for simplicity in principle, delicacy of adjustment and adaptedness to run without the frequent repairs generally necessitated in a machine required for operations so varied and of such nicety.

Two very important qualities are essential in first-class matches. They must not break readily, and, while they must never fail to strike, yet must not go off on the lightest friction, and so prove a prolific source of danger. Both of these qualities, as well as minor ones of importance, are exhibited in the highest degree in Eddy's matches. The pine selected is the choicest; sound, without knot or twist, and is thoroughly dried. Every maker has his own phosphorous dip, and, though these are much alike in their principal ingredients, the proportions used of each and the minor ingredients added very much. On Eddy's matches, as experience proves, the mixture is probably as nearly perfect as possible. The phosphorous ends well resist damp and heat alike; they are odorless, never spit or break off when struck, and so meet every requirement of parlor matches, while their comparative safety is such that it may be said the Eddy company has saved the insurance companies of Canada more than the cost of all the fires that have devastated Hull. Over 27,000,000 matches are turned out each day, giving employment to 475 hands, and using up about 6,000 cords of wood for matches alone, and 100 tons of sulphur annually.

W. H. ROWLEY.

Indurated fibre ware, as some readers well known, is made from wood pulp pressed on moulds of the utensil required into more than the original solidity of wood in the grain, and then kiln dried and saturated to a considerable depth with a solution which gives it almost the tenacity of iron, and renders this light, elastic ware impermeable and exceedingly durable. The ware manufactured at present (moulds for additions to the list are in preparation) includes tubs, pails, round-bottom fire buckets, basins, bread troughs, pans, water closet tanks and a variety of other articles. As this kind of manufacture is a novelty, and the factory is the only one of the kind in Canada, a brief glance at the processes may be of interest.

The pulp used is pumped in a gruelly condition into a large vat, and freed from lumps and partially drained is forced on into iron moulds set on tall presses, where, under a pressure of 160 pounds to the square inch, which drives the water out in streams, the utensils are shaped. The moulded goods are now dried in a kiln, then removed to another floor, trimmed by machine-driven saws of various descriptions, put upon lathes where, in polishing, their shape is reduced to that of the light and sometimes graceful utensils they appear when finished. Then comes the indurating vat, where, in a hot mixture, the composition of which is kept a profound secret, the goods are immersed, the indurator poking them under here and there with a stick every moment, and intently watching the mixture and the utensils floating in it. The immersion process complete, the wares are put for a considerable time in a kiln heated to 500° Fahr. A second immersion in another liquid follows, to give them a hard, glossy finish, which is afterward dried on in a kiln. The goods are now ready for the market, all except pails, tubs and a few other things, to which handles must be fixed.

The color of the goods, which is imparted in the glazing bath, varies as desired. Mottled browns appear to be favored most, but bright tints are frequent. The ware admits of great variety of pleasing effects in color, quite as much so as metallic or earthenware. This industry is more especially under the eye of Mr. Cushman, the vice-president of the company, a gentleman whose early and long connection with the Eddy factories has contributed much to their success.

Indurated ware is a boon to the kitchen and dairy, and needs only to be well known to come into general demand. The utensils are the lightest in the market. Strength is combined with lightness. A man can jump on a light wash-basin or hurl it into the air and let it fall on the hard floor without cracking or denting it. It may be broken with a hammer, but it is difficult to wear out indurated goods. The surface remains hard and glossy; neither heat nor cold, moisture nor drought affects it. The utensils are seamless non-warpable, and for practical purposes may be described as indestructible.

Immediately opposite, across the Chaudiere road, is a large stone building, occupied by the machine shop and the hoopware factory. The last, if not so interesting as the match factory or the indurated ware works, has many processes which the visitor watches with interest. The factory is a very large one, the largest of its kind in the country. It was one of the earliest industries engaged in by Mr. Eddy, and its reputation has steadily increased, for no pains have been spared to make every improvement possible in the machinery and methods with a view to economy in production and to securing well finished wares that will not fall to pieces or become leaky if left empty and dry. The manufacture comprises common pails, pickle pails, toy pails, wash tubs, candy, lard, jelly, jam, biscuit and spice pails and a variety of minor wares. Ash, elm, white pine and spruce are used, the last being in especial demand for butter tubs, as it is tasteless. The putting together and hooping is a process at once interesting and surprising on account of the rapidity with which it is done. The process of stamping the name of the company and printing from patterns the imitation grain work on this ware is particularly attractive. A recent improvement in hooped ware is the insertion in grooves around a tub, pail, etc., of wires; this doubly prevents the falling to pieces of vessels neglected and left in the sun. The magnitude of the business done by this factory may be judged from the fact that the output is equivalent to from 2,500 to 3,000 pails per diem. Here, too, a large number of men find constant employment in turning out first-class washboards, second to none in the market.

And last but not least by any means there is the manufacture of paper of all kinds, grades and colors. Here the grocer can get his tea and other wrapping papers in any quantity and at the lowest market price; here the hardware man is favored by having a strong heavy wrapping paper made specially for himself; and here users of paper of all kinds can have their wants filled. There are two paper mills, Nos. 1 and 2. The latter a large stone structure, 60 x 90, fitted up with the latest improved paper and pulp making machinery. We cannot attempt a description of the making of paper, for it would of necessity abound with technical terms, which would be meaningless to the vast majority of our readers, but will merely say that the whole process, from the time the wood is cut up into suitable lengths for being fed into the grinding machines until the finished paper is wound on the spools as it leaves the machine, is one so interesting that it is worth going many miles to see. In mill No. 2 there are two grinding machines, three beating engines (large, oval-shaped vats in which an engine keeps stirring and beating up the pulp) and a large paper making machine, used principally for making tissue and tissue manillas. This machine has a capacity of one and a half tons of tissue, or three tons of tissue manilla paper, per day. Although the Eddy Company have only been making toilet paper for a few months, yet already they find it hard work to keep up with their orders, even by running the two machines to their fullest capacity. These machines turn out 30 cases—100 rolls of 1,000 sheets each to the case—per day. With the improved machinery the company are able to turn out a superior quality of toilet paper and at a lower price than any similar article on the market.

Next comes the paper furnishing room. It is 85 x 102 feet, three storeys high, the ground flat having an 18-foot ceiling. On the lower flat is the mammoth super-calendering machine, having eight rolls 80 inches long. This is one of the finest machines on the continent, and is capable of finishing paper with the finest possible surface. The whole series of buildings are lighted with electric light, supplied with five dynamos with a capacity of 80,000 candle power. The two upper storeys are used for storage. The building is fitted up with two powerful elevators and is heated throughout with hot air, as are all the other buildings no stoves being allowed around the premises. Passing from the finishing rooms, into paper mill No. 1, you are completely taken by surprise. The building itself is 122 x 148½ feet, with an extension on one side, increasing the length to 170 feet. This extension had to be built to accommodate one of the new machines, which is 157½ feet long; truly a monster. On entering the door you are confronted by the two finest paper machines on this continent, if not in the world. They cost upwards of $30,000 each. The smaller one is, however, 147 feet long, is 98 inches wide, has 18 four-foot dryers and 2 stocks of calenders. This machine is used for making book, white print, news and manillas, and has a daily capacity of from eight to ten tons. The larger machine is 157½ feet long by 86 inches. It has 6 cylinders, 24 four-foot dryers and 3 stocks of calenders. This machine is used for making wood board, card board, duplex board, card middles, manillas, wrapping paper, etc., and has a capacity of from ten to twelve tons per day. This machine is so constructed as to produce cardboard with different colored sides, the only machine capable of doing this work in Canada. This mill is also fitted up with 6 grinders for grinding wood into pulp, and these require 1,350 horse-power to drive them. These grinders are 24-inch face, with 4-foot diameters. There are six run of them in mill No. 1, and two run in mill No. 2. In mill No. 1 are 10 beating engines of 50 horse-power each, and 4 Jordan engines, each of 30 horse-power. In the basement are the huge vats or tanks for holding the pulp, and also various pumping appliances for forcing the pulp up into the beating engines and finally into the paper making machines

Although this is but a short description it might be imagined that it is days instead of hours from the time the wood is ground into pulp till it comes out a beautiful sheet of paper. But such is not the case. Large sticks of spruce are thrown into the grinders and ground into pulp, then it passes on from machine to machine, and within a couple of hours is ready for use.

This confident vigor, which had so much to do in developing a very varied business which employed more hands than any one manufacturing enterprise in the Dominion (the number is said at one time to have amounted to 4,238 men, men and children) appears well founded. Mr. Eddy tolerates no inferiority in any of his manufactures. His wares must equal and, if possible, surpass the best in the same line produced elsewhere. All that careful methods and close attention can do is done. The needs of the market, and the special demands of customers, are carefully considered and promptly met. If the machinery already known to the world and needed by his company seems capable of improvement, the improvement is studied out, invented and perfected in Hull. A fully equipped machine shop is an important appurtenance of the company's factories, and here many new inventions have been made and elaborated, among them the Eddy match box machine, a marvel of mechanism scarcely rivalled anywhere.

Mr. E. B. Eddy is the president and managing director of the company, the other officers on the board being: Mr. S. S. Cushman, vice-president; Mr. G. H. Millen, superintendent, and Mr. W. H. Rowley, secretary-treasurer. Mr. J. J. Gormully, Q.C., Ottawa, is also a member of the board.

Notwithstanding his many business duties, Mr. Eddy finds time to take an active interest in all that pertains to the welfare of Hull, and has filled the important positions of mayor or chairman of the finance committee for many years.

To the commercial public of Canada Mr. W. H. Rowley, the genial Sec.-Treas., needs little introduction. The accompanying portrait is a good one. He is a Canadian, his birthplace Yarmouth, in Nova Scotia, and is a son of Lieutenant-Colonel Rowley. He is 42 years of age. His business career may be given in outline as follows: In 1866 he entered London House, St. John, N.B.; from 1869 to 1870 he was with the Hon. John Robertson, of the same city; in 1870 he entered the Merchants' Bank of Canada, in Montreal; he was afterwards stationed on the Bank's staff at Windsor, Kingston and Ottawa; in 1880 he was made manager of the Ottawa branch; in January, 1887, upon the formation of the E. B. Eddy Co., he was made secretary-treasurer of that company. Mr. Rowley is a typical business man, and has a capacity for administration and hard work that is possessed by few.

A customer secured is a promise of greater salary in time.

DARJILING (?)

The Rajah of Nepaul was sitting in state,
His turban he'd doffed,a scratching his pate,
His locks, dark, Hyperian, were ruffled, and Oh !
Such a look on his face, the picture of woe.

'Twas not that he felt his dominion unsafe,
For Peace reigned about him ; on mountain, in cave,
His subjects were happy ; on hillside,in dale,
Prosperity smiled on the dark and the pale.

No, no, he was happy, and yet, sad to say,
Misfortune had struck him this beautiful day;
A priest of Mysore had sent to this lord
To learn the right way to spell a strange word.

'Twas the name of a town on high Himalay,
The home of an herb brought from mighty Cathay,
Whose flavor, aroma and wonderful cheer
Was growing in favor through month and through year.

DARJILING—The Vedas so wrote the famed name,
Until the Feringhees, white sons of war's game,
With their barbarous guttural destroyed the smooth sound
And spelled it and wrote it—any way to get round.

So the Rajah had summoned the priests and the wise
To settle the word so no doubts could arise.
His court lauded loudly the sapient resolve,
And waited to see what the wise would evolve.

The first to bow low was the Sahib B. Bol,
Who said the word didn't need spelling at all,
But if spelled, should look like the English-man sees,
DARJEELING,—D-A-R, one J and two E's.

Then a priest of stern Siva, "destroyer of all,"

By ones the great wise men from far and from near Salaamed to the Rajah,who patient gave ear,
And as each of the faithful expounded his plea,
The woe of the Rajah was piteous to see.

All day and all night was the court kept awake,
But Rajah Tip Saboo no answer could take,
The sun was fast scaling the heavens once more
When a son of old Erin bowed down to the floor.

"Great Rajah"said he," o'im conhsthrained to confess
That this will turn out a mosht terrible mess,
And oi beg yez to tell, oi beg on me knees,
To spell the blamed word any DOMNED way they please."

With rapture the Rajah sprang from the gold throne,
And slapped Pat on the back, who grunted "Ochone !"
"Great son of Feringhee, your word shall be law,
No matter the spelling, you can't beat the draw."

HEC. SECORD.

NOTES TAKEN ON THE ROAD.

John Clay, Thorold, has fitted up a store on the opposite side of the street from his burned premises, and is once more to the front in the grocery line.

It is a pleasure to see Fred. Richards, of Richards & Son, soap manufacturers, Woodstock, around again after being laid up some time with a broken leg.

A. Disher, Merritton, is another subscriber to THE CANADIAN GROCER who lays aside a journal that he has taken for 15 years' and says THE GROCER fill the bill.

E. S. O'Neil, Ingersoll, was persuaded to take THE GROCER on trial, and when the time was up he made the remark that he was afraid he had lost a good deal by not taking it on before.

John Tisdale, Omemee, was burned out in the severe fire of last August, in that town, but with that pluck which distinguishes the successful man of business, he soon rebuilt and stocked a new store with a full line of fine groceries, and is fast recovering from his great loss. The insurance he received hardly covered his household effects.

William Henry, Uxbridge, when paying his subscription, said he had cut off other papers to make room for THE CANADIAN GROCER, and that it was the best trade paper in Canada. Speaking of business in Uxbridge, he said collections were a little slow, as the farmers had still large quantities of grain on hand. One farmer had 500 bushels of wheat, and was some time ago offered 90c. or more, but now he could not get 80c., with prospects of 75c. or less. Mr Henry has a fine store and carries a large stock of dry goods, cloths, men's furnishings, groceries, etc., and is what we term "well fixed."

There are sundry complaints from grocery men in the country at the long delay by some Toronto commission houses in making reports on sales of eggs this spring, and as one or two parties claim to have made the consignments from seeing the advertisement of these houses in THE GROCER, it is incumbent on THE GROCER to take due note of these complaints. One person at London had not heard from his consignment in over a month, another at Omemee shipped in February and again in March, and only got a report on April 8th, and then it was effected through his wholesale house. This latter commission house I am pleased to say is not an advertiser in THE GROCER.

Mr. Henry, of A. Watts & Co., Brantford, is fast recovering from a severe ankle sprain. Although suffering great pain, his arduous public and private duties compelled him to be at his office pretty steadily. There he appeared on crutches as regularly as ever for a long time. From his office the telephone had to do the rest. Mr. Henry is one of Brantford's most prominent citizens, and his counsel and advice in social as well as public matters have great weight, and can no more be dispensed with than his celebrated Ivory Bar Soap can from all the grocery stores in the Dominion of Canada.

A "NEW" DRUMMER.

My joy knew no bounds when one morning I received a letter from a large candy house which read as follows :—

"After the conversation we had with you we have decided to give you a trial. Please come down and post up with a view to starting out on Sunday night. Yours, SWEET AND PURE."

The happiest moment of my life had arrived ; I read and re-read the letter to make sure I was not dreaming. I knew, or thought I knew, if I could just get an opportunity to sell goods "on the road"—as a number of my drummer friends termed it—I would surely make a great success, and now the opportunity was presented. I was sure I could sell goods—lots of goods, why not ? I was bright, much more so than lots of those fellows who were wonderful successes on the road. Why should I fail ? No sir, it was not possible. I was the proud possessor of a great many fine and original (?) yarns that I could and would spin off ad finem, and I would prove a veritable cornucopia of effulgent merriment to those verdant (?) but nice country merchants.

I put in three days posting up, during which time I became thoroughly familiar with the confectioners' terms, and I knew what every "hand made cream" consisted of and how each piece of "Nougate" was made, etc. I had the prices of "pan work," "stick," "pistasch," "chocolate cream," "pea nuts," "fire crackers," "milk shakes," "pop corn balls," "prize boxes"—in fact everything, at my tongue's end—and now I would go out and revolutionize things generally and—no telling what was yet in store for me. I might yet be a member of "my firm." I had my samples sent down to the depot and returned to my home to pack up the personal effects that I would want to use on my trip.

"Just think," said I to my mother, I am at last a "drummer." Now watch me, watch how I will put some of those fossils away when I strike at their trade.

"Don't be too confident, my son," ventured my mother with some timidity. She seemed careful lest she might say something that would possibly lead me to believe that I was not already a howling success.

Well, I bade everybody good bye, and was soon seated in a Wabash train as proud of my 1,000 mile ticket as I was of the $50 expense money that I had carefully stowed away in my inner vest pocket. My first stop was at a small town that had positively no use for candy, as Mr. C., representing C. H. D & Co., had been there a few days before and sold everybody all the candy wanted. I took an afternoon freight that was going my way and found in the caboose quite a number of other "commercial travellers" who were lounging around on upturned buckets and other improvised seats. After I had deposited my sample case, silk hat box, umbrella, cane and satchel containing clothing, perfumed note paper, etc., in the corner, I volunteered the remark, as I rubbed off my patent leathers with my handkerchief : "Trade is d—n dull. How is it with you fellows ?" I noticed a fatherly looking gentleman lying down on the top of the tool box with one end of the cushion turned under for a pillow, and as I came near being thrown through the east end of the car by a violent jerk of the train, he asked me how I was doing on my maiden trip.

I did not know then, but I know now, how he knew it was my maiden trip.

I "made" one other town that day and at night wrote to my "house" that prospects were good. "There is," said I, "some fellow ahead of me in the same line, but I will head him off to morrow." I paid very little attention to trade the next day as I was anxious to head off the man with C H. D. & Co., whom I was following so closely. He was creating havoc with trade all along the line and I wanted to get in the front rank for awhile. I finally heard of him on the C. & A. and overtook him at Blackburn. I made his acquaintance — his name was Cobb—and he treated me royally and welcomed me into the ranks of peregrinating negotiations. He also told me that Waverly, a little town about seven miles off the road is a very good candy town, but he never made it on account of time required to do so. I set about going to Waverly at once and while the livery man was hitching up the horses I gulped down a piece of cold polygamous gobbler, all the landlord had, he said, dinner was over, and a cup of coffee that turned blue when milk was poured into it. I got to Waverly in time to learn that Cobb had been there the day before and took out a large number of Christmas orders. I was sorry he didn't take the town. I was like the fellow who was hung in Texas—further proceedings interested me no longer, so far as that town was concerned. In fact, I was beginning to think that perhaps my "house" would soon expect an order from me. I was compelled to remain in Waverley over night and somehow or another, the beautiful snow that had clad all nature in a mantle of white, did not have that particular charm for me that the poets advertise so liberally in all papers of known circulation.

I was put to bed in a little light running affair that had a dashboard at each end, and when I awoke in the morning my neck was twisted northeast by north, and I felt generally broken up. I stepped to the window of my room to get a glimpse of the weather, and just across the street I saw a merchant hanging out an immense sign which bore this pertinent legend : "Wait for our mammoth stock of Christmas candies, bought a few days ago for cash."

I ate sparingly at breakfast, but my driver's appetite seemed all right. He, however, hadn't seen the sign. We drove back to Blackburn, and I took the first train up the road to Marshall, where I found a customer who wanted goods, but when he learned whom I was representing he said : "What ! I don't want any of your goods. That house drew on me last week. I suppose they were afraid of their money." I afterwards learned that he was rated "M. 4," which accounted for his indignation. I managed to sell a few little orders, and lose my silk hat and umbrella before I get ready to return to my mother, whose words of consolation nestled close to my tired heart that was born again by the gentle touch.

I resigned my position in favor of anybody that wanted it, and when I squared up with my "house," I found that my itemized expense account absorbed my salary and all. I was ahead "experience," which has kept me off the road since and prompts me to treat the travelling salesman with distinguished consideration.—Interstate Grocer.

Dun, Wiman & Co. have issued their usual quarterly statement of the failures in the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland. It gives the total number of failures for the Dominion for the first quarter of 1892 as 557, and the liabilities as $5,743,225. Newfoundland had two failures, with liabilities of $11,647. The total in the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland is 559 failures, with liabilities of $5,754,872.

The direct imports of oranges and lemons promise to be even heavier than was at first expected, the Fremona bringing 59,100 packages, of which 54,000 p'kgs. are lemons and the rest oranges. The Charington has 28,000 packages, of which about 25,000 contain lemons. This makes about 79,000 p'kgs of lemons and 8,000 p'kgs of oranges, which the trade considers far too large for the first two steamers.—Montreal Trade Bulletin.

At about 1.30 on Sunday morning the fire brigade was summoned by an alarm from box 124 to fight the flames, which had gained considerable headway, in the wholesale flour and feed store of P. McIntosh & Son at 109 Front street east, Toronto. After herculean efforts for more than two hours, the flames were subdued, but not till over $15,000 damage had been done to the building and stock, which were only insured to the extent of $9,000. The fire originated from a defective furnace.

The brand "Our Gem," selected as the standard for straight roller flour by the Board of Delegates which met for the purpose of selecting standards for flour on the 22nd October, last year, having been found of too high a grade as to color to meet the requirements of the market, an order in council has been passed rejecting that standard and substituting the brand "White Star" as the standard for straight roller from and after April 1.

According to reports from Vancouver fishermen coming in from the Fraser River say that a large proportion of the salmon caught so far are of white variety. Though these are almost as good as the red salmon for the table, they will not bring so high a price in the eastern markets, and hence the frozen fish dealers are not so well satisfied. It is supposed that the large proportion of white salmon is due to the fact that the fry liberated some time ago by the hatchery is now returning up the river. For the first year of the hatchery white salmon was the variety chiefly raised, but of later years only red salmon have been bred.

THE SALMON PACK.

The salmon canners of the Pacific coast—those of Alaska, British Columbia and California—have completed their arrangements for a restriction of the output of their factories during the coming season. Natural conditions appear to co-operate with the plans of the canners on the Fraser River, for this year, according to the course of rotation in the past, the run of sock-eye salmon on that stream is expected to be light. It is even doubted that Fraser River canners will be able to get fish enough to fill the maximum number (7,500) cases which the agreement allows each to put up. An indication that natural scarcity may second limitations in the pack is afforded by the run of spring salmon, which is exceedingly low, many boats having returned without a fish. The price is consequently high, $1.25 to $2 being the range for spring fish of from 10 to 20 lbs. weight.

The agreement among the canners appears to be a very rigid one. They are under heavy bonds to keep it and are required to make affidavit at the end of the season as to the extent of their pack. A large number of canneries will be shut down, and a large number of hands will be dispensed with. This will cheapen the cost of production. The market will be steadied by the reduction of the output by about half a million cases. The overplus from last year's production has lowered and weakened prices, so that salmon is now being sold in London at or under cost.

GROCERIES.

The surface of trade is as placid as the face of a looking glass. The salesrooms are not thronged with visitors, and travellers' orders are not hard to take care of. This has been a very commonplace week. Foul weather on Saturday and Sunday could not fail to put roads in the country in a bad condition for the remaining days of the week. Travellers report difficulty in getting round on this account. Big orders are hardly due yet, at all events. Not until navigation opens do orders begin to swell in volume and increase in number very greatly. Goods will not go forward very freely either before seeding is pretty well over. The prices of wheat are not what the farmers hoped they would be by this time, so that there is not so much life to the demand as was looked for. As to the prices of grocery lines they have been pretty stationary throughout the week. Dried fruits, sugar, syrup, are still favorable to buyers, medium to fine grades of Japan are scarce.

COFFEES.

An average trade in coffee, with no features peculiar to this week, has been done. Rios at 17½ to 18c. have had fair sale. Javas from 26c. upwards are also reported as quite active. Stocks of superior coffees are but moderate, while the demand is reasonably good.

DRIED FRUITS.

No recovery from the stagnation which has been the ruling condition in the dried fruit market for weeks past is to be chronicled. Valencia raisins continue to be offered at very low prices from New York, but as jobbers here have rather full stocks, buying is not free. Nor is selling by any means free. A small hand-to-mouth business is all the wholesale trade have to look after, and every sale has to be made against a feeling of distrust in current quotations. Off-stalk Valencia raisins are still as low as 3¾c., but while all jobbers are willing to admit this as the line of value for the lowest grades, not all are carrying such grades, and 4¼c. represents a limit for goods that find most general sale. Currants are not changed in any respect. Fairly good stock in barrels is worth 5c., and stock to arrive in May is quoted at 4½c. Prunes, as compared with even last year, are not selling readily. The abundance and cheapness of domestic fruit tend to make trade in prunes dull. In no other line is their any point of interest.

The New York Commercial Bulletin says. Off-stalk are obtainable at 4¼ to 4¾c., and layer 5¼ to 6c. as to brand, but the business passing consists wholly of jobbing quantities. There is yet some inquiry from Canada noticed, but the views of buyers from that section are too low to admit of any considerable business.

Buyers from a point not many hundred miles from New York recently purchased in this market about 200 boxes 1890 crop California dried apricots at 5c. per pound. The same goods once brought 20c. per pound. Some old peaches that sold for 18c. in the past were also closed out at 4c. per pound.—N. Y. Commercial Bulletin.

NUTS.

The usual small business goes on. Shelled Valencia almonds are in some little request at 28 to 30c., Sicily filberts at 10½ to 11c., cocoanuts are 5 to 6c. The orders are as a rule for very small parcels.

RICE AND SPICES.

Notwithstanding the firmer stand taken by the millers, wholesalers continue to quote at 3⅞ to 4c. for common rice. Japan rice is steady at 5½c. for home milled and 6c. for foreign milled. A demand is now springing up and rice forms a larger part of the sales made these days.

Spices are steady and show no signs of lapsing from the conservative course they have followed on this market. Sales are not notably greater or less than they were last week.

SUGAR.

The heavy end of the trade in sugar is falling to the jobbers who stick to the cutting policy. Four and a half cents will buy granulated sugar to-day at the same houses as it would a week ago, but not from any more than those. The wholesalers who have the courage to hold out for 4⅝c., are willing to let their self-sacrificing neighbors surfeit themselves with business at 4½c. The profit on sugar is what is saved by not selling any. Yellows are quoted from 3⅝c. quite generally, but there are jobbers who go an eighth better and take 3½c. The familiar shift of making sugar a part of a composite sale, tea being generally the other part, is still worked. Higher prices for tea are more easily administered when thus diluted. But retailers are not all equally ready to swallow this bait; the majority like to make sure of getting sugar at the

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.

TORONTO.

The demand has no special set towards canned goods, but it is noticeable that among the invoices sent out there are few that have not an entry for a few cases of vegetables. The minimum price remains $1.05. In all essential features the market is the same now as it was a week ago, prices being firm, sales moderate, stocks limited, and peas growing in scarcity. The number of holders of stock is diminishing, some jobbers relying on their neighbors upon the street for supplies to fill orders. There have been no transfers of large lots from one holder to another in second hands. Retailers are not supposed to be stocked beyond present requirements, and are likely to keep up the market by orders for running wants. The next pack is coming into the horizon of speculation. Some transactions are reported in which contracts for first-class brands have been made at $1. How far this may represent the possibilities of the market for future delivery it is hard to say. There is nothing at all in the shape of prospects, unless it be that packers will be more numerous than ever, to form the basis of more than a random guess. All business done now must be pure chance work. Salmon is in moderate request. Horse Shoe in talls is scarce and firm at $1.45. Lobsters are steady and unchanged at from $1.10 up. Leading brands of sardines continue firm.

Says the British Columbia Commercial Journal: The overstocked condition of the London and Liverpool markets is the direct cause of the cutting down of the packs of the Pacific Coast. In British Columbia, however, the unsatisfactory condition of the fishery regulations has had much to do with the action of the cannerymen, who feel that undue restrictions have been imposed on the canning industry, and the licensing system being also unsatisfactory.

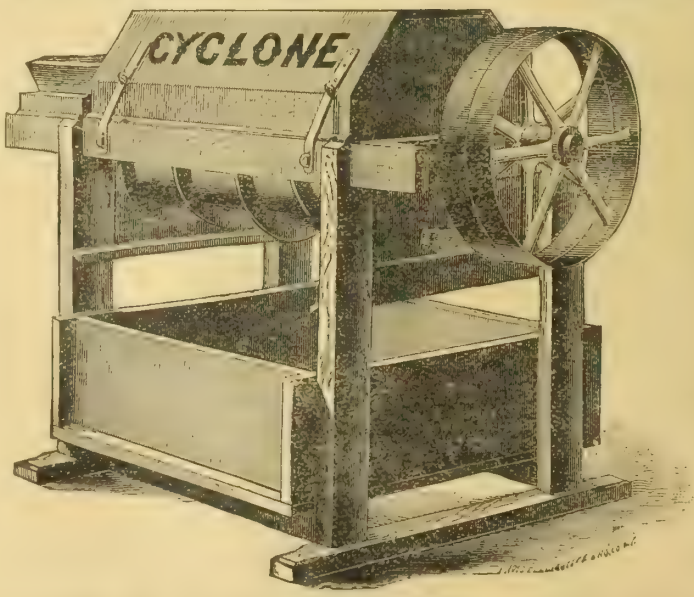
To Canning Men.-OUR CYCLONE PULP MACHINE



For making tomato pulp and preparing pumpkin and squash for canning is very well known to all the canners in the United States, and a few of them are in use in Canada. The high tariff has prevented their being used extensively heretofore.

We are now manufacturing these machines at Oakville, Ont., to enable our Canadian friends to obtain them without paying a heavy duty; but we shall make only a few of them unless ordered. Those who contemplate purchasing, should send their orders promptly to insure the saving of duty, as late orders will have to be filled from stock in the United States which will be subject to a 30 per cent duty.

ing of the season of 1892, is quoted for future delivery at $7.20 per case for tall tins and $9 for flats, f.o.b. Halifax.

Delafield, McGovern & Co., New York, have been appointed the agents of the Anglo British Columbia Packing Company, Ltd., who represents the following brands of salmon: British American Packing Company, Phœnix, Red Star, Trident, Lynx, Empress, Drysdale, Ark, Caledonia, Queen and Royal Britannia, representing an aggregate pack of about 175,000 cases, which is probably the largest salmon agency that has ever been placed. It practically controls the Canadian market.

lowest price, and feel that they do not need to make it a game of blindman's buff. The week's business was of but medium volume, orders seldom called for large quantities, and there does not appear to be much regret that the sugar trade was not larger. The price of raw sugar fluctuates very slightly, one day's movement balancing that of the next.

Willett & Gray, New York, in their weekly "Statistical" say: Early in the week refiners had so many cargoes of their own importation arriving that they could not take delivery of any others, and hence a storing of several cargoes resulted by importers. Later in the week purchases were renewed on the former basis to a considerable extent, without any attempt on the part of buyers to lower the quotations. This confirms what we have previously stated, that bottom prices for the season are touched, unless the European markets should be unfavorably affected by some unforeseen circumstance. Europe had a day or two of spasmodic firmness and advance, which was however quickly lost again, although the present tendency appears to be towards improvement. The acquisition of new property by the American Sugar Refining Company raised the question in the minds of cane sugar producers as to what is likely to be the condition of the United States markets, and an opinion is no doubt looked for in our paper. We are able to give a semi-official answer to such question. The United States requires all the sugars produced in the West Indies, and will continue to be the natural market for all those sugars. The prices paid for them will continue to be rather more than the parity that will be paid for them in any other country and never less. This should be sufficient answer and encouragement for the continued sending of those sugars to the United States, and should set the producers' minds at rest. These cane countries in close proximity to the United States should increase their production as much as possible, to meet the constant increase of consumption in the United States, which it will be the aim of the refiners to encourage to the largest extent. Their production this year will fall short of requirements to the extent of at least 100,000 tons, and it may be 150,000 tons, which amount must be bought from beet sugar countries. The United States will always take all the cane sugar produced, bringing from Europe only the amount of beet sugar required to make up the deficiency for consumption.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.

Syrups are not in active request, owing to the cheapness of many lines that are crowding it on the same plane of consumption. Low grades continue to be very easy-priced, the lowest being 1⅞c. Finer syrups have some sale at prices in the neighborhood of 2½c.

Molasses has but little call, the cheapness of syrup having the effect of withdrawing from molasses a perceptible portion of the demand that the trade in the lower grades depends on. According to a cable advice received during the week, the price of Barbadoes molasses has made an advance equal to a cent.

TEAS.

The market is now all but bare of medium to choice Japans. The demand for these classes is also quiet from the retail trade, which is due to the fact that fair-sized purchases were made earlier in the season. Chicago is still a buyer, and offers made on this market have been accepted in a few instances for fair-sized lots. Low grades and grades of Japan close to medium abound and are in request, the price shading down to 12c. Congous are somewhat quiet, from 14c. up. In Young Hysons business is limited almost exclusively to the low grades. Ceylon teas are coming forward in market interest and are receiving a good deal of attention from buyers. Indian teas are likewise in fairly good request.

Indian and Ceylon teas continue in fair demand, and a steady business in them has been done. In London the improved feeling shown last week has been fully maintained, and prices are now distinctly firmer for all grades. Several lots of reprinted teas have been sold at advances on previous bids. Common sorts have realised steady to advancing prices, and all good liquoring parcels are much sought after at higher quotations. Pekoes, between 8d. and 1s. are very firm, and fine brokens with tip are dearer. The market closes with a strong tone.

MARKET NOTES

Perkins, Ince & Co. sold a line of fine Japan teas in Chicago this week at 26c., a cent higher than was offered here.

Among the wholesale trade a rumor has found currency to the effect that the Canned Goods' Association has resolved to do business directly with retailers. At present there does not appear to be any reason for regarding this rumor as a fact.

The British Columbia Fruit Canning and Coffee Co., have very largely increased their capacity, and are now in a position to quote prices favorable to buyers for their jams, jellies, canned fruits, canned vegetables and all their brands of ground coffee. Their flavoring extracts have wide sale.

There are so many adulterated mustards on the market now that it is sometimes very difficult to get a really pure article. Cherry's Dublin mustard is guaranteed absolutely pure. The manufacturers put it up in tins only for the Canadian trade, hence buyers can depend upon the quality. A Montreal firm sent a large bulk order, but the manufacturers refused to fill it. This mustard is highly recommended for medicinal purposes.

Fault has been found with our quotation of 4½c. for granulated sugar. It is true that 4½c. is not a very satisfactory price for granulated sugar, but it is an actual selling price, and has to be quoted in a veracious market report. It is a fact that the travellers of certain houses have instructions to sell at that price. Cutting is to be deprecated in both the retail and the wholesale divisions of the trade, but where there is cutting it is our duty to report its influence on the market.

PETROLEUM.

Petroleum gives little chance for variations in the weekly report, as no change in prices is made except at long intervals. Business, too, keeps pretty regular throughout a single season. The prices remain 14½ to 15c. for lots delivered in the city and 14 to 14½c. for quantities shipped to outside buyers.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports : Petrolia crude $1.27 per bbl. Oil Springs crude $1.27½ per bbl. A weakness has manifested itself in crude oil since our last in consequence of the falling off in the demand for refined, which is usual at this season of the year. The dealers throughout the country are now beginning to enquire about contracts for future delivery of refined oil for the fall trade, and 11 cents f. o. b. here has been freely offered with a guarantee against decline. This beautiful jug handle system of doing business was inaugurated some years ago by the London Oil Refining Company, in order to secure a monoply of the trade as much as possible, and ever since those days the large dealers in refined oil throughout the country expect to have this concession made to them by oil refiners on any future contracts, which means that if the price of refined oil goes up the buyer gets all the advantage, and if the price goes down the refiner has to make a rebate to them to meet the market price at time of delivery of each car.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

It is yet too early for any expansion in the butter supply, hence the conditions of the market remain substantially as they have been described for several weeks past. All the butter that comes finds ready sale, and wholesale buyers are cautious about undertaking to supply any large quantity within very limited time. The price is firm. Lots have been taken at 18 to 20c. the past few days, but the average of quality was high. Smaller quantities of strictly choice butter would bring 21c. before it would be allowed to go to somebody else. Grades below 18c. are classed as medium, and cover a range of quality represented in prices by about 4c., the quotation being 14 to 17c. They are more plentiful than choice, but are not less saleable. Even common grades sell well, and the market is kept cleaned up by the bakers. Large rolls are still the chief form in which the supply comes forward. They are 16 to 18c. Creamery tubs that sell at 20c. go freely.

Cheese is firm at 11¼ to 12½c. for falf makes, the price shading according to size ol parcel taken. Summer makes are 9½ to 10c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES—There is now plenty of good stock upon the market. The price limit is creeping up on the under side, which shows that inferior stock is going off the market, and only the harder remains. The price is now $2 to $3.50. The demand is now chiefly domestic.

BEANS—Are still a slow-selling line, the supply is large, while the demand simply continues at a normal rate.

DRIED APPLES—Are hard to job out at more than 4¾c. for the smallest lot. The price for fair sized and large orders is 4½c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—A slow business at 8c. is all the jobbers report, with little interest on their part in the supply market.

EGGS—The egg market has had a relapse under freer supply, and prices for good-sized lots have got back to 11½c., with 12c. paid for small lots.

HIDES—The market has not grown a hair's weight apparently on either side of the balance. Green are unchanged on a basis of 4½c., which is the price of No.1 cows'. Cured have been sold at the old figure, 5c.

HONEY—Dulness continues to hang over the market. Maple syrup is a rival for the moment, that works along with other lines to compete for the demand against honey. Quotations are 9 to 10c. for extracted, and 14 to 16c. for sections.

HOPS—Choice hops are quoted at from 22 to 24c., lower grades of '91's at 19 to 20c., and good yearlings at 18c. The position of last week has been but little disturbed.

ONIONS—The price appears to be well braced. The firmness noted for some time remains, and the price quoted is still $2.25 to $2.75.

POTATOES—There are fewer offerings on track, but this is not because potatoes are scarce, but because buyers are. Car lots are 30 to 32c., out of store lots 45c.

SEEDS—The prices are steady and the business done by jobbers of fair volume. Alsike is quoted at $7 to $9, red clover $7.50 to $7.80, timothy $1.75 to $2.

TALLOW—The market is unchanged. Crude quotes at 2c., refined at 5½ to 6c.

WOOL—Nothing appears to be likely to happen to change the monotonous sameness of the wool market. Fleeces are dull at 18c.

PROVISIONS.

Round lots, for the most part of long clear, have changed hands on a quite extensive scale this week, but the terms are private in nearly all these cases. Hams have also been a fairly good selling line, and some business in barrel pork is reported. Prices remain pretty generally at the line of value reported a week ago.

BACON—Long clear 7½ to 8c., slightly easier ; smoked backs 10c., bellies 9½ to 10c., rolls 8½ to 8¾c.

HAMS—The price for smoked is 10½c., unless for small quantities, when 11c. is charged. Sweet pickled are easy at 10c.

LARD—Tubs are 10c., pails 10¼c. for domestic pure lard ; compound is 8 to 8½c., and selling freely.

FLOUR AND FEED.

The demand from eastern buyers is just of the limits that necessity determines. Very few millers have had an order for a thousand-barrel lot this season, and it was not uncommon in past years for 5,000 barrel lots to be called for. Consequently the stock stored at the mills is very large, the only outlet being the small sales referred to. The grain men are now in the same box with the flour men. Good crop prospects tend further to keep the situation easy, and the views of leading shippers are far from hopeful about the future, lower prices being in their opinion more probable than higher ones. Feed takes no new feature this week.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are : Manitoba patents, $5.20 to 5.50; strong bakers',$4.85; Ontario patents,$4.40; straight roller, $4.75 ; extra, $4.10 to $4.15 : low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

Car prices are : Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $5.10 to $5.30 ; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.65 to $4.90 ; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.90 ; straight roller, $3.95 to $4.00; extra, $3.25 to $4.00; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

MEAL- Oatmeal is $3.90 to $4.00. Cornmeal is $4.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is $4.50 per barrel.

FEED—Bran is $14 to $15, shorts $15 to $16, mixed feed $23 to $25, cracked corn $1.15, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 31 to 32c.

HAY—is fairly active at $11.50 to $12 for No.1 timothy and $10 to $10.50 for mixed.

STRAW—is steady at $6 to $6.50.

MONTREAL.

There is no change to report in the situation here since Friday's issue. The market has, perhaps, gained a little in activity, but it is still difficult to sell any more than the ordinary supplies required for present use. The stock in store on Saturday last showed a decrease of 1396 barrels when compared with the same day of the week previous, and a decrease of 1489 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote:—Patent, spring $5 to $5.20; patent, winter $4.90to $5; straight roller, $4.40 to $4.55 ; extra, $4.15 to $4.25 ; superfine, $3.90 to $4.00; fine, $3.30 to $3.65; strong bakers, $4.60 to $5 00.

There is still but very sparing buying of oatmeal, and prices continue at a low point because of the retail nature of the demand. The stock in store on Saturday last showed an increase of 352 barrels when compared with the same day of the week previous. We quote :—Granulated, bbls. $3.95 to $4 ; Rolled, bbls. $3.95 to $4 ; Standard, bbls. $3.85 to $3.90 ; Granulated in bags $1.92 1-2 to $1.95 ; Rolled, in bags $1.92½ to $1.95 Standard, in bags $1.85 to $1.90.

Business is quiet, but prices are maintained. We quote: bran at $15.50, to $16 ; shorts at $16 to $17 mouille at $20 to $23.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Flour—The condition of the flour market is unchanged, holders of stocks seem inclined to make concessions to effect sales, while buyers are holding off taking only sufficient for present wants, prices are steady. Manitoba $5.70 to $5.80, Ontario High grades $5 to $5.10, Medium Patents $4.75 to $4.85.

Corn Meal—is slightly easier, with but little moving.

Oatmeal—no change in quotations from last week.

MARKETS—Continued

BARREL PORK—The prices remain at $13 to $14 for U. S. heavy mess, $15 for Canadian and $16 to $16.50 for short cut.

DRESSED MEATS—The market is quiet and not materially changed. Beef in forequarters is 4½ to 5½c.. hindquarters 7 to 8c. ; lamb is 8 to 10c., mutton 7 to 7½c., veal 7 to 8c.

GREEN FRUIT.

A heavier and better class of California fruit is now being received, and no fault is any longer found by jobbers, who took exception to the poor quality and light weight of the first shipments. Prices are on the whole but little changed. Navels are quoted at $4.75 to $5, and Seedlings at $3.25 to $4. Florida oranges are steady at $4, Valencias at $6, and Messinas at $4. The orange trade is as good as it usually is at this time of year. Lemons are exceptionally cheap, though at this season the thing expected is generally an advance. Common to fancy are quoted at $2.75 to $4. There is great unevenness in size among the common descriptions, but even the lowest grade is sound. Pineapples are very plentiful, the crop being very large and shipments coming forward very freely. A wide range of quality is denoted by the quotations, 10 to 25c. Bananas are also very plentiful, and are held at $1.50 to $2.50 per bunch. A few reds are in stock at $2 to $2.50. Sweet potatoes are rather scarce at $4.50 per barrel.

FISH.

The past week has witnessed a firmer feeling in the fish trade, due almost entirely to the fact that this is Good Friday week, and an extra demand is expected and has been experienced. British Columbia salmon are selling well at 30c. per lb., while white fish and trout are firm at from 6 to 7c. per lb. The stocks in general are not heavy, and consequently a slight increase in demand makes prices firm. This is substantially what has taken place this week.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

According to reports from the seat of production, the promising run of sap noted last week did not continue for more than a few days. This has caused disappointment to the makers, who have booked orders far ahead of the capacity of the supply that has so far been indicated. Their hopes rest on the run of the present week, which according to reports of the weather in the Eastern Townships, may turn out to be good.

The following is the wholesale price list for maple syrup in screw top cans : Tall Round Can,—say 11 lbs. gross 85c. ; Half Can,—say 5¾ lbs., gross 42½c. ; Small Can, say 2½ lbs., gross per doz., $2.40.

IN BULK.—Kegs. per Imp. Gal. (12 to 15 gals. each.) 90c. ; Small Bbls., per Imp. Gal. 90c.

Pure Maple Sugar, in 1 lb Cakes, per lb. 9c. ; Pure Maple Sugar say in 3 to 5 lb. Cakes, per lb. 8c.½

SALT.

Trade has been fairly brisk during the past week. Several carloads, including two of coarse sacs at 70c., have been moved. Prices remain firm, and the trade in small quantities continues very good for this season of the year. The feeling in the trade is good and the prospects for trade are assuring.

DRY GOODS.

The dry goods houses are enjoying a brisk and even trade. Prices of colored cotton are liable to a rise at any moment, but owing to the usual jealousy among the houses they are now selling colored cottons to the retailer at prices which they will have to pay when they come to restock from the mills. Consequently the retailer who lays in colored cottons now will experience no loss. Grey and white cottons are firm, but no great change may be expected, but the inevitable rise in colored cottons must come, and will probably be from 10 to 20 per cent.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, April 15, 1892.

GROCERIES.

Business during the week has shown some improvement, especially in dried fruits, which are in better demand at easier prices. Sugar is about the same as noted last, the refiners are still holding for higher prices, but the wholesale trade do not seem to be in a hurry, and the only business doing is a small jobbing one. It is reported that one or two of the wholesale houses are offering it at ½c. lower than the refiners prices, but whether this is true or not it is hard to ascertain. The trade here say their men are all doing fairly, and payments are also fair.

SUGAR.

The sugar market here is very quiet just now with only a fair business at the unchanged price, viz : 4½c. for granulated at 3½ to 4⅛ for yellows. One broker here has a round lot of refined beet root sugar which he is trying to place but as yet has not succeeded. The wholesale trade here are selling at the advanced price with exception of one or two houses who are still cutting the price. There is nothing to note in raw stock, but a cable offer of a cargo lot has been received but nothing has resulted. The fact is the refiners are all well stocked at present. We quote granulated 4½ to 4 9-16c. ; yellows, low grade, 3½ to 3¾c., and yellows bright 3¾ to 4¼c.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There is not much doing in Canadian syrups outside a few small jobbing sales at 1½ to 2¼. The only new feature is the scarcity of the better grades of syrups. In American there has been but little doing, during the week quite a few small lots were brought in, in anticipation of the advance in the duty, but outside of that there has not been much stir. Recent advices from Barbadoes quote molasses at 10½ first cost, or 28 to 29 in Montreal. One lot of 200 puncheons was sold to arrive at 20c. The local jobbing demand is small and outside of a few small lots moving ex-store there is nothing doing. We quote Barbadoes 35 to 38c., American 28c. ; syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 30 to 45c. for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

MAPLE SYRUP AND SUGAR.

The demand for maple syrup is small on account of the heavy stocks of old stuff on hand. New can be bought in bulk for 5½ to 6½ per pound, and in gallon tins at 65c. to 70c. Sugar is in slow demand at 7 to 8c. per pound for new stock, but old stock can be bought at almost any figure as stocks here are so heavy.

TEAS.

There is a good enquiry for low grade teas worth from 10 to 12c., about 3,000 packages being sold during the week for local account. Medium and high grade teas are scarce the market being practically bare of teas worth from 15 to 17c. The prospects for the coming season are very good as teas which will arrive first are much wanted. Blacks are still dull and neglected with light stock. Indian and Ceylon teas have the same steady call as heretofore. Advices from New York says the market is firmer, London advices state the market there is on the quiet side.

COFFEES.

Coffee has shown a better movement since our last report and we hear of several round lots of Rios being sold at 17¾c. from first hands. The stocks of Jamaicas here are very light at present and it is nominally placed at 19 to 21c. We quote :—Rio, 18 to 20c., Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c. ; Jamaica; 19 to 21c.; Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c.; Santos, 17½ to 19c.

RICE.

There has been a little better enquiry for rice from the west during the week but no business of any great importance is reported. There has also been a better demand from the wholesale trade here. Advices from primary markets are still strong. We quote Standard $4 to $4.10, Japan $4.50 to $5, Patnas $4.10 to $4.75, and Carolina $7 to $8.

DRIED FRUIT.

With the easier prices the dried fruit market has picked up somewhat during the week. And while enquiries have been numerous, actual sales have been very good also. Currants have shown a much better demand and quite a quantity of Provencals from first hands were moved on a basis of 4¼ in barrels, and 4½ in half barrels, and 4¾ in cases, one dealer clearing out a lot of 150 packages on these terms. Filiatrais have not received the same attention, and may be quoted at ¼ cent higher. We quote :—Valencias, ordinary, 3½ to 4c. ; No. 1 off stalk, 4½c. ; layers, 6c. to 6¼c.; Patras currants, 5 to 5¼c.; Vostizzas, in cases, 7½ to 8c.; provincial currants, 4⅞ to 5½c.

We hear of a lot of 400 boxes rather low quality Velencia raisins being sold at 3½c.

NUTS.

In nuts there is only a small jobbing trade doing at former prices. We quote:—Almonds Tarragona 13 to 13½c.; Almonds, Ivica 12 to 13c. ; Almonds, common 10 to 11c.; Almonds, hardshell 07 to 08c.; Walnuts, Grenoble, new 11 to 12c. ; Walnuts, French 10 to 10½c.; Cocoanuts per 100 $4.50 to $5 ; Filberts 9 to 10c.; Pecans 16 to 17c.; Peanuts 07 to 10c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Oranges are quiet, but prices are a little easier than they were last week. Valencias are still selling at $5.50 to $6, Floridas at $3.75 to $4.25 per box ; Jamaicas in barrels have dropped 50c. all round, and we now quote them at $6.50 to $7 per barrel. There has been little change in lemons since our last week's report, and outside of a small jobbing trade to city dealers, there is not much doing. We quote $2 to $3.75 per box. A few small lots of pineapples have been placed at 15 to 20c. each. In strawberries the southern berries have been a little more liberal and prices have dropped 10c. during the week. We now quote 45 to 50c. per box. Bananas are quiet and still sell at $2.50 to $3 per box.

APPLES.

There has been a fair jobbing trade doing in choice lines at $3 to $4, but poor wasty fruit can be bought at $1.50 to $2.50 per barrel. Evaporated fruit are on the dull side. We quote 8c., but hear of a lot of 300 boxes having changed hands at 7¾c. There was also a lot of 150 boxes damaged stock sold for 5½c. Dried are quiet without change, and we quote 5 to 6c., with very little business reported. Evaporated peaches in tins bring 12 to 13c.

HOPS.

The local hop market is quiet and unchanged, with only a small jobbing trade doing. Really choice stock bring 24c. Pressed hops have the same fair jobbing movement at 16c. for quarters, halves and pounds.

FISH.

There has been a little better demand for fresh fish during the week. Cod and haddock are sold at 3½ to 5c. per pound. Fresh British Columbia salmon now bring 19 to 24c. per pound. Frozen herrings, 85c. to $1 per 100. Pickled fish is still dull and unchanged, and the same remarks apply to smoked fish. We quote No. 1 herring, per brl., $4.50 to $4.60; lake trout, per half brl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.25 to $8.75; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

For smoked fish the quotations are as follows :—Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.15 to $1.30 ; Saint John's bloaters, per box, $1 to $1.10 ; boneless cod, large boxes, 6 to 7c ; do small boxes, 7 to 8c.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market is still dull and unchanged, the movement in pork being very small. Lard has met with a moderately fair enquiry. We quote as follows: Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.50 to $17.00 ; mess pork, western, per brl. $16.00 to $16.50; short cut, western, per brl. $17 to $17.25; hams, city cured, per lb. 9½c. to 10½c; lard, Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c ; bacon per lb. 9c. to 10c ; lard, com. refined, per lb. 7¼ to 7¾c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

In butter no change is anticipated. Old creamery is still working off very slowly and it looks as if it would last well into the new season. Fresh Eastern Township dairy stock meets with a fair sale from the local grocers. Cheese has only a fair jobbing movement to the retail trade here at firm prices. We quote :—Creamery, 20 to 22c. ; Townships, dairy, new, 20 to 22c.; Morrisburg and Brockville, 18 to 20c. ; Western dairy, 16 to 17c.

EGGS.

The egg market is a trifle firmer this week owing to increased demands but prices remain unchanged at the old figures. We quote 12 to 12½c. but as high as 13c. has been paid for single case lots.

GRAIN.

Grain of all kinds continues quiet on spot, but if the turn across the line, which set in Friday, is maintained, some more activity may be looked for.

We quote values generally as follows :—No. 2 hard Manitoba, 95 to 98c; No. 3 do., 87 to 90c.; No. 2 Northern, 90 to 95c. peas, 72c. to 74c per 66 pounds; oats, 31c per 32 pounds, for Quebec; Ontario, 33c. per 34 pounds; corn, 55 to 60c., duty paid ; feed barley, 42 to 43c. ; good malting do., nominal.

The stocks in store in Montreal show an increase of 11,240 bushels of wheat, 71,974 bushels of peas, 56,616 bushels of oats, 2,765 bushels of barley, 681 bushels of rye, 352 barrels of oatmeal, and a decrease of 1,396 barrels of flour, compared with a week ago. Compared with the corresponding date last year there is an increase of 126,123 bushels of wheat, 235,515 bushels of peas, 274,852 bushels of oats, 6,178 bushels of barley, 8,881 bushels of rye, 4,729 barrels of oatmeal, and a decrease of 7,099 bushels of corn and 1,489 barrels of flour.

The stocks in store on the dates mentioned were as follows :

	April 9, 1892.	April 2, 1892.	Apr l 11, 1891.
Wheat, bush	605,566	584,326	479,443

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., April, 14, 1892.

Trade is gradually broadening and reports from outside places have quite a hopeful ring. In our city the mills and factories are beginning work, after being idle during the winter months.

SUGAR—Has been selling freely and the demand still keeps good. Higher prices are talked about, though it seems as if present prices might continue. Granulated is quoted at 4 to 4⅛c., yellows 3⅜ to 3¾c.

SYRUPS—Are a little dull, with no change in quotations.

MOLASSES—Some new Barbadoes was lately offered and readily sold at 35 to 36c. The quality seemed good. Lower prices are mentioned for next arrivals, which will be in about the first of May.

PRODUCE.

BUTTER—The market still keeps active, old stocks are very light, and anything new is readily sold. The price is the same as last quoted, 20 to 24c.

EGGS—Are in better demand, and higher prices may be looked for until after the Easter season.

POTATOES—The market has been rather over-supplied. Prices are correspondingly low, and sales have been made at 90c. per barrel for lots. No immediate improvement is looked for.

CHEESE—Is very scarce and high, and but little selling.

APPLES—Are rather scarce, and good No. 1 stock readily sells at $3.25 to $3.50.

THE SISSETON INDIAN RESERVATION.

In South Dakota will be opened to settlement on or about April 15th, 1892. This reservation comprises some of the choicest lands in Dakota for farming and sheep-raising purposes. For detailed information address W. E. Powell, General Immigration Agent, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, Chicago, Ill.; or, A. J. Taylor, Canadian Passenger Agent, 4, Palmer House Block, Toronto, Ont.

As will be noticed in the advertising columes of this week's GROCER, Harry Harman makes a premium offer to the trade of his Novelty Pamphlet. This is an excellent text book for the window dresser, and will be found a regular mine of catchy ideas. The perusal and study of it will give the merchant a clear insight into the general principles of effect. That is something that needs to be revealed to more shopkeepers than might on a superficial view seem probable.

AIDS TO SUCCESS IN BUSINESS.

The Manchester Grocers' Review publishes an address delivered before the Blackburn Retail Grocers' Association by James Duckworth Mayor of Rochdale, a grocer by trade. It contains much that cannot but be useful to those whom it concerns. Mr. Duckworth does not allow his fancy free rein, and follows no visionary views in his address. Practical sound sense is what he talks, his eye being on the actual field all the time. His words on the credit system, canvassing for trade, price agreements, free lance selling, and good feeling among fellow grocers are as applicable to the Canadian as to the English trade. The following remarks of his are reprinted from our contemporary named above :

In the first place they should be careful about their health, especially those of them who had to fight their way. A man in poor health was very heavily handicapped in life. The grocery trade was not an unhealthy trade, which probably accounted for the fact that grocers were, as a rule, lively, cheerful, energetic men, who showed great readiness to enter into public life. One of the dangers to be guarded against was carelessness in the matter of meals. He had noticed that tradesmen were subjected to a temptation to remain behind their counters until the meal time had passed, in order to do this, that, or the other thing. Those who did this often paid a heavy penalty for the man who was irregular in his meals was apt to be attacked by indigestion, and this had a tendency to make him less patient with his customers than otherwise he would be. Let them also have regular times for taking their walks. The latter was important, because it enabled customers to know when their tradesman could be found in his shop. Let them in addition have a hobby, and not grind at their business from Monday morning till Saturday night without having something to take their attention off it. Let the hobby, too, be to their taste so long as it was not injurious to them, or annoying to those about them. It was a common saying that a retired grocer only lived a fortnight—(laughter)—but he believed that, owing to the other matters he had interested himself in besides his business, he would live much longer than that. It was equally important that they should be in love with their business. He remembered a couplet he learned at school, which ran.

> Who in writing would improve,
> Must with writing fall in love

This was especially applicable to the grocery trade, for the man who dragged himself to his work was in the race sure to find himself behind the man who loved it. If their occupation was in harmony with their tastes, they would feel more contented behind their counters. It was a common thing for some men to be content so long as they got a living, but it usually happened that the shops of these men never looked trim and smart and attractive. In these days they suffered severely from competition, and the man who failed to master his business not only in its main features but in its details, learning what sold best and what the public required, was the one who would go to the wall. One of the best ways of mastering their business was to diligently read the trade papers. It might happen that they would read a paper for six months without learning something they did not already know, but in the seventh month they might see something in the paper worth more than a year's subscription. He further advised them to be prompt in their payments. Many a man doing a good trade had gone to the wall simply because he had been careless in this respect. He had to make desperate efforts at one time to meet his bills, but the endeavor to meet them did him a great deal of good. For several years, at the commencement of his business experience, he sold drapery as well as groceries. Often on reckoning up he found he would not be able to pay on the following Monday morning, and he would stop up all one night making up tea, for instance, so that he might the next day go off with some of his drapery to a strange town, and get ready money by selling it from door to door. He felt that it was better to do this than to ask friends to help him, or to turn travellers away without being paid. (Applause.) If they always met their bills, they could keep travellers at arm's length. "Be friendly with your traveller," said Mr Duckworth, "but never get chummy." In business they should have neither friends, foes, nor favorites. It was wise to be friendly with a man in one's business relations, but if they got too familiar with him he would want them to do more business than it would be to their advantage to do. They should only buy as much stuff as they could pay for, because that gave a traveller no opportunity of pressing upon them what they did not want to buy, and they would always remain independent. If they once overbought themselves, they placed themselves in the traveller's hands. He did not say the traveller would take advantage of it, but he might. Another mistake some grocers made was that of not keeping down unnecessary expenditure. They must not think that because they had a little money in hand they were justified in going to unnecessary expense. He did not recommend them to conduct their businesses and live in a greedy, miserly way, but rather they should try to take only what would make them comfortable. No unnecessary expense should be gone into until they were on a firm footing, and their business well established. Their business should not be drained of capital ; he meant that if they were making money they should avoid the temptation to invest it outside their own business, for many a man had ruined himself by speculating in this way. Sufficient money should always be reserved to pay their bills at the proper time. Who had not heard of a man who, having his money well invested outside his business, had yet failed because he could not turn it quickly enough into ready cash, when ready cash was required? In these days grocers, he thought, were not justified in booking to a great extent. Some businesses were carried on by giving a large amount of credit, but he would recommend them all to discourage booking as much as possible. If they could not get their customers to pay ready cash, then let them enforce upon their customers the necessity of paying at a regular time, whether it were weekly, monthly, or quarterly. It was not wrong to ask for their money, nor disrespectful to those who dealt with them. People bought goods on certain conditions, and it should be seen to that they kept those conditions. People would think none the worse of their grocer in consequence. Besides, it placed the grocer in a better position to serve his customers well. It was strange that people should have such crude ideas respecting payments. When working on a certain amount of capital, it made all the difference in a man's profits if the capital was turned over once in one, three, six, or twelve months. In the case of the man who turned over his capital every month he would almost make hundreds, where the man who only turned it over once a year would make a dozen pounds. Nowadays they could not expect to make large profits, and money could only be accumulated out of small profits on articles, the capital being continually turned over. (Applause.) The man, therefore, who expected to make large profits was behind the times. Another thing that did not pay was being a free lance. He was one once, and did not care for anybody—that was his pride—but he got out of that way of thinking some years ago. Only a short time ago he went round with two other grocers to nearly all the grocers in Rochdale to see if they would agree to certain things. He could not have done that years ago, but now there was not a grocer's shop in Rochdale he would not care to enter. He had discovered that a tradesman had everything to gain and nothing to lose by being friendly with his competitors. It might not be possible through their associations to agree to sell at certain prices (he did not think they need do that), but there were many ways in which their associations could be made helpful. When men engaged in a particular trade associated with one another, it made it very difficult for them to do mean tricks, and infused a higher business into their lives. The trade in that way would become more respectible, more profitable, and more honorable. Instead of cutting against each other and running one another down in prices, they would all be able to obtain a fair share of trade and good profits. For many years he had been a member of a small syndicate, and had derived great advantage from it. Five or six of them met once a quarter, and compared notes over a good dinner. They visited one another's shops, and when one discovered that a certain article could be got anywhere at particular advantage he made the knowledge common property to the others.

WINDOW GLASS : [To find out what break any required size of pane comes under, add its length and breadth together. Thus in a 7x9 pane the length and breadth come to 16 inches; which shows it to be a first-break glass, i.e., not over 25 inches in the sum of its length and breadth.]

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

Not what is my due, but what is my duty.

A decision given by Judge Dugas in Montreal the other day bears out a view brought forward in these columns a fortnight ago, that the grocer should put on all parcels of mixed coffee sent out by him the words "Coffee Compound." In the case of Vermette & Masse, the Judge ruled that the grocer is liable under the Adulteration Act unless he takes the precaution to mark parcels of impure coffee with these words. The defendants, it is said, will appeal against the verdict. The issue of such a step will be of interest to the whole trade, by whom this will be regarded as a test case. It requires such an action to settle whether the meaning or the language of the customer is to be taken note of by the grocer in filling orders for coffee. If a customer asks for a 25-cent coffee and indicates what he wants by that form of words, it is plain to the grocer that the man wants coffee compound. The customer's naming it coffee is no evidence that he wants the only thing that in strictness can be legally called coffee. In the meantime, until some authoritative deliverance reverses the decision of Judge Dugas, the grocer should be on his guard and label all compound coffee as "compound."

At the last meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, D. W. Clark broached the idea of incorporation in the grocery trade, and referred briefly to the value of a previous training and an entrance examination as principles of selection to get good men into the trade. Mr. Clark's idea comes up naturally in connection with such a decision as that rendered by Judge Dugas, which holds the grocer responsible for and capable of protecting the consumer. If the decision applies to one article it applies to any other that may be adulterated, and there are several whose purity the grocer would have to be a judge of. There are cases to which this decision could be applied in such a way as to prove the necessity for the grocer to be not only an expert in his knowledge of goods, but that he should be something of a chemist. He is made the sponsor for the manufacturer, and he could have no check upon the manufacturer who might leave out some of the truth on his labels, unless he had the means and the special knowledge necessary for analysis. It would be absurd of course to require this of the grocer, but it follows from such deliverances as that of Judge Dugas. Highly trained grocers, though, are none the less desirable, and Mr. Clark's proposal points to one good way of making them more plentiful. The men in the trade make the trade.

This idea of Mr. Clark's naturally comes to the surface too in a time when honest goods are considered exceptional enough to be worthy of public exhibition and special advertisement, and are being gathered together in leading centres to form Pure Food Expositions. Of course these shows are in the interests of manufacturers, but they appeal to grocers, who should be more or less qualified to judge of the goods upon their merits. It may not be so practicable as it is desirable that the grocer should be able to detect impurities every time they are present in foods, but it is certain that skilled grocers in the trade to-day are very hard to deceive by untrue representations as to quality and purity. A practical and practicable standard of fitness could be easily got at by taking the average acquirements of the best class of grocers now in the trade as the basis of examination. Let learners be apprentices for a period that would be reasonably long enough for them to make themselves eligible for such examination.

The training of the embryo grocer would be incomplete however if it fitted him with no more than a knowledge of goods. It should teach him the principles of business, and make both a salesman and a bookkeeper of him. A very large proportion of men in the grocery trade enter the business in utter ignorance of the rudiments of book-keeping. These can charge a customer with what he has not paid for, and are able to agonize a periodical statement of account out of their crude entries, but further than this they are not equipped to go. They may be losing money or making it; the key to an investigation of their affairs is not in their hands There ought to be some school where this part of the education of grocers would be looked after, and there is no place where it can be so well looked after as in the shop where the learner puts in his first years under a capable principal.

The medical or legal profession is an organic whole, sufficient in itself for its own regulation, and that fact has much to do with the standing of these professions to-day. If there were more laxity in the conditions which determine admission into law or medicine, there would be less unanimity and less respectability in the professions. Lawyers are grouped into a corporate body, which is the keeper of the good name of its members, and which will expel any who are guilty of dishonorable conduct. The grocery trade could be hardly brought into subjection to such a strong esprit de corps, but it could be brought under the influence of such a useful sentiment.

BURN NO OIL AND SPARE THE GAS

Daylight is now at a premium, not because we have less of it in the twenty-four hours—for indeed we have more—but because the climate, outside life, all nature in fact, is much more enjoyable. The liberal dole of sunlight we get at this time of year deprives traders of an excuse for carrying their day's work far into the night, and the inviting opportunities for enjoyment and recreation that lie out doors at this season and during the coming months naturally weaken a man's inclination to toil by lamp or gas light. Duty bids a man desert his shop when still evening comes on and twilight gray clothes all things in its sober livery. Even utilitarian considerations, which are often urged in favor of late hours, plead on the side of early closing. What kind of man will a trader become if he spends all the time he can spare from his store in bed? He will not be a model of physical strength or disposition. He must restore worn out tissue. Food and sleep are necessary for this, but are not sufficient by any means. Exercise, company, open air and relaxation from the cares of business are indispensable, if a trader wishes to preserve his health and a cheerful temper. How much a cheerful temper is worth is known to every man who has to bear the disappointments, the annoyances, the multitude of worries that are inseparable from business life. Troubles are inevitable, and he is a wise economist of energy who takes the evening hours to store up a supply of spirits to help him as lightly as possible through the day that always comes after the evening.

There are numberless men too busy to cultivate the domestic affections. They are absorbed with the cares of business, and their nature becomes incapable of shedding one sympathetic gleam upon the lives of their wives and children. How much of a blank they make the existence of those who should be dear to them they do not realize. Such a blunting of the natural feelings is perfectly consistent with a kindly disposition. It is not only the selfish and the harsh-tempered who are thus neglectful of the home virtues, but as well the very best-hearted people, who, becoming immersed in affairs to which they give up all their waking hours, soon numb sensibilities that once were as spontaneous as any natural instinct can be. This tendency of business to engross all a man's time is a grave one, looked at from the family standpoint. If the hours between twilight and bed time were more frequently spent with the family, at home or outside, there would be much more domestic happiness and fewer morose business men.

The conditions which called for night trading originally are absent now, and have not been replaced by others equally strong. In earlier times money could be made at night, because the margin of profit amounted to something. Workmen's hours were much longer than they are to-day, and shopping could not well begin till they got home. Traders did not very generally deliver purchases, and people had to wait often till night to get a horse from the working teams. In those times the evening trade was probably quite a half of the whole day's trade. Working people liked to tidy up to come to the store, and did not feel like changing their clothes during the day to go to the store and re-changing them to resume work when they returned. This caused more business at night than there otherwise would have been. To-day, however, the working classes are on the side of early closing. Trades and labor councils have given their support in many places to clerks who agitated for a shortening of the work day, and have used their influence with employers to secure the adoption of an early closing hour.

This season the early closing movement promises to gain ground in all parts of the country. We hope employers will give it their sympathy and countenance, and will resist the temptation to keep open late because somebody else does. The man who closes early will have this advantage over the man who does not, that his help will be more cheerful and enthusiastic in his service than the other man's will be. Give the boys a chance, and their gratitude will balance the favor. Among the wholesale grocers in this city an increasing number are willing to adopt five o'clock as the all-year-round closing hour. They would lose nothing by it.

THE DELIVERY HORSE.

There are few worse-used animals than the delivery horse. His owner may be conscientious in his treatment of him, may feed and house him well, but he cannot supervise the driving of him. The furious pace at which he is very commonly driven, the merciless beatings he receives, his exposure unblanketed in inclement weather while the driver lingers with the servant girl, do not come under the notice of his owner. Sometimes, it is to be feared, his owner is not moved much by humanitarian considerations, and figures out the economical result on the basis that the shorter the life of the horse is the greater is the volume business done, and regards a used-up horse as rather an indication of celerity in his delivery man than a sign of the same servant's brutality and wastefulness. If owners could now and then see their wagons careening along on the left or right hand wheels alone, hotly chasing or hotly chased by some other delivery wagon, they would probably be inclined to get angry. The races between drivers not only shorten the life of the horse, they wreck the wagon and are likely to bring goods to buyers in an unsatisfactory state, parcels being often broken, and goods damaged. People are apt to judge a man by his employes, and few like to see a horse abused. Trade has been transferred on more slender grounds than just such displeasure as a brutal driver can arouse by his treatment of a horse. Nobody likes either a cruel man or a fool, and all are apt to brand as such those who misuse a horse. The horse is one of the best servants the grocer has; the animal cannot keep his appearance if he is ill-used, and his appearance as well as the humanity of the driver are advertising factors the grocer cannot afford to be little. The horse has to be smartly driven often, but not always, and never outrageously fast; he has to have late hours frequently, but he should never be lashed over the road to suit the whims of the driver, who wishes to gain time for his own purposes; he has to face all sorts of weather, but need never be unduly exposed uncovered to soaking rains or changes from swift motion to long pauses. The noble brute has been a means of extending very greatly the grocer's trade. Gratitude, humanity and economy require that he be well used.

FROM RIGHT TO LEFT.

Order is heaven's first law. Untune that string, and delirious chaos will soon show how great is the loss. The grocer has a wide field to keep in order, and the experienced trader has usually a few special canons of order whose value he has tested by long use. One good rule, which has been evolved by a grocer of our acquaintance, and of which the object is to keep fresh goods always in the forefront, is to sell shelf goods always from right to left. A shelf, of say canned goods, is begun at the right-hand side, and a removal from that end is filled up by pushing the whole remainder of the row towards the right until the gap is filled up. This leaves a gap at the left end of the row, which is filled in by new goods. Thus the goods that are longest exposed are pushed on always toward the right hand and are sold from first, the procession of substitutes being continuously pushed forward from the left. This prevents goods becoming unduly shop-worn, dusty or fly-specked, and keeps the appearance of the shelves fresh and tidy, especially if the filling of each blank is accompanied by a little dusting.

At a meeting of the Hamilton Trades and Labor Council a communication was read from the Secretary of the Retail Grocers' Association, requesting the Council to co-operate with the butchers and grocers in making the early closing movement a success. The following resolution was adopted: "That this Council expresses its hearty approval of the early closing movement, and instructs the delegates to bring the matter to the attention of their different organizations, and to request the members to do all purchasing before the hour set for closing, and to withdraw their patronage from stores which refuse to close with the others."

WHOLESALE GROCERS' ASSOCIATIONS.

Willett & Gray, New York, in their weekly "Statistical," say :—These associations for the regulation of the grocery trade have not, in every instance, proved equal to the solution of the sugar problem, which has occupied their attention for a year or more. The New York City and vicinity and New England associations have come the nearest to a satisfactory basis. Their members have been dealing in refined sugar under an arrangement by which they receive from the American Sugar Refining Co. a commission or rebate of ⅛c. per lb. from their bills, in addition to 1 per cent. cash discount and 1 per cent. trade discount, provided they do not sell, either directly or indirectly, within the boundaries of the Association, any of the sugars specified in the bill, for less than the daily prices conveyed to them by the Wholesale Grocers' Association. As more than 90 per cent. of the wholesale grocers of these districts belong to the Association, the remaining non-members do not greatly interfere, and on the border of the territory where no Association agreement exists, competition of non-members is met by the sale of sugars not entitled to the ⅛c. rebate. The business of obtaining the 90 per cent. membership, and of competition with non-members devolves entirely on the Associations. No grocer who is not a member of the Association is at any disadvantage in buying sugars of the American Sugar Refining Co. (Association members are billed sugar at ⅛c. higher than non-members.) These grocers take the ⅛c. per lb. rebate, and are satisfied to distribute to their customers for that commission, knowing full well that while they can maintain a profit of ⅛c. per lb., without danger of violation of agreement, any increase of this rebate would be attended with greater risks. The Pennsylvania grocers are working to perfect a similar arrangement. Why is not the movement extended throughout the United States? Simply because wholesale grocers without such associations are unable to agree among themselves on what they want. The American Sugar Refining Co. appear ready and willing to act in conjunction with them for the distribution of their product, if limited to a reasonable profit, believing that by judicious arrangement the consumption of sugar can be largely increased, and the cost of manufacture thereby diminished, to the advantage of the sugar consumers. Selfish motives of a minority have thus far prevented united action of the wholesale grocers in many states, and may continue to defeat the wishes of the majority. While the American Sugar Refining Co. could conform to the trade regulations made by a grocers' association, it is absolutely impossible for any arrangement to be made between the American Sugar Refining Co. and the grocers' direct. Refined sugar is often sold by grocers without profit, and at less than cost, in order to draw trade in other articles. Almost every grocer has special views of his own on the subject. These were drawn out in detail last year, and show that even the associations have a difficult task to harmonize all interests. The aim of the American Sugar Refining Co. is, first and last and all the time, to cheapen sugar per lb. or barrel, by increasing the consumption to the largest extent, thereby reducing the cost of manufacture. In every effort to this end they are in hearty accord with the wholesale grocers.

CUTTING PRICES.

In our last issue some remarks regarding violations of the one-price system appeared. This week we wish to say a few words about the very common practice of cutting prices, although perhaps it is not in our power to add anything of an original nature to the arguments that have been used pro and con in discussions of this much debated subject. The most common cause of price-cutting, as is well known, is the starting up of new stores in districts already well supplied with them. The new beginners argue that the most effectual inducement they can offer the consumer is low prices, the number of the stores already in existence being a bar, in their opinion, to any hopes of success based upon the usual inducements of good goods, prompt and attentive service, etc. Yet it will usually be found that specially low prices on certain articles are a less tempting bait to the most desirable class of customers, than are superiority of quality or general attractiveness of the store. Sometimes the consequences of a cut in prices are quite peculiar. Recently in a certain city of this State a former grocery clerk bought out the business of a competitor of his employer. The store was situated in a part of the city where the residences of people of fair means closely approached a block of tenements in which a number of quite indigent people found a habitation. The new proprietor started off very prudently with a fine stock of goods and a much better assortment than his predecessor had carried. Especial attention was given to quality, and a finer grade of several kinds of goods, notably green fruits and vegetables, was to be had there than at any of the competing stores. The result was quickly seen in a more extensive patronage of the store, the best people in the neighborhood predominating. But, alas, owing to an unfortunate thirst for a still larger share of the custom of the district, the young grocer began to cut prices, and strange to say, his competitors ignored the new departure and maintained their rates unchanged. Within a month, instead of cutting deeply into the trade of his rivals, the young proprietor had attracted all the poverty-stricken inhabitants of the quarter by his tempting prices, and lost all of the better class of consumers. The spectacle of unkempt women, with shawls over their heads, poking into the fruits and vegetables displayed in front of the store, and pinching and pricing the articles, was too much for the more wealthy portion of the community, and they left the grocer to his new-found patrons. This is an experience that was less disastrous than many "cutters" suffer, but we know of none that more clearly shows the folly of slashing prices. Here is a dealer who discovered an edged tool with which he was about to do wonders- -the result was that he merely cut the connecting links between his store and the only desirable custom in the vicinity, and, in fact, played right into the hands of his competitors. This experience we can vouch for, as it came directly under the writer's observation. So much for the foolish beginner who is generally responsible for the most serious form of price-slashing.

As regards the competitors of the "cutters," as a rule our advice would be : Take no notice of the cutting. Our own experience as a close observer of retail trading for a number of years has convinced us that there is more danger of business failure through following some other dealer's lead in cutting prices, than in adhering to previous rates—always provided that said rates are not exorbitant. Indeed, the most disastrous failures that we can recollect as occurring in the retail grocery business have been superinduced by cutting, and we have never heard of a case actually due to a persistent adherence to a reasonable scale of charges in the face of extensive cuts by other dealers.—Merchants' Review.

MATCHES THAT SELL.

H. A. Nelson & Sons report a strong demand for their Railroad and Steamship Matches. Orders speak louder than words, and it is gratifying when they speak in such a chorus as that which has been calling for these matches since they were put on the market. H. A. Nelson & Sons lay the popularity of their matches to their merit and cheapness. The fact that the matches can be retailed at 10c. a box is a strong point in their favor, and traders who buy the Steamships in 10 case lots can afford to retail them at that price. They have introduced card board boxes instead of the old style wooden ones. This, in itself, is a considerable saving to the dealer, they weighing only 60 pounds against the old style 85 lbs. On the back cover page of this paper, readers can see an illustration showing exactly how they are put up. These card bound boxes are very attractive goods on the shelf. Messrs. H. A. Nelson & Sons will be pleased to recieve a sample order from any dealer who has not yet handled their brands.

The Legislative Committee of the Toronto Board of Trade met on Monday morning to continue its labors with the proposed Insolvency Act.

ALL CUSTOMERS ON AN EQUAL FOOTING.

FOREST, Ont., April 7th, 1892.

EDITOR CANADIAN GROCER,

DEAR SIR,—Your articles re the "Patrons" are calculated to strengthen the backbone of some of the business men of our country. The association have been in existence here for some time, and are quite robust numerically. They had an arrangement with Ironside and English some time ago, and after mutual suspicion and distrust the arrangement terminated after a period of a few months. However in March the Patrons had a mass meeting here, and were so enthused that they determined to have a store. A deputation was appointed to wait upon us, to which we gave the only answer we could honestly give, that we could not supply them at 12½ per cent. on invoice price We supplemented our reply by publishing the enclosed in our local paper. The Patrons then made an agreement again with Ironside & English and MacKenzie & Munro, dry goods, and boot and shoe dealers, but it is only a question of time when it must come to grief, as it is not on a right foundation.

Yours truly,
BURNS & MORPHY.

The following is the open letter referred to above :

EDITOR FREE PRESS,—Having been waited on by a deputation of the P. of I., to whom we gave a verbal reply, we deem it advisable to supplement it by the following : Believing in the utmost freedom of trade and commerce, we look upon combinations for raising or depressing prices as detrimental to the best interests of the commonwealth. We cannot therefore conscientiously grant an association of people more favorable terms than we are willing to grant an individual having a like purchasing capacity. The keen competition characterizing business regulates prices in the interest of the purchasers, and stimulates the merchant to obtain the best value that can be procured. Were the terms of the above association complied with, one of the greatest incentives to intelligent and judicious buying on the part of the merchant would be removed. A uniform profit added to the price of all classes of goods would be an inducement to buy in the dearest, rather than the cheapest market, the percentage of profit being thereby increased at the cost of the purchaser, thereby defeating the object aimed at by the association. Systems of coercion tend to dishonesty and fraud on the part of the merchant coerced, and we cannot see how any honorable merchant can comply with the terms proposed, inasmuch as he is the only one bound by the agreement, and must discriminate against those not members of the association. We are endeavoring to conduct our business on as nearly a cash basis as practicable, with the smallest expense consistent with efficiency, at the lowest possible margin of profit on our goods as will enable us to maintain our integrity. We invite a comparison of our goods and prices, which we are confident are excellent value. Assuring all of our best services, and soliciting a continuance of the patronage of the discerning public on what we believe to be correct business principles,

We are, respectfully,
BURNS & MORPHY.

Forest, March 30th, 1892.

[A dignified stand, such as that taken by Burns & Morphy in their answer to the Patrons, will win more friends than it will estrange. Candor and firmness are very necessary requisites in a situation of this kind. The plain statement of their case in the foregoing open letter would awaken reflection and cause misgiving among the more thoughtful. The facts as put forth are incontrovertible. A valuable gift is possessed by some business men in their perception of the right moment and the right circumstances to say "No." The buying public are so accustomed to seeing the trader finally give way before their assaults upon prices, etc., that they believe every gain is a triumph over dishonesty or extortion. When a man takes a resolute stand they are not slow to conclude that there is nothing more that they are entitled to. The trader's independence is sometimes a big thing in his favor.—EDITOR.]

PREFERENTIAL TRADE RELATIONS

The following resolution is being discussed in a series of meetings of the Montreal Chamber of Commerce :

Considering that the British Empire, comprising one-eighth of the habitable globe, with a population of 300,000,000 souls, can amply supply the raw market with the productions of every climate under the most favorable conditions :

Considering that a natural sentiment of mutual and fraternal interest should create more intimate commercial relations between the mother country and her numerous colonies ;

Resolved, That in order to give more extension to the exchange and to the consumption of the principal raw products in all parts of the British Empire, a differential duty or a reduction of 5 per cent. should be adopted by the Imperial and Colonial Governments in favor of the raw article in opposition to foreign imported goods.

Resolved, That this resolution be addressed to the secretary of the London Board of Trade, to be submitted to the deliberations of the congress at its next meeting.

WE'VE GOT HIM OFF OUR LIST.

(The irate subscriber's view.)

I'll write an' stop my paper,
I'll do it right away,
An' show them printer fellers
With me they cannot play.

I'm quite a leadin' dealer,
I think they'll miss me bad,
But then they need a lesson,
They'll get it now,—I'm mad.

They think they've got a pull,
I'll show 'em what is what,
Won't take my loaded pointers,
(For nickels in MY slot.)

" Dear Sir,—Please stop my paper "
You'll stop it now, and quick—
I think I see him shaking
An' feelin' pale and sick.

(The publisher's view.)

Hello,—what's this, another crank
Writes " Stop at once my paper,"
Umph, well, just wipe him off the list,
He'll borrow't from his neighbor.

We'll get our three meals every day
As we have heretofore,
And slumbers peaceful every night
Without a dream or snore.

HEC SECORD.

THE FINISHING CUT.

Cut, cut, till there's nothing to cut,
The grocer said, when shutting ;
I cannot pay after all my cuts,
And to-morrow I must be cutting.

My motto " I lead, and follow the rest,"
Will be still on my window to-morrow.
Will the creditors see it contains a jest
To brighten them up in their sorrow ?

Won't Jim look like a burial mute,
The teaman tho' shorn of his glory ;
The soapman will seem to have taken a chill,
And Ben will forget his old story.

But I shall be where the serried leaves flap,
And the skylarks are singing so gaily,
Where the farmer looks at his brindled cow
As tho' he was reading a " Daily,"

But I shouldn't study the hide of a cow
Or the butterfly's wings as they flutter ;
I should carve on the trunks of the beautiful trees

THE JUNIOR CLERK.

The following, which is clipped from the New York Daily Commercial Bulletin, though it names a particular class of clerks, is broad enough to apply to all young men whose hopes should lie in their chances of promotion, and whose chances of promotion depend on the sincerity of their own efforts :

Where will the fifty-dollar-a-month clerks one sees in fire insurance offices be twenty years from now?

This is a question which the fire underwriter asks himself as he passes through the large fire insurance offices in this city. It is, however, of much more importance to the junior clerks, although but few of them appreciate it. To the junior clerk, therefore, we address ourselves, in the hope of bringing him to a clear realization of his position and the necessity of bestirring himself if he wishes ever to amount to anything. What are you doing to qualify yourself for a better place than you now have and one which will be in line of promotion? The day has gone by when mere "pull" could be all powerful. Your father, uncle or friend may be a director, or even an officer of the company, but that will aid you little if you are not helping yourself.

As you sit at your desk do you think about your work or lawn tennis, the furnishing of your mind with insurance information or the decoration of your feet with tan shoes? Are you looking forward more anxiously to pay day than for an opening to do more and better work? In what general direction do your thoughts turn? Linguists say that the man who wishes rapidly to learn a language must not only be in the country where it is spoken, but must think in it. You are in the fire insurance country, but do you "think in it?" The average fire insurance clerk cares more for base ball than business, and gives it a higher place in his thoughts. If asked whether he would like a chance to go on the road it is ten to one he thinks you mean he can take the train to his home in the suburbs. Does it satisfy you to forever register or file the daily reports somebody else has passed, or if pride does not stimulate you, have you no desire to get a better salary than half what a good carpenter receives?

The man who comes in at the last minute in the morning and leaves as early as permissible in the afternoon, thinking meanwhile of everything but the company's interest, is discounting his future. To go out in the field under an experienced special agent is a chance to be earnestly sought for and prized if obtained; but how few among the clerks of to-day try for any of these openings, or would appreciate an offer of one. The various inspection bureaus, which give notably good training, have difficulty in securing really promising recruits.

Wake up, our fifty-dollar friend. Time is flying and soon the period in which you could have learned rapidly and easily will have slipped by. In a few years, perhaps even this year, you may wish to marry and settle down. Your present salary would not go very far were you to leave the parental roof and attempt to establish a home of your own. Possibly the gentleman whom you had selected for the honor of becoming your father-in-law might be such a boor as to consider your slim prospects rather than your tasteful apparel. Perhaps even that fellow who started by carrying the mail bag and gradually got out on the road, only to be in time brought back to fill an agency managing desk, may meet with more favor just because he gets a better salary and holds a more important position, while you, in all your elegance, are discriminated against. "But," you say, "he wore bone collar buttons and ready-made neck-ties, and, well, he was not onto the latest things."

Supposing it's so; the man who can keep the domestic bread and butter mill satisfactorily occupied is a better citizen than he whose chief claim to distinction is the ability to tie an "Ascot" scarf in a "perfectly lovely" manner. Each day you waste is another nail in your underwriting coffin. The chances of promotion are narrowing down, as the fire business is concentrating into fewer hands. Do you intend to be a hewer of wood and a drawer of water all of your life, or will you try to be somebody?

KEEPING TRACK OF PRICES.

A good memory and a good judgment, says a well-known business man in a contemporary, are useful in any department of any business—they are essential to good buying and they need to be eked out and supplemented by everything on the market, present and prospective. In this sense the "condition of trade" outranks "current prices" in the trade journal, for the tendency of prices up or down often has a deeper significance than the exact price or discount anybody may name on any solid article—though current prices and special prices and cut prices must not be overlooked in the system of any man whose ambition or business it is to be posted, only let him not forget to watch for the straws that show the current and the indications that often go before and point to prices yet unnamed.

My system is in no sense ornamental, but it is built for business and seeks to reach an end by the shortest cuts. It simply scissors what it finds printed to its purpose, pastes it under its proper heading, and there supplements it from time to time by pen and pencil references to mail quotations, notes of verbal prices, etc., all to wait their own good time to fulfill their mission of timely information.

This with the "Current Price-List" of one or two journals that experience has shown to be trustworthy, is the basis of my scheme, and for the rest it is a question of eternal vigilance.

After this explanation nothing remains but to give you a sample of my work as outlined, which I do briefly, as my time is short and the system seems to explain itself, only regretting that the practical carrying out of my plan necessitates such wholesale mutilation of careful editorial work, for which I can only plead in extenuation the necessity that knows no law and the more practical everyday shape such work takes on after I have classified and arranged it.

In my business I use a paged and indexed "Invoice Book," 10x14 size. The manilla paper is smooth enough for pen or pencil notations, strong enough to stand any amount of handling, and so shaped as to receive indefinitely without bulging. The slips may be removed at any time when they seem to have served their purpose. I find, however, they frequently help me to a conclusion by a comparison of prices at different dates, long after their time of usefulness seems past.

WHERE THE JOKE COMES IN.

A man stepped into a grocery shop to make a few purchases. While the apprentice was weighing the goods, the customer could not resist the temptation of treating himself to a piece of sugar which was lying on the counter. The apprentice observed the action, and soon afterwards, with startled mien, called aloud into the shop, "What has become of that lump of arsenic that was lying here?" The poor man felt hot and cold, and in his terror confessed the deed. "You are a dead man!" said the pert apprentice; "but I have here an antidote. Quick, take as much of it as you can swallow." And he filled a tumbler full of salt and water. The poor fellow eagerly drank off the abominable stuff, to save his life if possible. He then rushed out in order to procure a second antidote from the neighbouring pump. He has never been known to pilfer sugar since that day.

I remember, I remember,
The cot where I was born,
And where it was so difficult
To get up in the morn.
And well do I recall how Pa
Would come in with his gad,
And expedite my rising
By those wooing ways he had.

"Who is that long-haired young fellow who seems to have nothing to do?" inquired the casual stranger.

"That's our poet," said the Squire "Town chips in an' pays his board and clothes."

"Where are his works published?"

"Ain't never been published. He's arranged to have 'em printed arter he's dead. That's w'y we are tryin' to keep him alive long's we can."

A conceited Texan got an itinerant portrait painter to paint the portrait of himself holding a favourite ass, and when the job was finished he invited a friend to inspect it. After carefully examining it the friend said :

"It is a capital portrait, but who is that holding you by the bridle?"

The friends do not speak now, and the portrait is consigned to oblivion.—Ex.

That by the Way

William Paton, grocer, in the East End, London, is going to Vancouver.

Municipal bonuses to Ontario manufacturers must cease. Mr. Wood's bill was assented to on the third reading.

Mr. J. Englehardt, Victoria, B.C., has been appointed selling agent for "Clover Leaf" brand of canned lobster, corn, etc., in Victoria and vicinity.

The bankrupt stock of A. Walker, Aylmer, was disposed of last week by Auctioneer Jones, at 72 cents on the dollar. Mr. S. B. Pocock was the purchaser.

Mr. Alex. Stuart, the assistant city treasurer, Hamilton has invented and patented a new tobacco cutter, which is said to be a most ingenious arrangement.

The other night the grocery store of James Burns, at the corner of Agricola and Almon streets, Halifax, was broken into and about $10 in cash taken from the till.

Henry Langlois, who was found in Bokstal's grocery store, Windsor, early one morning and who pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary, has been sent down for one year by Magistrate Bartlett.

The Vancouver (B. C.) Soap Works Company have sold out to the Pacific Soap Works Company. Mr. E. J. Peck is still connected with the concern, and the business will be carried on in the same premises.

At the quarterly meeting of the Hamilton Board of Trade, held on Thursday of last week, the changes proposed in the new insolvency bill were explained by the president, and the report dealing with it were unanimously adopted.

It is said that calves two and three days old are killed and shipped to Montreal, where the veal goes through a process which converts it into boneless turkey. As many as 50 were killed in one day in the neighborhood of Kingston.

The capital of the new company entitled the Okell & Morris Fruit Preserving Co., (Limited) of Victoria, B. C., is to be $50,000 in $10 shares. The object as the name implies is to can, preserve and prepare, fruit, pickles, etc.

Mr. Macfarlane,a member of a well-known firm of wholesale merchants, New Westminster, B.C., has beaten the best local record in angling this season as to the weight of a single fish. One he caught in the Brunette this week weighed 6lb. 2oz.

The familiar Brazil nut grows in hard, spherical pods, each of which contains from eighteen to twenty-four of the triangular seeds that come to market. So beautifully are they packed by nature that no man yet has ever been able to put them back in their receptacle after once they have been taken out.

Last week a great many members of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association, with President Fred Hughes at their head, attended the funeral of the late William Edgar, the chief head of the passenger department of the Grand Trunk Railway.

On Saturday the cellar beneath Pelcher's fruit and grocery store, Owen Sound, caught fire. The fire brigade soon brought the blaze under control. The stock and building were damaged slightly. Both stock and building are fully insured. It is supposed the cause was a defective chimney.

The township of Athol can boast of something that perhaps no other municipality in Prince Edward can do. A business man in declining years has never been on a steamboat or railway train ; never bought a meal of vituals nor feed for his horse in Picton ; he crossed the car track once.

The effort to introduce the early closing movement in Kingston has proved a failure. There was a long agitation and an earnest appeal on behalf of the overworked, but the shopkeepers have been unable to act unitedly. Before there can be early closing the public must practice early buying.

The Salmon catch on the Fraser has improved greatly, and the shipments east are largely increasing. The fishermen who are dissatisfied with the recent decision of the canners for a half pack this season say it is an unnecessary precaution, for if the English markets will not take the fish a ready sale would be found in America.

Leading wholesale grocers in the United States talk of starting a big refinery on Staten Island, as a means of securing a larger margin of profit on the sale of sugar than is allowed by the powerful Trust that now controls the sugar market. It would appear that the wholesalers are in earnest, and one result of the report that they do has been a drop from 101¼ to 93½ in the price of Trust stock. Erastus Wiman is likely to have a good deal to do in starting the new refinery.

The early closing movement received considerable attention at the last meeting of the Halifax Retail Grocers Association. The association are determined to stand firmly by the arrangement to close up at 8 o'clock their places of business on all evenings except Fridays and Saturdays during the summer months as well as the winter, and thus show to all other retailers that they can do sufficient business without working unnecessarily long hours. They want some enjoyment during the summer evenings as well as more favored classes.

The clerks of Vancouver, B. C., had the sympathy and support of the local Trades and Labor Council in last summer's active campaign in favor of early closing. This year they need look for no assistance from that body unless they connect themselves with it.

Mr. W. J. Feron, counsel for Messrs. Vermette and Masse, grocers, Montreal, who were fined recently by Judge Dugas for selling compound coffee in small quantities without having the packages marked, has taken an appeal to the Court of Queen's Bench. Both the court and Mr. Sharp, counsel for the Government, are pleased that the appeal has been taken, as a test case can be made.

Several samples of lard have recently been sent to the laboratory of the Inland Revenue Department for analysis. The lard was made by Canadian manufacturers, and found to be adulterated with cotton seed oil. The result has led to a more general enquiry being instituted. Samples of lard have been collected from different points, and as a result of the analyses it is probable that legal proceeding against certain manufacturers will follow.

The machinery for drilling a salt well for Messrs. Wm. Brown & Co , the (Mooretown Salt Company) was placed on the ground a few days ago and the work of drilling will commence. The company intends erecting a large block and putting in a pan capable of making two hundred barrels of salt per day, and will manufacture dairy and fine table salt. Also, it is said, that special attention will be given to the manufacture of coarse salt for agricultural purposes. The block is situated on the St. Clair river and the Erie and Huron railway make it convenient for shipping either by land or water.

Ten varieties of beet roots were tested last year at the Central farm, the highest yield being 39 tons 1,640 lbs. and the lowest 18 tons and 80 lbs., showing that these roots can be made to produce large crops in this country. Apart from the question of making sugar from the roots, the analysis which had been made showed that they contained a larger proportion of nutritions matter than roots of such a character as mangolds, turnips and carrots. The farmers themselves might take hold of the matter and carry the tests still further. Tests had also been made

Thirty-five thousand four hundred eggs were shipped from Tilsonburg last week to supply customers for Easter in different cities in Ontario.

Messrs. Cowan & Wilson, wholesale grocers, shipped a consignment of 20 tons of general groceries, last Tuesday evening, by the City of Seattle, for Kalso, City, Kootenay. They are for J. B. Wilson who is opening a general store in Kalso.—B. C. Commercial Journal.

W. E. Zimmerman, who has been for the past eight years with the firm of A. R. Kerr & Co., Hamilton, has accepted a position with W. H. Gillard & Co., wholesale grocers in the same city. On Saturday evening Mr. Kerr, on behalf of the firm and the staff of employes, presented to Mr. Zimmerman a handsome monogram ring and a meerschaum pipe.

Hon. C. H. Tupper received a despatch from a prominent gentleman in Newfoundland a few days age, stating that all the shire towns and principal business centres in seven electoral districts, including those represented by Premier Whiteway and Hon. Mr. Bond, protest against the tariff on Canadian goods, and that petitions to the Legislature against it are being numerously signed.

Mr. John Verner, who has been in business in Toronto for thirty-five years, leaves next week for a year's holiday. He will go all round the world before his return. A short time will be spent in his native place in the north of Ireland. Mr. W. Wilson will be at the helm in Mr. Verner's establishment during his absence.

Mr. J. L. T. Galbraith, general merchant of Fort Steele, came up from Victoria yesterday, and left in the afternoon for home by way of Golden. He has spent a few weeks in Victoria in the interest of some improvement in his district, which expects to see a period of development soon.—Vancouver News Advertiser.

A. S. Barnet & Co., 751 Broadway, New York, whose celebrated "National" inks, pens and mucilage have been on the Canadian market for the past five years, are making some extra strides to increase their trade, which is already no small share in Canada. These goods are of excellent quality and cannot fail to meet with the approval of merchants in general throughout the country. Drop these people a line for their new price list.

A meeting to appoint a board of directors for the West Lorne Canning and Evaporating Company (limited) has been held. The authorized capital was placed at $20,000 and the subscribed capital at $6,000. There was a large attendance of stockholders and others interested, and the following were appointed officers: Thos E. Montague, president; Dugald McPherson, vice-president; A. McKillop, jun., B. Partridge, D. Brock, J. F. Taylor, Geo. Munro, directors. The building will be a large two-story one. W. Moore, of Wallaceburg, will take charge of the factory.

The motion passed by the Kingston Board of Trade a few days ago, requesting the local merchants to take American money at a discount of five per cent, is not a popular one, The merchants, with a very few exceptions object to carry out the request of the board, and intimate that if the resolution was enforced, trade would be driven away from the city in the summer season to Cape Vincent, Clayton, Gananoque and Watertown, N. Y. American tourists would not come to the city if they knew their money was to be discounted.

Japanese papers note that the Government has issued an edict to the effect that garden teas shall not be exhibited for sale this year before May 1. Samples have frequently been shown about the middle of April.

Charles Masuret, son of Moses Masuret, wholesale grocer, London, died on the 13th inst., shortly after 1 o'clock. On Saturday he took sick, but Tuesday night he was considered not dangerously ill. Inflamation of the bowels was the trouble. Deceased was about 20 years of age and was a clerk in his father's office. He was a promising young man of good business ability, and was always a great favorite among the young men of the city, who deeply mourn the sad and sudden event.—Advertiser.

The Shareholder and Insurance Gazette says that those merchants who profess to sell the Patrons on a 12½ per cent. margin are compelled to resort to some means of fraud and trickery to add to the profit agreed upon. Within its knowledge a number of the very latest and best known merchants of Montreal have been approached by retail merchants from Ontario, requesting to be supplied with blank invoices, to be filled in by themselves with their own figures. On this request being refused they then asked that their figures be increased 15 per cent. above actual prices, and that amount deducted at settlement.

BREADMAKERS' YEAST.

PRIZE--IT IS FOR YOU.

Do you want it ?
Read the following.

The Breadmakers' Quick Rising Dry Hop Yeast is carefully and scientifically made from the purest and best materials obtainable and can always be relied upon to make light, white, wholesome and delicious bread, buns, rolls, etc. It is the best yeast made for all purposes where a quick and sure result is desired and is unequalled.

It never fails to give satisfaction if used according to directions. We receive hundreds of letters from parties using it stating they would have none other. Have all your customers tried it? If not, have them do so at once.

If your yeast is not fresh or if you receive at any time any complaints write us at once giving particulars and name of firm from whom you bought, and we will be happy to exchange it for you. All yeast leaving our factory is tested and guaranteed to keep fresh for one year. It should be kept in a cool dry place.

Breadmakers' Yeast will keep much longer than this but it is slower in rising. The older the yeast the more required. One fresh cake of Breadmaker's Yeast—six of which—not five, are contained in each five cent package—will make from 5 to 10 loaves of bread. It is the most economic yeast made and pays you a large profit in handling it.

Read the following: To the first fifty grocers sending us the names of 50 of their customers to whom they have recommended and sold Breadmakers' Yeast, and who are now using it we will send them on receipt of the postage on same 25 cents a handsome nickel silver alarm clock. See above cut.

This is a magnificent prize, secure one for yourself, you will be pleased with it.

WHAT THEY SAY:

WYEVALE, Dec. 29, '91.

I wish to speak of your valuable Yeast called the Breadmakers' Dry Hop. I have tried the ——— Yeast and the ——— Yeast, and I have tried Brewers' Barm, and a Yeast called German Barm, in Liverpool, England, and I find none to make such sweet and wholesome bread as the Breadmakers'. MRS. E. HURST.

ALLANDALE, Sept. 17, '91.

Your yeast is the most reliable as stock yeast of any on the market.
JOSEPH BEECH, (Baker.)

SUDBURY, ALGOMA, April 7, '91.

I cook and bake for a large gang of railroad men on the C. P. R.; after a range of trials of different yeasts, I tried yours, and have used no other since, as I can always depend on having beautiful, light, wholesome, and appetising bread, which is a pleasure to place on the table. I cannot speak in too high terms of your yeast cakes as they have built my reputation as a successful baker. WOODRUFF D. KERR.

KENILWORTH, Dec. 9, '91.

I have been using you Breadmakers' Yeast Cake for two years and have had the greatest success. I bake for 13 of a family.
MRS. JAMES LYONS.

FRANKS BAY, April 22, '91.

My mother, sister, and I, keep a boarding house here for J. B. Smith & Sons, of Toronto, and use a great quantity of your yeast cakes, and like them very much.
MISS MINNIE FERRIS.

SEELEY'S BAY, Nov. 29, '91.

I have used the Breadmakers' Yeast for 12 months and find it first-class in every respect. I have used almost every kind of yeast in my business, but find yours superior to any I have tried. I took first prize at the Lyndhurst Annual Fair, 1890, for bread and buns made with your yeast. I use no other kind.
SYLVESTER LANGFORD, (Baker.)

MOHAWK, Dec. 29, '91.

I took first prize for bread made with Breadmaker's Yeast at the Brantford Fall Fair, 1891.
MRS. FRANK FORBES.

PICKERING, May 20, '91.

I have been using Breadmakers' Yeast with great satisfaction.
MRS. JOHN BOYES.

SOURIS, Man., Dec., 2, '91.

I am one of the many using Breadmakers' Yeast. I think it the best make.
MRS. CHAS. A. STEWART.

EMSDALE, P. O., ONT.

I have been using your yeast in making all the bread for our house for a year past, and can recommend it highly, and I am told there is none better. I am only a little girl of eleven years past, but you may use my name if you wish. IDA E. C. SMITH.

FINGALL, ONT., Box 29.

It is over five years since I began to use the Breadmakers' Yeast, and without exception I have never had a bad batch of bread. Scores have asked me what yeast I used, as I always had such lovely bread. MRS. JAS. GREY.

MILLBROOK, Feb. '90.

I took first prize for bread made with your yeast cakes.
MRS. VANCE.

LANSDOWN, April, 4, '91.

"Honor to whom honor is due." I feel that I should tell you of the high estimation in which I hold your Breadmakers' Yeast. I have tried nearly all brands and have pleasure in saying that the Breadmakers' is simply perfect, and never fails to give me the very best results.
MRS. WILLARD WEEKS.

SARNIA, Dec. 29, '91.

I am thankful your sample package of yeast was put in my buggy, as it proved to be the best yeast I have ever used, and I take pleasure in recommending the Breadmakers' Yeast to my neighbors and friends, and when my grocer has not got it I go where they have got it. They can not persuade me to take any other. I have a great deal of bread to make and desire the best yeast, and believe I have got it. MRS. THOS. SALE.

THE BAKERY, ALEXANDER, MANITOBA, January 24, '92.

I can, and do confidentially recommend your yeast as the best Dry Hop yeast I have ever handled. J. MUSGROVE.

CARDWELL JUNCTION, January 29, '91.

I have used the Breadmakers' Yeast with great satisfaction, and always have made the lightest bread from it of any yeast I have used. MRS. JOHN SMITH.

TORONTO MARKET.

TORONTO, April 21, 1892.

This week does not bulge out with business more than its immediate fore-runners, but it has a very good record though. Prices of course are nothing to brag of in some lines, and are not above a moderate level in anything. The muster of travellers who came in to spend Good Friday, told heavily for the moment in favor of business, as every man preferred to come in with a good array of orders in his book, rather than send them in a day or two before and come home empty-handed. This brought the scale down heavily on the demand side all day on Saturday, and made a little business for Monday, but since that time steadiness has ruled and orders have been but fairly plentiful. Seeding is now well under way on the farms, and that attracts attention from trade to an appreciable extent. The fine weather is being taken advantage, while rains are anxiously looked for; they will not be immediately beneficial to trade. Sugar is not in large demand, the price appears to be by common consent kept up better than it was; low grade teas sell well, and medium to choice are getting scarce; Valencia raisins are going out better than they were; fine grades of coffee are firm, canned goods are fairly active. As to collections, there appears to be little cause for more than the usual measure of complaining.

COFFEES.

For common grades the strength and course of the demand are not materially changed. Coffee comes in for a fair amount of attention at prices running from 17 to 21c. The upper figure represents the line of value for the better class of Rios. Fine Old Government Java is worth 34c. green, is scarce on spot and firm outside. Padang coffees quote from 27 to 31c.

DRIED FRUITS.

Valencia raisins are selling more freely as a result of easy prices. Very acceptable new off-stalk fruit is going out at 3½c. Old stock abounds and can be bought in New York at the buyers' price. Both old and new fruit is there offered in bond, and if purchasers are not forthcoming much of the stock will undoubtedly be destroyed in bond, as there will be no object in New York importers paying a duty of 2c. on stock that nobody will offer, ¼c. for. Old Valencias have sold here during the week at 50c. a box, and on a lot of 50 boxes an offer of 40c. was refused. There is said to be a lot of stock held in Denia that is not worth the freight if laid down here. Currants are steady at 4¾c. and upwards. Prunes are rather firm and in limited supply on spot. There are some loose muscatels on the market, but they are neglected, and are held therefore at easy prices, 3-crowns quoting at $2, and 2-crowns at $1.75.

The New York Bulletin says: "The only feature of interest observed in the market is some further enquiry from Canada for Valencia raisins, and the purchase of several cars fine brands at 1¾c. for off-stalk in bond, and 2¾c. for layer. The business for home account continues very limited, the interest displayed being confined wholly to small quantities to bridge momentary necessities. In response to solicitations for orders from interior merchants, the reply is made that consumption thus far has shown no appreciable increase, and until an improvement develops there is no necessity for enlarging upon present assortments. Prices are easy upon most lines, as the disposition is general to reduce accumulations, though at the same time holders are reluctant to openly quote lower figures, as such action they are well aware would only result in disturbing and depressing the market the more."

A later issue of the same paper says:—The recent movement in Valencia raisins for Canadian account is now said to have reached the total of nearly 7,000 boxes, and the prices realized about our quotations, less the duty of 2½c. per lb. Off-stalk of fair quality may be purchased at 4c., but for really prime to choice brands up to 4¼c. is wanted.

William Rogers & Co., Denia, in their Export List for 1891-2, say: Out of a total crop of Valencia raisins of 34,000 tons, about 11,000 tons were damaged more or less severely by rain which fell early in the month of September. The excessively damaged portion has, as usual, been disposed of for distillation purposes and the remainder has, it is presumed, been unfortunately exported abroad by those who come under the head of unscrupulous makers and are supposed to have made sales below the market prices. The United States has only taken 50 per cent. of the average quantity usually consumed by that country (the year 1890 excepted) the cause of the falling off in the demand for Valencias having been due to the additional duty imposed and the increased production of fruit in California. Regarding the question of duty in the United States and England, vigorous efforts have at last been started to endeavor to get same reduced by about seventy-five per cent, a deputation having been formed consisting of representatives of both packers and producers for the purpose of interviewing in Madrid, members of the Government, and the Ministers of the respective countries. The result of these efforts are of course un-

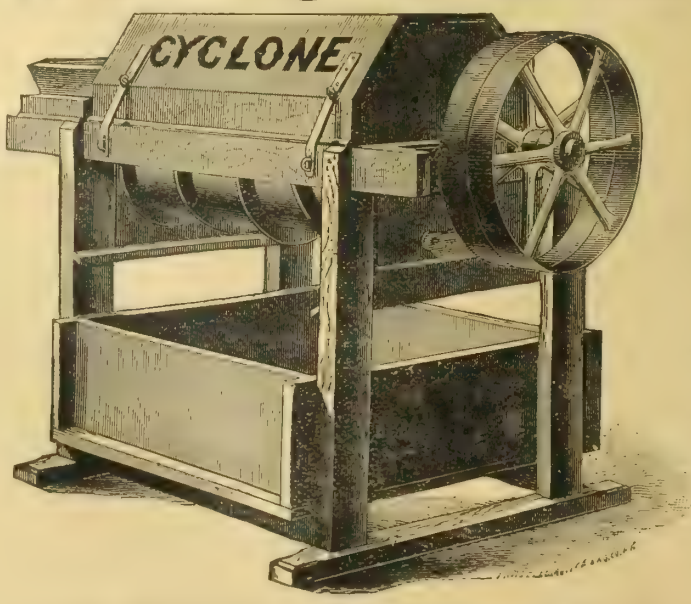
CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.

This week's report of the canned goods market is devoid of anything of the nature of a surprise. There has been no shock to anybody's expectations, and no ground for unusual elation. A tranquil continuance along the line indicated last week is about all there is to record. The stock is getting into more compact shape, several jobbers having to draw upon their neighbors to fill current orders. How long this may go on will depend upon the extent of the supply in the hands of those who are looked to for goods. The price shows no change, $1.05 being the lowest ruling for peas, corn and tomatoes. Orders for canned goods alone are not numerous, which fact betokens calm confidence on the part of retailers that stock will be obtainable at fair prices when they want it. But the orders for general groceries total up a fair proportion of canned goods, few parcels of sundries being sent out without some vegetables among them. These orders very frequently come from dealers whose large fall purchases were made upon an estimate of which the basis was the sale of a year ago. The replenishment of these stocks shows that consumption has expanded since last year, as more is needed to put the grocer through the season than sufficed a year ago. Future goods are beginning to bring packers and jobbers together in a half hearted and experimental way. The future market is in a very nebulous state, but one or two of the incidents in it may be taken note of: There have been offers made at $1; some jobbers claim to have offers below that; a bid of 90c. for 7000 cases of assorted was refused. Salmon is quiet at $1.45 for good brands of talls. Lobster is featureless and selling on a basis of $1.10. Fruits have very limited call, and it looks as if a big remnant of last year's pack would be carried into the season of production.

Says the British Columbia Commercial Journal:—According to the agreement entered into between the canners fixing the pack for 1892, a fine of $2 a case for all over the agreed number will be imposed. It is

To Canning Men.—OUR CYCLONE PULP MACHINE



For making tomato pulp and preparing pumpkin and squash for canning is very well known to all the canners in the United States, and a few of them are in use in Canada. The high tariff has prevented their being used extensively heretofore.

We are now manufacturing these machines at Oakville, Ont., to enable our Canadian friends to obtain them without paying a heavy duty; but we shall make only a few of them unless ordered. Those who contemplate purchasing, should send their orders promptly to insure the saving of duty, as late orders will have to be filled from stock in the United States which will be subject to a 30 per cent duty.

said that this fine is also embodied in the Alaska canners' agreement, and gives a firm tone to the market by limiting the output.

The report that the packers would sell directly to the retail trade has been emphatically denied by the President of the Packers' Association. Some jams and jellies have been sold directly to retailers where trade was limited, but this is supposed to have been under the sanction of a resolution passed three years ago, allowing packers to sell to retailers where factories were situated if there were no wholesale jobbers in such towns.

Exporters, it is stated, have purchased about 5,000 dozen gallon canned apples in the New York market during the past week. The price was not divulged, but it is believed to have been very low. The English market for the goods is still in a rather depressed condition.

MONTREAL.

While the demand for canned goods is small, dealers are not complaining, being sure of an improvement in the course of a few weeks. Stocks here in dealers hands are small, almost every line being pretty well reduced. The fact is there is likely to be a scarcity in corn and peas. In the meantime prices remain unchanged.

certain but it is nevertheless expected that they will be attended with, at least some degree of success. Prices opened in August at 18s. f.o.b. Denia for fine off stalk, and correspondingly higher ones for fine selected and 4 crown layers. In September fine off stalk was reduced to 16s. and sales were made at the same period of common at from 13 to 14s. f.o.b., a downward tendency continuing for fruit of the lower grades until, in the month of December, 11s. was touched. The demand for superior quality, entirely free from rain damage was well maintained, and the prices for this description remained firm throughout the season. The total direct exports to Canada were 33,240 cwts.

NUTS AND PEELS.

Some call for nuts is reported. Valencia shelled almonds are rather quiet at 29c. for Bevan's and 30c. for Casado's. Other descriptions are quiet at Prices Current. Cocoanuts are in some request at 5 to 5½c. in sack lots. Lemon peels are 16c., orange peel 17c., and citron 25 to 27c.

RICE AND SPICES.

The market remains firm for rice and business is enlarging. Still B rice sells as low as 3⅞c., though some houses quote 4c. as inside price. Montreal milled Japan rice is quoted at 5 to 5¼c. Japan rice is slightly easier in the primary market, owing to a fall in the price of silver.

Spices are dull and without change in quotations.

Richard Gough & Co., New York, say: The position of Burmah rice is very critical and extravagant prices are again being paid for inland consumption in Burmah as well as for the Straits settlements. So great is the stringency, that wherever possible, shippers have cancelled their charter parties at Rangoon and the other Burmese ports, and only the other day a shipper was compelled to pay £2,000 to cancel the charter of the steamer Aurora in consequence of being unable to obtain rice at the port to which she had been ordered, and this in addition to having incurred £600 demurrage on the vessel during his vain attempts to procure a cargo. Steamers are now lying outside of the Burmese ports idle, aud are offered for rice to Europe at 25s. per ton and would accept 23s. 9d. willingly, while in October charters were made at 35s. Although the shipments of rice to the end of March were somewhat in excess of last year, still it seems now as if very little more Burmah rice is available for export during this season, and if so the quantity already shipped is decidedly too small and prices in Europe are expected to rise without fail in the autumn or before. This especially affects granulated rice, of which the quantity available for the season bids fair to be even less than that estimated a short time since, and smalls (for granulated) are again higher in the English markets While Burmah rice is the principal factor in all the foreign markets, and of course Rangoons govern prices of all kinds to a great extent, for America the chief Burmah rice of real interest is Bassein, of which the new crop will shortly arrive here. Prices of this rice (so-called Jva) are so far only slightly above last season, but the quantity sold ahead is much less. Patnas are still about ¼c per pound above last year.

SUGAR.

The jobbers who would take 4½c. for granulated have joined their fellows in asking 4⅝c., and that is the inside figure for straight sugar purchases as distinct from purchases of sugar along with something else. Some houses in fact claim that 4⅝c. is a very special quotation with them, one that is vouchsafed only to about one in every twenty of their customers. Their working every-day price is 4¾c. Awhile ago the wholesalers did not want to sell, but the retailers would buy. Now the retailers are doing little buying, and it would seem as if their chance of getting sugar at 4½c. were completely spent, as those who put in sugar at that price are now pretty well tired of that way of doing business. It is not simply sacrificing profit, it is helping the retailer to pay for his sugar, when the jobber turns it over at 4½c. Yellow sugar is also firmer, though there is not so general an abandonment of the lowest price asked last week for it as there is in the case of granulated. The quotation commonly made is 3⅝c.; 3½c. though, is a price with some houses. The yellow sugar is all the harder to move out of the slough of low prices, because just now it has a rival in raw sugar which keeps a low line of value. Louisiana, Barbados and Demerara raws are now in stock, the first quoted at 3½c., the second at 3⅝c., and the last at 4⅜c. There is a very good inquiry for raw.

tations are : Muscovado, 2.75c.; centrifugals, 3.25c. ; granulated, 4.28c. Receipts for week, 34,448 tons ; meltings, 22,500 tons. Total stock in four ports, 104,515 tons, against 92,567 tons last week, and 56,745 tons last year. Total stock in all the principal countries at latest uneven dates, 1,514,451 tons, against 1,590,142 tons at the same uneven dates last year. With the exception of one active day in the week, the market for raws has been quiet and steady. European prices are low again this week, but not quite down to the parity of other markets ; hence no business results in beet root sugar for America. The demand for refined for the week was fairly good at unchanged quotations, and requires no special comment. Refiners are now packing both hard and soft sugars in 100-lb. bags, without extra charge. A few Scotch yellows, under No. 16 D.S., arrived, and met prompt sale at satisfactory prices, but no granulated or other grades of above No. 16 D.S. in color can be brought in yet.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.

No additional impulse to the demand is perceptible in the week's business, which is of small proportions both in the size of the orders and the number of them. Prices continue low, while stocks continue to be increased by supplies of United States dark syrups.

In molasses there is not a single new feature to note, hardly a sale even to report, very trifling orders being all that have come to hand. Otherwise there is nothing to supplement the information to be found in Prices Current.

TEAS.

The trade in low grade Japans continues active, but this market affords a very small outlet for medium and fine Japans, which indeed are now very scarce. Another good offer from Chicago for a line of medium to choice Japans has been declined on this market. There is a splendid demand from all parts of the United States for all such teas, but we have not the goods. Trade in Congous is fair, and in Indians and Ceylons is good, but in the main the demand runs towards teas not above 17c. in value. Values in Indian are especially good just now.

McMeekin & Co.'s notes on Indian and Ceylon teas, for March say : The offerings of Indian were 96,300 packages, against 69,000 packages in the same month of 1891. The demand has continued for teas with quality or special point in the liquor at advancing prices. The quality generally has been better and some high averages have been realized. During the first week the lower grades slightly declined, but have since recieved more attention and are hardening ; they have been showing very excellent value and are going into consumption, and will probably continue to harden. The deliveries are 2,750,000 lbs. in excess of March last year. The average of public sale prices for the month was 9d. per lb. against 11¾d. per lb. for the corrresponding month last year. The imports were 7,575,000 and the Deliveries 10,043,000 lbs., leaving in stock on 31st March 45,089,000 lbs. The offerings of Ceylon were 78,737 packages, against 53,000 in the same month of 1891. The sales have not been excessive, and competition has been brisk for all teas with flavor and quality for which full prices have been paid. At the close of the month there was less demand for common grades, and a slight irregularity in prices. The average of public sale prices for the month was 9d. per lb. against 11d. per lb. for the corresponding month of last year. The imports we 5,475,000 lbs. and the deliveries 5,158,000 lbs., leaving in Stock on 31st March, 16,686,000 lbs. There has been rather more offering of Java teas. Tippy Pekoes were in demand.

The improvement in the value of all good descriptions of Indian tea, says the Produce Markets' Review, is well maintained, and in some cases higher prices have been paid. This has been noticeable in the medium kinds of good class Pekoe Souchongs, which have advanced fully ½d., and it is not improbable values will further advance, as the supply is gradually diminishing. The upward movement in prices, however, is not confined to these descriptions, as the finer sorts have been in active request at higher rates, while an invoice from one of the well-known Assam gardens fetched extreme rates. There has been more demand for common Pekoe Souchongs, but broken teas are but moderately enquired for, and their values generally are unchanged. There has been a decided improvement both in the quantity and quality of Ceylon offered this week, and the quality now obtainable is superior to anything offered since Christmas. Competition has been active, most of the bidding coming from the buying brokers, the dealers being in a position to wait for the larger supplies to come forward later on, especially as the country demand shows little signs of improvement just at present. The arrivals for the week are : The Port Douglas, Cheshire, Oriental, and Dorunda, from Colombo.

MARKET NOTES

Perkins, Ince & Co. are advised from Rotterdam that fine, colory V.O.G. Javas have made a further advance and are now selling at prices that would make it next to impossible for wholesalers here to job out below 35c. Yellowish Javas, the advice says, are very scarce. This is owing to the fact that last year's government crop was shipped from the island in a fresh condition.

Eby, Blain & Co. report arrival of Batger & Co's celebrated University Marmalade, also Nonpareil solidified table jellies, all flavors and sizes.

Sloan & Crowther have just received three cars of raw sugar, the product of Louisiana cane. It is a good grocery sugar and is quoted at 3½c.

J. M. Lowes & Son, of the Breadmakers' Yeast Co., are now manufacturing Gibson & Gibson's cocoas and their celebrated Icina. Their office and warerooms are at 33 Wellington street east ; telephone No. 1608. A cut of their nickel silver alarm clock is shown in their advertisement in this issue. This clock is given away with their goods.

PETROLEUM.

The trade in refined oil is slack and prices are rather nominal at 14 to 15c. Lubricating oils and greases are active.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports : Petrolia crude $1.25 per barrel ; Oil Springs crude $1.25½ per bbl. Dealings in crude, continue on a moderate scale and in the absence of important demand prices remain on an even basis with one or two exceptions. In the refined oil market a fair average amount of business is being done. One large manufacturing firm, the Premier Oil Co., have laid off the larger part of their hands for a while. Oil men in general, having their opinions on past experience expect a rather dull time in oil speculation this coming summer. The producer, instead of investing his money as heretofore, in trying to boom the crude oil market, has been tempted by

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

Stocks of flour continue to accumulate at the mills, the eastern demand remains in abeyance and the deadlock with Newfoundland is as fast as ever. Flour men do not take a cheery view of the situation, and would probably concede what they refused to concede weeks ago, only that business would probably not be moved by such a yield. Buyers in the east are still inquiring, still submitting proposals and still taking a little flour, but the volume of the business their cautious purchases aggregate is not enough to excite competitive interest among sellers. Feed is quiet and unchanged at last week's prices.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are : Manitoba patents, $5.20 to 5.50; strong bakers',$4.85; Ontario patents,$4.40; straight roller, $4.75 ; extra, $4.10 to $4.15 : low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

Car prices are : Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $5.10 to $5.30 ; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.65 to $4.90 ; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.90 ; straight roller, $3.95 to $4.00; extra, $3.25 to $4.00; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

MEAL- Oatmeal is $3.90 to $4.00. Cornmeal is $4.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is $4.50 per barrel.

FEED—Bran is $14 to $15, shorts $15 to $16, mixed feed $23 to $25, cracked corn $1.15, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 31 to 32c.

HAY—is fairly active at $11.50 to $12 for No.1 timothy and $10 to $10.50 for mixed.

STRAW—is steady at $6 to $6.50.

MONTREAL.

Flour.—The local market does not improve. Buyers continue to operate with the utmost caution, and in the majority of instances holders, in order to stimulate the demand would concede. Patent, spring $5 to $5.20 ; patent, winter $4.90 to $5 ; straight roller, $4.40 to $4.55 ; extra, $4 15 to $4.25 ; superfine, $3.90 to $4.00; fine, $3.30 to $3.65; strong bakers, $4.60 to $5 00.

Oatmeal.—Holders are easy to deal with, but no increase in the demand is reported. We quote :—Granulated, bbls. $3.95 to $4 ; Rolled, bbls. $3.95 to $4 ; Standard, bbls. $3.85 to $3.90 ; Granulated in bags $1.92 1-2 to $1.95 ; Rolled, in bags $1.92½ to $1.95 Standard, in bags $1.85 to $1.90.

Feed.—The demand is light. Bran is worth, about $15.50 and shorts $16 to $16.50, mouillie we quote at $20 to $23.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Flour—The flour market seems duller than when last reported, as what sales are made are in smaller quantities than usual. The prices are the same as quoted last week : Manitoba, $5.70 to $5.85 ; Ontario high grades, $5 to $5.10 ; medium patents, $4.75 to $4.85.

Cornmeal—Is in somewhat better demand, with no change in values, $2.70 to $2.80 being the prices.

Oatmeal—The market has been well supplied, and prices are gradually weakening. The present quotations are $4.15 to $4.25.

A customer secured is a promise of greater salary in time.

Goods conveniently located save time, money and temper in showing.

Soap and water are cheap, but soil on goods is expensive.

MARKETS—Continued.

the scarcity of oil and the high price thereof, and has been investing his money and time in leasing and drilling new territory.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The supply is now reinforced by the incoming of new butter, which is coming forward quite freely in large rolls. The range for such quantities as offer is generally 15 to 17c., though 14c. is touched in large deals of mixed rolls. There is no depreciation in dairy tubs and no lull in the demand for them, the line of value wavering according to quality from 16 to 20c., the uppermost figure being for fancy stock. The balance of supply of dairy tub is very decidedly on the side of medium butter. Creamery tub has no preference over the best dairy tub, and is hard to sell above 20c. Holders are ready to take that price and less too for some grades. The market appears to have an absorbing capacity capable of cleaning up all the winter butter or creamery butter there is on offer, if prices are not made an impediment. Now is the opportunity for anyone who has old stock to dispose of it upon the best terms likely to be available, as soon new butter will put all old stock into lower grades. Common butter is already less difficult to get a hold of, the reason being that winter butter is beginning to be discounted by the coming in of the new. Common quotes at 13 to 15c.

Cheese still sells from wholesale hands at 12c.. The factories are at work again. The volume of business done in cheese is comparatively small.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES—Prices are quite firm at $2.50 to $3.50, but the supply keeps up well for this time of year.

BEANS—There is no improvement in the demand apparently that can redress the effect of heavy supplies, made up of an aggregate of rather small lots delivered by near by growers. Prices are 90c. to $1 in good sized lots, and reselling is at $1.10 to $1.25.

DRIED APPLES—Retailers' lots go at 4½ to 4¾c. Holders outside can't get more than 4¼c., and have usually to accept 4c. or make no sale.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Are quiet and unchanged at 7½ to 8c.

EGGS—The subsiding of the Easter demand and the very free run of supplies have brought prices down to 10½ and 11c.

HIDES—The market for green is dull and sufficiently stocked to balance the call for cured at the prices now ruling. No. 1 green cows' are 4½c., cured are 5c. on track.

HONEY—Stagnation deepens in the honey market. Prices are 9 to 10c. for extracted and 14 to 16c. for sections.

HOPS—Nothing has occurred to disturb the situation of last week. Holders ask 19 to 24c., according to quality, for last year's crop, and 16 to 18c. for good yearlings.

ONIONS—Domestic onions are firm, at $2.25 to $2.75 per barrel. A fair rate of consumption is kept up, but finer weather makes the supply a less difficult matter to maintain than it was.

POTATOES—Free offers on track continue to favor buyers, who still take supplies only when they want them. The range for cars is 29 to 32c., and out of store lots are 40c. per bag.

TALLOW—Rough is steady at 2c., refined at 5½ to 6c.

WOOL—Fleeces are weak at 18c.

PROVISIONS.

Hog-products are in fairly good request. Prices run quite evenly from one week to another. Present quotations report those of last week. Lard is active; long clear is moderately so; barrel pork is moving; smoked meats are on the quiet side yet.

BACON—Long clear is 7½ to 8c., smoked backs are 10c., bellies 9½ to 10c., rolls 8½ to 8¾c.

HAMS—Are quiet at 10 to 11c.

LARD—A free movement is reported in pure 10 to 10½c. for tubs and pails. Compound is somewhat active at 8 to 8½c.

BARREL PORK—U. S. heavy mess is $13 to $14, Canadian $15, short cut $16 to $16.50.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef is 4 to 5c. in fore and 7 to 7½c. in hind quarters, lamb is 8 to 10c., mutton 7 to 8c., veal 7 to 8½c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Oranges are plentiful, but good stock is firm, in some cases at advances upon last week's quotations. Floridas are especially stiff, good stock not being obtainable under $4 and ranging up to $4.75. Valencias are rather scarcer than they were at $6 to $6.75. Messinas are plentiful and unchanged at $4. Washington Navels are $4.75 to $5, and Riverside Seedlings quote from $3 to $3.75, according to quality. The range of quality in lemons, from common to fancy, is wide, and prices are $2.50 to $3.25. Bananas are plentiful at $1.50 to $2.50, pineapples at 8 to 20c. and sweet potatoes at $4.50.

The N. Y. Commercial Bulletin says: The "pool" entered into by importers of Baracoa bananas a few days ago, has already come to grief. That is to say, the experiment has proven to be unsatisfactory and the individual importers have concluded that the best policy is every man for himself.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

The following is the wholesale price list for maple syrup in screw top cans: Tall Round Can,—say 11 lbs. gross 85c.; Half Can,—say 5¾ lbs., gross 42½c.; Small Can, say 2½ lbs., gross per doz., $2.40.

IN BULK.—Kegs. per Imp. Gal. (12 to 15 gals. each.) 90c.; Small Bbls., per Imp. Gal. 90c.

Pure Maple Sugar, in 1 lb Cakes, per lb. 9c; Pure Maple Sugar say in 3 to 5 lb. Cakes, per lb. 8½c.

FISH.

Manitoba white fish has about all the call there is these days, and is selling rather freely at 6c. In other respects the fish market is dull. British Columbia salmon is easier at 20c., and some shipping to New York is reported from here. Bass and pickeral are out of season and off the market.

SALT.

A fair jobbing trade is reported at prices which were given last week. The following sales reflect the state of the market for round lots: A car of dairy at $1.25, a car of course at 70c.

DRY GOODS.

The week's business has not kept up to the standard of last week's report. A lull in retail trade consequent upon seeding operations is accountable for this. A fairly active business, however, has to be credited to most houses.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, April 21, 1892.

GROCERIES.

Business at this point is about on the same standard as last week. Dried fruit is still firm at the easier prices mentioned. Sugar is dull and quiet, with no change in either refined or raw. The refiners are still holding out for high prices. Teas are in the same steady demand as noted in last week's report. Coffee is still dull, but held firm. Butter and provisions have no movement worthy of mention. Syrups and molasses are also quiet. In green fruit there is likely to be some stir in the near future, as one of the fruit steamers is reported inward. Apples have taken a drop during the week and are held at easier prices. The wholesale trade report their men doing a good trade and seem to be satisfied. The French houses speak encouragingly of spring business. They also say their travellers are doing a good business. Importers' agents are only waiting for the first boats to ship spring orders to the west. They report spring trade good.

SUGAR.

There is no change in the sugar market since last week, which remains quiet, with only a fair business doing at unchanged prices. Cable advices from New York and London have reported the market quiet but steady in both raw and refined. The trade here are not pushing sales to any extent, and what business there is doing is at regular prices. It is yet reported that some of the trade are still at the cutting, but it is hard to find out who are the guilty parties. The refiners here claim to be well stocked with raw material. We quote : Granulated 4½ to 4 9-16c. ; yellows, low grade, 3½ to 3¾c., and yellows bright 3¾ to 4¼c.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The movement in syrups is small owing to the fact that maple sugar and syrup manufacture is in full blast. American syrups have a fair jobbing trade among the grocers. Canadian syrups also are in fair demand at the old prices, viz., 1½ to 2½ per pound.

There is no change in the molasses market, which remains about the same as last week. Grocers report a fair jobbing trade, but no further business in the Islands on Montreal account, prices there being the same as last week, that is equal to 28 to 29c. landed in Montreal. We quote Barbadoes 35 to 38c., American 28c. ; syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 30 to 45c. for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

MAPLE SYRUP AND SUGAR.

The demand for new syrups is a little better than last week, but the old moves off slowly at very low prices. New in tins can be bought at 60 to 65c. and in wood at 5½ to 6c. per pound. The same remarks apply to sugar which is sold at 8 to 8½.

TEAS.

There has been a good business doing in high grade teas during the week at prices ranging from 20 to 22c. per pound. Holders of Japan teas are very firm in their ideas owing to the light stock held here in that grade they are also holding the low grade at higher prices than a week ago. The stock in first hand is small as all the consigned lots held by bank have been cleaned out. Blacks are still dull as heretofore with no special feature to note. Indian and Ceylon have steady demand at regular prices.

COFFEES.

Coffee has shown no activity during the week, prices however remain firm with light stocks. In fact the only business doing is a small jobbing one, and outside of a few small sales in Rios there is nothing new to note. We quote :—Rio, 18 to 20c., Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c. ; Jamaica; 19 to 21c.; Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c.; Santos, 17½ to 19c.

RICE.

A fair turnover is reported in the rice market, but on the whole the market is dull and quiet with prices unchanged. Advices from primary markets are still reported strong. We quote Standard $4 to $4.10, Japan $4.50 to $5, Patnas $4.10 to $4.75, and Carolinas $7 to $8.

DRIED FRUIT.

The dried fruit market has shown a marked improvement during the week, as quite a few lots have changed hands. One lot of 1,500 boxes low grade Valencias sold at 3¼c., and several other small sales are also reported. Currants have the same steady enquiry as last week. Provincials are in the same steady demand in barrels and half barrels. We quote :—Valencias, ordinary, 3½ to 4c. ; No. 1 off stalk, 4½c. ; layers, 6c. to 6¼c.; Patras currants, 5 to 5¼c; Vostizzas, in cases, 7½ to 8c.; provincial currants, 4⅞ to 5½c.

NUTS.

Nuts still have a small jobbing movement at old prices which have not changed during the week. We quote:—Almonds Tarragona 13 to 13½c.; Almonds, Ivica 12 to 13c. ; Almonds, common 10 to 11c.; Almonds, hardshell 07 to 08c.; Walnuts, Grenoble, new 11 to 12c. ; Walnuts, French 10 to 10½c.; Cocoanuts per 100 $4.50 to $5 ; Filberts 9 to 10c.; Pecans 16 to 17c.; Peanuts 07 to 10c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Oranges have had a fair enquiry considering the cold snap we have had lately. Valencias are still selling at $5.50 to $6, Floridas at $3.75 to $4.25, Jamacas in barrels $6 to $7. There has not been much change in lemons since our last. The only business doing is a small jobbing one to city dealers. We quote $2 to $3.75 per box. Pineapples have had a better movement owing to the Easter holidays. Stocks here are fair and are selling at 15 to 20c. each. The cold weather has had a bad effect on strawberries but choice fruit still bring 50c. per box. A few lots of poor stock brought 20 to 25c. per box. Stocks of bananas are more liberal but prices remain unchanged with a fair business doing. We quote $2.50 to $3 per bunch.

The SS Charrington is reported inward with cargo of lemons and oranges. This ought to make quite a stir in the green fruit business.

APPLES.

The price of apples has fallen during the week on account of western stock being offered in large quantities and we now quote $3 to $3.50 for small jobbing lots. Poor fruit can be bought at $1 to $2 as to condition. We also hear of a car lot being offered at $2.25 but were not placed. Evaporated fruit is still dull with only a fair business doing. A few sales of choice fruit being reported at 7½., we quote 8c. Dried are in fair enquiry without change. We quote Eastern Township at 5 to 5½c. and Western at 4½ to 5½c. according to quality. Evaporated peaches still sell at 12 to 13c. per tin.

HOPS.

There is no change apparent in the tone of the market. Choice Canadian still sell at 24c. Foreign advices still continue to speak of very firm values. Pressed are in the same steady demand among the wholesale trade. We quote bulk 22 to 24c. and pressed at 16c.

FISH.

During the Lenten season, which ordinarily speaking is the dealers' harvest, trade was dull, dragging and disappointing, and business at preseat is difficult, even at inside values. We quote No. 1 herring, per brl., $4.50 to $4.60; lake trout, per half brl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.25 to $8.75; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

PROVISIONS.

No great activity in the provision market is spoken of but the demand during the week has been better than usual and the outlook is more indicative of a good trade than for some time past. We quote : Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.25 to $16.50 ; mess pork, western, per brl. $15.00 to $16.25; short cut, western, per brl. $15.50 to $16.25; hams, city cured, per lb. 10c. to 10½c; lard, Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c ; bacon per lb. 9c. to 10c ; lard, com. refined, per lb. 7 to 7¼c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Butter does not finish business of any extensive volume, the only business doing is a small jobbing trade. The demand for creamery does not seem to expand and large lots are freely offered at decidedly easier rates. Exporters will not buy at any price and only a small amount is changing hands for local account as the grocers find that consumers show marked preferance for dairy stock. We quote as follows :—Creamery, 19 to 21c. ; Townships, dairy, new, 17 to 20c.; Morrisburg and Brockville, 17 to 18c. ; Western dairy, 16 to 17c.

Cheese is on the same footing as noted from time to time with only a local jobbing trade doing. We quote 12c.

EGGS.

The local egg market is easier to-day, owing to heavy receipts from the west and slow demand. And the business for the week has been only fair considering it was easter week. No sales have been reported over 12c., and we think that is about the figure for prime stock.

GRAIN.

The continued quietness is in the local market with no new feature to note. No. 2 hard Manitoba, 93 to 95c; No. 3 do., 85 to 90c.; No. 1 Northern, 92 to 95c. peas, 70c. to 73c per 66 pounds; oats, 30 to 32c. per 34 pounds, corn, 55 to 60c., duty paid ; feed barley, 40 to 42c.; good malting do., nominal.

The stocks of grain and flour in store in Montreal on the dates mentioned were as follows :

	April 16, 1892.	April 9, 1892.	April 17, 1891.
Wheat, bush	622,416	605,566	525,662
Corn, bush			7,164
Peas, bush	389,842	379,554	145,205
Oats, bush	545,909	518,196	247,510

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., April, 20, 1892.

There is very little if any change in trade from last week. The outlook seems fairly good for the future, though there is nothing to warrant heavy buying in any particular line.

RICE—Is reported to be higher.

PRODUCE.

APPLES—Are not coming in as freely as expected, and prices have advanced somewhat. No. 1 Nonpareils are selling at $3.50 to $4.

EGGS—Are easier, sales being made at 12 to 13c.

BUTTER—Is somewhat easier, as new make is being offered quite freely and finds ready sale.

POTATOES—Are very dull sale, as the market is over supplied.

BEANS—The demand is rather light at present, prices are unchanged at $1.25 to $1.40 as per quality.

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

JOHN BAKER EDWARDS, P.L.D., D.C.L., F.C.S.,

Public Analyst for the District of Montreal, and Professor of Chemistry.

CHEMICAL LABORATORY, MEDICAL FACULTY, McGILL UNIVERSITY,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

All may do what has by man been done.

One touch of nature makes the whole world kin, and one touch of organization equally makes a whole trade kin. But the kindred in either case must not be depended on for too much. No doubt there is a common chord among grocers of the same association that will respond much more sympathetically to an insider than to an outsider, but it is impossible and undesirable to sink the individual completely in the corporate association. Those who join an association with the expectation that every member will unbosom himself fully to his fellows will meet with disappointment. They might as well look for community of capital and community of material property of all kinds, as absolute community of experience, judgment, trade confidences and whatever special advantages individuals can have. If B joins an association in which A is a member, he need not hope to learn from A how he manages to get such good bargains, how he retains his first class customers, how much money he makes in a year, how much he loses in bad debts, who is his backer in business, what his leading tea blends are, or any one of the thousand trade secrets that a sagacious grocer will acquire in the course of a business experience. These he is under no moral or social obligation to turn over to his fellows in organization.

It is well that there is so little of the community about a trade association. If there were more, there would be more truth in the charge that is sometimes made against associations that they extinguish business individuality. Business individuality is preserved, and if it were endangered by organization there would be no organization. Associations would be more numerous probably if mistrust that private affairs would have to be more or less disclosed did not exist. Traders organize, not for the purpose of establishing a common fund of experience, advantage, etc., but for the sake of the strength that lies in union. They can concentrate the force of opinion upon any injustice or irregularity that affects their trade, or they can come to a common understanding as to the nature of the competition they shall carry on against each other. The list of subjects coming within range of treatment is a long one, is liable to addition from time to time, and need never trench upon the domain of strictly private knowledge or practice. No doubt there are men who would join an association from the sole motive of learning all they could about the methods of competitors, if such information were freely vouchsafed. A case is in mind just now, but it is not furnished by the grocery trade, in which a leading importer withdrew from an association because he was expected to instruct his fellows in many matters in which he possessed special knowledge. It was almost laid down as a doctrine that each member should impart everything he knew relative to the business whose interests this particular association cherished. This required the sacrifice of a big personal advantage of this importer, and he withdrew from the association, stronger in his isolation than in fellowship with the other members of his trade. His influence and support he was ready to place at the service of his fellows, but he was not disposed to be prodigal of advantages that sprang from special knowledge and favored connections.

The usefulness of associations is sometimes impaired by the tendency of their members to degenerate them into mutual admiration societies. There must be serious business intention on the part of those who belong to an association, and if there is that they will put in the time together more profitably than in wording compliments to each other, working off pleasantries and passing the hours in harmless and useless social intercourse. Social intercourse is a good thing, but it is not everything. And, while no member can be expected to submit all his private and special knowledge for the good of the association, none should be too reserved in relation to matters that cannot be classed as strictly private. It is a fact that reticence on the part of members is sometimes disloyalty to the association, and it occasionally happens that a man's silence is attributed to fear of the interests that are the objects of attack, or to a desire to make himself solid with those interests. Where the proceedings are to be published, it occasionally looks as if some men liked now and then to be put on record as being rather against a movement that their association was taking hold of. It is sometimes a case where grinding one's own axe is best done by taking an opposition or neutral course.

SALESMEN'S COURTESY.

What is it that impresses the dealer most in connection with his purchases from the wholesale house, when he pays his weekly, monthly or yearly visits thereto? Is it the neatly kept sample room, the handsome and conveniently arranged warehouse, the general appearance of thrift about the place, the greeting of principals? None of these are without effect on the mind of the dealer, and all of them, if he be of a reflective mind, will leave an impress on his mental chart; yet none we venture to assert are to be compared with the lasting effect produced by the friendly hand-shake, the cheerful greeting and the thoughtful consideration of the salesman.

The thorough salesman, with the true instincts of his calling in his heart, is the loadstone that attracts the merchant, and he it is who makes or mars an account for the house. A churlish, curt, inattentive salesman acts like a shower bath to the visiting country merchant, and a feeling takes possession of him that his presence is not so welcome or of such importance as he anticipated. There is in the bosom of every man, no matter what his position on the mercantile scale, a certain amount of self-importance, whether he admit it or not,and it is always a gratification to him to have his presence acknowledged with the recognition he deems himself worthy of, and not unusually the smaller the account the more attention is desired. It requires a knowledge of human nature on the part of salesman to properly gauge the unspoken egotism of the customer. With the travelling salesman the conditions are somewhat altered; the merchant is in his own castle and does not require or demand that looking after which he expects when visiting the city, though if the traveller meet his customer in the warehouse or while in the city this desire for attention is uppermost in the mind of the dealer, and he is a wise traveller who looks after his accounts.

The sample room salesman possesses opportunities and the power of being agreeable, tending to leave better impressions in the mind of the customer than any attention that can be bestowed on him by the traveller, for the plain reason that the latter is seen often, while the former is a comparative rarity with most dealers, and attentions from strangers are generally more acceptable than from those from whom we have a right to expect them. A pleasant word with a few general inquiries after the state of trade, etc., constitutes the bulk of the average salesman's attention. Very few think of presenting the customer to the principals, or showing him through the establishment, or explaining things about the premises likely to prove strange or interesting. It is these little outside of "well, what-do-you-want-to-order-to-day," attentions that are pleasing to the trade and which are a standing and profitable advertisement for the house.

In our peregrinations among the wholesale trade we have frequent opportunities of observing the different methods of handling customers by salesmen, and we are daily more and more impressed with the importance and necessity of courteous reception and friendly treatment of visiting merchants by sample-room salesmen, and we feel safe in stating that the proper display of attention will always bring its reward, both to the salesman and to the house.

TRUTH FROM HIS LIPS.

Our bright and original contributor, "Hec. Secord," is complimented upon the realism of his poem, "Elegy in a Country Store," by a correspondent whose words we give below. Fidelity to fact is the strong point in that bit of verse, and nobody is a better judge of its deserts in this respect than the friendly critic quoted below. He has grappled both literally and metaphorically with the subject of that poem, having written in this paper letters upon the Patron movement that did good wherever they were read, and having waged a successful business campaign against one of the Patrons' chosen vessels. He is competent to pronounce upon the Elegy, not only by virtue of his insight into the movement, but also by virtue of his literary ability—himself being one of the best read men in business to-day. Here is what he says:

"I thoroughly digested and assimilated the 'Elegy in a Country Store.' The ideas contained therein were desperately familiar, and one of the expressions seemed peculiarly like one of my own coinage, and I at once concluded that 'Hec. Secord' must be not only a careful reader of THE GROCER, but a close observer of men and their expressed thoughts. The subject is one, which about nine months ago was as close to any commercial heart as anything well could be, but after getting my brains a-moving I conceived and executed a bold piece of policy, which resulted not only in a knock-down but a complete 'knock-out' of the Farmer Jones and Rodd gang in this section. They have never recovered their mental equilibrium sufficiently to tackle the job again, and I think we can safely sing the Te Deum for deliverance from the horde.

A great deal (and favorable at that) might be said in addition to the few remarks I have made on the power. Only for being worked so hard and so incessantly I should gladly give friend McLean more articles for THE GROCER. The paper is a good one and he is deserving of it too. Elegy excellent, phraseology striking, rhythm very good, subject opportune, and the sequence of ideas well sustained and logical.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE GROCER.

UNCONSCIOUS FLIM-FLAM.

Even a mathematician will get mixed in his calculations sometimes when changing money back and forth, says the Savannah News. The telegraph operator at the De Soto realizes this fact and nine men out of ten would have done the same thing that he did without thinking.

One night last week a guest of the hotel handed in a message. The operator counted the words and announced that the charge was 50 cents. The gentleman handed over a $10 bill, which the operator mistook for a $1 bill, and gave him back 50 cents. The gentleman left the hotel without noticing the mistake. Presently he discovered it and returned to the operator's desk.

"Wasn't that a $10 bill I gave you awhile ago?" he said.

The operator opened his drawer and looked at the bill.

"Why yes," he exclaimed; "I thought it was a one. Here it is," and he handed over the bill.

"Now I owe you 50 cents," said the gentleman.

"Oh, no you don't," said the operator.

"Oh, yes I do," replied the gentleman. "The telegram was 50 cents, you know," and he handed over a half dollar and walked off.

"I'm into that fellow 50 cents," remarked the operator to the bookstand keeper, "and I can't make him see it."

"Not much," returned the bookstand man. "He's into you 50 cents," and the operator has been trying to figure it out ever since.

STATISTICS GAINSAY THE PATRONS' ASSUMPTIONS.

EDITOR CANADIAN GROCER.

SIR,—The object of our society, say the Patrons of Industry, is to come to the assistance of a long-suffering public who are being "bled white" by the retail merchants, and also to put trade on a cash basis. In my opinion the intention of the founders and officers of the P. of I. was to create and to maintain lucrative positions for the heads of the order at the expense of the retail merchants. I am strongly opposed to combinations, be they for the purpose of enriching the manufacturer and the distributor at the expense of the consumer, or to impoverish the manufacturer and the distributor for the benefit of the consumer. In their ranks the Patrons undoubtedly have many men who have raised a howl of indignation against the Wholesale Grocers' Guild and kindred associations. Now these same men will join the ranks of a society whose members want to make riches for themselves by extorting it from others. Two wrongs do not make a right. Open and free competition is the only safeguard to the consuming public; and only in such competition will low prices and legitimate profits be the result. I have never heard that retail grocers have ever combined for the regulation of prices. Live and let live, is our motto. The organisers of the Patrons of Industry are either very dishonest or they are totally ignorant of the cost of running a grocery shop. When they ask a man to sell his goods at a gross profit of 12½ per cent. they know, or ought to know, that they are asking him to perform an impossible feat, which will quickly lead him into bankruptcy and ruin. They may argue that a merchant need not join the association. But there are difficulties in the way. The grocer has his capital invested in business, and he cannot always retire without suffering great loss. The masses of the people are not conversant with the expenses a merchant must incur to conduct his business, and when told that retailers are robbing them, and that goods can be sold at 12½ per cent., it is only reasonable that they should believe it and patronize those merchants who sell at the lowest prices. So that when these demagogues make their appearance in a city or town, grocers will suffer losses, probably bankruptcy, either by joining and selling at the Patron prices, or by such a reduction in their business as will eventually compel them to close their doors to save what they own. I have prepared the following statement of yearly expenses to conduct a business of $12,000 a year for the benefit of my confreres who have not thought the matter over yet:

Shop rent	$180
One man	364
One boy	156
Fire and light	35
One horse	73
Rolling stock	10
Cleaning, alterations	30
Dead stock	26
Insurance on $2,600	20

Deduct $894 from $1,500, 12½ per cent. on $12,000, and you have $606.

This bill of expense, of course, will increase or decrease as the amount of business transacted goes up or down. In few, if any, of the above-mentioned items of expense can a reduction be made, but several of them will little more than cover half of the actual outlay. To do a business of $1,000 a month a stock and plant of no less than $2,000 is necessary. Before trading with the Patrons a merchant has to own his stock in trade, as he cannot afford to buy on time and pay discounts, his profits being so minute. Interest at 4 per cent. on capital invested is $80. Deduct this amount from the net profits of $606 and it will leave the enormous salary of $526 for one year of 308 working days of from 12 to 16 hours per day, or $1.70 per day for the proprietor and manager of the institution. Furthermore, the merchant has to meet all unforeseen expenses by accident, loss on perishable goods, etc., before he can allow his family their weekly pittance of $10. Is this fair remuneration for a man of sufficient intelligence and ability to conduct any business? Would the officers of the Patrons of Industry be satisfied with such a reward to perform their labor or fraud? Let some of their dupes ask them.

Now, as to the question of putting trade on a cash footing. For my part I believe it to be a physical impossibility. The vast majority of the Canadian people, or of any people, for that matter, depend on to-day's earnings for to-morrow's bread. We do the bulk of our business with workingmen, and I know that during the season of prosperity—the summer—some of them, through no fault of theirs, will be compelled to ask for credit; the father has met with an accident or he has to knock off work for some days owing to inclement weather, or waiting for material, etc.; someone in the family is ill, or for other and innumerable reasons that every shop-keeper well knows. And how are these people going to tide over our long and severe winters when expenses go up and wages go down? To refuse these people credit would mean starvation in many instances.

The credit system cannot be abolished; but there is undoubtedly room for improvement. My remedy is short credit. Limit a customer's credit from one payday to the other, when working; and if out of employment do not see him in want if he has proven himself to be honest in his days of prosperity. Unfortunately too many merchants will accept anything as good and sufficient reasons for putting off the settling of a grocery bill, and let their slow-paying customers speculate, enjoy themselves, or otherwise spend the money which legitimately belongs to the grocer. Study a customer's income, and trust him accordingly. Tell an intending credit client how you do your business, and you will seldom have any trouble afterwards. Les bons marches font les bons amis.

Yours,

A. E. P.

EFFECTS OF THE MCKINLEY TARIFF.

EDITOR OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

SIR,—As you probably know, there is all through Europe manifested an extraordinary interest in the coming Presidential election in the United States, as it will show what experience the people of the United States have had with the McKinley Act so far. I travelled considerably in the North of Europe last year for American houses, and had an opportunity of discussing the Act with prominent merchants, and they all seemed to be convinced that even if the Republican party succeeds at this election, it is only a question of time when the working-men of the United States will see, that instead of the McKinley Act increasing their wages and working for their prosperity, it robs them and increases their cost of living, by requiring them to pay an unreasonable price for home-made goods. I don't think, however, that the McKinley Act has yet had time to show its bad effects. There are different reasons for this, the first one being the present famine in Russia. I am positive that if the Russian harvest last year only had been medium, the McKinley Act's fate would have been sealed at next election. Russia, as you know, is America's great competitor on the European flour market, but on account of the failure of the Russian harvest last season, it is completely out of competition this year, and has even been compelled to buy from the United States. This has caused an enormous export of flour from the United States, and they have got a good price, and millions of dollars have been given in exchange. But this, as I have said, has been caused by the crop failure in Russia. Another year it will not be so, as flour will come down like other American produce. I will mention, for instance cotton. It is, as all know, one of the largest export articles of the United States. The price has gone now to exceedingly low figures, and I read in the papers not long ago that such low quotations on the Exchange in New York had never been, and the demand for it was very dull. You will particularly notice that even at those low figures the demand was dull. The price quoted on Aug. 20th, 1891, was 120½ cents, while last 15th of March it had dropped to 97 cents. And what was the reason? Because Europe had lost its purchasing power. The McKinley Act has shut out European manufactured goods, and for that reason European manufacturers have been working less, which means less money for the working-man, thereby reducing his purchasing power. Now Europe says to the United States: "We will buy your cotton, but, if you will not buy our manufactured goods you reduce our purchasing power; consequently we are poorer, and have to buy less and at low figures. We can't afford to buy any new cotton; we have to use our old cotton goods, as you will not take our manufactured goods in exchange. You will only take money, and money we have very little of, and for that reason we can pay you very little for your produce." The same is the case with silver and will be with everything that the U. S. export. What money they succeed in keeping in their country by compelling the people to buy their own goods they lose by getting less money for what they export. We are getting our eyes open in this country to see the great mistake of a high protective tariff, and the last Norwegian Storting (Parliament) made some great changes in that respect, and I believe, Mr. Editor, that in all countries it is only a question of time when that unfair institution called customs duty—an institution left us from the dark ages—will be done away with, and men will be free to buy the necessaries of life wherever they can buy them the cheapest and best.

Yours respectfully,

C. E. SONTUM

ANTI-PATRON ORGANIZATION.

A movement has been started in Manitoba among merchants, in opposition to the Patrons. It is not, we understand, to be an active opposition, but simply a passive one. One of the objects of the Patrons is, we believe, to arrange with one or more merchants at each point, to supply them with goods at 12½ per cent. advance on invoice cost. Merchants who submit to an agreement of this class, are known as Patrons' storekeepers, and the Patrons agree to give all their custom to the Patrons' store. Merchants are certainly justified in refusing to make any such agreement. If they are wise, we think they will refuse to do so. The passive opposition to be given the Patrons is simply an understanding among the merchants that they will not enter into any agreement with the order, in compliance with the demands of the Patrons. There is nothing objectionable in this, for merchants either individually or collectively to refuse to enter into any such agreement as that asked by the Patrons. We do not, however, believe that these agreements made between Patrons and merchants will continue in force long, and it is only a matter of time when they will fall through, and very likely the merchants who make them will suffer more than those who refuse to consider the Patrons' proposals. Those who do enter into an agreement with the Patrons are very likely to resort to dishonorable means to deceive their customers who are members of the order. The agreement, we understand, makes it necessary that merchants shall show invoices when called upon to do so by the order, and it is already stated that false invoices are being used in these cases. At Elkhorn, in this province, the merchants have formed an association and pledged themselves not to enter into any contract with the Patrons.—Winnipeg Commercial.

THE BEET SUGAR BOUNTY.

A large deputation, representing the beet industry of the province of Quebec, had an interview the other afternoon with Hon. Mr. Foster and Messrs. Carling, Chapleau and Ouimet for the purpose of urging that the bounty of two cents a pound on beet root sugar, granted last year for two years, be continued for a period of five or ten years. The deputation consisted of Hon. L. O. Beaubien, commissioner of agriculture for the province of Quebec; Mr. Musy, manager of the Farnham Beet Sugar factory; Mr. Barnard, secretary of the Council of Agriculture for Quebec; Rev. Father Labonte, of the college of Ste. Therese, and Messrs. Ferland, Tranchemontagne and Robillard, ex-M. L. A., who were introduced by Messrs. Bain, Deslauriers, Bergeron, Cirard, Desjardins and Robillard. The spokesmen of the party were Messrs. Barnard, Musy and Rev. Father Labonte. They expressed themselves as well satisfied with the result of the experiments so far. The quality of beets produced in the province was steadily improving and instead of only 6½ per cent. of saccharine matter, which used to be obtained, 9 per cent. was now got. Several instances were quoted of extra good crops. Mr. Ferland, of Berthier, had taken a crop of fifteen tons to the acre from fifteen acres, for which he received $4.50 per ton from the factory and the bounty of fifty cents per ton paid by the Quebec Government. Father Labonte, of Ste. Therese, cultivated twenty-eight acres without any manure, with no special care. He kept a very careful account of the expenditure in connection with this crop, and found that it netted him just $630. Hon Mr. Foster said the Government had already considered the question. What that was really wanted was information of the kind which had been given him with regard to the results of crops and what he had heard to-day was very satisfactory. He could not make any definite promise in the matter further than that it should receive careful consideration at the hands of the Government.

THE OLD COFFEE-MILL.

Just at the hour when chanticleer
Wakes his harem with lusty crow.
I turn on my pillow and seem to hear
A welcome sound from the world below.
It is not the ch'rp of the early bird,
Nor the passing milkman's sonorous thrill
Whose homely call in my dream is heard,
But the musical grind of the coffee-mill,
Mingled with mother's staccato clear:
"It's time to-get-up-now, William, dear."

It always hung by the chimney wide—
"G-'round, g-'round, g-'round, g-'r-o-u-n-d;"
Time and wear and rust it defied—
"G-'round, g-'round, g-'round, g-'r-o-u-n-d;"
Its music silenced the cricket's note—
"G-'round, g-'round, g-'round, g-'r-o-u-n-d;"
Its fragrance tickled each thirsty throat—
"G-'round, g-'round, g-'round, g-'r-o-u-n-d;"
The hand that turned it turned with a will,
And incense ground from the old coffee-mill.

O, years that are gone, come back again!
And find in my pillow a rose-leaf dream;
Take out of my heart this smarting pain—
Make all things really what now they seem;
Bring the eyes that had never learned to weep;
Bring the slumber that held me at early dawn,
Awake me, as then, from sweet boyish sleep
To weed the garden or hoe the corn,
To the tune of father's "Git up thar, Bill!"
And the rhythm and rhyme of the old coffee-mill.

WOMAN vs. "LADY."

The almost universal application, as an address, of the word "Lady" to every female who visits the stores or markets, has at length called out a protest from a woman who expresses her views on the subject in the New York Press.

It is suggested that "Madam," or the French word "Madame," be used when addressing female patrons whose names are not known, and this would certainly be more appropriate than "Lady," which term is of rather low caste, as generally used.

The woman above referred to (we use the word woman in preference to lady, as being more respectful and dignified) says that "one of the most maddening things on earth is the persistent 'ladying' I get at the hands of the tradesmen. My butcher and grocer and fishman are so hopelessly committed to this form of address, I expect no relief in their cases, but why the clerks in dry goods stores are not taught better I can not see. It is so much more pleasant to be called 'Madame;' the continued interpolating of 'lady' as I am making a purchase irritates me to the verge of exasperation, and has on a few occasions driven me from a counter without waiting to select the goods I wanted."

It is not only irritating, but almost insulting, to many women of refinement to be addressed as "lady," which term is so universally applied in this country to females of all classes and degrees.

It is to be hoped that the classes of tradesmen to whom the lady (and here the word comes in properly, because not used in the second person) refers will substitute the more respectful word "Madam" in addressing their women customers.

STORE HINTS.

And then about politics. Do you allow yourself to become such a violent partisan that you can see no good in the other party? Do you "run wid de mashine?" or do you vote for the best men? There are merchants who dare have no political opinions of their own, who vote for half the men on each ticket, or don't vote at all, simply because they fear they may offend some one. They have no backbone, nor are they fit for boneless bacon.

Have opinions of your own. Opinions on all subjects. Opinions that no man can doubt. If you change them do so because you believe it to be right—not to win trade. You need not intrude your belief on others, but be sure you're right, then go ahead.

Probably politics will be more or less discussed around the store stove, but don't make yourself the leader. In fact, you will at such times be rather retiring. Don't allow your store to be given over to politicians to the exclusion of business, however.

Do you imagine that because your store is in the "rooral deestricks," and because you know everybody for miles around, there is no use of spending a cent for printers' ink? The merchant in the adjoining town does not agree with you. The result is that a number of your customers on the "off" side of town are being persuaded to leave you. You must advertise—or you may "bust."

Small as the item may seem, it will pay you to use first-class stationery. A letter written on paper that would make good blotters, disfigured by unsightly printing and horrible cuts, and the reading matter setting at defiance all known laws of grammar or propriety, even though correctly written itself, makes a bad impression upon a wholesaler if you are seeking a line of credit. The cost of the better article will be slight, and it will always pay to secure it.

Treat the children well. They have long memories, and some of those little boys may be your competitors some day. That isn't the idea, though. Parents would rather be swindled than have their children humbugged, and they would be justified in ever afterwards giving you a severe letting alone, and telling their neighbors to do likewise.

If you sell sugar at cost, and your neighbor sells it at a profit, you're pressing the button; he's doing the rest.

It is exasperating for a customer to have to wait while the clerk seeks to find the price of an article not marked. The impatience increases while a bill has to be searched for, and finally he goes away mad because the clerk had to guess at the price. Moral: Mark everything you buy. Not only the shoe box, but each pair of shoes.

When you take an account of stock it will save time and trouble if each drawer has its weight marked on. The whole thing can then be weighed and you will not need to empty it every time you invoice.

If your clerks are to think clearly and so limit the number of mistakes, they must have plenty of sleep. If they go out after 9 or 10 o'clock, to "have some fun with the boys," it will indirectly, and sometimes directly, be at your expense.

Perhaps you are in the habit of going out yourself after the store is closed, just for a "lark." If you make this your regular practice—DON'T.

"Keeping everlastingly at it brings success."

A Chicago paper has been discussing the question as to whether a man can be a business man and at the same time a consistent Christian. It is fitting that this should have originated in Chicago. In fact, there could have been no such question raised elsewhere. If a man who is a merchant takes pleasure in telling that he is glad he is not a Christian, beware of him. Not that it is at all necessary to make loud professions of religion, but of the two, people will certainly prefer the Christian.—J. C., in American Grocer.

Counterfeit five and ten cent pieces are being freely circulated in Hamilton. They look so much like the original that it is difficult to detect them. In appearance and finish they seem to be all that they should be, nor will they yield to the teeth when bitten, the metal of which they are composed being much harder than lead. They will not ring as silver does when thrown down, however, and this seems to be the only easy way by which they may be detected.

Fredericton (N. B.) merchants are up in arms against the recent large increase in freight rates between that city and St. John, the result of a combine between the Canadian Pacific railway and the Star lines of river steamers. At a meeting of the council of the Fredericton Board of Trade it was proposed to carry freight from St. John by schooners and to establish a regular line to make two trips weekly. It is thought that the increased tariff will seriously cut into the trade done by the wholesale merchants of St. John all along the river.

The Vancouver News Advertiser in its Westminister paragraphs says: As predicted by the fishermen, the run of Spring salmon has panned out good, and the run is as good as in average years. The red fish are more numerous as compared with the white than in the first of the run. On Saturday Messrs. Port & Co.'s boats landed 300 fish, which weighed something over 4,000 pounds. On Monday their catch was about as large. They made a large consignment to their branch in Vancouver (R. V. Winch) and are getting ready to send a carload of salmon and halibut in ice to New York, which will probably be despatched on Wednesday. Boutillier, Vianen and Pretty are also handling a large quantity of salmon.

Do you want it?
Read the following.

The Breadmakers' Quick Rising Dry Hop Yeast is carefully and scientifically made from the purest and best materials obtainable and can always be relied upon to make light, white, wholesome and delicious bread, buns, rolls, etc. It is the best yeast made for all purposes where a quick and sure result is desired and is unequalled.

It never fails to give satisfaction if used according to directions. We receive hundreds of letters from parties using it stating they would have none other. Have all your customers tried it? If not, have them do so at once.

If your yeast is not fresh or if you receive at any time any complaints write us at once giving particulars and name of firm from whom you bought, and we will be happy to exchange it for you. All yeast leaving our factory is tested and guaranteed to keep fresh for one year. It should be kept in a cool dry place.

Breadmakers' Yeast will keep much longer than this but it is slower in rising. The older the yeast the more required. One fresh cake of Breadmaker's Yeast—six of which—not five, are contained in each five cent package—will make from 5 to 10 loaves of bread. It is the most economic yeast made and pays you a large profit in handling it.

Read the following: To the first fifty grocers sending us the names and addresses of 50 of their customers to whom they have recommended and sold Breadmakers' Yeast, and who are now using it we will send them on receipt of the postage on same 25 cents a handsome nickel silver alarm clock. See above cut.

This is a magnificent prize, secure one for yourself, you will be pleased with it.

Schmidt had just finished boring an inch hole in the head of a half-barrel of sourkraut that was busy, when a small boy handed him a note.

"Vot's dis peesness?" asked Schmidt, as he dodged the foam from the enthusiastic kraut.

"Aw, can't ye see? ye big slob, dats a note. Gimme a nickel. De fellow wat gimme dat note to fetch you, said you would gimme a nickel."

"Vots dat you say? you rat! I preak every bone loose in your shkin—Whos dem notes from?"

"Waal, read it, see!" said the boy.

"I doan can read Eng——. Say, Sergeant Young, py golly, how you doing anyhow? I'm glat to seeing you. Vair you pin so lonk? I doan see you for a mont," said Schmidt, as he wiped his hands on an empty coffee sack that he had wrapped around the auger used in exploring the kraut that had, by this, time imparted an illicit odor to the atmosphere in the store. "Shake hands, I van't to ashk you off you will read dees poys note vots bringt here to me. I doan can read English, needer can Herman, my clairk. You yoost come in goot time."

Sargeant Young took the note and glanced over it. It read as follows:

SCHMIDT—You kin cum and help me. I am stalded. The horse kaint pull out by the Sitty Horspittal.

JOHN, ON THE DILIVER WAIGON.

"So, so!" said Schmidt, excitedly. "Here, Herman, kum on. Go yoost mit dis poy, John he ish shtayin shtickin mit de waigon out by de hoshpitawl. Go on now, hoary oop. I exshpeck dot poy ish grazy, unt dat horse und dot heafy load. I till you, Herman, not to put dem seeks flour on for Meeses Meyer does load. Say, boy, here ish one extraas neekel for you makin hoory. Delephone me, Herman, how it—." But Herman and the boy were gone.

"I doan think," said Schmidt to Sergeant Young, "dot dot vaigon preak down he's got good shprings. I git him from some grocery shtore paper vot gives a vaigon mit one year's sumscriptions off you guess how much pounds dot vaigon veigh. I guess she veigh 900 poun and a little more, und I vins. Dot's de feerst time I efer haf do paper, awer its a pully dings. I keeps him him now every year. Might I git anonner vaigon. Say, Surgent, you tink I bin too old already to learning to read English?"

"No, I think not, if you go to some good school they will teach you in a short while so you will be able to at least read and write English fairly well."

"So! Vell, I likes to do dot. You see, I going to learn dot, for I gittin a letter letz veek fon a feller in Ny Yorrick, und I doan can read it, und I cum potty near loosing a pile off money. Awer a young shtranger he coom in here und he read it for me. It shtood in dem letters dot if I would send him finefty dawler he vill send me two hundred und finefty, yoost so good. Awer maybe torn up a leetle. He say, I moos not tol any body, awer I know you been a fine friend of mine, und dots all right. I pin oxshpectin dot money now pooty soon, as I send mine finefty avay already a veek."

The Sergeant became interested. This was an old game with a slight variation that had been played on Schmidt.

"Say, Schmidt," said he, "do you ever expect to get that money?"

"Vy shure I do. Dot shtranger vot read my letter say he know dot Ny York fellow putty vell, und he is good as goold."

The Sergeant laughed as he said: "Schmidt, those fellows are 'green goods' men. They never will send you a dollar, and you have lost your $50 besides. I think it is time you were learning to read English so you can read the daily papers."

Schmidt got pale, and his hand trembled as he took his drooping mustache out of a "stein" of beer, and he now thoroughly resembled a walrus from out a "white cap."

"Say, sergeant," said Schmidt imploringly, dropping both elbows on the counter, "You sure tink dots so?" Off mine vife finds out dot, I lose dem fimfty dawlers. I pin getting more fuss as I can purty near shtand. You tink I could maybe get em back, eh?" asked Schmidt, as he dusted out an open box of rock-candy on the base shelf.

"No, sir; I don't think so," said the sergeant, "that money is gone—good-bye fifty," and the sergeant made a skyward motion with both hands, at the same time, giving vent to the meaning words, "phit! phit!"

"Say, sergeant," yelled Schmidt, "I bin giving you many drinks und I treat you always pooty nice, now the less vot you shell do, I tink, is not laugh by dis trooble, Donnerwetter, Ich glaube ich bin verrickt," and Schmidt went back to his storeham, but this time took "hard goods," saying as he did so. "I bet you I learn English, und den I read every baper in dees country, und de next feller vot dries to fool mit me, he gits a shwipe vot doos him good. Hello, here is Herman! Vell, hows dem vaigon?"

Herman told him it was all right, and while he busied himself scraping the mud from his clothes, Schmidt said, "Herman, ven my vife comes down shtares yoost tell her I am gone oop town to pay every tam lodge vot I owe. Tell her It vill cosht me about finefty dawlers, und if she doan like so much oxshpence she can tell me, und I vill drop lots of insurance."

And as he and the Sergeant went out of the door, Schmidt was heard to remark: "I got to make dem oxshpenses count oop finefty dawlers pooty soon. Some how annonner."

Schmidt bade the Sergeant good bye, and jumping on the car said to him: "Yoost vait till I read English once feerst rate."—W. E. Robertson in Interstate Grocer.

A GREEN GOODS MAN IN THE TOILS

The Boston Post has been instrumental in leading to the arrest of one of those clever scoundrels who lure silly and greedy people to meetings with them for the purpose of dealing in green goods. The reporter to whom was assigned the work of answering a letter offering a green goods deal to a merchant who had turned over the letter to the paper. The reporter's name is Wall, and this is his experience after he meets Lafforgue the letter-writer:

They stumbled up a dark and narrow stairway to the second floor. There after a series of wonderful and mysterious signals and countersigns, they were allowed to enter a small room over which a young man presided.

"Father is ill," this young man said, addressing Wall. "I'm sorry, because I would like to have you meet him. But I'll show you the goods."

A big pile of good money was then shown to Wall. While he was examining it there was a rap at the door, and a gray-haired man entered. He was the sick father. The son embraced him, and congratulated him upon being able to get out, and then introduced him to the victim from Boston.

At 11 o'clock Saturday morning Wall returned to the Elizabeth street joint, where he met Lafforgue and the rest of the gang. He had seen James and Jacobs in the meantime.

When Wall entered the room he found the old man sitting at a desk, which opened at the top, with a big package of good money before him. The old fellow allowed Wall to examine the money, and then asked him to sign his name in the "order book." He raised the lid of the desk, handed the "order book" to Wall, and while the latter was laboriously struggling with his name the old man substituted the usual package of green paper for the package of good money.

Lafforgue then picked up this package, and requested Wall to accompany him to the Adams Express office. Lafforgue took Wall a few doors below, and entered an office on the ground floor, which was fitted up exactly like a branch express office. There were trunks and boxes and packages upon the floor, and a clerk behind the counter. This clerk accepted the package, and gave Lafforgue a receipt written upon a regular Adams's Express blank. Lafforgue paid $1, and put the receipt in his pocket.

Lafforgue then suggested that they go to the Chase National Bank and see if the certificate of deposit would be honored. James and Jacobs, the detectives had been there for some time, arranging for the green goods man's reception. The bank officials allowed Inspector James to take the numbers of six $50 certificates and to mark them for identification.

The two men then went out, followed by James and Jacobs. Lafforgue led Wall up Nashua street to a saloon at Fulton and Nashua streets. The post office inspectors went in also. Lafforgue took Wall into the washroom, where he exchanged the spurious express receipt for the $300 of good bills. As Lafforgue, whose real name is Oliver Goyett, came out into the saloon Inspector Jacobs snapped a pair of handcuffs upon his wrists.

A most interesting relic of the long ago has been in the hands of Mr. A. Tytler, grocer, London, Ont., for the last week or two. It is a copy of the Aberdeen Journal, published in Mr. Tytler's native city in 1780.

Messrs. Wetmore, in the country market, informs the St. John, (N.B.) Sun that they have within a short time this year paid $1,500 to one Ontario dealer for butter from that province. This is not creamery, but dairy produce, such as is furnished by the New Brunswick farmers in quantities insufficient for the demand. A firm on the South market wharf has also handled a large quantity of Ontario dairy butter.

A report in the "Chemiker Zeitung" states the fruit of the wax palm (Corypha cerifera, L.) is being used in Brazil as a coffee substitute. The fruit of this tree is of a stony concistency, which, however, disappears during the roasting process to which it is subjected for the purpose of manufacturing it into "coffee."

The Diamond Puzzle is the name of an exercise in ingenuity and constructiveness that the T. A. Snider Preserving Co. of Cincinnati, O., are handing round to the buyers of their goods. The public in the county of Kent have been cheerfully paying low prices for coffee in 25-lb. cans, which an oily-tongued fakir peddled among them till they began to find out the so-called coffee was only browned navy beans flavored with coffee-essence. This is the class of traders Inland Revenue inspectors should watch.

A fire broke out the other afternoon in the grocery store of Letourneau & Frere, Richelieu street, Quebec, and before the flames were extinguished damage was done to the extent of several thousand dollars. The firm had no insurance, but the building, owned by Mr. Falardeau, of St. Rochs, was insured for $3,000, which will more than cover the loss.

The first parade of the 48th Highlanders last Sunday drew attention to the large number of grocers in the Militia force in Toronto. They are also equally well represented in other parts of Canada. The Mayor of Montreal says that hardly a week passes that he does not receive letters from nuns, ministers and priests asking him to give licenses to poor men or women to sell trinkets in a basket, and he had several of these for which the recipients had paid instalments of $5 or $6. The Mayor said it was better and cheaper to do as he had done than to send these people to jail.

J. W. Waddell has bought the stock and good will of the retail grocery business carried on by R. Kennedy, 313 King st. west, Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy are going to Great Britain for a few months' holiday. It is whispered that Mr. Kennedy is now so well off that he need not again embark on the stormy seas of business. Mr. Waddell is an energetic young man, under 30, with an experience of ten years in country and city trade and the prospects are that he will do a good business.

A proposed amendment to the Inland Revenue Act deals with the manufacture of cigars. As the law now stands cigars may be manufactured in packages of three, six and ten. This privilege was granted for the convenience of the public, but it had resulted in the manufacturers carrying on a retail trade, which was inconsistent with the Government supervision of the factories. It was, therefore, deemed advisable to enact that cigars should not be sold in packages less than one hundred. This would not prevent the manufacturers from putting up cigars in packages of three, six and ten, but they must not sell them.

Burglars broke into the store of Mr. W. R. Foot, of Parry Sound, one night lately. They bored three holes into the vault, put in powder and blew the door open and took $200, all the money there was there. Mr. Foot is treasurer of the town, and had returned from Toronto the day previous, where he had negotiated debentures to the amount of $28,000, which had been borrowed for paying for water-works. It had been announced in the papers that these debentures had been sold, and it is believed that Mr. Foot was followed home by experienced burglars who went after the $28,000.

EMPLOYER AND CLERK.

In the last issue of the New York Christian Advocate there appears in its column of "Questions and Answers," the following interesting problem :

Q. 3,644. Suppose a man not very popular with his costomers, but having some capital, has had a clerk for twenty years who is very popular, and who knows that at any time he wants to move across the street and set up business for himself all the customers will follow him. He has always been paid all the salary he wanted and all the business would afford, but being tired of working for others, and wishing to have a business that he could transmit to his sons, has he or has he not the right to demand to be taken into partnership, and, if not granted, leave and establish business for himself.

A. He certainly has. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." The law does not say more.

Fair play between employer and those who have contributed to the success of a business would go far to reduce competition. The world has endorsed the proposition, that "the laborer is worthy of his hire." Such cases as the above are constantly arising and unfortunately in small towns and villages, where a multiplication of stores is not desirable. There is enough trade to make one store profitable and not enough to insure good profits to two or more.

It frequently happens that a capable clerk with strong personal characteristics becomes, through intimate association with customers, very popular. They not only like him, but take an interest in his prosperity. His hold upon patrons becomes stronger when, as in the case cited, the proprietor lacks those qualities which are calculated to make him popular. It is good policy to give such a clerk a just share of the earnings of the business. It cements the relations between employer and clerk, as well as between customer and clerk. It places a premium on the popular man putting forth extra exertion to increase the business. If, however, he desires to be independent and hoe his own row, he has a perfect right to open a store and use every legitimate mefins he can to gain patronage.

There are, however, popular clerks who are unscrupulous and who, harboring an intent to start in business for themselves, deliberately set to work to undermine the reputation of their employer. They insinuate that they were driven to start for themselves because of the dishonesty and incompetency of their employer. They intimate that he has too many tricks of trade for them to remain and keep a good conscience. We recall an instance where a hard-working and popular but dishonest clerk falsified passbooks and created errors in accounts, in order to discredit his employer and pave his way for an easy capture of customers wholly under his influence.

The competition started by former clerks is frequently a source of great annoyance, the starting point of slander and abuse.

Dealers who are capable and whose character is of the best can afford to let such a clerk go on his way without attempting to counteract his work of defamation and injury. Nothing can destroy character, although reputation may suffer for a time. The people are not long in detecting pure gold from dross, and when they have been deceived and find it out the reaction is great in favor of the injured party.

Equity between employer and clerk is calculated to prevent the best helpers assuming the care and risk of an independent business.—American Grocer.

TORONTO MARKET.

TORONTO, April 28, 1892.

The date is almost the only particular in which this week's report is essentially different from last week's. Very minor are the changes that have occurred since the last issue. Trade is still but fairly good as to volume, and still unsatisfactory in many lines as to profits. Farmers are busy seeding, and are bringing no pressure on retail merchants to hurry up supplies. Cheapness is promoting business in such lines as Valencia raisins, but sugars are very quiet. Trade is of a general character. Teas continue active. The volume of business done now would undoubtedly compare favorably with that of the corresponding part of last year, but lower prices from one cause and another make a disadvantageous comparative showing in the money columns. The reports of payments are of the usual variable character. As to prospects they are generally regarded as bright, in their relation to the volume of goods likely to be moved, but there is no very sanguine feeling with regard to prices. Sugar may advance, but its immobility for so long a time past does not furnish much warrant for the belief that it will advance. Fruits are likely to be cheap till the new crop comes to market. The abundance of low grade tea makes the market rather unresponsive to the tendency of late big sales, good prices and present scarcity of medium to choice teas.

COFFEES.

Selling has not expanded appreciably during the week, purchases being kept down to limits defined by momentary necessities, the object being apparently less to take advantage of prices than to have stock always fresh. Rios are steady at 17 to 21c., V.O.G. Javas go as high as 34c., this figure being for fine colory stock. Padang is steady at 27 to 31c.

DRIED FRUITS.

The market for Valencia raisins has this redeeming feature about it that the stock is selling well. Low prices are inviting the demand from retail stores, but while this demand is expanding, the supply is increasing rapidly. With the increase in the supply the deterioration in the quality keeps pace, and rubbishy stock abounds. So bad is the quality of some low grades that three cars were refused last week on the plea that they were unfit to sell. Offers have been made by New York shippers, it is claimed, at 1c. Not alone here is the stock excessive, but it is said to be very heavy also in Montreal. Old Valencias it is said can be bought at 20c. a box in New York, where the quantity held is very large. Some local jobbers who bought at 2c. are naturally sorry they did not wait for the last break. Quotations to retailers may be classed as follows: Fine Valencias 4½ to 5½c.; American staple Valencias 3½ to 4½c. There is nothing heard of in the way of new Valencias offering to retailers under 3½c. Currants go steadily and regularly into trade at 4¾c. and upwards, with quotations to arrive at 4½c. The sample on which latter quotation is made is very poor. Prunes are quiet. In no other line is there any special feature to note.

Jas. Morand & Co., of Denia, in their annual circular, say: "The price opened at $4 per cwt. or quintal first cost, but the heavy duty in the U.S. of America, added to the competition of the California produce which Valencia raisins now meet with, caused the demand from the U.S. to stand very limited, and consequently prices lowered considerably in the course of the season, in spite of the firmness of farmers declining to deliver their sound and fine fruit at a price which does not cover the cost of cultivation, &c., the stock remaining in their hands at this season of the year being for that reason so large. Looking for some protection to the increased plantation and chief production of this district, so seriously injured by the falling demand, the inhabitants have sent a committee to Madrid, for the purpose of inducing the Government to use their influence with the nations principally consuming raisins to lower their import duties on that article. In England the matter is also worked with great zeal, which leads to hope that some success may be obtained there. The thing looks differently with regard to the United States of America, where no reduction, at least for the present, is to be expected.

NUTS AND PEELS.

A light demand rules, and no change has grown out of the week's business. Valencia shelled almonds are in some request at steady prices. Lemon peel is 16c., orange peel 17c., and citron 25 to 27.

RICE AND SPICES.

Rice is steady at 3⅞c. to 4⅛c. for B, the lowest figure being quoted by holders of stock bought before the advance. A fair business is reported. In choice grades, as Japans and Javas, the market is firm and trade moderately good.

Spices fail to attract much attention these days. Fluctuations in primary markets do not affect prices perceptibly here.

CANNED GOODS.

The variations that this week's report must turn upon are briefly these: Stock is in fewer hands, prices are a shade firmer, the demand is moving occasional car lots, business is backward in futures. Two cars of corn and peas have been shipped to Winnipeg since last report, and the run of the demand in the form of sorting orders has been well kept up. While for staples all the signs of the market are healthy, and the stock apparently becoming concentrated, there does not appear to be any grounds for expecting a sharp advance, as stock is not so near depletion as to urge to any stiffening in value that might check the demand. Perhaps not all the demand will be needed, but there is no disposition to slight any that comes. It is still an open question whether there will be enough, too little or too much stock to last out the season, and when the situation is in that shape the market is interesting to everybody. Staple goods, as corn, peas and tomatoes, are about all that there is any call for. Other vegetables are neglected. As to fruits, the prospect of an undesirable surplus being carried over into next year is a very strong one. Salmon and all canned fish are quiet, being left alone quite generally after Lent.

Says the B. C. Commercial Journal: British Columbia fishermen—particularly those engaged in the catch of salmon and halibut—must be highly gratified by the extension of the market which they aim to supply with the fresh article. Indeed, as far as the Fraser River industry is concerned, they appear to have a demand from the East that will more than make up for the decreased consumption by the canning establishments. This is most encouraging to one section of the interested

For making tomato pulp and preparing pumpkin and squash for canning is very well known to all the canners in the United States, and a few of them are in use in Canada. The high tariff has prevented their being used extensively heretofore.

We are now manufacturing these machines at Oakville, Ont., to enable our Canadian friends to obtain them without paying a heavy duty; but we shall make only a few of them unless ordered. Those who contemplate purchasing, should send their orders promptly to insure the saving of duty, as late orders will have to be filled from stock in the United States which will be subject to a 30 per cent duty.

SUGAR.

Sugar is very slow of sale, and there is noticeable some weakening in the resolution of jobbers to get business in granulated entirely off a 4½c. basis. Sales have been made this week at 4½c., but it is pleaded in extenuation that the business done at this figure is on contracts made several weeks ago. It appears to be as much owing to dulness as to any other cause. There are several wholesalers, however, who hold out for 4⅝c. Jobbers are not bringing much sugar into stock, firstly, because not much is required, and secondly, because they have but a few days to wait to get the advantage of vessel freight. Yellows are quiet from 3½c. upwards, lowest quotation being more general than it was a week ago, owing to the large quantity of raw sugar that is held here at low prices. Louisiana raws in barrels quote at 3½c.; Barbados in barrels at 3⅞c., and in hogsheads at 3⅝c.; Demeraras at 4⅜c. The sugar market shows little immediate sign of advance, but the wary buying operations of the United States Sugar Trust favor the suspicion that it is the aim of that concern to try and effect a corner in Cuban raws. Probably when they get loaded up prices will be advanced. At present they are buying in a desultory way, Boston being on the market to-day, Philadelphia to-morrow, and so on, their object plainly being to worry importers. They perceive that once the raw sugar is afloat the importers are under a pressure to sell. An advance in the price of sugar would not be a surprise, in the face of statistics that are supposed to estimate the beet crop closely.

Willett & Gray, New York, in their sugar Statistical say :

Raws—There has nothing occurred to change the conditions from last week. Buyers have taken all the lots offered rather freely, at full quotations, until they have a quite liberal stock, and would, perhaps, rather not take any more for near-by delivery. Sellers, however, show some anxiety, being influenced by the continued depression of the European markets, which is bringing the quotation of beet sugar nearer to the parity of cane for our market. The exports from Germany during March were only about 60,000 tons, against 125,000 tons for same month last year, and the accumulated stocks make increased exports desirable, especially as the new rates of decreased bounty which come into force October 1, will make it necessary, or desirable, that the entire balance of the present crop of beet root sugars in Germady shall be exported before that time, as no qualification of the law was made to protect sugars on hand, October 1, against the reduction in bounty. Naturally, therefore there is more or less anxiety and disappointment at the long-delayed demand from the United States, and it is possible prices may be brought down to the competing point with Cuba sugars. Cuba has still a very considerable amount of crop to dispose of before reaching the point at which they will be willing to hold the remainder for better prices.

Refined—There is not the amount of snap and vigor to the market that ought to be showing itself at this season, still it is a very healthy and satisfactory market to the extent of a fairly good demand while nearing a hand-to-mouth basis, and any change should be to an increased business. Several grades of softs have been reduced in prices. The new bounty law, which goes into effect in Germany, October 1, is causing German refiners some anxiety, as consumers are buying very sparingly and consumption is apparently decreasing. The new law will enable refiners to sell for home consumption two marks per 100 kilogrammes (2.16c. per lb) cheaper than now, which should again increase the consumption of Germany after October 1 ; and, as the bounty on exported refined will be correspondingly decreased, it ought to have the effect of increasing present sales of refined for export, but thus far sufficient inducements are not offered in prices to tempt any importations of German granulated to the United States. A further concession has been made here to grocers of 1.16c per lb, bringing net prices to refiners down to 4.18c for granulated.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.

Syrup is dull. There is stock offering at 1⅞c, but buyers seldom take anything below 2c. All syrup prices are low and easy. United States stock still depresses values.

Molasses just moves. A good West Indian is offered at 3c. a pound, and is held to be equal to the finest syrup. Low prices for syrups make them a strong rival of molasses.

TEAS.

The movement of medium and choice Japans to Chicago and other United States points has stopped for want of stock on this market, but some sales have been made since last week's report. Fifty half chests of good medium Japan were sold in Chicago at a cent and a half above prices obtainable here, the additional half cent having been conceded by the buyers after failure to purchase last week. There is a splendid demand for this description of teas just now, but the stock of teas from 18c. up is very low. During the present season the sale of teas has been larger than ever before, but prices are so low that less money has been taken for tea than a year ago. Assam and Ceylon teas are in request and selling freely at steady prices.

The Produce markets Review says :—"Indian tea has been more freely offered, including a fairly good assortment of medium and fine grades. These have been actively dealt in at firm to advancing prices, the market again closing strong with a tendency to a further upward movement. The liberal supplies of Ceylon tea now coming forward, which were expected to check the advance in Indian growths, have so far had no effect, and it appears probable, with a further curtailment of good Indian grades, which is almost certain to take place later on, the rise established will be increased. For the common description the demand has slightly improved, but the quantity placed on the market has been amply sufficient to meet the enquiry, and consequently prices have been barely maintained. The deliveries for the past month were unusually large, as will be seen by the figures below, but, owing to larger imports, the surplus stock has not been materially reduced, and is still about 6,000,000 lbs. in excess of the preceding year, although only about 3,000,000 lbs. larger than in 1890. The demand for Indian tea for other markets is steadily increasing, but the rate of progess is not sufficient to relieve this market of the additional supplies promised in the coming and ensuing seasons. It is understood, however, that greater efforts will be made to produce tea that will more effectively meet the requirements of an export demand. There are two important things to be considered, especially for the developement of the export demand from America and Canada, namely, the size of the leaf and of the packages. The former should correspond as nearly as possible with the leaf of China Congou, and a good proportion of the tea should be packed in half-chests, containing about sixty pounds. There is little change of any kind in the position of Ceylon teas. A fair quantity has been offered, but the indifference of the dealers to go farther into stock has been about balanced by the apparant willingness of brokers to buy over, and consequently there is no quotable change in values. The quality of the teas has been fairly maintained, as the present standard now goes, but it is seldom, if ever possible to match the thick juicy teas which were the rule rather than the exception two seasons ago. The imports for the month were only 710,026 lbs. in excess of last year's, but the stock still stands at a rather high figure, namely, 16,686,854 lbs., as against 11,779,720 lbs. on March 31, 1891. The exports from Colombo, according to the latest advices, dated March 7, were 11,226,61 lbs., or nearly 1,000,000 lbs. in excess of last year."

MARKETS—Continued.

MARKET NOTES.

Mr. Cutler of the Halifax Sugar Refinery has been in the city the past few days. He made some advantageous offers.

Cables from Bordeaux advise heavy frosts and serious damage to the crop of peas, and as a result all offers of stock for forward shipment have been withdrawn.

Perkins, Ince & Co. made a large sale of good medium Japan teas on Chicago account the other day. The price was a strong advance on what could be realized on this market.

Smith & Keighley the other day made a large sale of tomato pulp, a by-product made in the canning of tomatoes. Until three years ago the pulp was waste matter. Now it is put up in gallon cans, and being clear of either the skin or the fibre of the tomato, it is an excellent basis of tomato soup, and is bought by soup manufacturers, restaurant people, etc. It is the excess fluid matter of the tomato that canners separate from the residum that they put up as canned tomatoes.

Wilkins & Co., Adamsville, Que., have booked orders for maple products with leading merchants in British Columbia, but fear they will not be able to get forward full supplies when delivery is due.

Wright & Copp have secured the agency for "Tuxedo Table Jelly," one of our "American Cousins," finest table delicacies in the shape of gelatine preparations. It is composed of the finest French gelatine, sugar and distilled fruit juice, blended together and flavored by a secret process which produces a splendid time-saving luxury, and one that has become wonderfully popular in the States. The manufacturers have spent a large amount of money in experiments, and use nothing but the best of raw materials in its preparation. Housekeepers will welcome gladly anything that will enable them to prepare so fine a dessert, with such a number of flavors, in a very few minutes without the aid of other material.

PETROLEUM.

A light business both locally and for shipping has been transacted. Prices are low and show no prospect of strengthening. The quotation for Canada refined is 14 to 14½c.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports : Petrolia crude $1.24 per barrel ; Oil Springs crude $1.24½ per bbl. The main features of the refined oil market are very similar to those which have prevailed for the past three or four weeks. At intervals a fair degree of life to business is shown, but this is offset in a good measure by intervals of dulness, and the aggregate movement therefore, runs very little if at all in excess of the previous average this last month. As usual under the circumstances values are not supposed to be quite as steady as might be wished, but at the same time show no greater variation than is experienced on a quiet market. The Premier Oil Co. having closed their works for the present, fine "cuts" on refined illuminating oils are not so much the order of the day. Although the heaviest part of the business is over for the season, the Imperial Oil Co. are running right along as their enormous amount of Canadian business would warrant them to do. The dulness of the crude oil trade may be said to be in a measure incidental to the season, large sales being ordinarily exceptional at this time of the year. But such an explanation is only partial. Manufacturers have for some time past been buying only in quantities to supply immediate wants ; as a consequence, their stocks outside of some of the largest refineries is unusually low even for the season of the year, and it would not be unnatural for them to manifest more anxiety, if not to replenish them at least to keep them up to a somewhat better standard. The truth is, however, that the trade is outspoken in its denunciation of the policy of maintaining present illuminating oil prices. Steadiness they say is one of the most desirable characteristics of any market, but they add, "there is such a thing as too much steadiness." The price paid for crude during the busy season now about

FLOUR AND FEED.

The market has had some slight relief since last week, a few cars having been moved on eastern account. Prices are unchanged, and stocks stored at the mills large. Buyers still keep their offers down to the lowest basis, and business lags. The prospects are no brighter than they were. Feed goes out at its usual rate.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are : Manitoba patents, $5.10 ; strong bakers', $4.65 ; Ontario patents, $4.80 ; straight roller, $4.40 ; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.50.

Car prices are : Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $5.10 to $5.30 ; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.65 to $4.90 ; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.90 ; straight roller, $3.95 to $4.00 ; extra, $3.25 to $4.00 ; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

MEAL- Oatmeal is $3.90 to $4.00. Cornmeal is $4.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is $4.50 per barrel.

FEED—Bran is $14 to $15, shorts $15 to $16, mixed feed $23 to $25, cracked corn $1.15, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 31 to 32c.

HAY—is fairly active at $12 to $12.50 for No.1 timothy and $10 to $10.50 for mixed.

STRAW—is steady at $6 to $6.50.

MONTREAL.

Buyers are still very indifferent, and the actual amount of business doing seems to be confined to lots offering at below market quotations. The stock in store on Saturday last showed an increase of 1211 barrels when compared with the same day of the week previous and a decrease of 1787 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote: Patent, spring $5 to $5.20 ; patent, winter $4.90 to $5 ; straight roller, $4.40 to $4.55 ; extra, $4.15 to $4.25 ; superfine, $3.90 to $4.00 ; fine, $3.30 to $3.65 ; strong bakers, $4.60 to $5 00.

Oatmeal.—The state of the market is discouraging in the extreme to holders. There is at present no enquiry from shipping buyers and the home demand is quite insufficient to absorb the current production. The disposition to concede is in consequence more marked than ever. The stock in store on Saturday last showed an increase of 130 barrels when compared with the same day of the week previous, and an increase of 4841 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote :—Granulated, bbls. $3.95 to $4 ; Rolled, bbls. $3.95 to $4 ; Standard, bbls. $3.85 to $3.90 ; Granulated in bags $1.92½ to $1.95 ; Rolled in bags $1.92½ to $1.95 ; Standard, in bags $1.85 to $1.90.

Feed.—The market is a shade more active at prices last quoted. Bran selling at about $15.50, shorts at $16 to $17, and mouillie at $20 to $23.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Flour—is again reported a trifle lower, and from present appearances still further concessions will be required to create a good general demand. At time of writing business is purely of local character. Quotations are about 5c. per bbl. less than last week.

Meal—There is no change to report in oat or corn meal. Prices rule steady with a fair demand.

A customer secured is a promise of greater salary in time.

Goods conveniently located save time, money and temper in showing.

Soap and water are cheap, but soil on goods is expensive.

over should have given the refiners a cent or so more than what they have been getting ; anyway it is pretty well understood that there were several reasons why they or some of them were not inclined to accept the situation.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Receipts of butter increase, and the market is sufficiently supplied for all the needs of the moment. Any special call, however, would require some little time to enable dealers to get their hands on enough stock to meet it. The supply is even more than ever in the form of large rolls. The new butter is about altogether of this description. Tubs are at a premium as compared with rolls, and fine dairy butter in tubs is good for as high as 19c., if the quality is really first-class. Creamery tub, though offering, is slow of sale, its advantage having slipped away with the incoming of dairy butter of the new make. In medium butter the market is not over-supplied, though it is not in special need of a stronger supply than is now coming in, which begins to be as much dedependent as the demand was a while. The figures ruling are 13 to 15c. More common butter could find sale if it were forthcoming, bakers keeping up a good demand throughout the spring. It runs out at 11 to 13c. The prospsct is that butter will be fairly plentiful soon. Prices are steady, with no perceptible tendency one way or the other.

New cheese is offered by the manufacturers at 10¼c. Little buying has been done so far on this market, where the supply of old has not yet run out, and where the demand for old has still the preference at 11¾ to 12c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES—Are $2 to $3 per barrel, overplentiful so far as the limits of the current demand go, and very wasty, re-packing being a cause of loss to holders. Though prices are lower this week, the apples cost dealers just as much, on account of the waste which occurs in a few days. Russets are now the solidest fruit, and they cannot be kept long without big loss in bulk.

BEANS—The buying side of the market is still unequal to the task of balancing the supply, which is very large.

Business is dull and prices are both low and weak, 90c. to $1 being the run of quotations for cars, and $1.05 to $1.20 for small lots.

DRIED APPLES—Everything seems against improvement in the market, round lots continuing at 4 to 4¼c. and smaller quantities at 4½c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Are dull, weak and lower, the range being 7 to 7½c.

EGGS—The market has its ups and downs. At moment of writing it is firm at 11c.

HIDES—No change is to be reported, 4½c. being still the basis for green No. 1 cows'. Cured are steady at 5c.

HONEY—Is duller than ever and is also lower, 8 to 9c. being the prices for good extracted, and 13 to 15c. for sections.

HOPS—The condition of the market is unchanged. Some business is reported. Prices are 19 to 24c. for new, and 16 to 18c. for yearlings.

ONIONS—Are steady and on the firm side at $2.25 to $2.75 per barrel.

POTATOES—Offers are free on a basis of 29 to 30c., but buyers are scarce, and never take more than a car at a time. Out of store prices are 40c., and under.

TALLOW—Is easier at 5 to 5½c for refined and 1½ to 2c. for rough.

WOOL—Is very dull at 18c. for fleeces.

PROVISIONS.

The lots moving these days are generally small-sized, but the aggregate of the orders keeps up a good healthy draft upon supplies. Prices remain as quoted last weed.

BACON—Long clear is 7½ to 8c., smoked backs are 10c., bellies 9½ to 10c., rolls 8½ to 8¾c.

HAMS—Are steady at 10½ to 11c.

LARD—Pure is active at 10 to 10½c. for tubs and pails. Compound is quieter at 8 to 8½c.

BARREL PORK—U. S. heavy mess is $13 to $14, Canadian $15, short cut $16 to $16.50.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef is 4 to 5c. in fore and 7 to 7½c. in hindquarters, lamb is 8 to 10½c., mutton 7 to 7½c., veal 7 to 7½c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Green fruit is fairly active. In oranges the prices are easier in all but fancy Valencia fruit, which is held more firmly and at higher quotations, $6 to $6.50 being now the ruling figures, as Valencias are becoming scarce. The demand for oranges is all the brisker on account of the rapid progress towards exhaustion of all native fresh fruits, apples becoming now soft and not keeping well. Florida oranges are unchanged at $4.50 to $5, and are in chief request. A mistake made by the shippers of California oranges at the outset of the season was their sending forward frost-touched fruit. This gave California oranges a bad name at the start, and now they are hard to sell, buyers of stock arriving by the first shipment being determined to run no risk of a second loss. The fruit is now in excellent condition, and gives satisfaction to all who handle it. Seedlings are easier at $3 to $3.75, Navals unchanged at $4.50 to $5. Messina oranges are selling freely at $4. Lemons are likely to be a drug, as supplies are liberal on spot, prices are easy in New York, and the first boats, the Charrington and the Fremona, are in Montreal with auction stocks. Prices at present are $2.75 to $3.75. Pineapples are very abundant and cheap, the range being 8 to 30c. Bananas are very plentiful also at $1.35 to $2. Fifteen cars have arrived this week. Sweet potatoes are steady at $2.75 to $4.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Present advices indicate a very considerable shortage in the crop, slightly more than half the expected yield being the estimate now given of the season's product. The run of sap on the 15th, 16th and 17th was good, but since that it has been disappointing. The farmers realize that they have the advantage and are holding for high prices, knowing that the output of the season has been sold to arrive by leading distributors. The quality is not equal to that of former years, on account of unfavorable weather.

The following is the wholesale price list for maple syrup in screw top cans : Tall Round Can,—say 11 lbs. gross 85c. ; Half Can,—say 5¾ lbs., gross 42½c. ; Small Can, say 2½ lbs., gross per doz., $2.40.

IN BULK.—Kegs. per Imp. Gal. (12 to 15 gals. each.) 90c. ; Small Bbls., per Imp. Gal. 90c.

Pure Maple Sugar, in 1 lb Cakes, per lb. 9c. ; Pure Maple Sugar say in 3 to 5 lb. Cakes, per lb. 8½c.

FISH.

Salmon trout gets the chief demand these days, and white fish comes in next. The price of salmon trout is 6 to 7c. Frozen sea herring are up to $2 and $2.25 per hundred by count.

The B. C. Commercial Journal says : The run of spring salmon on the Fraser is reported as improving steadily and the catches of the fishermen are increasing. These fish are in good demand in the Eastern markets, to which most of the catch goes. The Danube, which sailed on Saturday, took a large quantity of supplies for northern canneries, where preparations are being made for the canning season, which begins in May, when the sock eye salmon begin to run. The Fraser river canneries do not usually begin packing till June, and generally continue until September, when the sock eye run completely falls off, giving place to the cohoes, which, however are not put up by the canneries.

SALT.

A steady trade goes on in the descriptions usually called for at this time of year. Among the sales made are to be mentioned a car of barrel salt at $1.20, a car of coarse salt at 70c., a car of dairy sacks at $1.25.

DRY GOODS.

An uneventful week has been put in in the dry goods market, where business has been but fair and prices generally steady. The ripples caused by the formation of the cotton combine have cleared away, and no other exciting occurrence has come to take the place of that.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, April 28, 1892.

Business in the grocery trade is on the same footing this week as last. It is reported that the refiners have come down 1-16th of a cent in the price of granulated sugar. This has a tendency to increase the volume of trade a little, but as yet the business doing is only fair. Black teas are in good demand this week, and the same may be said of Japans, that is in the high grade lines, while the low grade stock is quiet. Dried fruit is quiet. Green fruit has stiffened up during the week owing to the arrival of the Mediterranean boats. There are a lot of big buyers in town waiting for the fruit sales, which take place at the end of the week. The wholesale trade say their men are doing a nice spring trade in all lines, and on the whole the trade are satisfied with the state of affairs. The French trade report the same lookout in their section of the country. Payments are now coming in better than they have for some time back. Manufacturers' agents are satisfied with the outlook for the coming summer.

SUGAR.

Locally the sugar market is about in the same footing as last week with only a fair trade doing. It is reported here the Lower Province refiners are offering sugar at 4¾c. for granulated and have in consequence been getting the business. The quotation here is 4½ but one of the local refiners is said to be selling at 4 7-16 and would no doubt make further concessions on a large order. Cable advices from Great Britain report that cane is very inactive and beet quiet. The majority of the wholesale trade here are selling at 4⅝ but it is claimed that one or two of them are selling at a much lower figure. One firm not connected with the Cuild says that they are selling at regular prices and do not intend to do business at a loss but say they are prepared to meet any cut the other houses will make. The general tone of the market is quiet with only a fair jobbing trade doing. We quote : Granulated 4½ to 4 9-16c. ; yellows, low grade, 3½ to 3¾c., and yellows bright 3¾ to 4¼c.

It is reported round the street that both the big sugar refineries will meet the cut made by the Lower Province people and that they are now selling at the 1-16 under the half. Reports say that sales have been made as low as 4⅜c.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The syrup market is still dull, with only a few small lots of Canadian bright colors, the only sales reported, on spot. American syrups continue in fair demand at old prices. We quote 1½ to 2½ per pound. Molasses is moving out slowly in small lots at about 35c. Advices from Barbadoes say the market there is steady at 12c. with a fair demand. We quote Barbadoes 35 to 38c., American 28c. ; syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 30 to 45c. for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

There is a fair jobbing trade doing in maple syrup at prices quoted last, receipts during the week have been liberal and quite a few small lots have been sold. The stock of old is still very heavy and can be bought at easy prices. Sugar also has had a fair movement at regular prices for the new, but old stock can be had very cheap. We quote syrup new in tins 60 to 65c. per gallon and in wood at 5½ to 6c. per pound, old is hard to quote. Sugar is quoted at 8 to 8½c. for prime new stock and fancy cakes at 9c., old stock can be had at almost any price.

TEA.

During the week low grade blacks have been in good demand, but the stock in England is so low that orders cannot be filled. Japans are also in good demand for high grade stock ranging from 20 to 22c. per pound, but stocks of them here are on the light side, and holders are still firm in their ideas. Low grade Japans are still plentiful on spot, but do not meet with any enquiry. Ceylon teas are meeting with better sales every day, and seem to be growing in favor. Indian teas also meet with more enquiry than in former years. Brokers are advised that the market will open later this year than last owing to the recent cold weather.

COFFEE.

Coffees are a little more active than last week, but with the opening of navigation the business is expected to be still more active. Even now Maracaibos and Javas have had several enquiries. It is also reported that some round lots of Rios have been turned over during the week at from 17 to 19c. Jamaica is wanted but there is none in stock here. We quote :—Rio, 18 to 20c., Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c. ; Jamaica; 19 to 21c.; Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c.; Santos, 17½ to 19c.

RICE.

A good movement in rice has been reported during the week, both from the wholesale houses and the mills. The demand from Western houses is particularly good, and several car lots have been shipped during the week. Advices from Primary markets are still reported strong. Prices now are very firm, Patnas being quoted at $4.50 to $5. We quote Standard $4 to $4.10 Japan $4.50 to $5, Patnas $4.50 to $5, and Carolinas $7 to $8.

DRIED FRUIT.

The only business doing on spot in dried fruit is in a sorting up way, with nothing special to mention about the local market. It is reported here that New York dealers are offering Valencias at a very low figure, but could not say at what figure. Currants are in steady demand at 4¼ for common Provincals and 4¾ for choice qualities for jobbing lots. We quote :—Valencias, ordinary, 3½ to 4c. ; No. 1 off stalk, 4½c. ; layers, 6c. to 6¼c.; Patras currants, 5 to 5¼c; Vostizzas, in cases, 7½ to 8c.; provincial currants, 4⅞ to 5½c.

NUTS.

Nuts are having a fair jobbing movement to city traders, but outside of that there is not much doing on spot. Prices however remain the same as quoted in our last report. We quote :—Almonds Tarragona 13 to 13½c.; Almonds, Ivica 12 to 13c. ; Almonds, common 10 to 11c.; Almonds, hardshell 07 to 08c.; Walnuts, Grenoble, new 11 to 12c. ; Walnuts, French 10 to 10½c.; Cocoanuts per 100 $4.50 to $5 ; Filberts 9 to 10c.; Pecans 16 to 17c.; Peanuts 07 to 10c.

GREEN FRUIT.

The green fruit has shown more activity during the week on account of the two fruit boats having arrived. Valencias have stiffened in value during the week and are now selling at $6 to $6.50, Jamaicas in barels being $6 to $7, Floridas $3.75 to $4.25, Messinas $4 to $4.50, Jaffas $5 per box and $3 for half boxes, Blood $2.50 for half boxes and bitter at $2. Lemons will no doubt be selling cheaper after the fruit sale which takes place here on Thursday. We quote $2 to $3.75 per box, with only a jobbing trade doing at present. Pineapples are having a better movement at 15 to 20c. and sales are reported at both prices. Strawberries are still selling at 50c. per box for choice fruit, a few lots of cull stock bringing a less price, say 20 to 25c. Owing to the heavy receipts of bananas prices have fallen off during the week and are now quoted at $1.50 to $2.50 per bunch. Banana receipts for the week are put down at ten car loads.

APPLES.

The apple market is badly broken up, and sales have been made all the way from $1 to $2 for round lots. Good long keeping fancy stock sell in single barrels at $2.50 to $3, but the bulk of the stock is going much less. Extra fine stock sells at $3 to $3.50. A few sales have been reported in evaporated apples at 6½ to 7½c. for round lots. There has also been a few sales of smoke-damaged stock at 6c. We still quote 7 to 8c. Dried apples also having a little better enquiry this week at unchanged prices. We quote Eastern Townships at 5 to 5½c., and Western at 4½ to 5½c. according to quality. Evaporated peaches still sell at 12 to 13c. per tin.

HOPS.

The hop market is without change and the business doing here is still small, really choice Canadian stock bringing 22 to 24c. There is a lot of Bavarian hops on the market which were sent out on consignment which could be bought at a better price but could not say at what figure. Pressed hops are having a fair turnover among the wholesale trade and quite a few jobbing sales have been closed during the week. We quote bulk at 22 to 24c for Canadian and pressed at 16 to 17c for quarters, halves and pounds.

FISH.

The fish market on the whole is quiet and now that the Lenten season is over there is only a jobbing trade doing. In smoked fish the market is also quiet and devoid of any new feature. We quote No. 1 herring, per brl., $4.50 to $4.60; lake trout, per half brl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.25 to $8.75; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

We quote smoked Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.10 to $1.25; St. John's bloaters, per 100 box, 90c. to $1.10; boneless cod, large boxes, 6c. to 7c.; do. small boxes 7c. to 8c.

PROVISIONS.

The tone of the provision market, to day, shows a decided improvement. The demand for Ports being larger than usual, dealers claim to be holding off for our quotations. There are rumours afloat that Canadian short cut can be bought at easier prices. We quote: Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.25 to $16.50; mess pork, western, per brl. $15.00 to $16.25; short cut, western, per brl. $15.50 to $16.25; hams, city cured, per lb. 10c. to 10½c; lard, Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c; bacon per lb. 9c. to 10c; lard, com. refined, per lb. 7 to 7¼c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Butter does not furnish any interesting feature outside of a jobbing trade to our retail grocers. Receipts of new dairy stock are not large or near it as yet, and on being offered finds a fairly ready sale. New Township dairy sold in single tub lots to-day at 22c., while new creamery brings 23c. Western dairy was sold at 18c. Thes stock of old creamery on spot are being gradually reduced. We quote: Creamery, 22 to 23c.; Townships, dairy, new, 20 to 22c.; Morrisburg and Brockville, 18 to 19c.; Western dairy, 16 to 17c.

The only business doing on spot in cheese is a local jobbing trade to the retailers on a basis of 12 to 13c.

EGGS.

The egg market is very weak, 11 to 11½c. being about the idea. The receipts continue very heavy and the demand shows a steady falling off. Eggs have been so cheap that quite a large quantity have been consumed during the last few months, and people are apparently tired of them now. We give this as a reason for the falling off in the demand.

GRAIN.

The market continued easy to day and the week closes with no visible improvement over last; in fact, values at Chicago are a fraction lower. Cables do not afford any encouragement. Generally there is no change. No. 2 hard Manitoba, 93 to 95c; No. 3 do., 85 to 90c.; No. 1 Northern, 92 to 95c. peas, 70c. to 73c per 66 pounds; oats, 30 to 32c. per 34 pounds, corn, 55 to 60c., duty paid; feed barley, 40 to 42c.; good malting do., nominal.

The stocks of grain and flour in store in Montreal, show an increase of 15,966 bushels of wheat, 5,101 bushels of peas, 3,980 bushels of oats, 938 bushels of barley, 114 bushels of rye, 1,211 barrels of flour, and 180 barrels of oatmeal compared with a week ago; and an increase of 63,153 bushels of wheat, 223,455 bushels of peas, 290,289 bushels of oats, 19,732 bushels of barley, 11,534 bushels of rye, 4,741 barrels of oatmeal, and a decrease of 1,787 barrels of flour compared with the corresponding date last year.

The stocks in store on the dates mentioned were as follows:

	April 23, 1892.	April 16, 1892.	April 25, 1891.
Wheat, bush.	638,382	622,416	575,229

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., April, 29, 1892.

Some of our wholesale houses are complaining about the poor outlook for trade and say there is nothing to warrant any expectation of improvement for several months. Others say business is as good as could reasonably be expected, although they admit the prospects are not as bright as could be wished for. Travellers are sending in orders, though smaller than usual, and money still circulates very slowly.

MOLASSES—There is some expected the last of the present month, when prices will be several cents lower. At present the market is getting quite bare. Quotations are 34½ to 36c.

SUGAR—The demand has fallen off somewhat lately, though prices are holding steady at 4.40c. to 4⅝c. for granulated, and yellows are selling at 3.40c. to 3¾c.

PRODUCE.

EGGS—Are selling at 10 to 12c.

BUTTER—The prices quoted is 19 to 23c.

CHEESE—Firm at 12½ to 13c.

POTATOES—Can hardly be given away. Some choice stock were sold at 65c. per barrel the past week.

FISH—There is a good demand for pickled herring, which are very scarce. Dry cod are selling at $4.80 to $5 for large, and $4.50 to $4.75 for Mediums. Smoked herring are 8 to 12c.

MONTREAL TRADE CHAT.

A Montreal grocer advertised that he had the same kind of apples for sale that Eve ate, and the next day his store was crowded with women.

Mr. Palardy, general store keeper, of Eastman, Que., is endeavoring to effect a compromise at 50c. on the dollar in 4, 8, 12, and 16 months, secured.

Mr. Philadelpha Fortier, merchant of St. Charles, County Bellechasse, assigned to-day upon demand of Joshua Thompson of Levis. Assets $2,725.44, liabilities 2,008.58.

The steamship Fremona arrived here Monday with a cargo of lemons and oranges from Mediterranean ports, being the first arrival from sea. She was followed a few hours later by the Channington with a similar cargo. Both sales will take place at the latter end of the week.

Mr. R. J. Williams, 17 St. John street, Montreal, has been appointed sole agent in Canada for Brand & Co., of London, Eng., manufacturers of preserved meats. That firm are getting out a very fine line of table sauce, which will be sold at a little lower price than the high line now on the market. They are also giving away a nice sample bottle labelled "A Taste of Brand & Co.'s Table Sauce."

DISHONORABLE COMPETITORS.

Nothing is doing more at the present time to demoralize business and bring the retail trade into disrepute than runious competition, says the Grocers' Criterian. Amen to that and also to its declaration that practices of certain men put a premium on fraud. They are thus described by our contemporary: They manage in some way to obtain credit; they go to the locality where they are little known and open a store; advertise extensively and strive to attract attention by underselling all legitimate competitors. The public patronize these men to the detriment of old and established storekeepers who have laboriously built up their establishments by years of patience, industry and fair dealing. These unprincipled competitors convert their stock into cash as fast as possible; they fail dishonestly and the jobbing houses which have been victimized realize what they can from the assets and make the best of it by charging legitimate dealers more for goods. The dishonest competitors manage to settle for a few cents on a dollar and with their illgotten gains go elsewhere to play the same act over again. They demoralize trade wherever they locate their establishments. It is a wrong principle for jobbers to make compromises with such people. It lowers the character of the jobbing as well as the retail trade. It is an injustice to legitimate and honest grocers. It is putting a premium on fraud and making it more difficult for an honest grocer to do business in an honorable and legitimate way and acquire a respectable competency in the course of a lifetime."

West Lorne has bonused a canning factory.

Early closing will be begun by the stores of Windsor next Monday.

ENGAGING ASSISTANTS.

At the meeting of the Aberdare Grocers' Association, Mr. J. Davies, J.P., president of this active trade organization, called attention to the importance of greater care being exercised by employers in engaging new assistants. He thought at present great laxity was shown, especially in the matter of enquiry into references, and that this resulted in many incompetent men obtaining situations and thus creating annoyance to the employer and frequent changes for the assistants. This is greatly to be regretted for many reasons. And perhaps one of the most important of these is the effect it produces upon the customers. When the assistants are frequently changed, especially in shops where a family trade is done, there must necessarily be friction from customers who like to be served by men who know their special requirements, and who therefore can be trusted to carry out the orders given to the employer. Then, too, when the customer has been accustomed to deal with a particular assistant, and has confidence in him, the latter will often be able successfully to recommend new goods that will be taken on the faith of the representations of their quality that he makes. To the employer frequent changes of assistants mean more personal attention and a consequent increase of anxiety which he would be saved by having tried and trusted servants in his employ, who could ease him of the necessity for attention to many of the daily details of business. But it seems to us that to argue at any length the importance of a prolonged relationship between a good employer and a staff of capable and trustworthy assistants is hardly necessary, as it must be so obvious as not to need demonstration. But if that be true how is it that changes are so frequent. We believe one answer will be found in the low standard qualifications for an assistant which now prevail. It seems to us that he is too often regarded as a mere window dresser and medium for transferring goods from the grocer's warehouse or counter to the customer, the latter being often but a mechanical operation, much like that of the penny-in-the-slot machine. But surely the assistant ought to be a salesman. He ought not merely to be able to civilly hand the customer what he asks for, but also to introduce new articles, and to recommend special qualities of goods not much in demand, because not much known by the public. He ought to be a man competent to open up business and to push sales, and everyone knows that this has to be done as much by the salesman, when the customer is in the shop as by outside advertising. Indeed, the former ought always to be the accompaniment of the latter. For example the canned fruit trade is by no means the least remunerative department in a grocer's business, but we do not think it has attained anything like the proportions it might reach, simply because it has not been so vigorously recommended as it might be. And there are many other branches that might be made most profitable and of considerable proportions if only properly handled by the employer and his salesman. One just now occurs to us—the sweet trade which many Glasgow grocers find gives a good return for the capital and trouble expended on it. But to do this the assistant must be a practical man at his trade and know much about the goods he handles. How often the tea department of a grocery business—now so much knocked about by the packet trade—might be greatly improved and extended if only the customers' tastes were more carefully studied. And yet how few assistants are there who know much about either tea or coffee tasting, or who are familiar with the great varieties of leaf and berry. These instances might be multiplied, but they would all lead up to one conclusion, that the assistant must be a well trained man well paid for his services. Raw youths at 18s. a week will never suit a retail grocery business, and "improvers" generally get their experience at the expense of employers who think they are cheap, but who, in the long run, prove very dear. And this leads us to another truism—"If you want a good article you must pay for it." We heard a grocer, whose success has become almost as familiar as a household word in the trade, say some time ago that the frequent rises in wages among his employes made a great increase in his working expenses, "but," he added, "I would rather pay more money and keep a good man when I get him than lessen my expenses by having a low-priced servant and find my business go down in consequence." And that, in our judgement, ought to be the true attitude on this matter. But there is, of course, the assistants' side to be considered. Among them there is frequently found a love of change for the sake of getting experience. Change, undoubtedly, is good in the earlier days of an assistant's career, as thereby his knowledge is widened, and he is made more competent. But constant change is most harmful as it engenders a restless and roving disposition, which proves the truth of the proverb, "A rolling stone gathers no moss." It further makes a bad record when applying for a new situation, and it undoubtedly prevents that confidence which springs up between an employer and his assistant through many years of satisfactory association with each other.—Grocers' Chronicle.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

THE CANADIAN GROCER & GENERAL STOREKEEPER

PUBLISHED WEEKLY. $2.00 PER YEAR

Published in the interest of Grocers, Canners, Produce and Provision Dealers and General Storekeepers.

Vol. VI. TORONTO, MAY 6, 1892. No. 19

We beg to advise readers of a change in our premises, made last week. Our office and place of publication is now at No. 10 Front St. East, next door to the Board of Trade building. This removal, itself an improvement, enables us to add many other features that former limitations of space would not allow. Correspondents or visitors will please remember the change.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

Honest industry and legitimate trade are the trunk lines to success.

The Patrons' Advocate is the name of a new paper, published in Winnipeg in theinterests of the Patrons of Industry. By natural instinct, it appears to be the enemy of THE CANADIAN GROCER, for in the leading article of its first number it runs up against us most defiantly. A reprint of that article, given on another page, shows how our truculent contemporary jumps into the ring, and capers about in gymnastic demonstration of its fine fighting trim. But, like most dancing warriors, our antagonist does not strike, and neither THE GROCER nor its arguments in relation to the Patrons of Industry are yet demolished. Our readers will respectfully note that the Advocate does not show cause why we should either further strengthen or retire from our position on the Patron question. Our attitude towards the Patrons of Industry is odious to the apologists of that order because it is formidable. If it were assailable on grounds of fact or of logic, our contemporary would not be content with resting its attack upon mere general denial.

Canned goods ought to be plentiful, if all the projected factories for producing them once get running. Here and there all over the province,preparations are being made to have new canneries open in time to help swell the 1892 pack. The passing of the anti-bonus act by the Ontario Legislature in its last session gave a set-back to the prospects of some of these. Towns desirous of restoring their waning industrial greatness, or ambitious to outstrip rivals, too often committed themselves to the support of undertakings that were not only economically uncalled for, but were really injurious to every interest that touched them. Overproduction had a big ally in this zealous readiness of would-be cities to assist local industries. The tendency of the canned goods industry to overstock the market, even with the present productive capacity,has had to be held in check for some years. If the crop should be good and the season not too short,the factories now operated could easily turn out more goods the coming summer and fall than this country would be able to consume or conveniently get rid of. Our fruit pack last fall was out of all proportion too large, and a considerable surplus of it will have to be carried over into next crop-year, unless some export avenue should open in the meantime. But the ample productive capacity of the country does not dissuade recruits. They must be singularly hopeful if they all believe they are going to make money. If they find a market for their goods it will be at very unsatisfactory prices, and the dog-in-the-manger feature of their position will be apparent when they neither make profit themselves nor allow anybody else to make it. We have heard of industries being run into the ground in this way. They usually recover, but not until the weaker have been crowded ruthlessly to the wall. If the anti-bonus act will keep out of this industry some men who were being tempted into it by promises of municipal aid, it will have done a good thing.

A. E. P. in our last issue, and Wesley Saylor in this one, write two excellent letters upon the cost of doing a grocery business, and show the utter futility of attempting to meet that cost from a profit margin of 12½ per cent. Mr. Saylor makes it plain also that 12½ per cent. is not realized on the aggregate of the sales, though it is on the invoice, as, the sales being taken as the basis of calculation, the percentage is 11 1-9 instead of 12½. This naturally cuts down the grocer's returns from even the low net proceeds that A. E. P.'s figures show. These figures,which give the opposition the benefit of every doubt, are more likely to be too low than otherwise. They should be carefully conned, however, by every merchant who has any weak leaning towards giving in to the Patrons' proposals.

Buyers who attended the fruit sale in Montreal last week very generally complain about the difficulty they had in getting at their stock. They were put to no end of trouble in searching for the lines they bought. The reason for this was the utter absence of orderly arrangement in the loading of the boat, and the want of any correction of this fault in the assortment of the cargo in the shed. Lines had to be painfully picked out, a little here, a little there. Nothing could be more injurious to these sales than such slipshod arrangement. Buyers from distant points in the United States declared they would never attend another Montreal fruit sale. If Montreal is to keep its position as a distributing centre of Mediterranean fruit, this sort of thing will need to be very infrequent. The same accident or neglect should not occur twice.

THE BOARDS OF TRADE INSOLVENCY BILL.

The committee appointed by the Toronto Board of Trade to prepare a scheme of insolvency legislation reported last week to the Council of that body. The bill they submitted is a very lengthy one and goes exhaustively into the matter. It represents an immense amount of work, and is the resultant of much hard thinking, hard argument and great worry. To get the problem clearly stated was no easy matter in itself, but to provide a sufficient solution that would not be inconsistent in any of its parts was a laborious task. The circumstances of the various provinces and of the various trades had to be carefully considered, and oftentimes unanimity was reached only through protracted and heated discussion. There is not much of compromise in the bill, however. It leaves little to anybody's discretion. The discharge clause, the most important matter, provides that there can be no settlement with an insolvent debtor unless by the unanimous consent of the creditors. No mere majority, based either upon numbers or proportion of the total amount of claims against the estate, shall avail to secure a debtor's discharge, if one creditor representing one dollar holds out. This is stringent, but it is wholesome. As the law now stands in this province, a minority against a settlement must yield ; if this measure become law, a majority for a settlement must yield, unless it is unanimous. That is, no creditor will be forced to consent to a compromise.

The basis of this bill is not the measure sent out by the Montreal Board of Trade for the consideration of other boards in the country. That proved to be inadequate from the point of view of the Toronto committee, which soon found a footing for its labors in a bill drafted three or four years ago by D. E. Thompson, whose high standing as an authority on commercial law made him especially fitted for that work. His draft of a bill clearly defined the line along which discussion should proceed, and it is the fundamental part of the measure now passed by the Council of the Toronto Board of Trade. The delegates from Montreal, Hamilton and London Board of Trade acquiesced in the adoption of this basis, and were parties to the measure that was finally reported by the committee. The committee had the benefit of the best specialist assistance available, in the co-operation of such men as B. E. Walker, general manager of the Bank of Commerce ; D. R. Wilkie, general manager of the Imperial Bank ; E. R. C. Clarkson, trustee and accountant, and other capable outsiders, whom the committee, as authorized in the resolution appointing it, had added to their number. The bill will be brought up next week, it is expected, in the House of Commons.

The lax discharge conditions under which settlements have been secured in the past have been an indirect cause of much mischief. One familiar direct effect is that felt by competitors of the trader who has been permitted to resume business after paying less than 100 cents in the dollar of his total indebtedness. His insolvency was probably due to his own reckless sacrifice of profit to damage the business of a local rival. But there were ends served by those easy settlements that were often overlooked. Creditors saw in such compromises an ally of the combine principle that was very convenient sometimes. Suppose that A fails for a large amount, and owes to ten houses engaged in the same trade in the same province. Let it be further supposed that seven of these houses are strong concerns, and that having exercised the usual caution of such houses in selecting accounts, their claims against A are on the average small as compared with the average of claims held by the other three, which are assumed to be weak houses ; and let the total amount of their claims be very slightly above the total amount of the claims of the other three. Then the former have the majority of both numbers and amount on their side, and can carry a settlement of 40c. in the dollar if they pull together. Such a settlement would fall upon them lightly as compared with its effect on the other three, because individually the former are financially stronger, and the loss to them is both relatively and absolutely lighter. It can easily be seen that the seven strong houses would have a motive for forcing the three weak ones to a settlement that would put heavy loss upon them and tend to bear heavily or even destructively upon them as trade competitors of the seven houses in question. Such strategy is probably now and then worked, and the field is widened for the exercise of wire-pulling to this end, when creditors representing other trades are pressed into the service of such designs. It is conceivable in such a case that two houses with small claims may force one rival house with a claim five or six times the amount of their united claim, to a loss that will seriously cripple it in its future competition with them. The manipulators of such a settlement would of course need to enlist on their side a majority of the interests of other trades having claims against the estate. This is combination of the most dangerous sort, and any chance for the reaction of such a principle upon less favored creditors should be guarded against, and is guarded against in the bill proposed by the Toronto committee.

LONDON BOARD OF TRADE.

The annual meeting of the London (Ont.) Board of Trade, was held on Friday last. President M. Masuret, was in the chair. A letter was read from the railways declining to reduce their freight tariff from 18 to 17c. per hundred. T. H. Marsh was appointed representative of the Board at the Congress of Chambers of Commerce to be held in June, in London, England. The Council in its report urged better attendance, stating that of the eight meetings called during the year a quorum was present at only four. M. Masuret was re-elected president. The following other officers were elected :

Vice-President—John Bland.

Secretary—John A. Nelles.

Auditor—Thomas A. Browne.

S. Crossing asd Lucan.

Ditto from the C. P. R. to include : Appin, Caradoc, Embro, Hyde Park, Komoka, Crumlin, Longwood, Melrose, North, Glencoe, Thamesford and Woodstock.

The steamer Mandalay has been libelled for $5,000 at the suit of the Moncton sugar refinery for the non-fulfilment of contract. Eight thousand bags of sugar were placed on board at Antwerp to be brought direct to Halifax, but the steamer called at Greenock and was delayed there some time. The refinery now claims that in consequence of this delay they will be at a loss, as the price of raw sugar has since considerably diminished.

PEDLARS' AND PRICE CUTTING.

In his Look About column, the editor of the New England Grocer says :

The Atchison Globe, in one of those witty paragraphs that condense into a few lines a mine of philosophy, says "this would be a pleasant world in some respects if women had as much confidence in their husbands' words as they have in the word of a peddler." See the point? It is strange that women will listen to the yarns of these itinerant venders—and yet as a matter of fact they swallow the whole business and bite at the hook with a curious greed. Those women in a Massachusetts town, almost under the shadow of the gilded dome on Beacon Hill, who were made to believe that a soap peddler would give them with their purchase a set of china so light that if thrown on the floor it would not break, but would rebound with India rubber elasticity—those women are deserving of a chromo for guilibility. "Peddlers are a nuisance"—who can doubt it? As our friend Eugene J. Hall says, they are, "as a class, tricky and unreliable. Being wholly irresponsible it is their privilege to swindle their patrons at every available opportunity. Half of them do not pay taxes yet they come into competition with legitimate merchants who pay taxes on both real and personal property and materially contribute to the prosperity and welfare of the town in which their stores are located."

The other day we published an article showing how they disseminate disease and a letter from the Secretary of the Massachusetts Board of Health backing up the statement. We asked our readers to hand it to their local papers and ask that it be printed therein. Some of our readers complied with this request. The Biddleford, Me., Times publishes the article, and says "The New England Grocer has taken up the discussion of a subject of interest to every household in the land." The only way you can get at the consumer is to publish these facts in papers they read; another good plan would be to place a bulletin board in your stores and on it paste all the articles we print exposing frauds who prey upon consumers. Who'll be the first to do this, and tell us how it works? The Dover, N. H., Republican also publishes our article.

"Vivas to those who have failed," sang Walt Whitman. That depends! Sing no vivas for the men who go into a town, cut prices, fail, settle at ten cents on the dollar, emigrate to another town, and repeat the same demoralizing game.

A modern poet sings of the millennium as a time "when bill collectors are to spare, and people buy for cash." But, alas! he tells us that "we'll die while we are waiting for these things to come to pass." Looks that way, sure!

Why should retail dealers engage in petty warfare with one another when all the while great evils threaten them, a common enemy faces them and seeks to ruin their interests? Why not unite, settle minor difficulties, agree to get a fair profit on goods, and unitedly meet the enemy! The Editor of the Grocers' Criterion speaks out in meeting to the retailers of the West, and his words apply to some sections of New England: "At the present time many of you are cutting and slashing at each other in a petty commercial warfare at home, when you ought to be constantly assisting each other in maintaining rather than depressing prices; you are impoverishing yourselves by your folly and are thus unconsciously assisting the big department stores in their work of supplanting you in supplying the great world of consumers with the necessities of life."

THE FRUIT SALES.

The first fruit sale of the season was held at Thomas J. Potter's auction rooms Montreal, on Thursday. There was a large attendance of buyers from all parts of the country, the principal fruit firms of America being represented. Of course, the majority of those present were Canadians, and they were the principal buyers. Among those present were :—Messrs. A. Caron, New Orleans; F. R. Thomas, Utica; Del Signore, Cincinnati; A. Zucca, New York; A. Thomas Cleghorn, Clemmes Bros., J. Breen, McWilliams & Everest, all of Toronto; J. Dixon and J. Livernois, Hamilton; H. A. Brouse, H. Moreland, G. W. Hunt, Ottawa; W. McPherson, R. Roubblee, Winnipeg; J. C. Smith, Burlington, Ont.; Edgecombe, of Thacker Bros., Chicago; Mr. Peacock, of Peacock Bros., Chicago; H. P. Currie, Boston; W. F. Spear, Boston, Elsdon A. Morris, New York; F. Minaldi, New York: J. Golden, New York; J. F. Wood, Sarnia; J L. Shuttleworth, London.; L. N. Chavanel, Quebec; Walker, Guelph; Ryerson, Brantford; Quebec; Mountjoy, London; Van Vallen, of H. P. Stanley company, Chicago; Charles A. Adair, of the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City railway; A. L. Barnes, of the Missouri Pacific road; Dawson & Co., Brampton; Moreland & Co., Ottawa; Emery, Boston. All the local firms were represented, including Hart & Tuckwell, McBride, Harris, J. J. Vipond, O. & E. Harris, John Barry & Son. The goods were fully inspected during the morning and the bears spread reports right and left about the fruit being frozen, owing to being landed to early, etc. Notwithstanding these reports the fruit sold at a higher figure than is now ruling in any of the American markets. The goods, however, sold lower than the first cost and the probabilities are that not much money was made. The cargo was considered a good one, but was not up to that of the Gerona's cargo last year, and prices were lower all around. Lemons, which brought $4 last year, sold to-day at $2 to $2.25, the reason being the increased crop in Sicily, which is fully one-third larger than last year. The backward season had also something to do with the prices. As one buyer said, it was not "lemon weather," and the probabilities are that better prices would be secured if the weather had been warmer.

Fully two thirds of the buying was done by Canadians. The Americans have been well stocked with fruit for some time and were not over anxious to buy, notwithstanding that they had several buying orders. The Canadian market has been bare for some time, and the Canadians in consequence bought freely. The only American firm that bought to any extent was Thacker Bros., of Chicago The other American buyers held back in anticipation of the Fremona sale. They believe that the Canadians have bought enough to supply all their requirements and that they will have the bidding themselves. Choice lemons sold at $1.75 to $2, fancy at $2.25 to $2.75 and extra fancy at $2.75 to $3.25. Oranges sold very high and must have made a good profit. Boxes sold at $2.50 to $3.50; but halves sold proportionately higher, $2 to $2.75 being the range. The reason for the firmness was the small stocks in local dealers hands. Many of the lemons which were owned by local firms were not sold. They cost on an average $2.75 and the owners thought it the best policy to withdraw them from the market for the present. A general resume of the catalogue shows that lemons sold 25 to 50c. higher and oranges 50c. to $1 than the ruling prices in the American markets.

Messina lemons—241 at $1.12½, 443 at $1.25, 31 at $1.37½, 72 at $1.50, 2,170 at $1.62½, 2,817 at $1.75, 2,649 at $1.87½, 1,251 at $2, 1,468 at $2.12½, 1,305 at $2.25, 164 at $2.37½, 840 at $2.50, 60 at $2.62½, 526 at $2.75, 300 at $2.78½, 217 at $3, 342 at $3.12½, 125 at $3.25.

Palermo lemons—28 at $1.37½, 278 at $1.62½, 54 at $1.75, 165 at $1.87½, 157 at $2, 428 at $2.12½, 134 at $2.25, 163 at $2.37½, 177 at $2.50, 447 at $2.62½, 19 at $2 75.

Catania lemons—788 at $1.75, 241 at $1.87½, 213 at $2, 190 at $2.12½, 200 at 2.25, 273 at $2.37½, 126 at $2.50.

Messina oranges—115 at $1.50, 60 at $1.75, 174 at $2, 184 at $2.12½, 188 at $2.25, 76 at $2.37½, 203 at $2.50, 257 at $2.67½, 119 at $2.75, 50 at $2.87½, 425 at $3, 36 at $3.12½ 19 at $3.37½, 224 at $3.50, 38 at $3.67½, 36 at $3.75, 33 at $4.

Palermo oranges—7 at $1.30, 185 at $2, 22 at $2.25, 3 at $2.40, 238 at $1.80, 18 at $3,-12½, 24 at $3.25.

AN ERROR IN FACT.

FOREST, ONT., April 27, 1892.

EDITOR CANADIAN GROCER.

SIR,—We gladly accept the statement of Messrs. Ironside & English and Mackenzie & Munro, made to us through their solicitors, that they have not agreed to supply the Patrons of Industry with goods at 12½ per cent. as stated in our letter of the 7th inst., and that, in fact, arrangements have not yet been completed. Our statement was based on the information received from members of the deputation who had waited upon us. Kindly give this as much publicity as ours of the 7th inst. to you, which was not intended for publication, that no injustice may be done the above-named firms.

Yours truly,

BURNS & MORPHY.

PERCENTAGE OF PROFIT ON SALES NOT ON INVOICE.

EDITOR OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

SIR,—In looking over your valuable paper of last week, I see on page 3 a letter dated Ottawa, April 19th, and signed A. E. P. In looking over his figures in reference to selling to Patrons at 12½ per cent. advance, he says $12,000 sales at 12½ per cent. advance gives $1,500 gross profit. In this he is mistaken. I cannot allow this to pass without calling attention to it, as I believe 90 grocers in 100 think the same thing. To make it plain, I give the following solution:—$112.50 sold to a Patron gains $12.50, or one-ninth of the total sale; one-ninth of $12,000, equals $1,333.33, or $166.67 less than my Ottawa friend makes it. Grocers, when you go to your till in the evening and find $50 as the day's sales, and you are making 20 per cent. profit above cost, don't think your day's gain is $10, for it is not, as that $50 represents cost and profit added.

Allowing the other figures he gives to be correct, $439.33 is left for the Patron merchant, instead of $606. I consider the rent item far too low. Any good stand in Trenton would cost at least $300; then there are taxes. I consider 12½ per cent. on $12,000 yearly sales would just about pay expenses. And the owner must live out of capital and fail in a short time, leaving creditors to pay for his lack of brains.

My Ottawa friend says to sell for cash only is impossible. I do not agree with him. He says through some mishap a poor customer cannot pay cash in winter, and if the grocer would refuse credit, that family would starve. In the name of common reason, what right has a poor struggling grocer, with one or two thousand dollars capital, to feed the poor people of any place? Simply because when they had money they bought goods from him and got their money's worth. I know the grocer is always the first asked to keep this one and that one from starving, while Mr. Rich-man, with his thousands, can walk the streets, looking for some unfortunate grocer or farmer to borrow his money at a good interest. He will take a mortgage on your house or stock as security for his money, and you can go on feeding the poor without security. Soon the money you borrowed will be gone, soon you will have to let the man of thousands take your snug home, your unfortunate creditors the balance (if there is any), and the poor, starving public can get credit from the new grocer just opened up, soon to follow you. God forbid that I should sell for less than a living profit, or sell on credit when there is no security for my goods. As for me, my credit is less than 3 per cent. of my business. Let the rich or the town council feed the poor, and I will pay my share in taxes.

Yours truly,

WESLEY SAYLOR.

THE CANADIAN GROCER.

"Published in the interests of grocers, canners, produce and provision dealers and general storekeepers," advocates well but not wisely the cause of its supporters. Its extreme bias leads it into some glaring errors in the statements it makes, and the arguments it uses against our organization. We would advise the writer of the articles published in its issue of the 18th and 25th of March to devote a small portion of his time in acquainting himself with the object and aims of our Association. To this end we will mail him a copy of this issue, a careful perusal of which may possibly modify his views, and lead him to correct the misapprehension his recent articles may have produced. His radical opinions so fiercely expressed, can result in nothing but harm to those whose cause he so warmly espouses, while they will certainly have a tendency to exasperate those he so freely denounces, all of which will have the effect of antagonizing the two classes whose interests are, or should be identical. Speaking from a Manitoba standpoint, it has never been the desire, much less the intention of extinguishing the retailer, nor in the remotest degree dictate to him the terms upon which he shall conduct his business, nevertheless we claim the same right when buying our supplies, that he exercises when purchasing his stock, viz.: buying where the market is cheapest. The fine buildings and magnificent fortunes claimed by THE GROCER have to a great extent been made out of profits which no law under heaven either civil or moral can compel us to pay. THE GROCER'S contention that but for the enterprise and munificience of the merchants, no factories would be erected, no railroads constructed and no public improvements projected, will be readily believed by all of its subscribers, but the sublime arrogance of this assertion is no doubt founded on the supposition that it would be universally swallowed. The farmers and producers of Canada—more especially of Manitoba and the Northwest—have a faint idea that it is their land, and their wheat and productions that build up and, in fact, sustain just such enterprises as claimed by THE GROCER to be exclusively the property of non-producers. No better argument in support of the Patrons movement could be produced, than is prominent in every paragraph written by the misinformed and biased editor of THE GROCER. Nearly every sentence contains some allussion to past high profits, or threats as to what the profits will be so soon as the Association falls to pieces which he triumphantly prophesies is certain to take place in the near future. With profound wisdom he declares the "Patrons to be victims of a huge mistake." Well, perhaps we are, but if so, we do not feel just like having that mistake rectified. At any rate we do not feel justified in placing our interests in the hands of those, who, according to The Grocer, so thoroughly understand the art of manipulating invoices, or those who would follow the advice or adopt the plan to break down an honest merchant so unblushingly and dishonestly given them by its editor.

His assault upon the leaders of the movement whom he terms agitators, is undignified and uncalled for; most men when weak in argument descend to personal abuse when everything else fails. Why under heavens, the producing classes should not have just as much right to form a combination for the protection, without being the objects of merciless abuse, and misrepresentation, as those whom his paper advocates and defends, is a question we would like the editor of THE GROCER to answer.—Patrons' Advocate.

MARK RETAIL PARCELS OF COFFEE COMPOUND.

W. H. Schwartz & Sons, Halifax, N.S., write:

"If you would allow a suggestion, in re your remarks in No. 15, April 8, about the Adulteration law, we would say: Advise the grocers to do as we did when we retailed. We had our bags printed 'Compound Mixture.' In doing so all trouble is avoided and the transaction is honest. Our experience was that in selling coffee, especially, customers would ask for the compound coffee, or mixed coffee, and we have had instances where they would look with suspicion on coffee that was not so marked. Of course our coffee compounds are good, and we so mark them now for the wholesale trade."

[Messrs. Schwartz & Sons enclose a paper with the words "Compound Mixture" neatly stamped upon it. It is an excellent idea, and is the best way to save trouble. There is no need of writing on the rotund surface of the filled parcel, and there is no danger of forgetting to put on the saving mark, if bags to be used for holding coffee compound are thus stamped beforehand.]

THE RAPID INCREASE in the sales of our Hillwattee Tea show that the grocers and consumers appreciate a good thing when they get it.

We do not ask you to buy Hillwattee Tea because it has had an immense sale but for the reason of its superiority over other package teas. Try a sample half chest (50 lbs) and see how it goes. "Dozens and dozens" of Grocers have done this and are now handling Hillwattee only.

GOOD EGGS WILL SELL IN ENGLAND.

Mr. Daniel Hislop, of the firm of Hislop & Meldrum, Montreal, has just returned after an extended visit to England and Scotland. Mr. Hislop made the trip to obtain information concerning the egg trade and assertain what prospects there were for shipping Canadian eggs this season to the English market. He gave a Gazette representative an interview, the purport of which was as follows :—

Did you find the English dealers favorably disposed towards Canadian Eggs?

I did not; in fact, some of the trade are terribly prejudiced against our eggs.

What is the reason of this?

They got a very bad dose last season. Some inexperienced men went into the shipping business and forwarded large quantities of eggs. They bought their stock from small dealers who had held them for a long while, or until they were not fit for anything. The English dealers, thinking they were receiving staple goods, piled them up in their stores, and they became even worse.

If the stock was shipped in good condition could not a good trade be worked up?

The Englishmen could make use of qute a quantity if they could get them at the proper price. To be more explicit we must buy eggs which will average 17 pounds per ten dozen at 9c. per dozen free on board cars before a successful start could be made. Our eggs at present do not average over 14 to 15 pounds per 10 dozen.

Did you do any business?

No. I tried hard to get orders but was unsuccessful. Some dealers even refuse to handle Canadian eggs except the freight was prepaid.

There will be no shipments this year then.

I do not think there will be much done as all shipments will have to be on consignment.

Did you get any new ideas as regards packing, etc.?

I did not see anything in the way of packing that is better than our style. If the steamship companies would exercise a little more care in handling our eggs there would be little or no breakage The steamers are unloaded by contract, and the men engaged in the work handle eggs in about the same manner as they would firebricks or pig iron. The result being a large percentage of breakage.

In the course of the interview Mr. Hislop spoke of the Australian egg trade. Several consignments were received while he was in England, but they did not meet with much success The Australians are pushing their butter trade, however, and have advantages which make it hard for the Canadians to compete with them. The Government not only give a bounty on the exports from Australia, but give an extra bonus if the butter sells above a certain figure, thus encouraging not only the export of butter, but the export of the best grades? This butter is packed in square boxes, which are lined with waxed paper, and is as good as any butter made in this country. There is butter made in Canada, however, which is just as good as the best entering the English market. Mr. Hislop will strongly recommend the Canadian creameries to adopt the idea of lining their tubs with wax paper, which keeps the butter in much better condition. The idea meets with much favor in England.

ADVERTISING BY RETAILERS.

The name and address of the advertiser and the statement that a "fine," a "choice," or a "select" stock of family groceries is "kept on hand," appears to satisfy many retail grocers and suit their ideas of what is demanded for a business advertisement that will do them good. It is true that, in addition to their card spaces, some dealers secure small paragraphs in the "local items" column of their town paper or papers, and such notices are usually worth all that they cost, but there is no reason why the card space should be practically wasted through being filled with poor matter which is seldom if ever changed. The great faults of retail grocers' newspaper advertising are the giving of undue prominence to staple articles and the failure to change the matter often enough. Of what use is an ad. that merely announces that good groceries can be had at John Smith's grocery store, when the said Smith has been in business at the same stand for months or years, and everybody in town is aware that he sells groceries. Let the staples sell themselves, and devote your advertising space to fancy articles and specialties. As soon as an invoice of new goods is received let the public know the fact, provided it contains articles that it will pay to advertise. At certain seasons, when certain goods are in special demand, advertise those goods, always taking care to be a little in advance of the demand that the season brings. There are, however, other effective ways of making new customers than by newspaper advertising—we have given that vehicle the first place here because it is so often poorly utilized. In former articles we have referred to the leaflet as a valuable aid to the merchant, and to the use which an experienced and intelligent subscriber to the Merchant Review makes of it. He publishes weekly, sometimes oftener, a single page circular, about 5x4 inches, with the reading matter arranged in columns, and a heading across the top, like the first page of a newspaper. In this little publication he announces the arrival of new goods, calls attention to articles which it is desirable to push, and keeps his business constantly in the public mind. This kind of advertising is not only effective but cheap, and we recommend a trial of the same to dealers who have never used the leaflet. A feature of city advertising in some retail lines, to which we have previously called attention, is the bulletin board. In the hands of several cigar dealers, this adjunct of the store has proved a very effective weapon. Placed on the sidewalk, in a conspicuous position, the bulletin can be made to attract considerable attention, especially if one of the clerks or the proprietor has any artistic ability and can represent in white or colored chalk some current topic or political event, or has talent as a caricaturist. But a plain announcement or a description of some article, with a change of matter daily will answer the purpose for most storekeepers, although it will of course possess less attraction for the passer-by than the pictorial efforts of dealers who are adepts with the crayon. Last but not least is the show window display, which, properly used, is as valuable for advertising purposes as anything that can be mentioned. The show window can be utilized in many different ways. One retailer recently informed us that he once captured the trade in oranges in his town by a very simple move. One season when oranges were very cheap and good, he purchased about a dozen barrels of choice quality fruit, and emptied several of them in his show window; filled the window with them in fact, and ticketed the pile, offering the fruit at bargain rates. The result was that he quickly disposed of the invoice, and to-day whenever the townspeople are in want of oranges they go to the same store. The dealer effectually impressed upon the mind of the public the fact that his store was headquarters for oranges, and it still retains the impression. Let every retail storekeeper ask himself: Am I using every facility available to advertise my business? Can I improve upon the advertising schemes that I am now using?—Merchants' Review.

ARSENIC IN AMERICAN APPLES.

Since a famous poisoning case in which a counsel learned in the law attempted to prove that the murdered man might have been killed by the poison in the pips of apples, says the Manchester Grocers' Review, no greater nonsense has been talked than has lately been the case about arsenic in American and Canadian apples. In the Times appeared an extract from a medical journal on the subject, in which an inquiry into the matter of the effect of arsenical dressings was asked for. The chemist to the Dominion Government at Ottawa has already made such an inquiry, and the result is given in the following report by Mr. Frank T. Shutt, M.A., F.C.S., chemist to the Dominion Central Experimental Farms, Ottawa, who writes :

"Some weeks ago a statement to the effect that Canadian apples are poisonous, owing to the presence of Paris green, used in the operation of spraying for codling moth, appeared in a leading English horticultural paper. As this rumor was widely circulated in the press on both sides of the Atlantic, it is only right, both in the interest of the English consumer and the Canadian grower and shipper, that its refutation should be equally made public. The suspicion that Canadian apples are poisonous is entirely without foundation, and it is hoped that the publishing of the following positive proof of the absence of arsenic in 'sprayed' apples will serve to assure the English consumer that the practice so useful for preventing the ravages of the codling moth does not result in apples dangerous to health. Mr. Thomas Fletcher, Dominion botanist and etomologist, procured a sample of apples that had undoubtedly been sprayed, and I have submitted them to a careful chemical analysis. The apples examined (Rhode Island greenings) were kindly furnished by Mr. Woolverton, editor of the Canadian Horticulturist, who personally vouches for the fact that they were twice sprayed last June with Paris green of the strength of 1 lb. of the material to 200 gallons of water. The apples, when received, were just as they had come from the tree - i.e., had not been rubbed—so that any arsenic left from the spraying would still be on the skin. The quantity tested for arsenic was 9 lbs. 7 oz., measuring about one peck. The process to which they were submitted is one that affords extremely accurate results, and is considered the most delicate of all for the detection of arsenic. If the amount of the minimum fatal dose of arsenic —2½ grains — were spread over 23,000 bushels of apples, the poison could be detected by this method. Though the analysis was conducted with the greatest care, not a trace of arsenic could be detected, thus proving the complete absence of this poison in these apples that had been twice sprayed with Paris green. I am of the opinion that further experiments would only serve to corroborate this negative result, and to prove that there are no grounds on which to base the suspicion that 'sprayed' apples are poisonous. It would be an easy matter to quote the work and opinions of eminent scientists in the United States to substantiate those results here recorded. Professors Riley, Cook, Forbes, and many others have published the results of analyses which are entirely in accord with my own. The insoluble character of this poison, precluding the assimilation by the apple (if such were possible) of the infinitesimal part of Paris green that can remain on any apple, the frequent rains subsequent to the spraying, and the fact that apples are pared before using, all go to substantiate the argument that there is not the slightest danger of poisoning in using sprayed apples. In conclusion, I quote Mr. Fletcher, who, in a recent report, says :—'Frequent inquiries are made, and occasionally misstatements appear, as to the possible danger of poisoning the consumers of fruit and crops protected by these arsenical poisons, which, it is urged, may be absorbed by plants. These statements are, however, quite inaccurate, as a very elementary knowledge of vegetable physiology will show. It should be remembered that the stigma of a flower is without any epidermis, and is exceedingly delicate, so that any corrosive poison, like arsenic, in even a very weak solution, would be much more likely to injure the stigma than to be absorbed, and further than this, even in the natural operation of fertilisation, the stigma is a passive member, and absorbs nothing. The activity is on the part of the pollen, which pushes down its fovilla-bearing pollen tubes and protrudes them through the tissues of the stigma down the style into the ovary.' This adds botanical evidence to chemical, to refute the rumour that poisoned apples result from the practice of spraying with Paris green for codling moth."

STORE CLEANING.

This is as imperative as house cleaning and should never be neglected if due regard is paid to the pecuniary advantages involved. Nothing is more detrimental to the stock than an impure atmosphere. The untidy corners, the poorly ventilated cellar, the unscrubbed floor, the dust-laden cornices and shelves, the unscalded refrigerator, all give forth unsavory smells, particularly at night, when the store is closed without proper means for its ventilation.

The store floor accumulates dirt rapidly, and we regret to say that there are some storekeepers who never think of having it scrubbed, being akin to the untidy housewife, who permits her carpets to lay undisturbed for years. Sweeping removes dust and dirt, but it is not a cleansing operation. To keep a store sweet and clean requires that the store floor should be thoroughly scrubbed and rinsed at least once every three months, and better if it is done every month. Let soap and soda be freely used.

Have the ceilings and walls kalsomined or repainted ; the cellar cleared of its rubbish and whitewashed ; closets and sinks cleansed.

A reputation for having the cleanest store in town is a perpetual and paying advertisement. A clean store is a requisite if the health of those working therein is to be kept in sound condition. Foul air damages tea, coffee, salt and other susceptible articles quite as certainly as it injures man.

The best time for a general cleaning operation is when the time has passed for fire. If stoves are used have them taken down, put in order, polished and ready for next season's use. Furnaces should not be left to be cleaned until next fall.

The only apology for the plain hints given above is that many, very many storekeepers, pay no attention to a thorough regulation of their stores—and they need it.—American Crocer.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS.

This is the tendency of the times in all retail trade, as it has been for years the rule in the wholesale trade. Competition becomes broader and keener every day, resulting in smaller and smaller profits, particularly on fancy groceries. This may, and should, result in the net profit of a year's business being better than ever before. Lower prices for delicacies and luxuries mean an increased consumption. Retailers should aim to develop demand for fancy groceries, and nothing is better calculated to do that than pushing their sale at a fair profit because the demand is believed to be limited. The limit of the sale of an article, other than a staple, is largely governed by price.

The secret of success was recently well put by the Mayor of Rochdale, England, in addressing a company of retail grocers, in these words :

"The man who expects to make large profits out of groceries in these days is out of date—is behind the times. It is the turning of the money over, keeping the goods in good saleable condition and getting a small profit over and above the expenses, that leads to success."

Turning over the stock ten times a year at a fair profit is better than turning it over six or seven times at a large profit. The more customers, the greater the variety of goods sold ; the more extended the reputation of the store and the greater the number of self-constituted friends, every one of whom may be relied upon as an advertiser. There is a great deal of philosophy in the slang interrogatory—Where did you get that hat ? A cup of fragrant tea, delicious coffee, rich cocoa, prompts a visitor's or a friend's inquiry as to the source of supply. So with anything else that is good to eat or used in preparing food, down to a sugar coated yeast cake, or the sprinkling of spice used in seasoning. Quick sales, large sales and small profits, lead to success in merchandising.—American Grocer.

The Daily News is advocating a canning factory for Berlin.

Douglas' general store at Elkhorn, Man., was burnt on Saturday.

The Waterloo merchants have decided to close their stores at 7 p.m.

Five stores on Rideau street, Ottawa, were burglarized early on Saturday morning.

Hamilton is flooded with circulars offering "green goods" for sale. The circulars came from New York.

Every night during last week efforts were made to start fires in the rear of some big stores in St. Catharines.

Stuart Bros., wholesale grocers, Hamilton, are removing to larger and more commodious premises on Hughson street south.

A ten-year exemption from taxation has been granted to a firm in Windsor who purpose sinking salt wells and manufacturing salt.

T. J. Parsons, grocer, Omemee, Ont., was burnt out in the fire which ravaged a portion of the business quarter of that town last week.

A. Payne, general merchant, Millbrook, Ont., was among the losers in the fire which did so much damage in that village last week.

Tilsonberg merchants now close their stores at 7 p.m. on the evenings of all days but Saturdays and those immediately preceding holidays.

Ridgetown has voted a bonus to the canning and preserving company of that town. The vote was large and nearly unanimous, the by-law carrying by a large majority.

The E. B. Eddy Co. opened a branch of their business last Monday, in Montreal, in the large warehouse at 318 St. James street. There they will keep a stock of all goods manufactured in their works at Hull.

The A C. Miller canning company, Picton, are erecting a large storehouse for storage of cans and other material.

St. Johns, Que., has voted a bonus of $15,000 to the North American Tobacco Co. The payment of the bonus is conditional, the company being required to pay $25,000 per annum in wages and to employ 75 hands.

Donald Campbell died last week in Colborne, Ont., at the age of 86 years. Years ago he retired from mercantile life after making a large fortune in the general store business, pursued in Cobourg and Colborne.

At the annual general meeting of the proprietors of the Quebec Merchants' Exchange the following gentlemen were elected the committee of management for the ensuing year: William Rae, chairman, R. H. Smith, F. Billingsley, William Brodie, T. Beckett, John C. Thomson and F. Carbray.

Flynn Bros. are equipping a building in St. Catharines for a canning factory, and will commence early in June. The St. Catharines canning factory is a new concern, and will occupy the old Yale foundry, on Ontario street and commence operations about the same time.

The line along which the efforts of the Boards of Trade of Vancouver and Winnipeg have been directed for reform in the insolvency law has been abandoned by the former board. This increases the chances of commercial unanimity throughout Canada in favor of the measure submitted by the Boards of Trade of the east and centre.

The insolvency bill referred to last week has received the approval of the council of the Toronto Board of Trade. Hugh Blain, S. F. McKinnon, B. E. Walker, E. R. C. Clarkson, D. E. Thomson and S. Caldecott were appointed a committee to go to Ottawa and, together with representatives from other Canadian Boards of Trade, present the bill to the Dominion Government, and urge upon the members the necessity of adopting its principles.

Two cases under the Adulteration Act were decided at Sorel, Que., last waek, before Justice C. Dorion. Two grocers of Berthier, L. Gouette and Romeo Roch, were charged by J. J. Costigan, inspector of food for the province of Quebec, with having sold him coffee which proved on analysis to be adulterated within the meaning of the Adulteration Act, though not injurious to health. The defendants pleaded guilty and were fined $5 and costs of analysis. The fine and costs amounted to about $30 in each case.

Early on Friday morning burglars entered the stores of E. Berwick & Co. and Trewin Bros., of Shelburne, Ont. They bored the safe in Trewin Bros,, and succeeded in knocking off the combination. A considerable sum of money was in the safe, but the noise awakened several young men who room over the store, and Thomas Donkin went downstairs and the burglars left. As soon as Donkin appeared on the street several shots were fired at him, one taking effect in his leg.

In a coffee adulteration case tried before a magistrate at Huddersfield, England, the prosecutor pressed for a verdict against the clear evidence that the package sold from and the package delivered were both marked "mixed." The prosecutor claimed that the proportion of chickory (40 per cent.) was excessive, but could base his claim on no previous decisions and lost the case. One wholesale grocer for the defence said that his firm sold both pure and mixed coffee. Coffee mixed with chicory was an article of commerce, and it was commonly sold as a mixture. He never knew under 40 per cent. of chicory to be sold, and it sometimes went up to 80 per cent. French coffee invariably contained from 60 to 80 per cent. of chicory. Coffee and chicory were sold separately, and sometimes his firm recommended their customers to buy their chicory and coffee separately if they thought the mixture of chicory was greater than it ought to be.

Bart Cottam of London is visiting the European markets for the purpose of selecting the choicest bird seeds to be found in those markets. He will spend some time in going through all the principal markets for the purpose of securing the best to be found, and by personal inspection and close buying Mr. Cottam will be in a position to supply the trade with a first class article at a reasonable price, his principal object being to supply the trade with a thoroughly reliable article, one that they need not hesitate to recommend to their customers.

The Hamilton Tea Company issues a cleverly constructed circular advertising the merits and enumerating the varieties of their teas, coffees, cocoas, spices, baking powders, flavoring extracts, etc. The circular opens with the formula that usually introduces a proclamation or statutory enactment. Her Majesty, by and with the advice of the Senate and House of Commons of Canada has been pleased to honor the Hamilton Tea Co. by selecting them as representing the grocery trade, etc., to enlighten the public regarding the Adulteration Act. The other contents of the circular are the letters of Mr. Laing of that Co. to Sir John Thompson, upon the matter, and the press and trade opinions upon the treatment of the Tea Co.

The annual meeting of the St. Thomas Board of Trade was held on Friday night. The report calls attention to the continued commercial prosperity of the city, the increase in the output of its manufactures, the building of mogul engines and passenger coaches at the M. C. R. shops, the activity in the building trade, the importance of the L. and P. S. railway being disposed of in such a way as to secure the interests of the city, and the importance of a closer union between the different Boards of Trade and

The Patrons of Norfolk County have passed a resolution condemning the importation of United States pork in bond, and asking the Government to put a duty of 3 cents per lb. on all United States pork.

A branch of the Arcade Grocery has been started on Westminister avenue at Mount Pleasant, B. C. It is managed by Mr. J. W. Clark from whom the noted Clark's Crossing on the Saskatchewan, so well known in the North West rebellion, takes its name.

The truth never injures. The best posted buyer is the most satisfactory customer. The producer thoroughly conversant with the facts of the market is the best one to deal with. Speaking at a meeting of the Middleton (England) Co-operative Society, the chairman said he should like the members to remind their wives that when they went to any of the shops of the society they should be careful to see that an equal weight of paper was put on each scale, and that they got full weight of any article without the paper. This system was commenced at the beginning of last quarter, and it had made a difference in the dividend of about 2d in the pound, or at the very least of 1¼d. in the pound. They had a turnover of about £15,000 per quarter in the grocery depertment alone, and the change meant about £100, or £8 per week less in receipts.

Owing to an error in classifying among the Business Changes of a recent issue, the death of Mrs. H. E. Taylor was entered as an assignment. We are sorry this mistake was made, as it could not have been more at variance with the fact, Mrs. Taylor's business being a very prosperous one. By her will, the stock had to be sold, and the executors advertised it. It was bought by Wm. Rockett of Glencoe, who has retained the services of A. Taylor to manage the business for him.

PRICE CUTTING.

Price cutting is a well worn subject, but as merchants, both wholesale and retail, are continually meeting with new experiences, this bugbear of trade constantly furnishes food for contemplation. Nearly every line of trade is burdened with the price cutter whose operations though brief in duration continue long enough to interfere with the business of more careful merchants. The intense competition of the present day certainly reduces profits, but when a seller attempts to dispose of goods below a fair margin of profit, with a view to hold a customer for future trade, the object sought for is defeated, and this method of doing business finally attracts none but bargain hunters and the least desirable buyers, who, like hucksters at a market stall, haggle at prices and pinch and pull the wares until the goods become spoiled. It is a bad business policy to sell goods according to the buyer rather than according to cost price. A buyer will soon become suspicious, if it is noticed that the price of goods cannot be named without consulting the books regarding the price paid for the same goods on a previous occasion. The price cutter generally intends to get even some way; if he sells to a customer to-day at a loss of 10 per cent., he expects by this to secure a further opportunity when he can make a percentage of gain on some other article which will more than make good his previous loss. Experience teaches a good business man to follow correct business principles to the letter, in order to succeed. Nothing is gained by following the lead of the price cutter, who always excites suspicion and generally ends in a failure that is deserved.—Grocer and Country Merchant.

The Norway lobster season ended with a catch of 39,000,000 crustacean, against 31,000,000 last year. The Finmarken catch at last mail advices was 3,000,000, against 1,000,000 at the corresponding period of 1891.

She left Matanzas on April 14, and had a good passage across with fine weather.

A CORRECTION.

Mr. James Lumbers sends us the following letter: I notice an item in your issue of the 29th ult., in which you state "that I have received a contract to supply groceries to the Toronto Jail," and as there is no truth in the report, and the circulating of which is injurious to my business, you will kindly have the same contradicted. I may state that I do not contract for any public institutions, so if any parties should wish to circulate such rumours you can depend there is no truth in them.

A MAN'S CREDIT.

The large majority of people desire to have a reputation for good credit among their local merchants, and be able to get accommodation, if desired upon their established record for prompt payment of accounts. A good credit is something that is worth striving for, and when attained, the possessor may rightfully feel a just pride in the fact that he possesses the confidence of those with whom he deals. A good credit standing properly used is an acquisition of unlimited value to its possessor, but when it is abused it becomes one of the worst curses that can be entailed upon an individnal.

The injudicious and extravagant use of a good credit has caused more failures and made more bankrupts in business and financial circles than all other causes combined. By reason of a good credit individuals and firms become reckless in their expenditures and obligations, so much so that when the tide turns and reverses are met with, they find themselves so far from shore that they are unable to stem the tide or reach the harbor, and, as a consequence, they find themselves and their business shipwrecked, their business gone, and they themselves overwhelmed with debt.

TORONTO MARKET.

TORONTO, May 5, 1892.

The changes which give any distinctiveness to this week are of a microscopic and inconsequential character. Trade is tame. Wet weather at the outset deepened the dulness that is almost inseparable from the season. Farmers are not selling anything, and therefore are not buying, but are putting in their spring crops. Though money is plentiful it is not well distributed. In fact commercial activity is necessary for the distribution of it. According to a report of the Department of Agriculture for Ontario, two-thirds of the wheat grown in this province is yet in farmers' hands. This report is based on the answers of six hundred correspondents. This lays bare the root of the dulness that has been experienced in trade since last fall. There is no exceptional activity in any line, but there is exceptional slowness in many. Canned goods hold their own, teas are interesting and firm, fine coffees are very scarce, dried fruits are fairly active but profitless, sugar is very quiet, special lines are steady. The retail stores of the country are generally said to be in a good position to buy if business does brighten up, as few of them carry heavy stocks.

COFFEES.

Good coffees can scarcely be got. Both in London and New York the scarcity of fine grades is unusually pronounced. An order for a line of fine Rios was forwarded to New York the other day but received the answer that the goods could not be shipped, being unobtainable. The market is sufficiently stocked with common coffees. Rios range from 17 to 21c., O. G. Javas 28 to 34c., Mochas 27 to 33c., Padang 27 to 31c.

DRIED FRUITS.

There appears to be no hope of recovery in the market for Valencia raisins, which continues demoralized at all centres of distribution. Prices that seem to barely or not quite realize cost are still freely quoted. This big advantage to the buyer cannot but stimulate business, as consumption must enlarge under such easy prices. Wholesalers have consequently had a very good call for Valencia raisins, but there was too narrow a margin of profit for the trade to be satisfactory. Quotations of last week bear repetition, that is, 4½ to 5½c. for fine Valencias, 3½ to 4½c. for American staples. Offers from New York contine to be exceedingly low. Currants are flat and low-priced, the lowest figure being 4½c. so far. Pruness are dull. A common rate of movement in peels is observable at 16c. for lemon, 17c. for orange and 25 to 27c. for citron. Nuts are steady and unchanged.

RICE AND SPICES.

Fairly free selling of rice is reported, the prices ruling easier than they promised a while ago, when the mills made an advance. B rice is still to be had at 3⅞c., and the attempt to make 4c. a bottom price seems not to be a success. Choice descriptions are also in request at 5½ to 6c.

Spices are dull and very featureless. The market for them affords no ground for other comment.

SUGAR.

No improvement in sugar is discernible either locally or outside, and the fundamental characteristics of the market are unchanged. While the demand here is suspended to a very considerable extent, there is a very good prospect of its early revival, supplies in both retail and wholesale hands being pretty well run down. Contracts that were made last March are now for the most part exhausted, so that whatever shipping is done from this out will represent current business. While there has been no advance at the refineries, there is evidently a feeling that values cannot be much worse, and refiners do not shade prices. Orders for 2,500 barrels fail to go through, owing to the fact that no more favorable price can be secured than is obtainable for single car loads. Jobbers' prices still range from 4½ to 4⅝c. for granulated and 3½c. upwards for yellows. It is still the fact, however, that some wholesalers prefer to remain out of the market rather than sell granulated at 4½c. Raws find fairly good sale, if the volume of the demand for them be compared with that for refined sugars. The rhubarb season helps the sale of them. They go at 3½c. and upwards.

Willett & Gray, New York, in their weekly statistical on the sugar market say: Total stock in all the principal countries, at latest uneven dates, is 1,426,983 tons, against 1,439,435 tons at same dates last year.

Raws—Refiners have bought moderately during the week, which, added to their large receipts, has given them a considerable supply over and above their requirements for meltings, so that towards the close of the week they virtually withdrew from the market. Importers have stored a considerable number of cargoes during the week. The European market had a further decline to 12s 9d per cwt free on board, but rallied at the close 1½d. The point of parity with

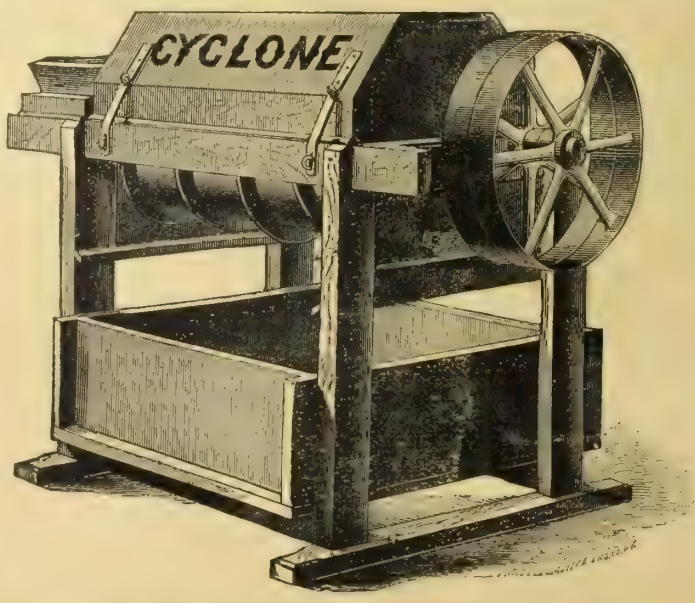
CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.

The term 'canned goods' is understood in a limited sense these days, and nearly everybody who uses it supposes that peas, corn and tomatoes are all that it is understood to comprehend. These goods are practically all that are in living interest just now. Other vegetables are dull and neglected, fruits are at a standstill and canned fish are in little request. But the staple vegetables are selling fairly well. They could be more active without being extraordinarily brisk, but the best standard by which to try the trade in them is the trade in other lines. Compared with that, the demand for canned goods is excellent. If the business in all other grocery lines were equally good things would be booming. Prices are steady for peas, corn, and tomatoes, at $1.05 for ordinary brands and $1.10 for choice brands. Trade has depended almost solely on a sort of by-demand, canned goods being seldom ordered alone, but only as a part of general orders. Peas and tomatoes continue to be talked of as scarce lines. There is a lot of tomatoes in the hands of one holder, who refrains from quoting just now, being a believer in the future prospects of the market. Some business has been done in vegetables of next season's pack, but the price is not revealed, though it is believed to be on the low side. There is some inquiry for round lots of corn from Montreal, and a sale of a car of assorted vegetables was made to a London wholesaler early in the week.

Stanway & Bayley have got into their new premises, one door west of their former place of business. In addition to the advantages of ample space, liberal light and commanding position on the street, their new offices have elegance and convenience.

To Canning Men.—OUR CYCLONE PULP MACHINE



For making tomato pulp and preparing pumpkin and squash for canning is very well known to all the canners in the United States, and a few of them are in use in Canada. The high tariff has prevented their being used extensively heretofore.

We are now manufacturing these machines at Oakville, Ont., to enable our Canadian friends to obtain them without paying a heavy duty; but we shall make only a few of them unless ordered. Those who contemplate purchasing, should send their orders promptly to insure the saving of duty, as late orders will have to be filled from stock in the United States which will be subject to a 30 per cent duty.

The position of canned goods is unchanged and stocks in all lines are small, while business is not what can be called brisk, but an up movement is noticeable, and holders are firm. Advices from France state that the pea crop has been frozen.

Cuba for importation from Europe has not yet been touched; and, hence, there is no occasion for Cuba to reduce its prices. If this parity should not be reached during the next few weeks, it is not likely to come, except from an advance in Cuban prices in the parity of Europe later in the season, as the fact still holds good that from 100,000 to 150,000 tons of sugar from Europe will be required in the United States this year. There is no news of special interest this week from cane producing countries, with the exception that fine weather prevails in Cuba, enabling the grinding to proceed with full vigor. We do not find it necessary yet to make any change in our crop estimates, as given in our "Statistical" of March 10, 1892, with the exception of Barbados, which we have already reduced to 67,000 tons. Although quotations here are nominally unchanged for centrifugals, Cuba offered Muscovados at 2⅝c., cost and freight, and refiners have accepted a considerable amount for May shipment.

Refined—Net prices remain the same as last week. The demand still continues light for the season, and it is more and more evident that from this time on the invisible stocks of refined sugars in the hands of grocers will be kept down to much smaller proportions than last year, or in preceding years. The same remark also applies to the invisible stocks of refined in the United Kingdom and on the Continent. The refiners, however, have a very considerable stock of refined sugars still on hand waiting for a market, although on some grades they keep well sold up. There is no change in the quotations for foreign refined sugar, and no increase to be noted in the importation of Scotch yellows.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.

Syrups are in light request and go at low prices, 1⅞c. being the inside quotation. Dark syrups appear to lead in such demand as exists. Some United States bright syrups were offered last week, but could not be brought in at the prices bid.

Jobbers have not been buyers for months of either West Indian or New Orleans molasses, and though stocks are very light they are equal to the requirements of the demand. Jobbing prices remain unchanged at quotations.

TEAS.

A very fair week's business in teas is reported. A big sale of Japans was made early in the week at fair prices. Since that quotations have firmed very apparently, and all grades from medium upwards are firm and scarce on spot. The better grades of Ceylons and Indians are likewise much firmer, as are all teas that make any pretensions to liquor. Oolong teas are rising and hardening in value.

Of last week's tea sales the London Grocer says :—The only public sales of Indian tea held this week were on Monday last, when, preparatory to the market closing for the Easter holidays, no less than 13,580 packages were offered, which met a reception similar to that accorded these descriptions of teas for many weeks past, that is to say, while the small proportion of what may be called fine qualities with strength were readily taken at firm rates, the remainder, consisting of poorer and commoner sorts, found a dragging demand at cheap and here and there at ¼d. to ½d. per lb. lower prices. Calcutta advices, dated March 23, inform us that "the tea season is now over, and the market closed." In London the only arrivals this week have been the Pindari, with 24,900lbs., and the Coromandel, with 65,340lbs. Nearly 14,000 packages of Ceylon tea have been offered, and the market still retains a quiet tone. There has been little disposition to carry stock over the holidays, which has tended to depress prices. Sales have been on a liberal scale since Christmas, and the trade will be heartily glad of a short interval of rest.

MARKET NOTES.

Mr. Cutler was erroneously spoken of in this column last week as being connected with the Halifax Sugar Refinery. We should have said the Nova Scotia Sugar Refinery.

Early closing began on the street on Monday. All the houses have signed an agreement to close at 5 o'clock till further notice. It is to be hoped that further notice will not be given.

Last week Sloan & Crowther brought one of the largest lots of tea of one grade every turned over in one purchase on this market. It consisted of 1640 packages of fine Congou. The price will be in the neighborhood of 25c. A short time ago for part of the same line 30c. was paid.

Eby Blain & Co., report arrival of another lot of choice Barataria Shrimps, and Fancy Cone Oysters. They also report that their sales of Bensdorp's Royal Dutch Cocoa are increasing beyond their most sanguine expectations. The demand is on the increase wherever tried.

"Apropos of canned soups." says the New York Commercial Bulletin, "it is asked why should they be much more costly than canned tomatoes? Soups are about 90 per cent. water, and the expense of the other ingredients is by no means heavy. The processing may be a little more costly, as also the labels, but it may be questioned if there is the difference of $2 per dozen or over, as in present market prices, for the respective goods."

Wilkins & Co., Adamsville, Que., expect to ship this week a carload of maple syrup to British Columbia points. Bad roads in the Eastern Townships have been a cause of delay that was hard to overcome. It must be remembered as well that the season is fully three weeks late. The determination to obtain only first-class stock necessarily makes shipping a slower matter.

PETROLEUM.

The market for both refined and other products is steady and prices are unchanged.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.25 per barrel. Oil Springs crude $1,25½ per barrel. It can hardly be said that the crude oil market has improved the past week in respect to either firmness or demand. While it may be still affirmed that current quotations are about one twenty five per barrel, tolerable well authenticated reports of sales at twenty-four are reported. Painstaking investigation, however, fails to discover any sales at these figures except in small lots. So transactions at this inside figure may be both isolated and special even as a if they have occured at all. Local producers rule, are firm holders and manifest a disposition to await the course of events.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The butter market is easing under a greatly increased supply of large rolls, which are taken at 15 to 16c. as a rule. Better prices were paid for really prime stock. All the stock now handled is new, and the market is in a particularly healthy state owing to its freedom from any embarrassment from old butter. Good dairy tubs are scarce. Creamery tubs at from 19 to 21c. are offering, but are not readily taken owing to the sufficient supply of new roll butter at easy prices. Common butter is still in request, one reason being the firm price of lard.

Some sales of new cheese have been made at 10c. on track and 10¼ to 10½c. in smaller lots. Prime fall cheese is still firmer at 12c. in trade lots and 11¼ to 11½c. on track. Traders are not stocking freely yet.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES—Prices play freely between $2 and $3, and barrels have to be made up frequently to prevent loss by decay, though loss is as liable to be suffered through the greater cost of re-packing.

BEANS—The market shows no evidence of improvement. Farmers who refused $1.20 and in some cases $1.25 last fall are now eager to sell at $1, which is the best price going for quantities of choice hand-picked. Common are bought at 90c. at point of shipment. Jobbers get $1.10 to $1.15.

DRIED APPLES—Large sales have been made this week at 4c., and the sellers are relieved that they have parted with the stock so advantageously. There is little demand. Stocks are scattered. They are offered by country holders at 3½c. here. One 300 barrel lot changed hands on the street the other day at 4c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—The ideas of buyers are shrinking away far from the line of value that holders have held out for, perhaps too long. There is no sale for the North West, that market having been pretty well saturated for all year last fall, when buyers believed prices were more favorable than they would afterwards be. Dealers on this market do not buy anything held above 6½c. Reports from Chicago put the possibility of an export business completely out of sight, on any higher basis. Heavy stocks are held here and in Montreal, while there is practically no demand. Jobbing prices here are 6½ to 7c.

EGGS—A fairly well balanced relation is preserved between the supply and demand. The price is 11 to 11½c., only small quantities realizing the latter price.

HIDES—No change in values or in the run of the supply is to be noted. The basis is still 4½c. for No. 1 green cars. Cured-hides are steedy at 5c.

HONEY—Buyers are few and far between. Extracted is dull at 8 to 9c., and sections are but little more active at 13 to 15c.

HOPS—Dulness is quite a marked feature. Holders' ideas form the basis of quotation. Prices are steady at 19 to 24c. for new and 16 to 18c. for yearlings.

ONIONS—Are steady at $2.25 to $2.75 per barrel.

POTATOES—Cars are in somewhat better demand at 30 to 31c. Out of store lots are steady at an outside quotation of 40c.

SKINS—Sheepskins are fairly firm at $1.15 to $1.30, lambskins at 20c., calfskins at 5 to 7c.

TALLOW—Is featureless at 5 to 5½c. for refined and 1¾ to 2c. for crude.

WOOL—There is no improvement, and little can be looked for with the season for the new clip so close at hand. Fleeces are dull at 18c.

PROVISIONS.

The course of business is about what it always is at this time of year, though an unsettled feeling is present that rather retards business. A good demand must be due in a short time now for smoked meats, also for long clear. Both are in fact in very good demand at the present moment. Prices are steady at last week's quotations.

BACON—Long clear is 7½ to 8c., smoked backs are 10c., bellies 9½ to 10c., rolls 8½ to 8¾c.

HAMS—Are steady at 10½ to 11c.

LARD—Pure is active at 10 to 10½c. for tubs and pails. Compound is steady at 8 to 8½c.

BARREL PORK—U. S. heavy mess is $13 to $14, Canadian $15. short cut $16 to $16.50.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef is 4 to 5½c. in fore and 7 8½c. in hindquarters, yearling lamb is 10¼ to 10½c., Spring lamb is $4.50 to $5.50 per head, mutton 6 to 8c., veal 6 to 7½c

GREEN FRUIT.

Oranges are firm and prices outside have advanced from 50c. to $1 per box. The sale last week strengthened the market apparently in Mediterranean fruit, as Catenas, Messinas and Valencias are now very firm. The prices are $6 to $6.50 for Valencias, $4 to $4 50 for Messinas. Floridas will soon be off the market, but still sell at $4.50 to $5. California oranges are being received with a little more confidence now that the quality and condition are satisfactory. Prices are $2.75 to $3.75 for Seedlings and $4.50 to $5 for Navels. Some half-boxes of bloods are held here at $2.50 to $3. Oranges are higher in New York. Cool weather has had an unfavorable influence upon the trade in green fruit, particularly in lemons. The prices of lemons are easy and the trade in them is slack. Good keeping lines are steady at last

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

Not much has the last week added in the way of changes in the situation. Selling is still up-hill work, and what is done is in a small way, large qantities not going out at all. Prices are easier than they were a week ago, and business is as dull as it was then. In feed the market has been stationary.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $5; strong bakers', $4.50; Ontario patents, $4.60; straight roller, $4.25; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.50.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5.15; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.45 to $4.70; Ontario patents, $4.00 to $4.25; straight roller, $3.75 to $3.95; extra, $3.50 to $3.80; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

MEAL—Oatmeal is $3.90 to $4. Cornmeal is $4.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is $4.50 per barrel.

FEED—Bran is $14 to $15, shorts $14.50 to $15.5c, mixed feed $22 to $25, cracked corn $1.10, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 32 to 32½c.

HAY—is fairly active at $12.50 to $13 for No.1 timothy and $10 to $10.50 for mixed.

STRAW—is steady at $6 to $6.50.

MONTREAL.

The market is very flat with little business doing. There is no improvement in the home demand, and in the absence of shipping orders even recent currencies are barely maintained. The stock in store on Saturday last showed a decrease of 2,999 barrels when compared with the same day of the week previous, a fact to be attributed to the removal from warehouse and shipment of about that quantity of bonded American flour destined for Newfoundland, and a decrease of 9,243 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote: Patent spring, $4.90 to $5.10; patent winter, $4.60 to $4.90; straight roller, $4.35 to $4.50; extra, $4 to $4.10; superfine, $3.75 to $3.90; fine, $3.25 to $3.50; strong bakers, $4.50 to $4.85.

What little business there is passing continues to partake of a retail character and prices are reduced. The stock in store on Saturday last showed a decrease of 114 barrels, when compared with the same day of the week previous, and an increase of 4,802 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote:—Granulated, bbls. $3.80 to $3.90; Rolled, bbls. $3.80 to $3.90; Standard, bbls. $3.75 to $3.85; Granulated in bags $1.85 to $1.90; Rolled in bags $1.85 to $1.90; Standard, in bags $1.80 to $1.85.

MARKETS.—Continued.

week's prices, that is, $2.75 to $3.75. Fancy stock is slightly higher. Pineapples are very plentiful and are consigned freely to this market. Prices range from 5 to 20c. The abundance of bananas is also a cause of plenty here. In no former year was there ever so large a supply on hand by the first of May as there was this year. Prices are $1.25 to $2 for single bunches, but in 100-bunch lots they are appreciably lower. Sweet potatoes are $2.50 to $3.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Syrup is not plentiful, the market being short in half-gallons and gallons. The farmers are holding sugar in small lots, so that offering is not free at the moment.

The following is the wholesale price list for maple syrup in screw top cans: Tall Round Can,—say 11 lbs. gross 85c.; Half Can,—say 5¾ lbs., gross 42½c.; Small Can, say 2½ lbs., gross per doz., $2.40.

IN BULK.—Kegs. per Imp. Gal. (12 to 15 gals. each.) 90c.; Small Bbls., per Imp. Gal. 90c.

Pure Maple Sugar, in 1 lb Cakes, per lb. 9c.; Pure Maple Sugar say in 3 to 5 lb. Cakes, per lb. 8½c.

SALT.

Trade is reported much more active. The outward movement includes 3 cars coarse sacks at 70c., 3 cars barrels at $1.20, the jobbing trade is satisfactory.

FISH.

Fresh trout and white fish are quoted a half cent higher, 6½c., being the figure this week. British Columbia salmon are in fair request at 18 to 20c. Otherwise the market is unchanged.

The Victoria News-Advertiser says: The Spring salmon catch is still keeping up a good average, and heavy shipments are being made almost daily.

DRY GOODS.

A sorting up business of very fair proportions now engages the attention of the dry goods houses. Prices are steady and trade for the most part wanting in of interesting features.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, May 5, 1892.

The trade here has shown a noticeable improvement during the week, and all the houses say they are sure things will improve more in the course of a few weeks. Sugar is quiet, but steady, a trifle easier in prices. The wholesale trade are cutting yet, this has a tendancy to increase the volume of trade, but it does not, as the majority of the trade are not pushing sales. The green fruit business has shown a marked change and with the sales noted in our report goes to show that Montreal is taking a place in the front ranks. The travellers are doing finely on the road and the whole tone of the market is much better. Payments are also good.

SUGAR.

The local sugar market is about the same as it was last week. The refiners here are selling at the same price as the lower province refiners, the figure now is 4⅜c. for granulated. The wholesale trade are not pushing sales in it as the cutting is still going by some of the houses, especially the French. One grocer here says that he wishes that some understanding could be arrived at to fix the price steady as there is no fun in selling goods at a loss. Cable advices from England and the States say raw beet is very quiet and so is cane sugar. The monopoly in the States is largely if not entirely responsible for this quietness in England. In our local market low grade yellows are a trifle easier and are quoted at 3 7-16c., bright yellows are scarce and the price is steady. Granulated is nominally unchanged, but we think 1-16 of a cent lower would be taken for a round lot. We quote: Granulated 4½ to 4 9-16c.; yellows, low grade, 3½ to 3¾c., and yellows bright 3¾ to 4¼c.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS.

There is nothing of importance doing in syrups on spot and prices remain unchanged. Canadian bright is in fair demand, as is also American, but the demand is only local. We quote 1½ to 2½c. per pound. There is no change in the position of the molasses market. The feeling in Barbadoes is about the same, 12c. being about the idea. Several lots have been sold on Montreal account which will cost 28 to 29c. landed here. Locally the market is still dull, with only a fair jobbing trade doing. We quote as follows:—Barbadoes 35 to 38c., American 28c.; syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 40 to 45c. for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Maple syrup is quiet and the only business doing is a small one. Dealers state that considerable mixing of old and new stock has taken place this season, a good portion of the receipts being dark in color. Sugar is still hard to dispose of and sales have been made as low as 5c. per pound for dark stock. Choice light stock has been sold as low as 7½c. for round lots. We quote maple syrup in tins 60 to 65c. per gallon and in wood at 5 to 5½c. per pound. Maple sugar is quoted at 8 to 8½c. and fancy cakes at 9c.

TEAS.

There has been a good demand for blacks during the week in all grades, consequent upon the first consignments being near at hand. Japans are also moving out fairly well, especially in the low grades. We hear of sales being made for the States, mostly of mediums, at 17 to 22c., but some low grade stock has been placed at 10 to 12c. The following cable has been received from C. P. Low & Co., Yokohama: Market has opened, purchases made at $35 per cwt., quality inferior to last year. Indian and Ceylons are having good call with the trade here.

COFFEE.

Coffees have been in fair demand and several lots of Rios have changed hands during the week at 18 to 20c. Jamaicas are wanted at the same price, but there is little of it offering. We quote:—Rio, 18 to 20c., Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c.; Jamaica; 19 to 21c.; Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c.; Santos, 17½ to 19c.

RICE.

The movement in rice during the week has been very good, several car load lots being shipped to the west since our last report. Advices from primary are still reported strong. Prices at this point remain unchanged. We quote Standard $4 to $4.10 Japan $4.50 to $5, Patnas $4.50 to $5, and Carolinas $7 to $8.

DRIED FRUIT.

In dried fruit business has been of moderate volume this week, and the only trade doing is a sorting up one. New York dealers are still offering good at a low figure. We quote :—Valencias, ordinary, 3½ to 4c.; No. 1 off stalk, 4½c. ; layers, 6c. to 6¼c.; Patras currants, 5 to 5¼c; Vostizzas, in cases, 7½ to 8c.; provincial currants, 4⅞ to 5½c.

NUTS.

Nuts have only a jobbing trade, but outside of this there is not much doing. Prices remain unchanged at the old figure. We quote as follows :—Almonds Tarragona 13 to 13½c.; Almonds, Ivica 12 to 13c. ; Almonds, common 10 to 11c.; Almonds, hardshell 07 to 08c.; Walnuts, Grenoble, new 11 to 12c. ; Walnuts, French 10 to 10½c.; Cocoanuts per 100 $4.50 to $5 ; Filberts 9 to 10c.; Pecans 16 to 17c.; Peanuts 07 to 10c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Green fruit has shown some improvement since the recent fruit sales. Valencias have advanced in value since our last report and are now held firm at $7 to $7.50, Jamaicas in barrels are still the same $6 to $7, Floridas are offered at $3.75 to $4.25 and bloods in ½ boxes at $2.75 to $3. Mesenas are selling at $4 to $4.50, Jaffas $5 per box and $3 for ½ boxes. Lemons are also having good call at easier prices. The event of the week is of course the first of the regular spring sales of Mediterranean which took place last Friday. Particulars will be found elsewhere, but Montreal can take credit from the fact, that prices were 25 to 50 per cent. better than those made at the opening sales in Boston and New York. Compared with last year the prices are low, but this is not surprising considering the general position of the fruit market here and elsewhere this year. Pineapples are having good call at easier prices, and are now offering at 7 to 15c, strawberries are selling at 50c. per box for choice stock, while inferior stock sell at 20 to 25c. Bananas have fallen in prices owing to the heavy receipts last week, and are now quoted at $1 to $1.50 per bunch.

APPLES.

The market is about over for the season and prices of old stock are very irregular and more or less nominal, and really choice stock are selling at $4 to $5 ; poor waisty fruit can be had much lower. We quote: Evaporated 6½ to 7½c. and dried 4½ to 5½c.; evaporated peaches, 12 to 13c. per tin.

HOPS.

The spot hop market is quiet but firm, and choice Canadian cannot be bought for less than 24c. and some holders want 25c. Pressed hops are also quiet but firm and are held at 16 to 17c.

FISH.

The fish market is quiet and the trade that is being done is of small dimensions. Prices are the same as they were last week. We quote No. 1 herring, per brl., $4.50 to $4.60; lake trout, per half brl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.25 to $8.75; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4 25 to $4.50; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

We quote smoked Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.10 to $1.25 ; St. John's bloaters, per 100 box, 90c. to $1.10; boneless cod, large boxes, 6c. to 7c.; do. small boxes 7c. to 8c.

PROVISIONS.

The general tone of the provision market is without change. Canada short cut is the only thing that has good enquiry at steady prices. There is just a fair enquiry for smoked meats and lards. We quote : Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.25 to $16.50 ; mess pork, western, per brl. $15.00 to $16.25; short cut, western, per brl. $15.50 to $16.25; hams, city cured, per lb. 10c. to 10½c; lard, Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c ; bacon per lb. 9c. to 10c ; lard, com. refined, per lb. 7 to 7¼c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

There is only a jobbing business doing in new butter and prices are as before. We quote as follows : Creamery, 22 to 23c. ; Townships, dairy, new, 20 to 22c.; Morrisburg and Brockville, 18 to 19c. ; Western dairy, 16 to 17c.

Cheese has only a local jobbing movement at 12 to 13c.

EGGS.

The egg market is still quiet and 11 to 11½c. is about the idea now. Dealers are however firm in their ideas and above prices are being firmly held.

GRAIN.

The local grain market is quiet and without change. The following is the stocks in store here. The stocks of grain and flour in Montreal, show an increase of 34,340 bushels of wheat, 8,429 bushels of peas, 12,873 bushels of oats, 11,219 bushels of barley, and a decrease of 2,999 barrels of flour and 14 barrels of oatmeal compared with a week ago. Compared with the corresponding week last year, there is a decrease of 26,606 bushels of wheat, 8,104 bushels of corn, 9,223 barrels of flour, and an increase of 217,392 bushels of peas, 322,834 bushels of oats, 1,472 bushels of barley, 8,765 bushels of rye, and 4,802 barrels of oatmeal. We quote : No. 2 hard Manitoba, 94 to 95c; No. 3 do., 85 to 90c.; No. 1 Northern, 92 to 95c. peas, 70c. to 73c per 66 pounds; oats, 30 to 32c. per 34 pounds, corn, 55 to 60c., duty paid ; feed barley, 40 to 42c.; good malting do., nominal.

The stocks in store on the dates mentioned were as follows :

WHY DO MILLIONAIRES WORK.

It appears strange to some young men just starting out in life to see men who are worth their millions toiling away, day after day, just as hard as if they were the humblest clerks in the establishment and sometimes much harder. The young man says, "if I had as much money as that man I would not work like that," and perhaps he will do the same thing at some time in his life.

The cause of all this toil is not so hard to see after all. When the same rich merchant was beginning in life he formed the habit of working for some one else, and when he got into an establishment of his own he kept on working hard and after his fortune is made he finds it almost impossible to remain idle or even give up a little work. He has formed the habit of diligence and it is as hard to break as any habit.

In the beginning a man sets out to make money for two reasons : First, because he wants to secure an existence, second he desires to secure pleasures and luxuries. But while working for these purposes men become acquainted with great projects and problems and schemes and industries, and if they are earnest men who have more than a selfish interest in the business world about them they soon become absorbed in those things. It is not charitable to suppose that rich men cling to their business simply for the amount of money it brings in, when they already had more than they can readily spend. But there is a certain pleasure and excitement obtained from holding the rudder of a great enterprise and sending it bodily ahead through all kinds of weather. Does the old sailor love the sea because of the dollars he has made as wages or the dollars he expects to make? Not he. He loves it because his life-work has been identified with it. It is just the same way with the rich business man. His work has become a pleasure and he cannot be induced to leave it long. It is like running a large machine and seeing how well it does its work under the hand of a man of long experience, and when it is out of order he takes pleasure in putting down his hand and adjusting it so that it will run smoothly again.—Trade.

Mr. Henry Crossley, of the late firm of Wills & Crossley, has joined interest with Mr. James Simpson, recently of Hamilton, Ont., and will conduct a brokerage and commission business, handling fruits, nuts and a general line of groceries, under the firm name of Simpson & Crossley. They have secured offices at No. 96 Wall street, and will be pleased to receive their many friends and execute promptly any favors that may be entrusted to their care.—N. Y. Commercial Bulletin.

CARNEGIE'S BUSINESS SUCCESS.

The following article from the San Francisco Examiner may be of interest to our readers :

Andrew Carnegie and party arrived about 1 o'clock on the special car Iolanthe. They spent the afternoon in quietly looking around the city, and at night Mr. Carnegie was entertained at a dinner at the University Club.

He said that although there were many men here of exceptionally large wealth, yet he thought the field was an unnsually good one for men of energy and pluck.

"Yet, after all," said he, "it isn't the man who does the work that makes the money. It's the man who gets other men to do it."

"I remember that not long after my arrival in this country from Scotland I was a telegraph operator, and had news reports to send and copy. I for a while made copies of the report for $1 a week.

"The man above me, who was my boss," said Mr. Carnegie, closing one eye shrewdly, "didn't do any of the work, and he got $10 a week. That is the difference. It was something not to be lost sight of, and I made up my mind not to forget it."

Mr. Carnegie sat in an easy chair, now bolt upright and again reclining gracefully. He said he had pretty well outlined what he thought politically, and he could not say anything in addition, as for some days he had not been a very close reader of the papers.

"This government," he said, "is a success, and it does not make any difference what the hopes or wishes of princes and crowned heads may be, it will always be a success."

Asked to give a true story of his struggles since coming to America, the king of iron manufacturing thus laconically and epigrammatically said :

"Scotch by birth ; American every other way. Born in the village of Dumferline forty-six years ago. Schooling amounted to nothing. Parents poor. Both worked as weavers. Came to America when but 13 years old. Settled in Pittsburg. Errand boy on the Pennsylvania Railroad. Picked up telegraphy. Persevered. Became chief operator when 18—began to save money.

"Joined now with brother Tom and bought small iron foundry. Began manufacture of smelting furnaces. Called them Lucy No. 1 and Lucy No. 2. Success enormous. Extended business on all sides.

"Became a millionaire by introducing steel rails in the country. In two years monopoly of the business. Got contracts for developing all the large American systems for steel rails. Ran the price of rails from $200 down to $25 a ton to beat competitors. In latter part of '70's made money at rate of $2,000,000 a year. Now worth between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000. Besides American manufactories own syndicate of papers published in small English towns.

"Ambition ten years ago to build and own reproduction of old baronial castle in Pennsylvania. Bought the lands; had plans drawn; on death of mother abandoned the idea. Promised her when a boy never to marry while she lived. Kept promise. Married two years after her death. Wife twenty years younger; is an American lady."

Mr. Carnegie has spent hundreds of thousands in establishing trade schools, libraries, gymnaisums, etc., in small Scotch towns. All his household servants are Scotch—butler Scotch, waiters Scotch, maids, Scotch, cook Scotch, everything Scotch. At the dinners and social functions he has Scotch pipes. He believes in home rule, and hopes to live long enough to see Scotland under home rule. He intends buying a Scotch estate for the summer and south of England estate for the winter. He had made Dumfermline the most attractive town in Scotland, and glories in the fact that he was born in the village where Robert Bruce was buried.

In religion Mr. Carnegie says he is an agnostic. He is a great admirer of Herbert Spencer. Though he has no knowledge of music he is a great lover of it, and his expenditures in musical institutions aggregate over $1,000,000.

He has no children, and says he will spend every cent of his money before he dies. He has never given a penny to any church, and does not believe is churches.

CAVIAR.

Caviar, which is made from the eggs of the sturgeon, is an important article of exportation for many cities of Russia and Astrakhan, and principally Taganrok. The annual amount is estimated at 40,000 pounds (1 pound—35 pounds.) The greater part goes to Turkey, Greece. Italy and Germany, very little to England and still less to France. The fisheries are situated at the mouth of the Volga, upon the banks of which stand large store houses with basement and cellars in which are found the tubs that contain the brine used in the preparation of caviar. The most profitable fishing is done in autumn, this season yielding the largest quantity of eggs. In winter the fishermen make large holes in the ice and fish with the spear. At all other times they use nets, about 300 feet in length, to which are attached cords provided with hooks. Each of these is strong enough to hold a fish of large dimensions. Each establishment owns a fleet of boats. The fish brought on board are laid upon boards and covered with salt, and are then opened for the purpose of extracting the eggs and the entrails, which the Russians are very fond of, and which they eat in a fresh state. For exportation caviar is prepared in two different days : 1. The eggs are washed and then immersed in strong brine for three-quarters of an hour and finally allowed to drain. In this way "granular" caviar is obtained. 2. For "compact" caviar, the eggs are first cleansed, then pickled and finally allowed to dry slowly. Then they are packed closely in canvas bags which are inclosed in wooden barrels, after which they are ready for shipment. A ruder process, but one much used in the trade, consists in immersing the eggs, immediately after collection, in brine, wherein they are left for several months, after which they are dried in the sun.—La Nature.

HAMILTON MERCHANTS AND THE G. T. R.

Between the Grand Trunk Railway and the Hamilton Board of Trade a little difference has arisen on account of the action of the former in practically cutting off Halton county from any connection with the city. The Hamilton Herald says :

As a matter of fact, Hamilton has nothing to do with the matters in dispute between the Grand Trunk and the County of Halton, and Mr. Stiff's suggestion that the Board of Trade should endeavor to induce the county to abandon the position it has taken, is simply begging the question, so far as Hamilton is concerned. As Mr. Bristol pointedly remarked, the time for asking the Board's intervention was before, not after, taking action. Whatever the Board might have been disposed to do before, it cannot with decency throw itself into the breach now in an endeavor to straighten out the Grand Trunk's nasty little quarrels.

It is to be hoped the protest our merchants are making will have the desired effect, and that the company will see the wisdom of canceling the offensive order. The Grand Trunk owes a good deal of consideration to the business men of Hamilton. From year to year they spend a great deal of money with the company, and we all know that the dollars of Hamilton people go to swell the immense returns which the Grand Trunk gets out of the Toronto and Hamilton branch, the most profitable portion of the road. In return for all this patronage the company has knifed Hamilton at every convenient opportunity, has given it a wretched train service in many respects, with shabby, dirty cars and disobliging officials. It is surely time to change these tactics. The people who help support the Grand Trunk and spend thousands of dollars with it yearly, have surely some right to have their interests consulted by it to some extent.

Restore goods to their proper places as soo after using as possible

A feather duster disperses but does not remove the dust from the store.

The neglect to look after minute details in the factory is a source of great loss to many producers.

Credit is often too cheap and overbuying far too common. Don't be guilty of the one, and don't abuse the other.

WHERE THE JOKE COMES IN.

Kansas farmer (buying goods at Alliance store)—I guess that'll be enough for this time. Forty-seven dollars and a half? All right. Charge it.

Alliance merchant—Great Scott, Mr. Bilby, we can't do business on credit? The margin of profit on these goods is less than 8 per cent gross. You know that well enough.

"Can't sell me goods on credit? Didn't I subscribe for $200 of stock to start this store?"

"Certainly, Mr. Bilby, but ——"

"Ain't I buyin' a big enough bill?"

"Of course, but——"

"That's right! I know what I'm doin'!"

"When I've traded out that $200 I'll come round and pay it b'gosh."—Chicago Tribune.

It is easy for the small boy to "make a clean breast of it," but the rub comes when you want him to wash his neck."—Kings' Jester.

Shopper—"Are those fast colors?" Clerk—"Well, I should say as much! You just wash it once, and see how they'll run."—Boston Courier.

"Mr. Grip," said the head of the firm, "we have been looking up your record for the past year, and we find that you have scarcely paid expenses. This will never do." "You seem to forget, sir," said the other, as he drew himself up to his full height, "that during the past year I have had more orders cancelled than any other traveling man you have."—Cloak Review.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

THE CANADIAN GROCER & GENERAL STOREKEEPER

PUBLISHED WEEKLY. $2.00 PER YEAR

Published in the interest of Grocers, Canners, Produce and Provision Dealers and General Storekeepers.

Vol. VI. TORONTO, MAY 13, 1892. No. 20

We beg to advise readers of a change in our premises. Our office and place of publication is now at No. 10 Front St. East, next door to the Board of Trade building. This removal, itself an improvement, enables us to add many other features that former limitations of space would not allow. Correspondents or visitors will please remember the change.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

Work but don't be worked to death—this for the clerk and salesman.

Cutting is rife among the west end Toronto grocers. One leader may have many followers, and nearly any one is influential enough to be a leader in a cutting tournament. In the west end the mischief is widespread, both in the number of stores and in the number of lines it comprehends. It is not uncommon to see many stores cutting on one line, but to see many stores cutting on many lines is rather out of the ordinary. Since disaster usually has to come in the train of such wild work, it is a pity that it frequently hits the victims rather than the authors of the evil. Members of the trade complain that they are being forced into this losing game by aggressive competitors. They either have to take part in it or else allow the inaugurator of the cutting to realize his purpose of making up for small profits by very large sales. Every competitor who strikes his flag helps along the success of an unprincipled rival. The natural feeling is, therefore, that it is better to be a dog in the manger in such a case than a sheep in the hands of its shearers.

The medium-sized grocery business is the one that pays. The law of profits, that the larger the business the larger are the returns holds good only up to a certain limit. Experience controverts it after that limit is reached. Several years ago it might have been true "for any value of x," as the algebraic formula has it, but it is not to-day. The more you go above the maximum paying point, the more your profits shrink and the more your expenses grow. Hence a $25,000 business is a more paying one than a $100,000 business in the retail grocery trade of to-day. For a trade of the latter dimensions a man must have costly equipment, he must pay a rent of a couple of thousand a year, he must have a large staff of employes. His expenses are four times those of his neighbor who does a $25,000 business yearly, but his gross profits are not four times as great. Therefore his net profits will not be four times as great. The less money a man has in the retail grocery trade the better, perhaps, but it is certain that a reasonable amount of capital will do more to earn profits for the retailer than a very large capital will. The law of expenses in this case is very much like the physical law in the cooling of water. The more that water is chilled the more it shrinks in volume down to a certain point, when it begins to expand as it gets into ice. Expenses in the same way shrink in comparison to the volume of the business until that volume reaches a certain magnitude. Then they begin to swell. Of course, if a man can do a $50,000 business on a $25,000 scale of equipment he can double his returns, if cutting plays no part in the increase of volume, but landlords begin to think their property is worth a higher rent when it becomes the seat of such a business, a man must get more hands to attend to it, he naturally cherishes such a result of his enterprise, and is led to lay out money on it to keep up its growth, so that a $50,000 business on a $25,000 equipment is probably an impossibility. There is a point, therefore, at which a retailer should be content to stop, so far as volume is concerned, as, beyond that point, loss rather than gain awaits him.

The Toronto Retail Grocers' Association could not possibly have a better recruiting sergeant than its present secretary. The membership list has increased by leaps and bounds since he took hold of it. On Monday night he brought in thirty more new members. This is not the result of merely dropping a word here and there, but is the fruit of active canvassing. Often the same man has to be visited several times before he is persuaded to permit his name to be proposed. The secretary has to represent the Association most favorably, and has to convince each grocer he brings in that it is a genuine benefit to all its members. So active a worker ought to be well supported by the Association itself. When the new members attend a meeting they should find a good full delegation, therefore, of the old stand-bys, and should be enthused by the heartiness and point of the proceedings. It will not do for old members to remain at home or stray in at nine o'clock and be present in so limited number that new members will wonder what constituted the Association before they joined. Such a lukewarm attendance is the stiffest opposition the secretary has to work against. In fact the secretary is working harder for the extension of the Association than the Association itself is.

NOTES ON THE PATRON MOVEMENT

The following notes on the Patron movement have been sent in by a very fair-minded and clear-headed business man, whose facile pen is not a stranger to the pages of THE GROCER. He is one of the last to approve of making terms with the movement, but he does not believe in giving factitious strength to it by too flattering an opposition. We should be glad to have some of our readers signify how far they agree with him. He says :

It is just possible that the merchant, whose business suffers through the operations of the Patrons of Industry have not adopted the proper remedies to cure the evil. It is useless to try to obstruct the current of a popular agitation in the hands of skilful agitators. Strong opposition to the movement only acts as a dam to hold back the current for a short time, to give it head and strength to break down the barrier, whereas if the dam were not built, the current would soon run its course and abate without any more damage being done than a temporary inconvenience to those concerned.

Opposition is not only the life of trade, but it is the life of any doctrine, no matter how erroneous, that tickles the fancy of a number of the inhabitants of any country, just as persecution is the life of a sect. Opposition to any cause frequently invests that cause with the crown of martyrdom, whether it deserves it or not.

Stump orations by merchants at Patrons of Industry gatherings are of no avail in stopping the movement, but on the contrary, have a tendency in the opposite direction. The farmers, as a class, know very little about the percentage of profit required to make a business pay, and it is useless trying to educate them in the matter. Experience is the only teacher, and if left alone to work the thing out in their own way, they will in time get the same kind of experience as they got some years ago in their management of the Grange.

It is unwise for country merchants to attempt to boycott wholesale houses by withdrawing their patronage from those who sell to merchants who supply the Patrons. If the Patrons started stores of their own it would be reasonable to ask the wholesale houses to refuse to supply such stores, but it is unreasonable to ask wholesale houses to stop supplying substantial merchants who have dealt with them for years, simply because these merchants manage their business in their own way. The custom of supplying goods at an advance on cost price is not confined to the retail trade. It is not very many years since the bulk of the dry goods trade was done at an advance on the starting cost price. Cooked invoices, changes in the tariff, and the large amount of Canadian manufactures put into the market stopped this system for a time. It has however to some extent been revived of late, and staple dry goods of Canadian manufacture are now offered by some houses at an advance on cost price, so low as to be below the actual cost of the expense of doing business.

Patron stores will not last long. Those of small capital will be refused credit by the wholesale houses, who know that they can't make it pay, and those of considerable capital will very soon give up supplying the Patrons, when, after stock-taking, they find they have lost money by so doing.

The Patrons can only be strong when they have money in their pockets. Last year there was a large crop, which gave the farmers the handling of considerable money, a great deal of which, no doubt, went to Patron stores. What were the other merchants doing in the meantime ? Were they collecting the amounts which had been standing in their books for one, two, three, or more years ? A few were wise enough to do so, but it is to be feared the majority were spending more time in discussing the Patron question than in vigorous attempts to collect their accounts.

It is impossible for an individual to fight against a combine, and merchants don't appear to be able to form combines of their own. They are about the only class of people who can't.

The Patrons are a combine which the merchants can't fight as a combine. Therefore it is useless to try, but every merchant ought to be able in the interests of his own business to fight an individual farmer. Therefore let him make up his accounts, demand a speedy settlement, take the farmer into his office and talk business to him in the same way as the wholesale merchant talks to his debtor who does not pay up, and if every other means fails try the strong arm of the law on him. If the merchant can't get his money out of the Patron for fresh goods, he will have more time to attend to the collection of his book debts, and if he puts his whole energy into this he will probably reap more benefit to his business than will make up for the loss of sales during the short time the Patrons will be in existence.

If he is afraid of losing custom by taking energetic steps to collect the accounts, and quietly beholds the Patrons passing his door to leave his money, not their own, at the Patron store, he is simply strengthening the Patrons and putting a rod in their hands to whip himself with.

EXCESS BAGGAGE.

The maximum weight of baggage that a traveller's ticket entitles him to carry is 300 pounds. The railway companies should raise this limit to at least 500 pounds. This concession is due to the extensive patronage which their roads receive from the commercial travellers. The railway expenses of every house that maintains a staff of travellers figure very largely in the costs of doing business, and this is supposed to go to the benefit of the railroads. Further, though the roads impose a tax on all baggage above 300 lbs. in weight, they derive but little revenue from excess weight. Excess has to be paid for usually by the traveller, but the remuneration is small in comparison with what the road tariff provides, and seldom reaches the coffers of the company, because it very generally takes the form of a bribe. It is a means, therefore, not of swelling the receipts of the road, but of corrupting the servants of the road. It is also a cover under which now and then a traveller can run in expenses that are not strictly regular, if he be disposed to do so. A set of samples weighing 900 pounds are often carried free of charge so far as the roads are concerned, though they may net the baggage master five or ten dollars. The Boards of Trade should take this matter in hand and endeavor to obtain from the railroads a more liberal allowance for commercial baggage.

HALTON COUNTY AND THE RAILROAD.

A largely attended meeting of the Hamilton Board of Trade was held last week to protest against the action of the G. T. R. in boycotting Halton county by causing two trains per day to run through without stopping. President George E. Bristol occupied the chair, and vigorous speeches were made by A. E. Dalley, A. Turner, A. T. Wood, M. Leggat, John A. Barr and others. It was pointed out that the action of the Grand Trunk was really a blow at Hamilton's business interests by diverting the Halton trade to Toronto and away from Hamilton. On motion of W. Leggat, seconded by A. E. Dalley, a lengthy resolution was unanimously passed condemning the action of the Grand Trunk and endorsing the action of the Council of the Board appointing a committee to proceed to Montreal next week to interview Mr. Seargeant in company with the Civic Railway Committee. At a meeting of the finance committee of Hamilton's council the other day it was decided to act with the Board of Trade and send a deputation to interview General Manager Seargeant, of the Grand Trunk railway, at Montreal, as soon as possible to try and induce him to rescind the action of that railway in cutting off from the people of Halton county all communication by rail by running trains through the county without a stop. The railway people have been sued for $6,000 by Halton county and are retaliating by refusing to stop trains at any stations in Halton. The Halton people have got legal advice that the action of the railway authorities is illegal and that they can compel the latter to stop their trains. The county council of Halton consulted its solicitors, Bain, Laidlaw & Co., of Toronto, as to the legality of the action, and the lawyers have advised that the company's course is clearly illegal. The result will be that another action against the Grand Trunk will be instituted without delay unless the obnoxious order is revoked, and Halton County has so much good fortune already with its law that it is encouraged to go ahead. Hamilton merchants whose trade is suffering from the railway's policy will wish the county success in its appeal to the courts in this case, even if they do not entirely sympathize with the action which is at the root of the difficulty.

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held on Monday night in Richmond Hall. The proceedings began at 9:10 p.m. The following were present :—President Booth (in the chair), Messrs. Clark, Gibson, Williamson, Lindsay, McCulloch, J. S. Bond, Hambly, H. Billinghurst, W. Bird, Harris, J. F. Morrish, Roberts, Secretary Carrie, W. J. McCleary, D. Perkins, Anderson, Sykes, Mills, Sinclair, McMillan, Westren, Mulqueen, McMahon.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

NEW MEMBERS.

The following new members were proposed by the secretary :

C. E. Batchley, King St. W. ; W. Bird, Claremont St. ; Nolan, King W. ; A. Wardell, Clinton St. ; W. J. Robinson, Avenue Road ; J. Davidson, Yonge St. ; J. V. Adams, Queen St. E. ; E. T. Britain, Bathurst St. ; F. W. Hutt, Parkdale ; E. J. Henry, Queen St. W. ; H. Corin, Spadina ; C. E. Clarke, Elm St. ; E. Roberts, Parliament St. ; G. F. Smedley, Wilton Ave. ; H. Conlin, Parliament St. ; W. R. Stewart, Queen St. E. ; H. Billinghurst, Manning Ave. ; J. McMahon, Arthur St. ; J. W. Wylie, Queen St. E. ; Lucas Bros., Little York ; W. B. Eddy, York St. ; Kelly Bros., Queen E. ; M. Swartout, Parkdale ; F. Dean, Parkdale ; T. R. Morris, Arthur St. ; Massey & Gross, Spadina Ave. ; S. Ruthven, Parliament St. ; J. S. Bond, Gerrard St. ; D. Matilda, Broadview Ave.

Moved by Mr. Williamson, seconded by Mr. Gibson, and resolved, that the above named persons be members.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The Executive Committee submitted a report recommending the payment of R. Stuart's and R. Mills' accounts ; noting the fact that prices were cut by certain grocers on Morse's, Dingman's and Electric soaps, and stating that they would notify the manufacturers, if it were thought necessary, for the purpose of preventing any more of this ; the question of a picnic was referred to, but it was deemed advisable that this should be dealt with by the Association.

The report was received.

Mr. Gibson reported for the committee appointed to wait on the Mayor, that his colleague, Mr. Barron, had been unable to give any time to the question, and consequently the committee had not seen the Mayor.

PACKAGE TEA IN DRY GOODS STORES.

Under the head of new business, Mr. Gibson brought up the question of package tea being sold to dry goods stores. Some brands of such tea were being pushed now among the grocers, and at the same time being placed with the dry goods trade. The Association should not take up such tea. Grocers who touched it were robbing themselves. They might think they were suffering loss by not carrying it, but he held it was better to let every customer who asked for it go away somewhere else and get it than carry a pound of it. The more the trade handled such tea the more they advertised it for the dry goods merchants.

CUTTING IN SOAP.

Under the same order of business Mr. Williamson ventured the opinion that some action should be taken to put a stop to the cutting on certain brands of soap that was going on in some quarters. It was detrimental to the trade to sell soap at 4c. that cost 4c. To his knowleege Dingman's was being sold at the rate of 6 for 25c., and the Dingman people had once passed their word to this Asssociation that they would not allow their soap to be sold below a certain price. The Morse and Electric soaps were being sacrificed in the same way, and he believed the manufacturers would not countenance such work if they knew of it. The Pure Gold Co. ought also to be advised that their borax was being sold at the rate of 6 for 25c. He therefore moved, seconded by Mr. Mills,

That the Secretary write to the manufacturers in question and inform them that their goods were being sold by some grocers below the regular prices, and that since the association as a body upheld these prices, it was thought desirable to have this practice brought under the attention of the manufacturers.—Carried.

Mr. Williamson thought that, as some of the persons doing this cutting were members of the Association, it would be well for the secretary to write to them to ask that they discontinue it, but the sense of the meeting was strongly opposed to the Association committing itself to any such step.

A BLACK LIST SCHEME.

Mr. Ryckman, representing the Retail Merchants' Exchange, was introduced and allowed a few minutes to explain the principle of that agency's scheme for compiling a list of the dead-beats of the city. He claimed that the system the Exchange would go upon was entirely different from anything of the same sort that had been projected before. The difficulty with former associations of similar pretensions was that they aimed to make money, not by the merit of their work but by the saving of expenses. Instead of establishing a proper connection or employing adequate machinery for getting information, they jotted down their ratings by guess work, and thus often were proved wide of the mark and turned out unsatisfactory to subscribers. The Retail Merchants' Exchange proposed to draw its information from its members, bers, and to comprehend all the trades, so that ultimately individuals would in self-defence be obliged to belong to it, as outsiders, not being forearmed with the Exchange's book, would be the sure prey of the dead beat fraternity. The scheme was described in detail by Mr. Ryckman, and turned out to be identical with that devised by the late secretary, J. F. Thackray, and used by the Association for two years, only that it aimed to include all trades.

When Mr. Ryckman and his associates in the deputation withdrew, Mr. Clark moved, seconded by Mr. Westren,

That the Association declines to endorse any scheme for listing bad debtors, and does not undertake to influence any of its members in such a matter, but leaves every one free to do as he wishes.

After a considerable amount of discussion, in which there was frequently expressed a desire not to throw cold water upon the project, the resolution was carried.

THE ASSOCIATION'S BLACK LIST.

While speaking to Mr. Clark's resolution above-mentioned, Mr. Mills said he had intended this evening to ask that the Secretary be given further power for the purpose of collecting and circulating all the information obtainable in the Association as to confirmed dead-beat customers. He believed in the principle of a division of experience of this sort among members of the same trade, and especially among members of the same association. There should be no antagonism on this line. He had eight or ten bad debtors and he would freely put their names at the service of his fellow members. The Association's list should be kept up.

Mr. Clark moved that a standing committee be appointed to take charge of the bad debtors' list, and improve on it.

Mr. Westren said it could not be improved on, if the members would do their part and give the information they possessed.

The motion was not seconded.

The meeting favored a revival of the list, and discussed the advisability of printing slips for making reports on, but as there was a committee on printing, that detail of the scheme was left to it.

THE PICNIC.

In regard to the yearly outing, Mr. Gibson said he disapproved of a repetition of the picnic experience they had had every year so far. He thought there was too much labor about it, and was averse to taxing the wholesalers and manufacturers for another of the same kind. He considered it a case of riding a free horse to death to ask these houses to contribute any more. A line of boats would run to Rochester, he understood, at hours very suitable for an excursion to that city, and he thought it would be a good idea for the Association to take its day off that way.

Mr. Westren thought too that more enjoyment could be got for less toil and less expense, as heretofore they spent $1,000 to get $150.

The general feeling was that a picnic on the old lines was too rough and was very unsatisfactory.

Mr. Roberts moved, seconded by Mr. Clark, that the Association should take a quieter day's outing this year, and that the matter be referred to the Executive Committee to report upon at the next meeting.—Carried.

IN INTEREST OF THE ASSOCIATION.

Mr. Gibson felt that it would be better if the notices of meeting were sent on Saturday instead of on Monday, and in this the Association generally concurred.

The Secretary said he would prefer to send them on Saturday, but held them until Monday morning under the belief that then there would be less chance of members forgetting the meeting.

NEW MEMBERS SPEAK.

Mr. Harris was called upon, and said a few words as to the need of a good dead-beat list, but believed the adoption of a cash basis of trade was the best way for the trader to protect himself against such customers. He himself traded on a credit basis very largely. That very day he sent out a collector with accounts representing $800, and the young man came back with $1.75. The question of wholesalers selling to consumers was another one that the Association should deal with. He said he knew a wholesaler who sold tea, a brushmaker who sells feather-dusters, a wholesale produce man who sells hams, butter, etc., to consumers. If this Association can cope with these matters he believed it would be to his interest to belong to it, and it would make a name for itself among outsiders.

Mr. Bond had knowledge of instances where one of his best customers bought from wholesalers. On the peddling question his views were decided, as the pedlars bought the very refuse of the market to compete against the stationary traders with. He believed their license fees were too light.

Mr. Bird, a Briton of the old school, said he was glad he had joined the Association. He had tied his first parcel in 1836, when William the Fourth was on the throne, and had served his apprenticeship 28 miles from London. He remembered the first American cheese, how like it was to a pudding, and observed as the cheese from this side of the water kept getting better every year till at last it beat the English. He had suffered through dead-beats, having lost heavily by them the last six or eight months. He had heard a conversation between two men a few days ago. Said one: "You don't mean to say you pay your grocer, do you?" The other answered, "Of course I pay him." To this the first rejoined: "I don't; let him shift the way I do. When people want their money, I have to move to some other part. Let the grocer do the same when he gets hard up."

Mr. McMahon believed that the credit system needed restricting. The very wealthiest made trouble through their not paying cash. If you asked them to pay what they owed they would take offence. The poor were not the only troublesome debtors.

BUYING THROUGH BROKERS.

The idea was thrown out that it would be profitable for the Association to club together and make a joint order on certain staple imported goods, and have this order filled through brokers directly by the manufacturers. On Crosse & Blackwell's pickles it was shown a saving of 40c. could be effected by buying in this way through such a firm as Wright & Copp, which firm was named in the course of the discussion. It was shown that some such way of coming at the stock was necessary in order to make 30c. a bottle a paying price on the pickles named. Catsup could be bought in the same way, and the thing could be done on a small margin, as the broker would not have the trouble of collecting the orders.

Mr. Westren was opposed to this idea. It would be an inconsistent course to take after the Association had taken the attitude it assumed some time ago on the matter of wholesalers selling to consumers. For retailers to ignore the wholesalers and go a step higher for the supply, was no worse than for wholesalers to ignore retailers and go a step lower for the demand.

Mr. Roberts said one effect of the cheap buying that thus would be secured would be cheap selling, and Crosse & Blackwell pickles would be retailed at 25c. instead of at 30c. by those who got them in this way.

Mr. Gibson pointed to the fact that the leading cutters of the trade were importing these goods directly, but were they gaining anything? He was pretty sure they were not, as, though cutting was their ruling policy, they could not sell Crosse & Blackwell's pickles below 30c. He was sure that there was nothing to be gained by sending joint orders through brokers. Besides, Mr. Gibson said, no broker would take such a commission from the retailers, if he were a man of sense. A broker who should, would at once antagonize the wholesalers and disqualify himself from doing any business with them. Some time ago he wished to buy a quantity of French peas from a broker, but could not do so directly, and had to have sale made through a wholesale house. As for Crosse & Blackwell's pickles, he found the only way he could afford to sell them under 35c. was by buying them in lots of 3 and 4 dozen, instead of in barrels as he used to do, and whereby he had to stand the loss of breakage.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE U. S. SUGAR TRUST AND TRANSPORTATION.

If reports be true, the Sugar Trust is exercising its monopolistic powers in new directions. Not satisfied with controlling the price of refined sugars, it is now reported from Philadelphia that the Trust is endeavoring to force down ocean freight rates by securing control of the West Indies sugar crop. By first squeezing the planter and then the vessel owner, the Trust will be enabled to "enforce stricter economies," and so add to its already enormous profits. The recent purchase of steamships by the Trust may or may not be significant in this connection; though it is certain that Philadelphia vessel owners are fearful of losing their employment. This appears to be the usual sort of economy practiced by trusts and like combinations. Producers and consumers are each obliged to accept whatever terms such monopolies are inclined to dictate. Competitive buying and competitive selling cease to exist; and the so-called economies which are put into effect are more apt to be extra profits squeezed out of buyers and sellers who have no choice, than from improvements in methods or manufacturing. The incentives towards improvements almost invariably diminish with the growth of monopoly. It is one thing to combine for genuine economy, and quite another to band together for monopoly. The one benefits all classes alike; the other benefits only a single class, and usually ends in a stand-and-deliver attitude which in effect is simply robbery.—N. Y. Commercial Bulletin.

HE GOT AHEAD OF THE BANKER.

One of the richest of the Wall Street bankers, a gentleman of very amiable disposition usually, has conceived a violent dislike of peddlers in consequence of a smart trick that one of that class played on him a day or two ago. In defiance of the conspicuously-posted notice, "Beggars and peddlers not allowed in this office," a soiled and hungry-looking vendor of illuminated calendars pushed his way into the banker's private office and insisted that the rich man must buy a calendar to help "a starving fellow-creature." He bothered the banker with his ill-smelling presence so long that his departure was purchased for half a dollar. The banker pointed to two or three calendars hanging in his office, and said that he had no use for another one. The peddler, however, volunteered to leave one at the banker's house that evening. The banker paid no attention to that offer, but when he reached home that evening his wife informed him that a man had been there only a few minutes before and left a calendar. "He said that you sent him here," remarked the wife, "and told him to collect a dollar from me."

"Did you give him a dollar?" asked the banker, with rising choler.

"I did," said the wife.

The banker muttered a few harsh words to himself and, summoning his butler, sent him out into the street with instructions to "find that blamed peddler and bring him back." The butler overtook the peddler a couple of blocks away and bade him return to the house at once. "My master wants to see you," said he.

"Vy, yaas; I vus shust at der house and vas miss him," drawled the peddler, with sublime assurance. "But I know vat he vants. He vants a calendar. Here it is. I am in a hurry. You gif me der fifty cents and he vill bay you." The unsuspecting butler handed over the half dollar, took the calendar, and hurried back to his master with a beaming face. The beam did not retain its beaminess long.—Geyer's Stationer.

LET GROCERS BE GROCERS.

To master one branch of business takes a lifetime ; to attempt to master two branches is generally a waste of labor, so far at least as practical results are concerned. In other words, the man who is a "Jack of all trades" is invariably master of none. To his friends he may appear to be an "admirable Crichton," but those who are really able to judge will soon discover that he is a mere smatterer and windbag. Now in our days there is no field for men who know more or less about several branches of business, but who have no thorough knowledge of any one branch. This is the age of specialists, and only those who recognize this fact clearly are on the sure road to success.

We emphasize this statement because we desire to call attention to the misdirected energy of a certain class of provision dealers who style themselves butchers and grocers, but who might almost with equal propriety style themselves general provision and hardware dealers. Were such dealers to be found only in thinly populated districts nothing need be said, but, strange as it may appear, they are to be found also—and in large numbers—in the principal streets of our greatest cities.

A butcher of this class sells vegetables, flowers and occasionally fruit as well as meat, and a grocer of this class sells canned meat, canned fish, vegetables, mouse-traps, hairpins and other articles of hardware as well as tea, coffee and sugar. The result is ruinous competition. Our claim is that the butcher should sell meat and nothing else, and that the grocer should sell groceries and nothing else. Otherwise each will injure the other without deriving any corresponding benefit for himself. The rule of division of labor cannot be lightly broken, and a little experience will soon convince any business man that he can best achieve success by attending strictly to his own line of business.—National Provisioner.

GROCERS AND CHILDREN BUYERS.

Our esteemed cotemporary, the Merchants' Review, remarks that "Advice on courtesy to customers the dealer can always count on receiving in large doses from his trade paper, but the crying need of the hour is such an education of the public as will prevent exhibitions of ill-breeding on the public's side of the counter."

Right you are, brother Small, but you will admit that as educators our journalistic influence is circumscribed by the limitations of trade journalism. And that however much we should delight to jump over the counter and teach good manners and decency to the boors and members of the hog family generally who comprise so large a percentage of the "public," we must content ourselves with earnest and persistent endeavors at reform behind the counter and help our subscribers and readers to educate the customers by a good example. Thus indirectly we may be enabled to help supply that "crying need of the hour" by tacking the "pressing need of the moment."

Every man—woman and child, too, for that matter—must take his medicine if he expects to succeed or to make any progress toward any desirable attainment.

Advice is not a pleasant thing to take. Criticism is extremely unpleasant to the object of it. Yet if we could know the history in its details of any one who has ever risen to distinction in any right direction we would learn that the successful stages of their advancement were marked by the giving of careful heed to cold, sharp, uncompromising criticism of crude methods, misjudgments, uncurbed passions, hasty actions or what not.

The man who contents himself with being as good as the next fellow, or turns off suggestions as to his course of procedure with : "I ain't taking advice from you,' or "Better talk to those that need it," stands about one chance in a thousand with the man who believes that anybody may give him a point on something, and who acts upon that belief.

This is not saying that everything the right-minded man hears in the way of advice is to be acted upon. If he calmly considers all suggestions, however, he will be a pretty safe judge, before long, of what is worth heeding.

A lady said to the writer this week : "I'd like to write an item for the Commercial Enquirer about the treatment of children in grocery stores."

The reply was : "Do so at once and it shall appear in this week's issue."

The speaker was taken at his word, and here follows the promised word from a mother :

"Grocers, even those most actively on the alert to win customers by courteous and pleasing attention, often seem unaware of one important factor in business success; quick attention to the wants of the little ones sent on errands.

"'Johnny, run to the store quickly and get me a cake of soap and bottle of bluing.' This said in the midst of the duties of washday means business, and Johnny knows it. Off he runs to the corner grocery and after long standing at the counter and irritation born of patience tried at home, the soap and bluing get there. Mother knows the reason for the delay to well, for time and again has she and her boy had like experiences. The child is the last one to be waited on. Obsequious and obliging to the adult customer and that, he will, when he has a convenient season, ask the little errand boy—no less a customer—'Now, sonny, what do you want?' Sonny determines—and philosophically, too—that he will not go to that store any oftner than he has to.

"Grocers would be surprised if they knew what these frequent inattentions to the little ones cost them. Indeed, were I in business I think I would feel compelled to fill the order of the little customer first in nine cases ont of ten, apologizing, if need be, to the older and independent purchaser.

"Another mistake is made in giving a child other than a first-class article—palming off on him what would not be offered to an adult. This is far from establishing a not infrequently taken his own pennies to pay the difference in prices that he may go there and be waited upon kindly and promtly. These are not exceptional instances."

It pays in any vocation—in any walk of life—to lose no opportunity to act with politeness and true courtesy to great and small high and low.

Try it, Mr. Grocer, on the little folks.—Merchants' Review.

BRAINS IN THE STORE.

It seems to me that many men who would make very respectable officers of the United States could not successfully run a country store. The anxieties of such would wear them out. Consider the varied ability that the store requires—the foresight about the markets, to take advantage of ⅛ per cent. off or on here or there, the vigilance required to keep a "full line," to dispose of goods before they spoil or the popular taste changes, suavity and integrity, duplicity, fairness, and adaptability needed to get customers and keep them, the power to bear the daily and hourly worry, the courage to face the ever present spectre of "failure" which is said to come upon ninety merchants in a hundred the tact needed to meet the whims and complaints of patrons, and the difficulty of getting the patrons who grumble most to pay in order to satisfy the creditors.

When the storekeeper awakens in the morning he feels that his business is not going to come to him spontaneously ; he thinks of his rivals, of the perilous stock, of his debts and his delinquent customers. He has no "constitution" to go by, nothing but his wits and energy to set against the world that day, and every day the struggle and the anxiety are the same. What a number of details he has to carry in his head (consider, for instance, how many different kinds of cheese there are, and how different people love and hate the same kind), and how keen must be his appreciation of the popular taste ! The complexities and annoyances of his business are excessive, and he cannot afford to make any mistakes; if he does he will lose his business, and when a man fails in business (honestly) he loses his nerve, and his career is ended. It is simply amazing, when it is considered, the amount of talent shown in what are called the ordinary businesses of life.—Exchange.

ONE WAY TO COLLECT.

Tom O'Brien, the old boy at Baker & Hicks, stocks and bonds, had achieved his promotion.

A quiet, modest youth named Henry Briggs had been hired to fill his place, and so it fell to Tom's lot to accompany the new comer the first time he made his rounds among the offices, in order to instruct him in the ways of the business.

Tom was a sharp, precocious youngster from the East-side; and as none of the pure and noble precepts he had learned in Wall Street had touched his low sense of the proprieties, he resolved to play a dastardly trick on the novice.

"Well, Cully," he remarked, as he lit a cigarette, which he had stolen from the bookkeeper before leaving the office, "I suppose you thing yer knows how to git in dem checks? Oh, yer does, hey? Well, how'd you work it?"

"I'd go into an office and say: "Have you a check for Baker & Hicks?' began Henry. But Tom cut him short with a howl of derision.

"Oh, yer would, would yer? I'd like to see yer once! Dat's Sunday school talk; dat ain't business; dey'd know yer was green in a minute. Come wid me, and I'll show yer." And he dragged the new boy into a large office where the check-window was filled with a freckle-faced chum of his, also an East-sider. "Gimme my check!" demanded Tom, with a defiant swagger.

"Check nothin'," retorted his friend; "t'row yet outer de office first."

"Gimme dat check, or I'll climb over de fence an' break yer face in," reiterated Tom.

"How much does yer want?" asked the youth, apparently somewhat mollified.

"None of yer business!" answered Tom, and then, after a final exchange of courtesies, he secured his check and left the office.

"Dat's de way we does it," he explained to Henry.

"It seems very strange," mused the latter, doubtfully.

"Rats! Don't yer take no guff from nobody. Come, we'll try the next place." And a similar scene enacted with another of Tom's cronies convinced Henry that business methods were strange but arbitrary.

"Now, den," said Tom, wickedly, as he pointed to one of the most respectable and wealthy houses on the street, "go in dere an' let's see what yer can do."

Henry mustered up his courage; he thought he could give a good enough imitation of Tom's business-like language to escape being regarded as "green;" at any rate, he meant to try.

He entered the office. The white-haired old cashier beamed benevolently on him through the window.

* * * *

A moment later Henry darted hurriedly through the door. There was a desperate dash along the hallway, a headlong plunge down the steps; and then Wall street was treated to the spectacle of an exciting foot-race between an angry old gentleman and a badly scared youth, whose fears lent wings to his feet, and carried him rapidly out of sight.—Harry Romaine, in Puck.

WHERE THE JOKE COMES IN.

"Good morning Solomon! I see you have got two good salesmen on the road."

"I have gott no salesmans on de roat. I have gott two termometers. One writes me from down Soud, and says: 'It is too hot to sell de goods.' De otter writes from the Nordwest, and says: 'It is too cold to sell dem goods.' I write back to dem: 'Hereafter I vill consult de wedder bureau.'"—Ex.

Bill Collector—"Six times within a month have I called with this bill. Now, I warn you that I will not call again!" Editor (joyfully)—"Shake! If I can only get ten more of 'em to swear off like that I'll buy a week's groceries and celebrate."—Atlanta Constitution.

Employer—Want to go home? Where do you feel ill?

Boy—Here, sir, in the office. I guess I'll feel better when I get the air on the baseball ground.

The green domestic is always with us. She was sent out last week by her uptown mistress to give the grocer an order. "And while you are there," she was told, "hurry the meat up through the telephone; I'm afraid it will be late." The order was duly received by the grocer, who wondered at the girl's further delaying, while she cast frequent glances at the instrument behind his desk.

"Is there anything more?" he finally asked.

"Not from you," said the girl. "I'm waitin' for the beef to come through the tilliphone, as the missus bid me."

A lady who was shopping stepped up to a merchant and inquired: "What does that sign in your window mean? 'Goods sold at a sweeping reduction.'" "It means, madam, that customers are expected to raise the dust," was the suave reply.—Detroit Free Press.

"No sonny I cannot hire you," said the grocery man to the small boy; "I want a big boy." "But I'll grocer," replied the smart youth, and he got there.

Jones—"I saw a conjurer last night who would give you two different kinds of drink out of the same bottle." Brown—"That's nothing, my boy. We've a grocer in our street who can sell you three kinds of tea out of the same box."—Jury.

SUSPENDED SUCCESS.

Why is it that so large a percentage of business houses lose ground after having made a promising beginning?

It cannot be accidental, much less a business freak. Its very regularity proclaims the existence of an undeviating reason for it.

What can that reason be?

Once to discover it for a certainty is to learn how to avoid the fatal fault ever afterwards.

In the first place, the advertising that admittedly wrought prosperous results ceased to be systematic and continuous. Right at this point its assumed intelligence gave way. To falter or pause in the first flush of triumphant encouragement is to abandon the grounds of original confidence, and to confess it to be deceitful and illusive rather than trustworthy and substantial. If intelligent advertising is the one right and sure course at the start, the subsequent neglect of it can only be the wrong and fatal one.

In the second place, advertising is treated by its acknowledged beneficiare in a haphazard, hit-or-miss, run-for-luck way. It ought to require a great deal more courage to experiment as an advertiser even carelessly, much more with aimless recklessness, than after a digested method and with a defined purpose. Yet it oftener seems as if it did not, after all.

In the next place, individual conceit is too frequently born of the prosperity newly attained by advertising. A certain percentage of ambitious men in business only want a limited degree of external encouragement to lead them to think they can achieve all further success without assistance. They ignore the ineradicable fact that the law of modern trade refuses to recognize any longer the solitariness of mere individualism in the vast and restless realm of traffic. It is an increasingly social age that we live in, and trade and commerce above all else have made it so.

Finally, the business houses that fall into inevitable decay from this canse leave off advertising just at the turning point of their established prosperity. Starting out right, they stopped too soon. At this critical juncture another house comes in, inspired with the requisite amount of intelligent courage, and takes up their enterprise right where they deserted it, and propels it to phenomenal success. Is the old Suez Canal story over again.

What one party abandoned because of the cost, another party stands ready to take up at its abandoned stage and carry through triumphantly.

The Egyptian Canal experience supplies as good an illustration as anything else can of the causes of failure or decadence in business enterprises from the gradual or timid abandonment of systematic advertising. If it is true, as it now stands universally confessed, that little or nothing can be accomplished in business without its all-powerful aid, then it becomes self-evident that it should never be weakened or withdrawn so long as success forms the main object of business pursuit.

One thing at a time; the concentration of available resources; slow and growing expectations—here is the advertising secret clearly revealed.—T. H. Cahill in Advertising.

TEA-CHEST LEAD.

One of the industries in connection with the tea trade is the collection of the lead with which the tea chests are lined. China has been noted from all time for the purity of its lead and the great value of its lead mines, and this tea-chest lead, as it is called, is regarded as the finest in existence. It commands five cents and upward a pound, and finds ready buyers. There are many uses for it, and it is especially valuable in making the best kinds of solder. It is excellent for preserving furs and delicate fabrics, and is much sought for by military and naval men in which to wrap their dress uniforms, for it not only preserves the cloth but prevents the gold ornaments from tarnishing.

One would think that, where so much of this sheet lead is made use of as in China, there would be machinery employed in its production; but such is not the case, and every sheet of it is made by hand and in the most primitive fashion. A large brick is provided, the size of the sheet of lead to be made, and this brick is covered with two or three sheets of paper. On this paper the molten lead is poured, and another brick is placed on top, which flattens the lead out to the required size and thickness. The sheets are then soldered together to the size of the interior of the tea-chest, the tea packed in and the top sheet fastened in place. The workmen are very expert and turn out a vast number of sheets in the course of a day, and, where labor is so cheap at a price much less than it could be made by machinery.—Boston Journal of Commerce.

IMPORTANCE OF THE GENERAL MERCHANT IN SMALL TOWNS.

"Inexperienced travelling men are apt to underestimate a country merchant, simply because he is located at some insignificant point a dozen or so miles from the nearest railroad," says an eastern merchant. "The older men on the road, however, well understand that there are merchants so far off from the larger towns that they are seldom heard of, except by the concerns they deal with, but whom we know do an enormous business, despite their apparently unfavorable surroundings. As a matter of course, such merchants run general stores. They handle everything, almost, that is needed in the house, from the kitchen to the parlor; and everything needed on the farm, from a pair of boots to a harvesting machine. They are nearly always desirable customers; they control almost absolutely a good trade; have known their customers for many years, and know just how far it is safe to credit a man. It is true they often grant credit on what would seem long time, but they are so sure of their money that they are safe in doing so. Many a time have I made a trip of twenty-five or thirty miles over an almost impassable road, paid a big price for a rig and driver, only to visit one such merchant, and many a time have I taken an order from him that was worth as much to me as a half-a-dozen or more orders secured in the larger towns. The country merchant is a fixture. He caters to a peculiar trade, and while it may seem to us that he is far removed from civilization, nothing could be farther from the truth. Many of his customers are well-to-do and fairly well educated farmers, who enjoy life just as well as the millionaire in the city. They have their own ways of enjoying themselves, and are not afraid to spend a little money for luxuries as well as for necessities.—B. C Commercial Journal.

POLITE ATTENTION BEHIND THE COUNTER.

We have written on this subject before. We shall write of it again. It is a subject that will bear repetition a good many times. The cheapest article on the market to-day is politeness, and it is one of the best; and yet it is a commodity that a good many are sublimely and blissfully ignorant of. If a grocer does not know how to be polite himself, then he should stay in the back of the store and hide himself, and hire men at the front and behind the counter who have the inclination and can find time to be polite for him. If he will not do this, then he should go into the nickle-in-the-slot-machine business, or retire altogether. It would be for the better for the customer, and it would prove decidedly more remunerative to the grocer, were he to serve his patrons by automatic machines, rather than through the medium of inattentive and impolite clerks. How many times has a good customer been driven away on account of a surly clerk. A customer wants attention, and polite attention. It matters not who it is, be it a woman or a man, young or old, that person expects civility, at least. The writer has had many such experiences as above described, and he has ever made it a rule never to give an impolite salesman a second opportunity of exhibiting his ugliness at his expense, and there are thousands similiarly situated. It seems astonishing that a merchant who expects to succeed should overlook, or, as is often the case, care so little about who serves his customers and how they are served. It is not obsequiousness that is wanted, but a civil answer to a civil question. It is only by politeness with a desire to please and satisfy the customer, that a profitable and satisfactory trade can be built up.

We know some people who would do well to cut this out and paste it in their hat.—Grocers' Monthly Review.

Restore goods to their proper places as soon after using as possible

A feather duster disperses but does not remove the dust from the store.

STORE HINTS.

Perhaps you are in the habit of going out yourself after the store is closed, just for a "lark." If you make this your regular practice—don't.

"Keeping everlastingly at it brings success."

If your clerks are to think clearly and so limit the number of mistakes, they must have plenty of sleep. If they go out after 9 or 10 o'clock to "have some fun with the boys," it will indirectly, and sometimes directly be at your expense.

If you sell sugar at cost, and your neighbor sells it at a profit, you're pressing the button; he's doing the rest.

When you take an account of stock it will save time and trouble if each drawer has its weight marked on. The whole thing can be weighed, and you will not need to empty it every time you invoice.

It is exasperating for a customer to have to wait while the clerk seeks to find the price of an article not marked. The impatience increases when a bill has to be searched for, and finally he goes away mad because the clerk had to guess at the price. Moral: Mark everything you buy. Not only the shoe box but each pair of shoes.

PROVERBS FOR ADVERTISERS.

Spare the advertisements and spoil the business.

He is a wise man who takes a large space and puts little matter in it.

Whoso loveth a good business loveth advertising; but he that despiseth fame is an ass.

A good advertisement is like the merchant's ships; it bringeth abundance from afar.

He that payeth for advertisements with goods is a fool, for he raiseth up competition in his own market.

Every wise man advertiseth, but a fool speculateth on the Stock Exchange.

He that trusteth in a large circulation shall be wealthy, but he that believeth in cheap rates shall be busted.

The smallest circulation hath oft the loudest tongue.

A big advertiser leaveth an inheritance to his children's children's children.

A small advertisement is better than a bad traveller.

There is no worse robber than a journal that does not circulate.

It is hard to get a forty-page catalogue into an inch in a column.

An advertisement is not a luxury, but a necessity.—"Wal," in London Fame.

About 8,000 tons of sugar for the Montreal refinery have been landed at St. John, N.B., during the past month and forwarded by the C. P. R.

Edward Adams & Co., wholesale grocers, London, Ont., are building a new warehouse on King street, in the rear of their present premises, to cost several thousand dollars.

Mr. Ed. Kelly, formerly in the grocery business in Port Hope, Ont., was visiting friends there the other day. Mr. Kelly is now engaged as manager of Carmichael's grocery in Petrolea.

D. Naismith, who has been with James Turner & Co., Hamilton, for six years, has left for Winnipeg to take charge of the wholesale grocery business of Turner, McKeand & Co.

Messrs. T. S. Vipond & Son, wholesale produce dealers Montreal, have removed to more commodious quarters and will hereafter occupy the store extending from 291 Commissioners street to 476 St. Paul street.

The early closing movement is being agitated again in Morris, Man., and the merchants, with one exception, have signed an agreement to that effect, closing at 7:30, commencing June 1st and lasting until September 1st.

Stephen L. Bartlett, Boston, was here this week, He is highly pleased with the way in which Bensdorp's Cocoa is selling on this market. He arranged for space for an exhibit in the main building at the Industrial fair this fall.

The first steamer from Japan ports for the season, it is said, will leave on 19th inst., and sample lots of new teas are looked for early in June, but not enough supply to make a trading market is likely to be received before the end of the month. There is just a chance that a few samples may have been crowded forward in time to catch the Oceanic, which was scheduled to leave Yokohama on 6th inst.

Some of the fruit men say that the loss on the Dracona's oranges, sold last week will be 50 per cent. in the majority of cases. The American brokers are allowing no opportunity to pass to spread their bear stories, with the object of hurting Montreal as a fruit centre.

The St. Croix Soap Mfg. Co. has established an agency in Winnipeg. Their "Surprise" Soap has made rapid headway in the favor of consumers in Quebec and Ontario since it started on its westward career of conquest. Its success is due to its merit as a laundry soap.

A deputation of soap manufacturers, consisting of Messrs. C. C. Dalton, Toronto; A. Savage, Montreal; Robert Henry, Brantford, and D. Richards, of Woodstock, has asked the Minister of Customs for a departmental ruling on certain clauses of the tariff in relation to the duties on soap. No increase of duty was sought.

Mr. Allard asked in the Quebec Legislature if it was the intention of the Covernment to pay the cultivators of sugar beet root in the province of Quebec the bounty of 50 cents per ton, granted and paid last year, and up to what amount will the Government bind itself? Hon. Mr. Beaublen said an answer would be given in a few days.

Mr. T. F. Quine, of the British Columbian Milling and Feed Company has had several interviews with the councillors of New Westminister and leading members of the Board of Trade on the subject of establishing an oat meal mill there, which are likely to result in the opening of such an enterprise at an early date. Both the Board of Trade and the Council will, it is said, give the proposed milling industry all the practical encouragement in their power.

Mr. E. H. Port, of Messrs. Port & Winch, will leave New Westminster, to-day, on the Eastern train on the C. P. R., for New York, taking through with him the second carload of frozen fish shipped from the Pacific to the Atlantic Ocean by this firm of exporters this season. The car will contain about fifteen tons of salmon, halibut and other fish of this Province, the bulk being salmon.—Vancouver News Advertiser.

Thomas Burrows, auctioneer, has been instructed to sell at his rooms in Hamilton on the 16th inst., the grocery stock belonging to the estate of Richard Bridges, Welland. It is to be sold in a block at a rate on the dollar. The value of stock is $1,070.29. Fixtures, horse, wagon, etc., bring up the value to $1,520. One-half to be cash, the balance in 60 days.

The run of spring salmon is reported as steadily improving, and large shipments of fish are being sent to the Eastern markets. A shipment of halibut will also be made shortly from New Westminster. The resources of British Columbia waters are now only just being discovered, and good prices can always be obtained for fish in Eastern markets.—News Advertiser.

The New Westminster (B.C.) city authorities have received an offer from the representative of a Victoria syndicate to put up a flour mill in the city to cost not less than $220,000 and to purchase at a reasonable cost a certain part of the late Government reserve (now city land) for the site of the proposed mill, without a bonus, and propose to guarantee the maintenance of the mill at a certain standard for at least ten years.

The Council of the Montreal Chambre de Commerce met the other day, Mr. L. E. Morin presiding. The secretary was instructed to write to the different Boards of Trade and ask them what instructions they had given to the delegates they intended sending to the congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, to be held in London, Eng., in June, the idea being to secure a uniformity among the Canadian delegates. Resolutions were adopted asking the congress to adopt the metric system of weights and measures and the decimal monetary system for the entire British Empire.

The shipment of live lobsters to England promises to become an important feature of the fish trade of Nova Scotia. Hitherto all the live lobsters exported from that province have been sent to London. Last week the steamer Inchulva sailed for London, carrying 3,000 live crustaceans. They are carried in four plate iron tanks on the main deck aft of the bridge decks, and are each five feet in length, and have a depth of seven feet. They are fitted with shaves, and each is capable of holding 1,000 lobsters. The tanks are supplied with water from a reservoir on the bridge deck, which holds 600 gallons of water. Capt. McGray has had a steam pump of his own invention placed alongside of this reservoir, and this connects with the sea valve in the engine-room. The reservoir is thus supplied with water. The tanks are connected with the pipes, and the supply re-

Edward Lindner's canning factory in Hamilton was damaged by fire to the extent of $1,500 to $2,000 on Sunday. It was insured for $1,100.

The seed merchants of London, Ont., were much exercised Saturday over the fact that a rival was selling seed at ridiculously low prices in the market and doing a big business. The former appealed to the city authorities, but nothing could be done as the market is free. The merchants declared it unfair that such competition should be allowed when they are compelled to pay rent and incur heavy business expenses.

A canning company with $40,000 capital has been organized in Kingsville, Ont. The stone is now on the ground for building. The building will be a two-story brick, iron roof, 32 x210 long. The farmers are now signing contracts to put in tomatoes, corn, peas, &c. 100 females will find employment. A Michigan expert will command the factory.

David Mackendric, one of the first merchants of Kincardine, died a few days ago at the age of 83. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and came out to America in 1850. He was for a few years postmaster of the little village which was then known as Penetangore, now the town of Kincardine, but resigned his commission in favor of his brother Matthew, who held it up to the time of his death in January last.

The right of the New England Grocer to come free through Canadian mails, a right that was questioned at only one or two customs ports, has been very clearly admitted in a note from our Postoffice Department to the Postmaster-General of the United States. The obstruction of one or two overzealous but indiscriminating officials of ours must have been annoying to our contemporary, whose passport is always written, for those who can read, in its own excellent contents.

A new butter factory has been opened at East Franklin. The former cheese factory has been closed. A large patronage is assured. The milk is drawn from within a radius of four miles. The proprietor is to receive 3 cents per pound for making and selling.

Mr. George Hodge, of Ducket, Hodge & Co., and Mr. William Niven, butter and cheese exporters, have returned from their Old Country trip.

A big fire occured here last week at which a large lot of merchandise was burnt in the freight sheds belonging to Hamburg American Packet Company.

Messrs. T. S. Vipond & Son have removed to larger quarters, and hereafter will occupy the store from 291 Commissioner street to 476 St. Paul street.

Mr. Adams, of Adams & Carrol, grocers of Huntingdon, was called to his long home last week. The trade here speaks highly of Mr. Adams, and sympathize with his family in their bereavement.

Mr. Hatton, of the firm of D. Hatton & Co., canned goods, has left on his annual trip to the Lower provinces. He will visit all the principal packing and fish canning establishments before his return.

John Owens, of Owens & Son, Stoneville, Que., was in town to-day He bought lots of groceries for both places, especially in Japan and black teas. He says business in his part of the country is good and looking brighter.

Miss Florence E. Stewart, daughter of Wm. Stewart, of the Kingston and Montreal Forwarding Co., was united in marriage to P. McLagan, Cheese Exporter. The happy couple were recipients of a large number of valuable presents.

The tea season in Japan has just opened. The firm of John Duncan & Co. have received a cable from their Yokohama house advising shipments of new teas via San Francisco and Vancouver. The cable stated that the market opened $2 to $3 per pecul of 133⅓ lbs. higher than last season. The quality of the crop so far is fairly satisfactory. Prices are quoted as follows :—Choicest, $38; choice, $35; fine, $30.

Mr. Lynch, who is in the city promoting the development of the silver mines in the Kootenal district, B. C., will be remembered as the pioneer worker in the dairy reform. Mr. Lynch some years ago visited the chief cheese and butter making countries of Europe to observe their methods, and on his return spent much time and money in placing the very valuable information he had obtained before the dairymen and the Government.

TORONTO MARKET.

TORONTO, May 12, 1892.

Experiences on the street vary. Some houses report trade rather active, others report it quite dull. None say it is excellent. There is little to give occasion to change of any sort, and movement continues upon the lines traced two or three weeks ago. One manager remarked that in taking a survey of the week on Friday last for the purpose of making up a budget of news for the information of the travellers of his house, he was unable to unearth a single new feature or important event. The record is a very bald one. Sugar has eased, but no stimulus to buying has ensued. Tea keeps up its activity in all the lines that may be roughly classed as popular. Canned goods go at the old pace. Valencia raisins are showing signs of improvement in their value. Coffees are firm, and all choice grades are much higher and are scarce. As to money, it is not more plentiful than it was. The buying side of the market seems to have no more of it to spare, at all events.

COFFEES.

Good Javas, Javas in fact that have any color, are higher and scarce. Some fair sized sales have been made this week. Fancy V.O.G. would cost 34c. laid down here to any importer. Madras are unchanged. Rios are stationary for common grades at 17½c. upwards. Fine Rios are almost out of stock. New Porto Rico coffee is now on hand, shows a very good sample, and makes a nice even roast. The range for green is 28 to 30c. for choice.

DRIED FRUITS.

In Valencia raisins the demand is strong, while the price has a much firmer tone. The New York market has been improving visibly since last report. The stock here is still large, offers are still low from New York, but as the demand is good, the present stage of the situation is improvement on last week's phase of it. In prices, however, there is no amendment. Fine off stalk Valencias are steady at 4½ to 5½c., and American staples are 3½ to 4½c. Other classes of Valencias are not in request, selected being dull and layers selling only in odd spells. Currants appear to have an undertone of firmness that was not observable a week ago. This is more an effect of outside influences than of any improvement in this market. Low grades are still plentiful at 4½ to 4¾c., but the latter quotation represents the minimum with the majority of sellers. Prunes are dull, not over plentiful and steady at quotations in Prices Current. Lemon peel is steady at 16c., orange at 17c., and citron at 25 to 27c. Almonds are quiet at 14 to 15c. for Ivica, and 28 to 30c. for shelled Valencias. All other nuts are at a standstill.

The New York Bulletin reports sales of 1,100 boxes of Valencia raisins for shipment to Canada at 1⅜c. in bond.

RICE AND SPICES.

Rice is not yet in the hey-day of its market. In about a month it will begin to go out in large volume. An impulse that does not begin to operate strongly until the grazing is good is the abundance of fresh milk. On that the season's big business always has to wait. B rice still sells as low as 3⅞c. Japan rice is 5½ to 6c.

Spices pursue the normal course of their market. Just at this time of year the sales are light. In none is there any excitement or change.

SUGAR.

The price has taken a drop of ⅛c. since last week's report, the refiners lowering their quotations by that fraction. The reason for the reduction appears to be current dulness. A longer view of the market would probably warrant a stronger attitude on the part of the refiners, though of course this is still a question. The prolonged indifference of buyers has had its effect, but the reduction does not seem to have given much vigor to the demand, for selling has been painfully slow all week. It is no favor now to get granulated sugar at 4½c., that figure is now the rule. It is said to be possible to get a little inside of this figure. Yellows are quiet from 3½c. upwards. Raws move out slowly from 3½c. upwards.

Raws—A quite large business was done during the week in Muscovado sugars at the reduction noted at the close of last week. A decline of 1.16c. was also accepted by sellers of centrifrugals. The apparent weakness of the European markets, bringing beet sugar near to the parity of Cuba, has apparently frightened holders in Cuba, and here into selling at a reduction before there was any real need of doing so. The weakness in Europe was caused by the figures of stocks coming close to last year's, and the German market is also affected by some 30,000 tons of Austrian sugar now arriving at Hamburg. There is a large bear element in Europe

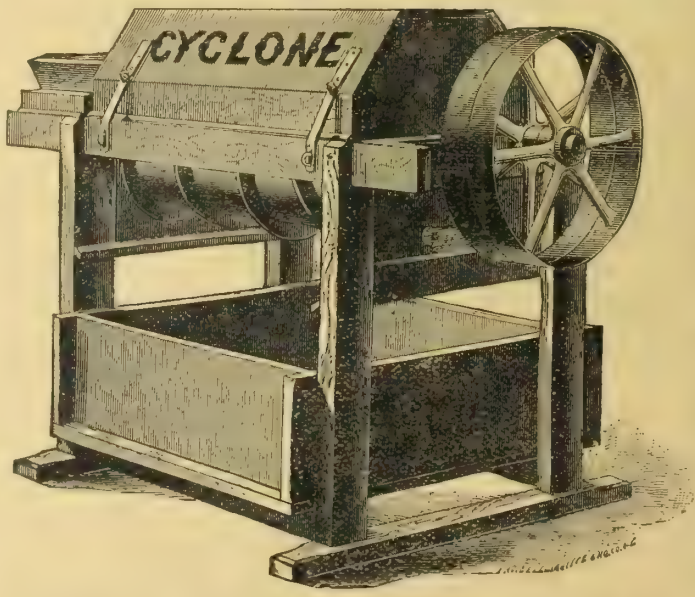
CANNED GOODS.

The call for vegetebles is well maintained, sorting up orders being continuous for small parcels. Prices are steady at former quotations, choice brands being unobtainable below $1.05 for ordinary quantities. Small lots of A 1 goods go as high as $1.10, but there is less of this business doing. A car of assorted vegetables was shipped to Kingston the other day, but the price has not been disclosed. Another car was ordered for the west, also on private terms. The season's business in futures is said to be well on. Packers have been readier to negotiate this spring than usual, a probable reason being an apprehension that the number of new competitors producing during the coming season would make business harder to get if it were let off two long. It is said that some jobbers have contracted for the greater part of their supplies already, and the prices at which they have done so make holders of last season's goods averse to carrying any over. They are unlikely to have many to carry in any case. Corn is said to be in more limited volume than it usually is at this time of year. Some retailers have purchased future supplies, a few thousand cases being reported as contracted for. In fruits there is no movement of any consequence. Prices are not changed in quotation, but they are easy, and lower figures than those quoted will effect purchase in nearly every line. Salmon is quiet, as also is lobster.

MONTREAL.

There is no change to note in the local canned goods market. Blueberries, peas, tomatoes, and corn are receiving more attention, but sales are small and confined to local trade. There is some difference of opinion concerning stocks here, but the market is evidently in good shape in this respect.

To Canning Men.-OUR CYCLONE PULP MACHINE



For making tomato pulp and preparing pumpkin and squash for canning is very well known to all the canners in the United States, and a few of them are in use in Canada. The high tariff has prevented their being used extensively heretofore.

We are now manufacturing these machines at Oakville, Ont., to enable our Canadian friends to obtain them without paying a heavy duty; but we shall make only a few of them unless ordered. Those who contemplate purchasing, should send their orders promptly to insure the saving of duty, as late orders will have to be filled from stock in the United States which will be subject to a 30 per cent duty.

which is liable to become anxious on any demand from the United States, and a sharp reaction would follow.

Refined—The market remains steady and the demand moderate. The production of 25,000 tons, or 175,000 brls. per week, is still in excess of the actual requirements for consumption, and there remains a surplus of stock in the hands of refiners all the time. We think that rarely, if ever, has the grocery trade entered upon the summer fruit season with smaller stocks than now. Small fruits promise to be abundant, beginning with strawberries, which are now appearing in the market. Sugar is cheaper than last year at this time, and so cheap that there is every inducement for its free and liberal use. Refiners are taking a comparatively small profit on its manufacture, and yet their prices cannot be advanced without bringing in the foreign granulated sugar, the parity of cost being now very near together. Scotch yellows continue to arrive in moderate quantities, but the import is restricted from the fact that the Clyde refiners are quick to catch the movement to the United States, and advanced their prices on all grades suitable for America to above what they are getting at home, thus giving as an insight into what will happen if the United States are very dependent on foreign supplies as a result of the removal of the small protection given to the American industry. Any improvement in the demand for refined will be quickly noted, because even some of the large buyers are receiving their stocks with 100-bbl. orders from day to day, until the active season actually begins.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.

No improvement in the call for syrup is to be chronicled. Values are even easier than they were, the price having weakened with the drop in sugar. Also liberal offers of Vancouver syrup have depressed values, which are represented by quotations ranging from 1⅞c. upwards.

In molasses the movement is almost at a complete standstill. Quotations are steady at the figures given in Prices Current.

TEAS.

Teas of fair quality are stiffening in the London market. Young Hysons and low grade Ceylons are both higher outside, and the benefit of the effect upon values here is perceptible in greater firmness for such Ceylons as have the bulk of the call. Low grade blacks as well as low grade Ceylons are selling freely on spot. Good Indian teas also bring full prices.

MARKET NOTES.

[Importers, wholesale merchants and manufacturers should send any items intended for this department so that they may reach the head office not later than Wednesday morning. The editor will always welcome such information.]

Mr. Allen N. Sexton, of the Brewster Soap Works, manufacturers of "Sunshine" Scouring Soap was in the city this week. He has completed arrangements with a wholesale house to handle their soap in Canada. This soap is said to be far superior to anything of its class on the market. Besides the price is away down, the price to the trade being six cents.

Canadian F. D. pipes have gone up 5c. a box.

The Canada Sugar Refining Company have reduced their 2-lb. and 8-lb. syrup tins ¼c. per lb.

Stocks of California evaporated fruits are nearly exhausted here, after having had a very good season, notwithstanding the abundance of domestic dried and canned fruit.

The wholesale grocers desire to give a hint to country merchants not to ship butter in large packages at this time of the year. The buyers want baskets or small packages of 30 to 50 lbs. and no more. Many country merchants send boxes of 100 to 300 lbs., and as the wholesale grocer cannot subdivide them, he has frequently to let them go at a sacrifice.

There is still a refusal to make public particulars received from Japan in regard to new teas, but intimations are given that a few peculs of choice goods were settled at extreme rates. The first settlements, it is now said, were at $35 per pecul, but that is looked upon as probably a fancy rate.—N. Y. Bulletin.

Orders have been taken for some brands of French canned peas, 1892 season pack, at prices about 2½ francs per case below those at which similar goods were opened last season. Bids ½ franc below this year's opening prices have been refused within a few days, the deduction from which is that the packers are disinclined to make any further concession.—N. Y. Commercial Bulletin.

PETROLEUM.

Few sales of importance have been made, the business of the week being at a very ordinary rate of distribution. Prices have not varied, 14 to 15c., being the range for Canada refined.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.25 per barrel; Oil Springs crude $1.25½ per bbl. The crude oil market is on a firm basis of $1.25 and there is not much offered at these figures. The feeling is quiet, and has about the same tone that is generally prevalent at this season of the year. The same may be reported as to the refined article, the busy season is about over and we may not expect to see any great changes for a few months to come, when dealers will commence to purchase for their fall supply. Of course a good many things may occur before then in the trade to effect the business, and it is really too bad that the manufacturers cannot obtain a better price for their commodity. MARKETS—Continued.

would fill the bill, but from past experience they have always agreed to disagree. The lubricating oil trade has a boyant feeling, and justly so, as nature has provided us with the raw material for manufacturing some of the finest lubricants and containing more viscous properties than any other produced in the world, Every expert knows that paraffine in solution is the best of lubricator, and we have it right here in our crude oil. Of course there have been lots of poor goods put on the market and have been ever since mineral lubricants were known.

Those consumers who are always on the look out for "bargains" were sadly taken in, and the lessons of the past few years have caused buyers to look after their interests more closely. There are still some inferior grades floating about, but the great majority find a resting place on the retired list. Improved processes for manufacture have worked a revolution in the lubricating oil line, and the increased demand of petroleum lubricants over animal or vegetable oils is assurance that this demand has come to stay. Our grades and brands are definitely established, and every barrel will be found exactly what it pretends to be

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Large rolls are begining to be the bane of the market. They are coming to hand in such quantity as to be quotable now from 12½c. up to 14c. The difficulty with this description of butter is, that it must be consumed locally for the most part, as it has not the keeping quality to allow of its being help for an outside demand, and has not the shipping qualities necessary for it to stand handling. Hence it has to find its final outlet here or accumulate and depreciate, as indeed it is now doing. Dealers are doing what they can to encourage buying by conceeding easy prices. On Monday a lot of 2000 lbs. was turned over at 12½c. Other round lots of less magnitude changed hands at similar prices. As to tub butter there is scarcely any to be had. It is not in request yet at all events, new butter not being wanted in such packages much before June as a rule.

Cheese is quiet at 11 to 11½c. on track for fall makes. Jobbers get 12c. Offers of new cheese are taken quite freely at 9¾c. Dealers get 10½c. The signs point to lower values.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES—All common fruit is now scarce. Only fancy stock is much in request. Good, well-preserved stock of this description is worth $3.50 to $4.

BEANS—The market is still against sellers, who find it hard to get above 90c. Reselling goes on at $1.10 to $1.15.

DRIED APPLES—The market takes no turn. Sellers can get 3½c. Jobbers get 4c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Dulness still prevails, and the life seems to have gone out of the demand. Quotations are getting nominal at 6½c. in lots and 7½c. jobbed out.

EGGS—Purchases are now mostly made at 11c.

HIDES—No change is to be noted. No. 1 green cows' are 4½c. Cured are steady at 5c.

HONEY—Extracted is as dull as ever at 8 to 9c. Sections have a little call at 13 to 15c.

HOPS—The demand calls for small morsel only. Once in a while a brewer comes on the market, and no doubt the rarity of his visit makes prices easier for the occasion. They continue to quote still at 19 to 20c. for new, and 15 to 18c. for yearlings.

ONIONS—A quiet trade goes on at $2.25 to $2.75 per barrel.

POTATOES—Cars are still 30c. on track, end out of store prices are 40 to 42c.

SKINS—Sheepskins are $1.15 to $1.30, lambskins are 20., calfskins 5 to 7c..

TALLOW—Is very plentiful. The quotation is weak at 5½c. for rough.

WOOL—Fleeces are dull and unchanged at 18c.

PROVISIONS.

The demand is evidently pulling itself together for some buying, if inquiries may be taken as an indication. There have been some very encouraging overtures for business the past few days, which augur well for an early opening up of the trade this season. Prices are the same throughout.

BACON—Long clear is 7½ to 8c., smoked backs are 10c., bellies 9½ to 10c., rolls 8½ to 8¾c.

HAMS—Are steady at 10½ to 11c.

LARD—Pure is unchanged at 10 to 10½c. for tubs and pails. Compound is steady at 8 to 8½c.

BARREL PORK—U. S. heavy mess is $13 to $14, Canadian $15. short cut $16 to $16.50.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef is 4½ to 5½c. in fore and 7 to 8½c. in hindquarters, yearling lamb is 10¼ to 10½c., Spring lamb is $4.50 to $5.50 per head, mutton 7 to 8c., veal 6 to 7c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Cool weather keeps back the demand. The Valencia oranges sold last week at the Montreal auction were very wasty. Consequently the loss was very large and prices have therefore firmed rather than eased as a consequence of this sale. We quote still $6 to $6.50 for Valencias. Messinas also quote the same as before, viz., $4 to $4.50. Catenas and Palermos are sold at the same prices as Messinas. Blood oranges are $2.25 to $2.75 in half cases. Floridas are nominal, being all but done, at $4.50 to $5. A considerable quantity of Valencias was bought for this market, several carloads having made their way here. Lemons are still low-priced, low grades being abundant. The quotations may be classed as follows: For common $2 to $2.50, choice $2.50 to $3, fancy $3 to $3.50, extra fancy $3.50 to $4. Pineapples are threatening to be excessively plentiful. Prices are 5 to 15c. The low prices and the cheapness of sugar are causing a great many to be canned this year. Bananas are $1.25 to $2.25. Sweet potatoes are somewhat scarce at $4.50

FISH.

The fish market is inactive. Market cod and sea-herring are now out of stock. Whitefish is firmer at 6½ to 7c. Movement is fairly strong in British Columbia salmon.

SALT.

The shipments of salt have been of about the usual weekly average. They include 2 cars of dairy at $1.25, 2 cars of barrels at $1.20, and one car of course sacks at 70c.

DRY GOODS.

The dry goods trade is no exception to the general rule that business is rather dull. The week's sales have been moderate in volume and for the most part inconsiderable in profit. There have been no changes of importance to make note of.

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

The market is very persistent in its sameness. The demand has nothing to draw upon apparently, or it would have toned up before this. The feeling that continued reserve on the part of buyers must end in a simultaneous call for large supplies has given way to one of hopelessness. Nobody appears to look for anything better than we have had, namely, a very small sized, intermittent demand. Feed has but little more to boast of than flour, the extent of the distribution being very limited. Prices have not developed any additions to other changes.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $5; strong bakers', $4.50; Ontario patents, $4.60; straight roller, $4.25; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.50.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5.15; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.45 to $4.70; Ontario patents, $4.00 to $4.25; straight roller, $3.75 to $3.95; extra, $3.50 to $3.80; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

MEAL—Oatmeal is $3.90 to $4. Cornmeal is $4.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is $4.50 per barrel.

FEED—Bran is $14 to $15, shorts $14.50 to $15.5c, mixed feed $22 to $25, cracked corn $1.10, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 32 to 32½c.

HAY—is fairly active at $12.50 to $13 for No.1 timothy and $10 to $10.50 for mixed.

STRAW—is steady at $6 to $6.50.

MONTREAL.

The remark that business is very much below the average for the season unfortunately still holds good and weakness characterizes values all along the line. The millers, although quoting this morning $4.70 as an outside figure for strong bakers, find the demand still confined to the most imperative trade wants and complaints of dulness are general. The stock in store on Saturday last showed a decrease of 4,558 barrels when compared with the same day of the week previous, and a decrease of 16,754 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote as follows: Patent spring, $4.90 to $5.10; patent winter, $4.60 to $4.90; straight roller, $4.35 to $4.50; extra, $4 to $4.10; superfine, $3.75 to $3.90; fine, $3.25 to $3.50; strong bakers, $4.45 to $4.70.

There is nothing new on shipping account and orders from the home trade are coming on as slowly as ever. The stock in store on Saturday last showed a decrease of five barrels, when compared with the same day of the week previous, and an increase of 4,813 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote:—Granulated, bbls. $3.80 to $3.90; Rolled, bbls. $3.80 to $3.90; Standard, bbls. $3.75 to $3.85; Granulated in bags $1.85 to $1.90; Rolled in bags $1.85 to $1.90; Standard, in bags $1.80 to $1.85.

The market is dull and inclined to weakness. Bran is quoted at $14.50 to $15, and hard to sell. Shorts are worth $16 to $17 and mouillie $20 to $23.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Flour—The position of the flour market is unaltered. The quantity selling is not large, prices are unchanged and present quotations are: Manitoba $5.75 to $5.85, Ontario high grade $4.90 to $5, medium patents $4.70 to $4.80.

Oatmeal—Is in fair demand. The price is unchanged at $4.10 to $4.20.

Cornmeal—Is slightly easier. Very little is selling at $2.70 to $2.75.

Oats—Medium quality are selling at 41 to 43c. Black seed oats are 43 to 45c.

A customer secured is a promise of greater salary in time.

Goods conveniently located save time, money and temper in showing.

Soap and water are cheap, but soil on goods is expensive.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, May 12, 1892.

GROCERIES.

The grocery trade in general has a better movement this week, and is bound to pick up more so as the retail trade must be low in stock as they have been buying cautiously for some time back. This goes to prove that they are buying more freely as all lines are in better enquiry this week. Sugar is quiet as regards the refiners, but the trade are selling it in fair quantities, teas are also in good demand in all lines and especially in low grade Japans which are likely to advance in the near future, as new stock will cost more to lay down than old can be bought for on spot, so as soon as the old stock is out the advance will take place. Rice is in good demand and the same may be said of dried fruit, which has shown a better movement during the week. In green fruit this point is now one of the fruit centres of this continent, and the sales this spring have satisfied both owners and brokers. Travellers are out and are doing a nice trade, and of late have been sending in large orders. Payments are also good, and the whole tone of the trade is better than it has been for some time.

SUGAR.

The local sugar market is quiet as far as the refiners are concerned, and the wholesale trade are not very active as yet. One firm outside of the Guild have had several enquiries from the far west for granulated, and claim to have closed a few small deals at standard prices. They also claim that they are selling at the half and do not intend to go lower than 4⅝c. The rest of the trade here say things are still quiet and that some cutting is still being done as the season is early. The refiners are selling granulated at 4 7-16c., and low grade yellows are selling as low as 3⅜c. The majority of the wholesale trade are selling granulated at 4⅜c. Advices from Cuba state the demand for raws is dull, and that a good deal will be sent forward for sale, but the bulk of this will be shipped to England instead of the States. One of the wholesalers here state that the Woodside refinery are putting a fine line of granulated on the market, if anything it is superior to the other brands. We think this is a matter of opinion. We quote: Granulated 4½ to 4 9-16c.; yellows, low grade, 3½ to 3¾c., and yellows bright 3¾ to 4¼c.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS.

Syrups remain quiet and neglected and prices are precisely nominal, and we think any reasonable offer would be accepted for a round lot. American syrup can be bought in the States at 12c., this is equal to 20c. laid down in Montreal, in fact one wholesaler was quoted above for a very fair line. The molasses market is also quiet. Barbadoes is selling here in a jobbing way at 34c. We also hear of to arrive sales being made at 29 to 30c. Advices from the Island still report a very steady market, 12c. being about the idea. The wholesale trade here report a trade doing in both lines but say it might be better. We quote as follows:—Barbadoes 35 to 38c., American 28c.; syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 40 to 45c. for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Maple syrup is in fair demand, and dealers claim that stocks here are lighter than they have been for ten years. Maple sugar meets with fair local enquiry at steady prices under very light stock, and business on the whole in both lines is dull and easy at unchanged prices. We quote maple syrup in tins 60 to 65c. per gallon and in wood at 5 to 5½c. per pound. Maple sugar is quoted at 8 to 8½c. and fancy cakes at 9c.

TEAS.

There has been a good demand for high grade Japans during the week, but stocks of this line are scarce and orders are hard to fill. In low grade stock there has been some sales made on a basis of 13½c. This is owing to new stock that is to come being held at higher prices. Dealers here claim that there is sure to be an advance in this line, and the tone of the market is decidedly better. The trade here that are well supplied can count themselves lucky, as the stock they hold is good, The consigned lots that were held here are pretty well cleaned out, in fact there are only a few small lots left. Low grade blacks are in good demand, but stocks on spot are very small and orders are hard to fill. Orders have also been booked for high grade blacks, and the general position of affairs is better regarding sellers.

The following has been received this day by cable from Messrs. C. P. Low & Co., Yokohama:—

S.s. Oceanic sailed yesterday, taking 3,550 packages tea, comprising—

	Pkgs.
New York	1,800
Chicago	1,500
Pacific ports	250
Total	3,550

Rate of freight per succeeding steamship City of Rio de Janeiro (May 19th), to San Francisco and rail, 3c. per lb. gross.

Market still uncertain.

R. W. FORESTER, Agent.

COFFEE.

Locelly coffee is in fair demand, and a few small sales have been noted in Rios. We also hear of a sale of 10 bags Maracaibo at full figures, this leaves the stock in that line very small in first hands. Prices remain the same as last week: Rio, 18 to 20c., Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c.; Jamaica; 19 to 21c.; Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c.; Santos, 17½ to 19c.

RICE.

There is a good seasonable movement in rice. The enquiry from the west has been good and several car lots have been shipped during the week. The general tone of the market at this point is favorable. Advices from primary points are still reported strong. We quote Standard $4 to $4.10 Japan $4.50 to $5, Patnas $4.50 to $5, and Carolinas $7 to $8 per hundred lbs.

DRIED FRUIT.

There has been better enquiry for dried fruit during the week and a few small orders have been put through. Holders are taking a much firmer position for stock that is not poor, and buyers have hardly realized the alteration in the position. Currants here also have a better movement, and advices from New York state the market is stiffer and more active. Prices at this point are however unchanged, and we quote the same figures as last week. We quote:—Valencias, ordinary, 3½ to 4c.; No. 1 off stalk, 4½c.; layers, 6c. to 6¼c.; Patras currants, 5 to 5¼c; Vostizzas, in cases, 7½ to 8c.; provincial currants, 4⅞ to 5½c.; do. in half barrels, 5 to 6c.

MARKETS—Continued.

NUTS.

The only business doing on spot in nuts is a small jobbing one and outside of that there is nothing new to note. Prices remain the same as quoted last week. We quote as follows :—Almonds Tarragona 13 to 13½c.; Almonds, Ivica 12 to 13c. ; Almonds, common 10 to 11c.; Almonds, hardshell 7 to 8c.; Walnuts, Grenoble, new 11 to 12c. ; Walnuts, French 10 to 10½c.; Cocoanuts per 100 $4.50 to $5 ; Filberts 9 to 10c. ; Pecans 16 to 17c.; Peanuts 7 to 10c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Green fruit is in fair demand the stock on spot now is confined to Masenas and Valencias, as all the Jamacas and Floridas have been sold. Valencias are still selling at the same price for prime stock but some of the stock ex S.S. Dracona has been sold as low as 45c. this is owing to it arriving in bad order but the first class part of it sold at much better figures. Masenas are in steady demand at former prices. Montreal now can claim being one of the largest fruit centers and all the sellers are satisfied with the returns of the sales here. Lemons are meeting with steady sales as is also pineapples and bananas the receipts of the latter during the week have been large, and quite a few orders have been filled. Strawberries are in fair demand but at the present prices business cannot be expected to be large. We quote. Valencias oranges $7 to $7.50; bloods in half boxes $2.75 to $3, ; Masenas $4 to $4.50. ; Lemons $2 to $3.25 ; pineapples 7 to 15c. each, strawberries 25 to 50c. per box, bananas $1 to $1.50 per bunch.

HOPS.

The hop market is still quiet, but holders talk firm. Choice Canadian cannot be bought less than 24c. Pressed hops have the same steady movement to the wholesale grocery trade at old prices. We quote 16 to 18c. for small lots.

FISH.

The first arrivals of fresh white fish and trout from the upper lakes have been received, sales of which have been made at 7c. per lb. wholesale. British Columbia salmon in cases bring 16 to 17c. per lb. The season for pickled fish is pretty near closed up, and prices are nominal all round. In smoked fish the close of the season occurred this week, with sales of finnan haddies at 7 to 8c. Other lines are nominally quoted as follows :—Smoked Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.00 to $1.10 ; St. John's bloaters, per 100 box, 80c. to $1.00; boneless cod, large boxes, 6c. to 7c.; do. small boxes 7c. to 8c. ; finnan haddies, 7 to 8c.

We quote No. 1 herring, per brl., $4.50 to $4.60; lake trout, per half brl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.25 to $8.75; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4 25 to $4.50; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

PROVISIONS.

The little change there is to note is for the better, as more favorable accounts are given of the demand for both pork and smoked meats, and late news from Chicago has a beneficial influence upon pries. Business in lard, however, continues limited. We quote : Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.25 to $16.50 ; mess pork, western, per brl. $15.00 to $16.25; short cut, western, per brl. $15.50 to $16.25; hams, city cured, per lb. 10c. to 10½c; lard, Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c ; bacon per lb. 9c. to 10c ; lard, com. refined, per lb. 7 to 7¼c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The butter market is easy in tone. New stock is coming in more freely and dealers are pushing it off as fast as possible, preferring to make concessions in order to have more in stock when the year's stock comes in. Old butter is practically off the market, holders have succeeded in clearing out their stock pretty well but at low prices. The receipts of western roll butter continue very heavy, and receivers find it very difficult to keep their stock cleaned up. The quotation is 15 to 16½c., but a reduction would no doubt be made in case of a round lot. There is very little Western in tubs coming forward, any offering brings 16½ to 17c., and nice Township and Morrisburg are quoted at 18 to 19c.

There is an easier feeling in the cheese market. A lot of Blue Star brand was bought at the boat yesterday morning at 9¾c., which about represents the idea of the market. The offerings on spot continue very small, but are beginning to increase. There were rumors to-day about a lot of 1,200 boxes of old stock being held in Ingersoll district, but they could not be confirmed.

EGGS.

The egg market is firmer to-day. The receipts continue heavy, but none too heavy for the demand, which is good. Prices range from 10¾ to 11¼c.

GRAIN.

The local grain market has shown a little better inquiry, but the sales as yet do not show the increase in the volume of business anticipated. And business on the whole is about the same as last week. We quote : No. 2 hard Manitoba, 94 to 95c; No. 3 do., 83 to 85c.; No. 1 Northern, 92 to 95c. peas, 73c. to 74c. per 66 pounds; oats, 32 to 34c. per 34 pounds, corn, 55 to 60c., duty paid ; feed barley, 40 to 42c.; good malting do., nominal.

The stocks in store show an increase of 16,546 bushelsof wheat, 2,446 bushels of peas, 4,435 bushels of barley, and a decrease of 50,612 bushels of oats, compared with a week ago. Compared with a year, ago there is an increase of 139,542 bushels of wheat, 186,935 bushels of peas, 274,850 bushels of oats, 8,795 bushels of rye,, and 4,813 barrels of oatmeal, and a decrease of 8,172 bushels of corn, and 377 bushels of barley.

The stocks of flour and grain in store in Montreal on the dates mentioned were as follows :

	May 7, 1892.	April 30, 1892.	May 9, 1891.
Wheat, bush	689,268	672,722	552,726
Corn, bush			8,172
Peas, bush	405,818	403,372	218,883
Oats, bush	512,141	562,753	237,291
Barley, bush	102,869	98,434	103,246
Rye, bush	39,592	39,592	30,797
Flour, brls	.....	67,023	76,039
Oatmeal, brls	5,095	5,100	282

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., May, 12, 1892.

A slight improvement is noticed in business since last week. Money seems to be more plentiful and as spring advances the trade channels are more opened up, and should assist in further improving business.

Molasses—The steamship Faymouth Castle arrived last week with a part cargo of Barbadoes. It is selling quite freely at 31 to 33c.

Sugar—There is very little change in the sugar market. Quotatations are : granulated 4.45 to 4⅝c. ; yellows 3¼ to 3½c. : extra 3⅝ to 3¾c.

PRODUCE.

Cheese—New stock is offered, though in small quantities, and prices are steady with a fair demand at 12 to 13c.

Butter—Is also more plentiful and prices gradually are getting lower, and 20 to 22c. seems the prevailing quotation.

Eggs—Are in good demand and sell at 10 to 11c.

Potatoes—Are still dull, very few selling.

Onions—New Bermudas are quite plentiful and sell at $2 to $2.25 a crate.

Beans—Are selling at the lowest prices for years, $1.20 to $1.35 in lots.

AN INCIDENT ON THE ROAD.

The fare was good, ay excellent,
The tables seemed to swell,
With tid-bits from the east and west,
As became a great hotel.

But the traveller seemed dissatisfied,
The reason was not plain ;
The waiters all were anxious
To have their guest explain.

Dear sir, with what can we serve you ?
Said one with grave salaam.
Why only, of course, with the choicest cut
Of Ryan's "sugar-cured ham."

Then that waiter rushed to the telephone,
As he never had rushed before,
And rang for the "central" office,
To "connect" a provision store.

The store was "raised" and the waiter explained,
That to stop all complaints of this kind,
He wished them to send without delay,
Some hams of the "Ryan" brand.

The order was filled, complaints were stilled,
And the irritated guest
Remained a week, instead of a day,
And left with regret in his breast.

Efforts are being made in Victoria, B. C., to secure by mutual arrangement the closing of retail stores at 7 p. m. except on Saturdays and on the eve of public holidays. Many leading storekeepersof Victoria have already promised their assent and co-operation.

GRADING BUTTER.

W. H. Malkin, manager for Osmund Skrine, general merchant, Grenfell, Assa., writes the Commercial as follows :—

I was very glad to see your article on "butter," in your last week's issue, and as one who has tried the plan of "butter grading" as set forth in your article, I thoroughly endorse all you said. As you stated, Virden is the town in which the system was first inaugurated, and last spring the merchants of Grenfell took it up, and have carried it through the last twelve months with infinite success ; and one of the direct results is that the quality of butter made in this vicinity has manifestly improved.

Not only is the system of infinite benefit to the merchant, but the practical dairyman, who thoroughly understands his business (and this is the man we must encourage), reaps a direct benefit, in that he gets the full value for his butter, instead of losing a cent or two per pound to make up the loss the merchant must sustain on the poor butter for which he, "very foolishly," pays the same price, rather than to have a row with Mrs. Smith or Mrs. Jones. Merchants in considering the system must not only look at the benefit directly derived by themselves, but must bear in mind that the reputation of the country as a dairy-farming country is at stake, and it behooves them to look to it.

THE CLERK AND HIS EMPLOYER.

"Use no man as thy tool" should be the basis of a storekeeper's conduct towards and his treatment of, his clerks. This small quotation is capable of application in many ways, says a writer in the American Store-Keeper, and I will not attempt to put this matter of conduct on to a higher plane because we are all human, but I do think that a storekeeper has no right to expect his clerk to vouch for goods as being something they are not. Or to vouch for him personally as being something he is not. In fact he has no right to make a tool of him in any way. The best principle is to make a clerk, as far as possible, his confidant, i.e., in such a case as where he has but one. If he has numerous clerks it is bad policy to choose out one, except such a one who is in a measure superintendent of the others. If a merchant is sure of his clerk's single-heartedness of purpose, if he is sure of his being thoroughly conscientious and capable, then the sooner he makes a friend of him the better. To those who do not know human nature well, or who have not sought out the ways and wherefores of things, I may as well point out the fact, that business like a boat, goes much more successfully and speedily when all pull together evenly. I mean just this—the stress on the evenly, because it means one side doesn't pull too hard for the other. But if a storekeeper merchant or business man isn't sure of his clerk, then he should keep him simply to business and specific duties, relying on himself alone for the outside points and the spread of the interest of his business. If he feels that he is shifty, the sooner they part the better for both concerned.

Now there is a further point in which a business man has a duty towards his clerk, and that is in consideration. A merchant's dealings with his clerk do not entirely end outside his business—they do and yet they do not. They do not in so far as the ordinary goings and comings of his clerk are no business of his, though where they become likely to injure his reputation or that of his business, they undoubtedly become so. They do in that he is bound to use a certain amount of protection or any influence he may possess in favor of his clerk. For if not, where could the clerk ever get an identity for himself? It thus becomes apparent that the clerk has rights and his employer obligations towards him. Take the case of a clerk who has outside influence which may be useful to the merchant; he exerts it and the merchant profits thereby. Similarly a clerk within reason is entitled most certainly to use his position with the merchant as a means of strengthening his own position outside. Now I will speak more directly to the clerk as regards his employer.

In considering his position towards his employer he should always bear in mind this, that, unless he thoroughly identifies himself in his employer's business he is not of real value. It is the man of individual character who gets out of the run of being an automaton such as is suitable to a bank.

In the case of a general merchant or country merchant and his clerk or clerks, such a kind is not needed. People often use the phrase "a mere clerk ;" it is this movement of an automaton which makes a clerk a mere clerk, in other words, the place makes the individual what he is, instead of the individual making the place what it is. In a country or small town clerks of undoubted energy and ability can carry their employer's business on wonderfully, by entering into the spirit of the thing. And each move that they make carries them further themselves. When a clerk has discovered that his employer is a pushing, good and capable man, he should make it his aim to earn his good will. Of course, if it is his misfortune to be identified with interests of which he is ashamed, it is useless to put himself forward in connection therewith, but he should remember even in such a case to do his work thoroughly and to the best of his ability.

Clerks of all kinds should be careful of how they speak of their employers' business —especially in a small town. Their wisest course will be to avoid speaking of it at all except to say in a general way that business is good. In his dealings with his employer a clerk should always remember that a certainty is better than an uncertainty—that there are plenty as good fish in the river as were ever taken out and that very few men are indispensable in this world. However, this last remark may be justified to this extent—it is possible for a clerk to mark his individuality in a business so strongly that he practically becomes the brains of it. Clerks must remember always that they are employes of their employer, and that he does not pay them to loaf or shirk responsibility. And now I think I have written that which each may think over with mutual profit—both employer and employed, but it is after all, like all dealings between men and men, largely a question of mutual forbearance, tact and judgment. Nobody is perfect, and live and let live, is an excellent thing to remember. Anyhow it is far preferable to have confidence in each other, knowing each other's faults and failings.—Exchange.

A MILLSTONE ROUND A MAN'S NECK.

A good credit has put a burden of debt upon many a man's shoulders that is to-day dragging him down financially and socially, and in not a few instances morally also. The art of judiciously using a good credit is an accomplishment that has been acquired by a very small per cent. of the people. The use of credit in a majority of cases leads one to purchase more than they need, or more than the necessities they demand ; it leads to extravagance and debt. If it was only resorted to as an absolute necessity, a good credit would be a great blessing, and in many cases it is an absolute necessity, but its use too frequently leads a man to purchases that are far beyond his resources, and when the day of settlement comes around, the man of good credit and best of intentions finds himself confronted with more obligations than he has resources to meet.

It is far easier to contract a debt than it is to pay it. A man can get into debt almost unconsciously and without realizing the fact, but when pay-day comes round and he finds himself face to face with more creditors than he can satisfy, he then realizes his mistake when it is too late to avoid it. And thus it is that thousands of men become hopelessly involved in debt without any intention of wronging any one or of beating their creditors out of theirjust dues. It was because they had a good credit and abused it.

Another bad feature of a good credit is that the possessor of it usually pays an exorbitant price for it. As a rule, people who buy on credit pay more for their goods than the man who pays the cash. In other words the man who has a good credit pays for the privilege of using it every time. As an illusiration, one man goes to a jewelry store to purchase a watch ; he pays cash and buys his watch for $20 or $25. His neighbor, who has a good credit, buys the same kind of a watch, but buys it on time. He pays $35 or $40 for it. In short, he pays $15 for the privilege of using his good credit.

Do not think from this article that we desire to depreciate a good credit : on the contrary, we would advocate every man seeking to obtain and maintain a good credit standing. What we seek to do by this article is to warn our readers against the abuse of a good credit rating. It is an old saying that the way to keep a good credit is not to use it, and there is far more truth than poetry in the maxim. A good credit properly used is an acquirement to be proud of, but by abuse it becomes a curse to any man.—Nebraska Business Men's Journal.

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

☞ We beg to advise our readers of a change in our premises. Our office and place of publication is now at No. 10 Front St. East, next door to the Board of Trade building. This removal, itself an improvement, enables us to add many other features that former limitations of space would not allow. Correspondents or visitors will please remember the change.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

This paper leaves the Toronto Post Office Thursday evening. Subscribers not receiving it promptly should write us at once. Their doing so will be considered a favor.

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

The best way to better one's circumstances is to improve his opportunities.

On another page of this issue is copied a letter, which was published a few days ago in the Halifax Morning Chronicle. It is written by a man evidently very familiar with the class of questions insolvency legislation will have to deal with, and familiar too with the business processes that make bankrupts. It contains as well a very good statement of the grounds for whatever doubt exists as to the value of a national insolvency act. There are some people who look upon a measure of that description as statutory impertinence. They hold that failures and their consequences, unless when criminal, are the result of commercial freedom, and since the cause—excessive competition, bad buying, inexperience, depressed prices, overloading, scarcity of money, etc.—cannot be regulated by law, law should have nothing to do with the effect. That would hardly do, however, as a general principle for defining the scope of law, as a comparatively harmless initial cause is often the beginning of destructive results. It is not unlawful for a man to take a glass of whiskey, or a dozen glasses, but it is unlawful for him to murder anybody under the influence of it. Those who oppose insolvency legislation, admit that much and serious mischief results from failures and injudicious settlements, but they place the onus of this on the creditors, who are free to sell as they will, but who ought, they claim, to be responsible for any bad judgment they show in granting credit. The theory of the "freedom" argument, even if more admissable than it is, would be swept away by commercial opinion if the matter of an insolvency act were left to be settled between the two.

A market municipally free is not an unmixed good. It is sure to be a haven for fakirs and itinerant vendors, whose competition will harass stationary merchants. Mercantile influence is usually opposed to tolls, market fees, and other restrictions to the sale of agricultural products by the growers, whom it is the policy of all established traders to bring to town as often and in as large numbers as it is possible to bring them. Freedom to sell invites liberality in buying, and the money the grower gets on the market place he usually leaves in the town. But while merchants are enlightened enough to help along this sort of exchange, by supporting the abolition of fees, etc., they ought to be sufficiently alive to their own interests to lobby the Council in favor of putting a license fee on all transient traders, whether they occupy a store for a few weeks to sell off a bankrupt stock, or offer their wares on the market place. The settled trade cannot afford to see its business go to maintain a brood of parasites. The seed merchants of London, Ont., have had their business this year seriously cut into by a stranger who sold garden seeds at one cent a package. A protest of the wholesale seedsmen against this business was heard the other night before a committee of the City Council, and resulted in the introduction of an amendment to the free market by-law, which limited the application of that by-law to producers only. This was due to the tax-paying merchants of the city.

Cheap excursions to central trading points play havoc with the trade of provincial towns. They are got up for pleasure, but are usually taken advantage of by a very hard-headed lot of pleasure-seekers, who contract their purse-strings for days ahead that they may be able to bring home a lot of bargains. In this way a single day will often affect local trade for weeks both before and after it. Special passenger rates on market days also work against the welfare of small towns. The interests of the railway companies are not always identical with those of the towns along their line. Of course the larger the commerce of the smaller interior trading points the more they are a source of revenue to the railways, as they yield a big freight income if they have a big distribution. The railway companies, however, are willing to forego the slight increase in their freight returns for the sake of the greater increase in their fare returns that popular excursions can produce. A correspondent in the Times of Port Hope refers to an excursion from that town to this city, and estimates at $2,000 the purchasing power transferred from Port Hope to Toronto by that excursion. The church which got it up, he considers, made about $30. Here is a great deal of mischief done to local and substantial interests for a very small benefit. If the concerns which get up these excursions would make an estimate of what they consider the net returns derivable from a popular excursion should be, and then assess the local merchants for this, it would often be more profitable for the latter to pay it than let the excursion go on. Thirty dollars is far short of the profit the local trade should make upon an outlay of $2,000. The business men who are members of bodies that get up excursions ought to use their influence against any that are likely to be in the interests of buyers. The main point, the great drawing card nowadays with these excursions, is not solid pleasure, but solid business. A destination is not always picked out for its picturesqueness, but often for its price attractions.

"BULLETIN NO. 29---COFFEE."

Bulletin 29, prepared by the chief analysist of the Inland Revenue Department, is a certificate, not by any means flattering, to the physical and chemical character of the coffee sold in this country, and to the moral character of the vendors and grinders of it. It shows the results of the analysis and microscopical examination of 140 samples collected in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba. The date of collection, the vendor's description of the sample, the weight of the sample, the cost, the name of the vendor, and the name of the manufacturer as given by the vendor, are other details included in each of the 140 entries of the table. The samples were one or other of the following weights: 1, 1¼, 1½, and 2 lbs. The price had all manner of variations from 13 to 50c. per lb., but the commonest quotations were from 25 to 40c. Price ought to be an indicator of purity or adulteration. It is not a reliable one, according to this Bulletin, as some comparatively low priced coffees are pure, and some fifty cent coffees are adulterated. Adulteration along with high prices is more commonly found in Manitoba, where of course all prices are higher than they are here. Of 24 samples of coffee sold at 30c. a pound four turned out to be pure. Of the 17 samples sold below this price, the majority at 25c., none were pure. Of the sixty samples sold at 40c., 25 turned out to be adulterated. Of the 10 sold at 50c., 5 turned out to be adulterated. The adulterants were grain, chicory, starch, roasted grain, corn starch, beans, maize, pea meal and farinaceous matter. In New Brunswick the proportion of pure coffee is much higher than in any of the other provinces, five-sixths of the samples being classed as genuine coffee. In Nova Scotia, Quebec and Ontario respectively, about two-thirds of the samples proved to be adulterated. In Manitoba the proportion was somewhat lower. In one instance, a sample that had been described as "compound" by the salesman turned out to be perfectly pure.

The analysis shows the percentage of each sample that is moisture, the percentage of it that is fat, and the percentage of it that is water extract or alcohol extract. As it is the water extract that is obtained by the domestic method of preparing coffee for the table, the results of extraction by that method are of the most practical service. Of the 140 samples bought 31 were represented by the sellers to be compound; the others were sold tacitly or expressly as pure coffee, but only 54 of them were proved to be pure.

The following extracts from the Bulletin afford some information to the trader:

"A large number of samples of coffee were collected throughout the Dominion in October, November and December of last year, and submitted to the various district analysts for analysis. Many of them were found to be adulterated, and twenty-seven of the most flagrant cases were selected for prosecution. Fourteen of the delinquents, on being required to pay the cost of procuring and analysing the samples (as provided by sub-section 2 of section 11 of the Adulteration Act), amounting in each case to $14, complied with the demand. The remaining thirteen were sued, five of them convicted, and the remaining eight cases are still in litigation. There were, however, a great many instances in which the article was sold as a 'compound or mixture,' either verbally or having one of these words written or printed on the package. Very frequently, however, the word was placed in obscure positions and not by any means 'in conspicuous characters,' as required by the Act. These 'compounds' were very often remarkable for the very small amount of coffee they contained, and it would seem to be necessary that the public should be informed of their true character and origin, as well as of the names of the manufacturers and dealers who produce and sell a genuine coffee."

"The fat in pure coffee varies from 10 to 12½ per cent."

"The percentage of fat contained in adulterated coffees varies from 12 to 1 per cent., and as a general rule it may be assumed that the lower the percentage of fat the greater is the amount of adulterant added to the pure coffee. It would, however, be unsafe to depend entirely on this, as there is nothing to prevent the manufacturer from introducing foreign fat into the mixture, if he finds it to his interest to do so."

"According to Kœnig, the average quantity of substances removed from pure coffee by the ordinary domestic treatment is 25.5 per cent. Coffee substitutes, on the other hand, lose from 21.55 to 73.91 per cent. The figures obtained in this laboratory in treating pure coffees vary from 21.50 to 26.50, and average about 24 per cent. In the case of adulterated samples, the soluble matter varies in amount from 25 to 68 per cent, the high figures being always occasioned by the caramel, gum, soluble starch and dextrine contained in the substances which are mixed with the coffee in order to produce a cheap article.

The manufacturers of sophisticated coffee do not by any means confine themselves to the use of chicory. Roasted peas and grain are also ground in with and sold as part of the resulting 'compound.' There are, moreover, large quantities of a substance imported under the name of 'essence of coffee,' for adulterating purposes, which is a species of burnt sugar, and, from its containing dextrine, is probably made from some of the bye-products of the glucose factories. It costs in New York and Philadelphia from 3 to 5 cents per lb. As it possesses no organic structure it is apt to be overlooked in the microscopical examination. It contains about 75 per cent of matter soluble in water, which has great colouring power, and a little of it is capable of imparting a strong brown coffee colour to water. It would seem that the importation, manufacture or sale of such an article is as much deserving of prohibition as the manufacture of oleomargarine."

LONDON GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

The London Retail Grocers' Association held its regular meeting on Wednesday, May 11, with President Ferguson in the chair.

J. M. Lord, and A. Grant, were admitted to membership.

R. A. Jones reported in behalf of the committee appointed to interview the press with regard to market report. He had waited on the Free Press and was informed that that paper had always endeavored to give as reliable a report as possible, but it was very difficult to always get an exact report, as prices varied considerably. The Free Press, however, always tried to arrive at an average price in its market report.

This report was received.

W. H. Branton, who was appointed to interview the market reporter of the Advertiser stated that he would have to apologize, as he had entirely forgotten that he was appointed to that duty.

NEW BUSINESS.

The president stated that he had been interviewed by some of the seed merchants with respect to the market by-law, and that the seed merchants intended waiting on the market committee of the city this evening with a request that a clause be inserted in the market by-law prohibiting the sale on the city market of foreign goods or produce, and he was asked to bring the matter before the matter before the Grocers' Association, and if it was thought advisable to do so that a committee be appointed to represent the association at a meeting of the market committee.

Several members expressed themselves favorable to the proposition, W. H. Branton, T. A. Rowat and R. A. Jones, and the president were appointed a committee for this purpose.

The next question proposed for discussion was that of sundry articles in the grocery line being handled by dry goods and other merchants as drawing cards or advertising mediums, and which were being sold at or below usual cost. The class of goods, consisted principally of soaps, woodenware, tea, confectionery and such goods. Several members expressed themselves very emphatically in favor of the grocers withdrawing their trade from any wholesale firm or manufacturer that would sell their goods to other than those to which these lines properly belong.

It was unanimously resolved that the members of this Association refrain from buying from any firm known to supply others than the regular grocery trade with such sundry articles as soaps, woodenware, tea, confectionery or other articles that properly belong to the grocery trade, and that all grocers gleaning any information of any firm or firms selling to such parties will give the name to the Secretary for the information of the members of this and other grocery associations; and that a copy of this resolution be sent to all kindred associations and to all the members of this Association, asking co-operation.

THE PICNIC.

It was resolved to hold a picnic on July 27th in Queen's Park, and that the Secretary solicit by circular letter subscriptions for prizes from the wholesale and manufacturing firms. The following were named a committee to strike the committees necessary to get up the picnic:—J. C. Trebilcock, R. H. Cullis, Jas. Annett, J. L. Fitzgerald and Peter McGlade.

THE INSOLVENCY QUESTION.

"Scrutator" writes as follows in the Halifax Morning Chronicle :

"Fifteen years in hell," as related by a well-known American physician, was the exclamation of a gentleman of sixty who had been born and reared in luxury and wealth, as with a stamp of the foot he dashed on the table the pen which had just made him a bankrupt and a beggar. This excellent man, in the course of business, had become involved, but had been hoping and striving, as honorable men do, to "work out of his embarrassments," and for all that long time he did work, and worked hard, allowed himself no indulgences, and sacrificed his large property freely whenever necessary to "meet an engagement." But all would not do, and he closed the strife by saying, "I am old and poor and have no home."

Another gentleman (according to the same authority) who had failed in business, but had subsequently paid all his debts and was acting in a capacity which, while it involved no pecuniary responsibility, was sufficient to enable him and his family to live comfortably, said : "I am one of the happiest men in New York and no amount of money could induce me to repeat my former career. I will not do it. The efforts to keep up the name of our firm would now eat out my mind."

Instances such as these, which are familiar enough to the ordinary observer of commercial life, illustrate clearly the innate aversiou to business-failure, which characterizes the great majority of men engaged in trade. At what precise moment of doubt or discouragement it is right and proper for the man of ordinary intelligence, in the full possession of mental and physical power, to admit that he has been beaten in the struggle for success and to surrender his effects to satisfy the just demands of creditors, is a question the solution of which underlies every mavement in the direction of insolvency legislation.

That special insolvency legislation is a product of comparatively modern development goes without saying. The general substitution of the word insolvency for the older and stricter English designation of bankruptcy is but an example of the gradual adoption of more humane methods of conserving the protection of society from the effects of the errors, misfortunes and shortcomings which at one time or another overtake such a large proportion of the ordinary run of business humanity.

The condition of the bankrupt early in the last centuary was one of extreme misery and wretchedness, as graphically portrayed in Addison's Spectator by a quotation from Otway's Venice Preserved, and can be but faintly understood in the light of our ideas on the subject at the present time.

A brief attempt to define the question may be useful in considering it. What is bankruptcy or insolvency? Is it an offence against society in the ordinary occupation of the term? At a somewhat distant period, as already stated. it almost came under the category of crime in England and was visited with severe penalties. In the present day default in payment can hardly be classed as an offence against society unless the failure is one of unusual magnitude. A great life insurance company or a large financial institution in a state of utter ruin and depletion, bringing hunger and despair to the confiding widow and orphan, would seem to approach more nearly to the average conception of injury or wrong-doing than the collapse of a trading corporation or business firm, involving comparatively the limited pecuniary interests of a circle of constituents willing at all times to assume certain risks of loss for the chance of certain expected gains.

Although not entirely unknown in the Dominion, financial disasters of large amount, with far-reaching consequences to thousands of innocent and unsuspecting persons, are of very rare occurrence, so that the definition of insolvency narrows itself down to an area sufficiently clear and plain to be easily comprehended by the general public. Unfortunately it has become too common in the every day business life of many sections in Canada than an average or percentage may be counted upon from month to month, from year to year, with discouraging regularity. Earnest attempts to analyze the causes are being made so frequently that well defined reasons for the evil are not at all difficult to find. Close competition, insufficient capital, reckless and incapable management, extravagant private expenditure, over-buying, but beyond all else indiscriminate selling on credit, are the principal factors by common consent in pushing great numbers to the wall continually.

Can anything in reason be brought forward in the direction of extenuation for the unusual proportion of those who fail, in comparison with those who escape this humiliation? Many thinking persons, who claim to be in a position to judge, have arrived at the conclusion that the thoroughly organized and elaborate arrangements to extend their operations adopted by business men in this go-ahead age, may fairly be considered as one of the most frequent causes of embarrassment to a large number of well-intentioned persons in the ranks of trade. Time and again it happens that the pushing traveller for a pushing firm succeeds in stocking up town after town, village after village, and hamlet after hamlet, with merchandise far in excess of its requirements. The argument may, of course, be advanced that dealers are not compelled to buy beyond their needs, but is it not true that in numberless instances the inducements offered really amount to a temptation, and that the shrewd enterprising traveller, thoroughly skilled by long experience, patient, persevering and determined, eventually succeeds in his object, despite all rebuffs and delays?

If a concensus of opinion could be had from Halifax to Vancouver, there is little room to doubt that it would have to be admitted that there are far more expert sellers than buyers in the country. Doubtless very many of the latter are careful, discreet and sound in their judgment, but it is no disparagement to the last to affirm that under the present conditions of business the advantage as to carrying their point is largely on the side of the former. A proper appreciation of this phase of extreme urgency in modern business methods would possibly convince the anxious enquirer that insolvency legislation with a punitive tendency is impracticable ; nay, well nigh impossible.

It is an open question whether any national insolvency law does not work more harm than good by the very recognition of insolvency as an ordinary every day possibility. Should it not be regarded rather as a most undesirable contingency, and its treatment when it does unfortunately happen, be left to the common law and existing statutes and the ordinary commercial usage of the locality. National legislation on insolvency in the United States has been tried and found unsuited to that progressive people. Advocates of a return to the system may be found there, but the relegation of the question to the local administration of each separate state in the Union has been found by experience to be on the whole more adapted to the varied interests involved in widely differing sections. A law, for instance, that would suit New York or Pennsylvania would be of little service in a thinly populated territory or state just entering on its career of advancement with limited resources and surroundings, requiring more toleration in dealing with the question than the older and more favored sections.

In the mother country an act has been on the statute book for several years, but it is by no means a pronounced success and shortly after its inception a deeds of arrangement act, otherwise an act recognizing compositions which Mr. Chamberlain's act aimed to discourage, had to be passed to relieve the tension that its working had occasioned. Modifications suggested by experience may eventually result in rendering the act at present in force in the mother country more perfect, but the question is so complex and difficult to bring within the range of modern legislation, which has an ever-increasing tendency towards forbearance in dealing with the unfortunate and distressed, that it would cause little surprise at any time if the cumbrous and expensive legislation of "Our Joe" should meet the fate of its predecessors.

In Canada, as is well known, the mercantile community, becoming exasperated a few years since at the incongruities and absurdities of the insolvent acts of 1869 and 1875, demanded their repeal, which was promptly acceded to by the government of the day.

An agitation has arisen recently to reenact a Dominion insolvency law, and memorials and suggestions from boards of trade are continually appearing, but it is the opinion of many keen observers that it will be extremely difficult to get another act passed in the Dominion parliament. Widespread dissatisfaction seems to exist with regard to the prevalence of compositions, and in some quarters abolition of this mode of settlement by law is propounded.

A great deal is to be said on this subject, which is necessarily a pretty wide one. Viewed dispassionately, there is something essentially anti-British in attempting to interfere by legislation with a creditor's right to forgive his debtor in part or in toto if he considers it to his interest, and it would be more politic to recognize such settlements by a deed of arrangement act on the lines of the English act, providing for the registration of compositions to ensure their validity, than to make useless efforts to forbid agreements based on common sense and a due appreciation of antecedent circumstances.

The denunciations which have been hurled at preferences and voluntary assignments would seem to be based on more substantial grounds of complaint. If a railway corporation gets "hard up" an issue of preference bonds under legislative sanction, leaving previous creditors or investors out in the cold, is a matter of every day occurrence, but there is great indignation if Pater endeavors to secure himself for the hard earned cash loaned to Hopeful when Messieurs Rush Jam and Shove have loaded Hopeful up with their surplus stock in spite of his almost pleading entreaty to be left alone.

If remedies are to be applied to the abuses which undoubtedly exist, the wisest course surely would be to apply for local legislation similar to that in force elsewhere, putting an end to voluntary preferential assignments and providing for an equitable distribution of insolvent estates within a reasonable time and at reasonable charges. With regard to fraudulent practices which occasionally form such unsavory adjuncts to insolvency, if the ordinary statutes are not available a special clause could be added to operate directly against such cases.

In a very large proportion of failures in the maritime provinces, the amounts involved are not important enough to justify lengthy and expensive judicial procedure, the disgusted creditor often feeling after the first flush of irritation that life is too short to waste time and energy in following a delinquent to the bitter end. The most fertile genius of the best business talent in both hemispheres has hitherto evolved no modus operandi that can be fairly claimed as a panacea for the evils of insolvency, but there is certainly one reflection so obvious to the impartial investigator of the unwelcome topic in this meridian, that the wonder is it should be so seldom acted upon.

Our greatest English author three centuries ago delivered himself in this wise :

'To be honest, as this world goes,
" Is to be one picked out of ten thousand."

Shakespeare is conceded to have been a good judge of human nature, and although the quotation may seem that of a pessimist, yet the world has not changed so very much and there is a germ of truth in the words after all.

There would be less need of the clamor for insolvency legislation if five firms so called would adopt the expedient of cautioning their hustling representatives against crediting all the geese they are in chase of with being swans, thus setting some slight bounds to the unreasoning optimism which so often fills the left hand sides of the business ledgers of the Dominion with a sorry procession of dilatory debtors to the manifest injury of healthy trade.

THE FRUIT SALES.

The last lemon sale of the season was held on Friday afternoon in the Mechanics institute. There was a fair attendence of buyers, but hardly as large as at the last sales. Among the American buyers present were W. Spear, of Spear & Co., Boston ; A. Caron, of New Orleans ; Mr. Van Valin, of H. P. Stanley & Co,, Chicago ; Elsden A. Morris, of New York ; Henry Carrier, of Boston ; M. Edgecombe, of Thacker Bros., Chicago. The principal Canadian buyers were Messrs. Shuttleworth, London ; Cleghorn & McWilliams, Toronto ; Fowler, Brantford ; Orr Borden, Quebec, and all the local fruit merchants, The American buyers only took five or six cars, the Canadians being the principal buyers, but it is understood that several of the local firms were buying for Americans. The general opinion was that the fruit was not so good as the previous cargoes, showing signs of being heated, but the market was stronger and prices fully ¼c higher, owing to this being the last cargo this season. Prices were higher than those ruling in Boston on Wednesday, in fact they were higher than the prices quoted in any catalogue yet received. The only Americans who bought to any extent were Mr. Spear, of Boston, and Mr. Caron, the first named has become quite a favorite among the Canadians. He is well informed and was not backward in giving his opinions, which was generally very near correct, to his Canadian confreres. A general review of the different sales shows that our prices have been lower than those of last season. owing to the increase of one-third in the production and the heavy receipts at American ports. Montreal has done better than New York or Boston, however, and when we can have proper facilities for handling the fruit we will be in a position to compete with any other market for the trade. The buyers are all complaining about the limited space and the slow process of delivery, but it is to be hoped that all these defects will be remedied before another year. The Messina oranges were as a rule in a nasty condition, boxes selling at $1.50@$3.50 and halves at 75c@$1.90. Catania oranges, though wasty, were of extremely fine quality and sold at good prices, boxes bringing 75c@$3.50 and halves 50c@$2.50. Sorrentos sold from $1@$3.67½. Two small lots of halves sold at 85c. Messina lemons sold at $1.25@$3, the average price being about $2.25.—Montreal Gazette.

NOTES TAKEN ON THE ROAD.

James Watson, St. John, N.B., said that although he did not take as much time as he should to read THE CANADIAN GROCER, he thought he should help support that journal, if any, as it was in the interests of his trade alone, and he hoped to see it continue to grow in the future as it had in the past.

Alex. Porter, St. John, N.B., always welcomes the representative of THE CANADIAN GROCER. Mr. Porter has two stores, and although employing about ten clerks he is kept constantly busy. His main store on the corner of Waterloo and Union streets is one of the finest kept stores in the city, a marvel of neatness and order, and contains a stock that would challenge any metropolitan establishment in Canada.

J. E. Cowan, St. John, N.B., in renewing his subscription to THE CANADIAN GROCER, said that it was the best trade paper he had ever taken. Mr. Cowan's first subscription was a "trial" trip. He is one of St. John's enterprising citizens and a self-made man. Mr. Cowan has three stores and a large storehouse under his personal management, besides 13 tenements which are never empty. It is such men that have all the business they can attend to that take time to read their trade paper. Mr. Cowan handles flour, meal, pork, sugars, molasses, etc., in job lots, buys for cash, and never lets a "bargain" slip.

WHERE THE JOKE COMES IN.

Bob, did you ever stop to think," said a grocer recently, as he measured out half a peck of potatoes, "that these potatoes contain sugar, starch and water?" "No, I didn't." replied the boy, "but I heard mother say that you put peas and beans in your coffee, and a pint of water to every quart of milk you sold."

Stranger : "Good morning ! Is this the notary's office ?" Clerk : "No ; on the opposite side of the road." Stranger: "Thanks; good morning !" (Exit, leaving the door open.) Clerk (shouting after him) : "Won't you please shut the door ? Or do you suppose it fastens of itself ?" Stranger (re-enters) : "Allow me to show you a sample of my new patent automatic, double-spring door fastener. It will close any door noiselessly, and is perfectly self-acting, and will last a lifetime."

THE RAPID INCREASE in the sales of our Hillwattee Tea show that the grocers and consumers appreciate a good thing when they get it.

We do not ask you to buy Hillwattee Tea because it has had an immense sale but for the reason of its superiority over other package teas. Try a sample half chest (50 lbs) and see how it goes. "Dozens and dozens" of Grocers have done this and are now handling Hillwattee only.

J. W. LANG & CO.

The expansion of the wholesale grocery trade of Toronto of late years has been very marked, and this city is now the centre of supply for all Ontario and the Western Provinces. The improvement in the matter of warehouses has also been noted, and Toronto can now claim first place in this respect. The enterprising firm J. W. Lang & Co. have been steadily coming to the front, and are now conceded to be one of the leading houses of the Dominion. For some years they occupied the large premises No. 33, Front St. East. This proving to be inadequate for the requirements of their business, they secured and are now located in most convenient and commodious warehouse at Nos. 59, 61, and 63, Front St. East, at the corner of Church. This warehouse consists of four flats, the full size of the building with offices and sample rooms all fitted up in the latest style, with every necessary improvement for the saving of labor and the prompt execution of orders. The sample room (of which a sketch and diagram accompany this description,) is large and airy, and the general arrangement is so complete that the buyer can easily and with comfort inspect samples of every article offered for sale by the firm, under the guidance of two expert and attentive salesmen, who, together with their large staff of travelling salesmen, are ever on the alert for business.

The offices are very complete and supplied with every requisite for the handling of the firm's large and rapidly increasing volume of trade. They have in use the most modern and complete system of book-keeping obtainable. The basement is used for the storage of sugars, syrups, and other heavy merchandise and is furnished with two doors for receiving goods. The front floor is well laid out for storage of canned goods, of which the firm carry large lines. The greater portion of the shipping is made from the Church St. door of this flat. The shipper being immediately in rear of the offices he can always be in direct communication with salesmen and book-keepers.

On the first flat are the Customs and Excise bonds and the sundry department where goods are packed and prepared for shipment. Here will be found a complete assortment of fancy groceries, of which, unless by personal inspection, no idea can be formed of the immense variety. Notwithstanding this, the labor has been reduced to a minimum by the excellent arrangement of the goods. Consequently the employers can furnish any needed article on demand.

On the upper flat can be found a large stock of teas, comprising all the staple lines as well as the new and attractive Indians and Ceylons, which of late are receiving so much attention. Of their special line, Cresent Brand, they carry stock enough to supply the Dominion. The firm are to be congratulated on their fine premises.

COLD FACTS ABOUT THE TRADE JOURNAL.

The trade journal has specific lines, and the editorial shoe has to toe the mark. It has to be accurate as well as specific. Two and two must always be four. With this indispensable morality in its arithmetic and make up, it is as a rule a reliable trustee of the advertiser's money and his "ad." He puts the pumpkin seed in the right hill. What it says the right man reads. It takes the fodder direct to the stable, and never, unless in want of an early death, cares to peddle silk where pig iron is wanted, or carry cotton to coal mines. Knitting needles are no use to men who never wear socks, nor door locks to men who never get into trousers or houses. In the trade journal all this foolery is severely let alone. Hence its value. It carries the match to the candle, and never is guilty of taking toothpicks to babies.—The Age of Steel.

SALMON FOR NEW YORK.

The other day Messrs. Port & Winch of this City shipped in a refrigerator car attached to the Atlantic Express, their third carload of fresh salmon to New York. These enterprising fish exporters have literally opened a new avenue of Provincial output, which has infused new life into the local fish industry. Before Messrs. Port & Winch opened the New York Market to the Fraser River spring salmon, in other words placed the finest fish in the world in as fresh a state as when they were taken out of the water, upon one of the best markets on the continent, there was only a limited local demand for the fish of the spring run, and consequently only a limited number of men were employed, but since the exporters have established a regular market, and a system of weekly carload shipments the fisherman have all found a steady sale at good prices for every fish they can catch, and that in a spring run fully up the average of any former season. Formerly the fishermen looked to the canning industry as the only department of the salmon trade to which they could look for employment in the exercise of their calling and that only lasted for a few weeks. Mr. Port would remain in New York to attend to the business on the Atlantic until the shipping season is over, which will probably be two, and possibly three months.—Vancouver News Advertiser.

One thing in particular should be impres ed upon clerks—the necessity of careful attention to small customers

TABLET TEA AS MADE IN KINKANG.

The Consuls in China do their best to say a word for the Chinese tea growers, and it is not their fault that the trade in China tea is not in a healthier condition. Mr. Bullock, one of the Consuls, in a recent report says something in praise of tablet tea, as it is made in Kinkang, where machinery for its manufacture has recently been erected. He says this tea is made from the very best quality of tea dust. It is formed by pressure alone into small cakes, which are perfectly strong and solid, and rather resemble chocolate in appearance. The material is not, like brick tea, moistened with steam before being compressed, and the flavour is not in any way impaired by the process of manufacture. Taking up little space and being unlikely to get spoilt or damaged, it presents the best and most convenient form of tea that one can possibly imagine for travellers, backwoodsmen, or armies in the field.

ALAS, 'TWAS BUT A DREAM.

The day was a lovely one in spring, just warm enough to give one a touch of that dreamy, delightful malady popularly known as spring fever. The violets and dandelions were peeping above the greensward, the peach and apple blossoms perfumed the air and the persistent house-fly, renewed and rejuvenated, displayed wonderful energy in tickling the nostrils of the drowsy loafers about the corner grocery.

John Easeman, dealer in dry goods, groceries, clothing, shoes, etc., had spent the greater portion of his 48 years in his present business, and he was still far from being a rich man. He sat in the easy chair in his office, reflecting on his business cares, on the dull season, the low price of some of the staple crops, on the slowness of collections, and wondering how he could tide over his financial embarrassments until the next crops were harvested.

"It's pretty tough, sure," he muttered, "to get in such straightened circumstances through no fault of my own."

The mild, warm breeze was wafted through the window, laden with the perfume of blossoms.

"This is a lazy, sleepy sort of weather," he murmured; "the farmers are all busy in their fields and the town trade is fearfully dull to-day."

He leaned back in his chair, placed his feet on his desk and in a few moments the drowsy goddess of sleep had taken full possession of his faculties. His head fell lower and lower until his chin rested on his shirt front, and a gentle snore gave conclusive evidence that all cares were drowned in oblivion.

* * * * *

"Mr. Easeman!"

"Hey!" exclaimed Easeman, rousing himself. "Oh! it's you, is it?" What do you want, Henry?" he asked his clerk.

"Several caddies of plug tobacco have just come in; what price shall we sell it for?"

"What do you ask that question for?" said Easeman irritably. "You know the manufacturers make the selling prices for retailers, and that settles it."

"You have forgotten, sir, that letter from the manufacturers permitting the retailers to make what prices they choose. Here it is."

Easeman grasped it eagerly and read it carefully.

"Well, I'll be hanged!" he ejaculated slowly. "If this thing keeps up, retailers will be allowed after awhile to say that their souls are their own. Well, sell it at 10 per cent, less than old prices."

The clerk departed and Easeman resumed his musing.

"Hey, Easeman!" exclaimed a voice. "What prices will you make me on a barrel of granulated sugar and a sack of Java coffee?"

Easeman looked around. There stood one of the leading citizens of the town, a man who had always in the past ordered groceries for his large family from a wholesale house at the nearest market.

"How do you happen to come to me?" asked Easeman. "I thought you always bought from a wholesale house?

"Read this," he replied handing him a letter.

Dear Sir.—We are sorry to have to decline your order. In compliance with the request of retailers, whose interests we desire to foster, the Wholesale Grocers' Association has decided to sell no more goods to consumers.

"Great Scott?" exclaimed Easeman. "Can it be possible? Let me read it again. Yes, it's true. Well, the millennium is near."

Easeman made satisfactory prices, sold a good bill, and had just resumed his easy chair when he heard someone enter the store.

"There comes that confounded Standoff," he muttered. "He's been owing me $80 for over two years, and it's a dead duck. I'll take 50 cents for the account."

"Howdy, Easeman, old boy," cried Standoff, cheerily.

"Tol'ble, tol'ble," responded Easeman, rather coolly: "what can I do for you?"

"Well, you can write me a receipt, if it isn't too much trouble. I owe you $80; make the receipt for $100 to cover interest," he said, counting out that amount.

Easeman gazed at him in amazement. He picked up the money, but it dropped to the floor from his trembling fingers. He picked it up again and seized a pen, but couldn't make a figure or letter.

"What the deuce is the matter with you, anyhow?" asked Standoff.

"I'm paralyzed, I think," replied Easeman, pulling himself together and writing the receipt with an effort. "Much obliged, Standoff, much obliged. Do you want any goods to-day? You can get all the time you want."

"I don't want any time. All the people in town, except the merchants, held a convention this morning, and resolved that as the interests of retail merchants must be fostered, they would pledge themselves to pay all old debts, and in the future pay cash for everything. Good day, old man, you look sick. Better go to bed."

Easeman muttered an unintelligible reply, and sank down in his chair.

"Blest if I don't believe I'm dreaming," he said. "No"—pinching himself—"I'm awake. Well, that Yale College professor is right about the millenium having come."

His clerk laid several letters on the desk which had come in the last mail. The first one he opened was from a wholesale grocery firm of whom he purchased largely:

Dear Sir.—You will doubtless be gratified to learn that at a meeting of the Sugar Trust, held yesterday, it was unaimously decided, in order to protect the interests of retailers, to dissolve the Trust. You may confidently expect a drop of 25 per cent. in prices of sugar at once. The glass, tobacco and other trusts have also announced their intention of taking similar action within the next week.

"Whoo-oo-pe!" yelled Easeman in true Comanche style, causing the clerk to look back in astonishment, and wonder if he hadn't been drinking. "Well, the world is getting good—too blamed good when those trust fellows take such a step."

He arose from his chair and paced back and forth through the store to wear off his excitement. An acquaintance who always traded with a rival, Jones, between whom and Easeman there existed a deadly enmity, entered and remarked:

"Easeman, Jones sent me here to get some canned peaches. He is out of the best brands, and says you have something first class"

"Who—sent—you?" gasped Easeman.

"Why, Jones, your competitor down the street. What's the matter with you?"

"An attack of nausea," faltered Easeman. "Here, Henry, wait on Mr. Thompson."

Easeman started back to the office, his head in a whirl. Jones, his rival, his bitter enemy, his unrelenting foe, send a customer to him? Incredible! yet true, nevertheless.

"I must rest awhile," he muttered, "and get my wits together. Confound it, there comes that Mrs. Hardcase who never knows what she wants, and consumes several hours of a man's time trying to find out. The last pair of shoes I sold her required four hours. She never knows what size she wants, what style, what last or what anything. As luck will have it, Henry is busy and I'll have to see what she wants."

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Hardcase," he said, politely. "What can I do for you?"

"I want a pair of shoes," she replied, rapidly, "a button shoe, common sense heel and toe, No. 4, D last, to cost—Great heavens! what's the matter?"

Easeman had fallen heavily to the floor.

It was the straw that broke the camel's back.

Mr. Seager, the president of the United States Canners' Association, is in Canada, the guest of W. Boulter, the president of the Canadian Packers' Association.

W. Stark, representing Marples, Jones & Co., provision and cheese importers, Liverpool, England, is in the city. Mr. Stark was formerly well known to the Canadian trade, as the manager of the late Imperial Produce Co. of this city.

An issuer of bogus fifty cent and one dollar coins has been swindling the residents of the rural villages. His modus operandi was to purchase some cheap article and tendering one of the counterfeit coins in payment get his change in good money.

W. Boulter, the president of the Canadian Canned Goods Association, attended the annual convention of the National Canned Goods Association of the United States, which met in Buffalo, on the 4th and 5th of this month. Mr. Boulter made a speech that overflowed with patriotism.

Arch. Wilson, who has for a number of years carried on a very successful grocery business in St. Catharines, has sold out to Hodgin Bros. He is now going into the commission business in Toronto, being a member of the firm of Husband Bros. & Co.' at 71 Colborne street. Mr. Wilson is well-known, which should mean success.

We would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of the National Cash Register Co. on another page in this journal. This enterprising firm have over 40,000 of their "Silent Cashiers" in use in all classes of business, and their output exceeds 1,000 machines per month. Their cash register is becoming universally recognized as an absolutely necessary adjunct in a retail business.

The Vancouver, B. C., World of the 4th says :—"John Whyte, a noted pork-packer from Mitchell, Ont., was in the city this morning and left for the east by the Atlantic express. This is Mr. Whyte's second visit to British Columbia. Since his last one his firm has sent into the Province some 120 tons of hams and bacon, and those consuming the same have expressed the greatest satisfaction with them.

The Wholesale Grocers' Guild of Hamilton strongly protested against the change in classification of dried fruit from the fifth class in car lots to the fourth class as per supplement No. 1 of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's freight classification as being a serious bar to inter-provincial trade, especially between Ontario and Quebec and the North-West Provinces, and asked that this grievance be redressed at the earliest possible moment. The railway men practically conceded the wishes of the grocers.

Thousands of lobster fisherman are idle by reason of the continued high winds of the past week. This is certainly very discouraging to those interested in the industry, as these men are on heavy wages. It is the opinion of a good many that the time is speedily coming when our government will find it necessary to give a bounty to encourage the promotion of this industry as is done in the case of other fish, rather than placing severe restrictions upon packers and fisherman, which will eventually kill the industry out.—Charlottetown Guardian.

Thanks to the Hamilton Board of Trade, Halton County is to get its regular train service on the G. T. R. The railway company, showed vindictiveness because of the countys success in the action to make the G. T. R. carry out the terms of the agreement under which a division of the road got a bonus from Halton. In 1878, when the Hamilton & Northwestern, subsequently amalgamated with the old Northern and renamed the Northern & Northwestern, was built, the county of Halton granted it a bonus, on condition that it should be refunded, provided the H. & N. W. did not remain an independent corporation for twenty-one years. The N. & N. W. was afterwards taken over by the Grand Trunk in 1888, and since the 1st of May the Grand Trunk has only provided one train per day between Hamilton and Barrie, instead of two, as formerly, so that the people of Halton could not reach Hamilton and transact business without spending two nights and a day in the city, thus keeping many people away, to the injury of business.

The greater part of the coffee plantations in the Dutch possessions are directly under Government management, the natives being compelled to cultivate coffee instead of paying taxes, while the Government receive the whole of the produce at a fixed price, namely, 15fl per picul. A certain amount is then disposed of in the country itself, and the remainder sold at Amsterdam or Rotterdam ; the usual practice being not to sell one year's crop in Holland until the following year, although as an exceptional to the rule, part of the crop of 1891 was sold towards the close of the year. Late advices report that in consequence of the poor returns for coffee and exhaustion of the soil, the Government is abandoning the cultivation of a great deal of territory.

Fish dealers here propose that the Government should place an export duty on fish. They complain that a Buffalo fish company in order to comply with the terms of the McKinley act, which permits the importation of fish free of duty from Canada when caught with American boats and nets every season, makes a nominal purchase of all the boats and nets along the Georgian bay, and so controls the whole of the product at the ports there, to the exclusion of Canadian fish dealers. Large quantities of fish are sent to Buffalo, but the Canadian dealers are unable to purchase fish unless at the pleasure of the Buffalo company. Instances are related where Canadian dealers have gone to the United States, bought Canadian fish and shipped them back to Canada, paying duty to get them here.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

Little words of business
Printed on a page,
Bring the shining shekels
In this bustling age.

Printer's ink, all potent,
Will increase your trade,
Use it and quite freely,
Dollars quick are made.

Those who sit and wonder
Why they do not rise
Should no longer ponder—
Get up—Advertise.

If you've aught to offer,
Print it where it shows;
Soon your yawning coffer
Bursts and overflows.

If your goods are worthy,
Let the truth be known,
Print their merits widely,
Let the seed be sown.

Soon the bounteous harvest
Brings its richest store;
Trade will never pass you—
CANNOT pass your door.

HEC. SECORD.

A JAR OF BUTTER.

She was one of those sassy women that knows more in a minute than a man knows in seventy hundred and eighty-four years, and she kept it constantly on display. It was about 10 o'clock in the morning when she bustled into a family grocery on Third avenue and approached an innocent looking sandy-haired clerk with a stub pencil over his ear.

"Is there butter in this jar?" she inquired tapping the vessel with her toe.

"Yes. madam," affirmed the clerk.

"I thought so," she said; "I can tell a butter jar instinctively."

"Yes'm," the clerk acquiesced.

"Is it sweet?"

"Yes'm."

"Where is it from. Western Reserve?"

"No'm."

"No?" and her feathers dropped a little. "From Michigan, I suppose?"

"Yes'm."

She smiled with satisfaction.

"I thought it must be," she confessed. "Tisn't fresh, of course: butter never is when it is put in jars."

"No'm," admitted the clerk. "It was made last fall."

"Goodness me," she exclaimed. "All that time and you say it is sweet yet."

"Yes'm. We guarantee it."

"Tisn't worth quite so much as if it was fresh, is it?" she asked with a boarding house accent.

"No'm."

"What's the price of it?"

"A dollar a gallon, ma'm."

She jumped as if a mouse had bitten her.

"A dollar a gallon!" she exclaimed. "I never heard of selling butter by the gallon."

"We always sell that kind of butter by the gallon, ma'm" said the clerk with guileless gravity.

"What kind of butter is it?" she asked in a less confident tone.

"Apple butter, ma'm," and the clerk bowed his sandy head and waited for the storm. —Detroit Free Press.

T. J. Cooke & Co., the Canadian agents of the much advertised Hire's Root Beer, say their business, especially in the west, is increasing very rapidly.

The last of the fruit sales took place last week, and owing to the work of Mr. T. J. Potter they have all been a success with one exception, when stock arrived in bad order. There are only three or four fruit sales during the year here now, but it is said that we will soon have treble that amount, as all the owners are satisfied with the way things went. New York has one sale a week, why not we during the summer months?

The following notice regarding passengers has been posted by the G. T. R. this will to a certain extent hurt the average out of town buyers. The retail trade say it is not fair to merchants in large towns. It reads as follows: "Passengers are entitled to seat room for one. Baggage and parcels that cannot be placed under car seat, or in the passenger's portion of the parcel bracket must not be taken into the car. All baskets, baggage and parcels that cannot be stored as above, if taken into the car, will be removed"

H. P. Eckhardt & Co. have just landed a shipment of "Silver Pan" Marmalade. This marmalade stands at the head in England, but has only recently made its appearance in Canada. The sales of it have steadily increased. It is made in "silver pans," hence its name.

The demand for "Kent" bottled Pickles is continually increasing. The sales for this season are away ahead of any previous year. Their popularity is due, in a large measure to the great care exercised in their preparation, and the excellence of all ingredients which enter into their manufacture. The present stock being sent out is the finest in the history of their manufacturing.

GROCERIES.

The improvement in the weather has not been without its effect on trade, though probably the benefit would have been realized by this as a mere matter of time, the season being at hand when buying should amount to something. Retailers have been less niggardly with their orders this week, whatever has been the cause. Travellers' reports have had a more cheerful tone, and prices in some lines have responded to the betterment in the demand. This is true in particular of teas, which are higher in all the grades that count for much in the volume of trade done here. Dried fruits are likewise firmer and in better demand. In sugar current trade is not large, but the interest that retailers manifest in advance of the fruit season is beginning to be exhibited in inquiries for quotations on car lots. Canned goods are pretty much as they were. Taken all around, the demand is losing some of its tardiness and pettiness. There have been no important events except the arrival of samples of new Japan teas.

COFFEES.

Local trade has made no new beginning along any line, no buying or receiving this week of any importance coming in for notice. The features of last week are therefore as pronounced as ever. Javas are firm at quotations, common Rios are plentiful and steady, choice Rios are scarce. Private advices from Santos report that market to be improving.

DRIED FRUITS.

The offers of Valencia raisins from New York do not appreciably differ in the quality of stock tendered, but the figures are higher and firmer than those of a week ago. A smart demand here has done much to improve the condition into which low prices and poor quality had brought the market. Off-stalk Valencia raisins of even the lowest grade have had this redeeming feature about them throughout the whole demoralized period, and that is they have sold very well. Low prices have worked up the demand quite remarkably, until now the demand is reacting on prices and working them up. The quotations here may be continued, however, at 3½ to 4½c. for fine off-stalk. Layers have gone up ½c. in New York. Currants retain their position with little variation, though what difference there is is on the way of advantage. There is not much stock obtainable below 4¾. Locally there is no other change in the fruit market, though outside prunes have gone up a trifle. In nuts the most important item of information is an advance in New York of 2c. in the price of Tarragona almonds. This makes quotations here stronger than they were. Nothing in any other class of nuts is to be added this week, the demand being of the small quiet character that it commonly is. In peels business is fairly good at 16c. for lemon; 17c. for orange and 25 to 27c. for citron.

RICE AND SPICES.

Wholesalers have virtually receded from the range 4 to 4⅛c. for B rice and have adopted one of half a cent lower, namely, 3⅞ to 4c., that is, the old quotation. The call for ordinary rice is ordinary enough, and nothing to boast of for finer grades, which continue to quote at 5½ to 6c. for Japan, and 6½ to 7c. for Java.

The spice market is devoid of features of new interest this week, the old position of all lines being all there is to report.

SUGAR.

Buying ahead has its risks, as some jobbers find who before the decline bought sugar for extended delivery. They are paying more for the sugar they are receiving now than they could buy it at to-day, and enough of them are doing this to make the cutting propensity a less general one than it was before the refiners' reduction. Yellow is not quoted below 3½c., nor granulated below 4½c. The advance symptoms of the summer sugar campaign are beginning to be observable in the nibbling inquiries for car loads. So far, however, there is not as active a movement of stock as there was this time last year, when purchasers were laying in supplies and jobbers taking orders subject to a drawback in case the duty should be reduced or removed. A good season is looked for, as buying so far has been very reserved and prices are so strongly in favor of consumers. Raw sugars on this market are getting into small compass. They quote still from 3½c. up.

Willett & Gray, New York, in their Statistical says: "Total stock of sugar in all principal countries, 1,424,872 tons, against 1,454,429 tons at the same time last year.

Raws—The market has been quiet and unchanged, and nothing has occurred to give it any feature of interest. There was a report that the principal sugar districts of Louisiana were flooded by the breaking of an important levee; but, fortunately, the disaster was avoided, as, if it had been true, the growing crop would have suffered severely.

CANNED GOODS.

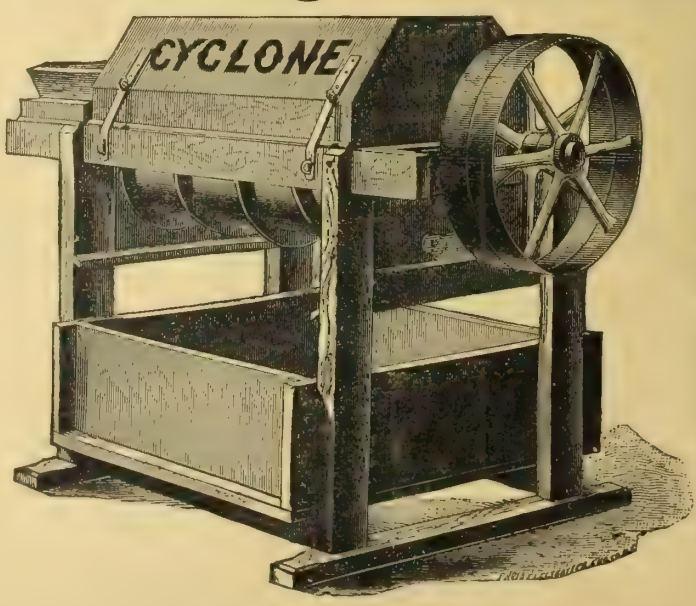
TORONTO.

The steadiness of the demand is reflected in the steadiness of prices. Usually the beginning of future business disturbs the market for spot goods, holders being disposed to take a short view of the time between contracting and stocking. So far there has been no manifestation of unsteadiness this year, and jobbers who are buyers admit that the market is strong at old quotations, one car of assorted having been bought at $1.02½ this week. This means that $1.05 is a firm inside figure for the largest lots retailers are likely to take. For tomatoes the quotation that finds most general support is $1.10 in ordinary sized lots, Future business continues to be worked up by the canners, who are offering freely at 90c. now. This price would not go a fortnight earlier, at least with one cannery, for a broker offered it for a large lot and it was refused. Salmon sells comparatively well, despite the shortage in the standard brands and the high figure, $1.45, at which they are held. A description that is spoken of as the "Indian Brand," though not considered a high class line is nevertheless a satisfactory one, and has a large place in the market just now. The price is $1.30, but for large lots this would be shaded. Canned mackerel is scarce. Lobster is quiet. In fruit there is no improvement, stocks being large, the demand low and prices weak.

MONTREAL.

The feature of business in canned goods during the last week or ten days has been the brisk movement in corn and the market is now almost if not quite bare of stock in first hands. The sale of some 600 cases to a Toronto house on private terms, but at a price believed to have been less than $1, is the last transaction of importance mentioned. Tomatoes are in excessive supply and the holder of one large lot is regretting that he refused last autumn a far more favorable offer than he could to-day hope to receive. For peas at $1.10 to $1.25 and for Boston baked beans at $1.25 to $1.35 there is a good demand. Salmon is in fair request and quoted at $1.30 to $1.35. Mackerel is offering in large lots at $3.25 to $3.40.

To Canning Men.—OUR CYCLONE PULP MACHINE



For making tomato pulp and preparing pumpkin and squash for canning is very well known to all the canners in the United States, and a few of them are in use in Canada. The high tariff has prevented their being used extensively heretofore.

We are now manufacturing these machines at Oakville, Ont., to enable our Canadian friends to obtain them without paying a heavy duty; but we shall make only a few of them unless ordered. Those who contemplate purchasing, should send their orders promptly to insure the saving of duty, as late orders will have to be filled from stock in the United States which will be subject to a 30 per cent duty.

The foreign markets were temporarily affected by the reports cabled abroad, and enquiries were made by return cables is to extent of damage. The weathor continues favorable in Cuba, and reports are unchanged from other countries. About the same acreage of beets is planted in Europe as last year, and the weather, thus far, is favorable for an early crop.

Refined—The only feature of interest is the reduction in price of the lowest grades of soft sugars, which have declined ⅛c for the week. There is but small demand for these grades, and an accumulation of such stock is not desirable to keep on hand, as they deteriorate in quality. It is impossible to prevent an accumulation of stock of all grades while the demand remains so limited. The country is apparently buying in the same small way as it did last year, when the duty was about to be taken off sugar, although there is not the shadow of a chance, in our opinion, of anything being done at this session of Congress. The terrible rains and floods throughout the west and south have made the roads impassable, and this has also prevented a demand. These are natural checks to business, which time will remedy. Consumers are already getting sugar at one-half the prices of one year ago. The refining of sugar is now done at a minimum cost. What Congress and everyone else should do is to stimulate the raising of raw cane and beet sugar in this country, instead of having our refiners go abroad for their supplies.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.

Syrups are easier and are so quoted in this week's Prices Current. They have accompanied sugar in the downward movement of sweets, and have had moreover the depressing influence of United States competition, while the Vancouver product has also been a factor in producing the same results upon this market. Prices here dip as low as 1¾c. for dark syrup.

Molasses has not shifted from its position of dulness and neglect. West Indian ranges from 30 to 45c., and New Orleans from 26c. upwards.

TEAS.

Japan teas are higher. The present marks a turning point in the market, which has ruled remarkably low all winter. The stock is getting into smaller compass and fewer hands, except in low grades, which are in adequate supply. Jobbers are looking to the new crop teas now. Private advices from New York report low grade Japans a cent higher, with a strong further upward tendency noticeable. Shipping to Chicago and New York is still reported, the sale of 2,000 lbs. at 11¾c. in Montreal being one of the incidents of that trade. The new Japans are up to the usual standard of early samples. The prices are cabled higher than they were at the corresponding time in the two previous years. They are 2 to 3c. higher than they were. Oolongs and Ping Lueys are 3 to 4c. higher. Low grades of Young Hyson teas are going up with the rest. New York and London are both higher. Low grade blacks are up ½d. in London. Indian teas have the same strong call that has characterized them throughout the year so far, and are selling at steady prices.

The Indian tea market opened actively, says the Produce Markets' Review, referring to last week's sales, and nearly the whole of the 21,000 packages brought forward were sold. The lower qualities of whole leaf teas met with more attention, at prices comparing favourably with recent sales, particularly Pekoe Souchongs, which show a decidedly hardening tendency, due, no doubt, to the stock held by the trade being in a much more limited compass. For the common broken kinds, however, values have not materially changed; excepting for the more undesirable sorts, slightly lower quotations have been established. The medium and finer descriptions have been eagerly competed for at firm to advanced rates, and the market certainly points to still higher prices. It is evident from the increasing use of the better kinds of Indian tea, the supply will not be any too plentiful for some time to come, and the only possibility of a check to the upward movement in price is a good supply of fine Ceylon growth, which at the moment is not a very formidable competitor. The large sales of Ceylon teas, so long anticipated, have at last commenced, and the quantity offered this week has exceeded that of any preceding week this year. The demand has been fully equal to the supply, however, and so far no perceptible fall has occurred in the value of any descriptions, while full juicy liquoring kinds have been in special request, and higher prices have been paid for the few lots offered. The sales for next week are again large, but, considering the scarcity of fine China teas, the prospect of firm prices seems satisfactory. The quality is by no means all that could be desired, but still there has been some improvement in this respect.

McMeekin & Co.'s notes on Indian and Ceylon teas for April, say: Indian.—The offerings were 61,300 packages, against 97,000 packages in the same month of 1891. Many of the teas offered have shown a slight improvement in the cup, and for these there has continued a steady demand at hardening prices. Finest teas have been readily taken at full rates. Common kinds were barely steady before Easter, but have since met with more demand at firm prices. The average of public sale prices for the month was 8¾d. per lb., against 11¾d. per lb. for the corresponding month last year. The imports were 2,657,000 lbs., and the deliveries 9,154,000 lbs., leaving in stock on 30th April 38,592,000 lbs.

Ceylon.—The offerings were 51,900 packages, against 78,000 packages in the same month of 1891. A large proportion of the teas offered in the first fortnight were of poor quality and Pekoe Souchongs sold as low as 4¼d. per lb. There has since been a slight improvement in quality, and with more demand the sales have passed with fair spirit at firm rates. Teas with good flavour sold readily at fully previous prices. The average of public sale prices for the month was 9d. per lb. against 10¾d. per lb.

for the corresponding month of last year. The imports were 6,005,000 lbs. and the deliveries 4,968,000 lbs., leaving in stock on 30th April, 17,724,000 lbs.

Only 5,500 packages of Java teas were offered during the month, and prices were rather lower than during March. China teas have shown little change.

MARKET NOTES.

[Importers, wholesale merchants and manufacturers should send any items intended for this department so that they may reach the head office not later than Wednesday morning. The editor will always welcome such information.]

Brokers are asking $1.12½ to $1.15 f.o.b. for the new British Columbia salmon.

T. Kinnear & Co. are offering a line of Bosnig prunes in hogsheads at 4½c.

Our Prices Current this week show an advance in Dr. Price's Baking Powder.

Spring arrivals of kippered herring, jams, marmalade, etc., are reported by several wholesale grocers.

Eby, Blain & Co. report the arrival of 1,300 half-chests low and medium grades Japans. They advertise them in another column.

The prices of Railroad and Steamship matches have been reduced 30c. This week's Prices Current show the new quotations.

Musson & Morrow have made several shipments of Japan teas to Chicago and have realized better prices than they could get here. They have still several lots on offer in that market.

Perkins, Ince & Co. on Friday received a sample of the first pickings early crop choicest Japan tea from Hellyer & Co., Yokohama. It is part of the very earliest tea brought into Yokohama this year. The quality is well up to the average, but it is too early a sample to form an opinion on the quality of this year's crop. Musson & Morrow also received a sample from Jardine, Matheson & Co., Yokohama.

PETROLEUM.

Quotations of Canadian refined are unchanged at 14 to 14½c. for outside points and 14½ to 15c. for city delivery, but these figures are weaker than they were and could be influenced in the buyers' favor by a large order. Benzine is a product that is now much higher and is scarce at 15c. Empty oil barrels quote at 60 to 65c.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.25 per barrel; Oil Springs crude $1.25½ per bbl. The crude market remains quiet, the only sales made have been those to supply current wants. Prices however remain steady at $1.25½. The refined oil business is very quiet, and more than likely to be so for some time to come. The drillers are kept very busy borh in Petrolia and Oil Springs with about the average result. Every month sees some of our best men on the drilling line leaving for various parts of the world, and we are informed that very shortly another gang of drillers will be on their way to Australia. The heavy rains that we have had for the past week or so makes the moving of drilling rigs rather difficult, but it must be a pretty bad spot where the average driller cannot find his way to.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Butter comes to hand more rapidly than it goes out. In large rolls the market shows signs of over-stocking. So far, however, any great excess has been prevented by decline in prices, and along with this calls for round lots have afforded timely relief. In large lots rolls go of at 12½ to 13c., but in ordinary parcels 13 to 14c. are the ruling prices. The supply is still almost entirely dependent upon large rolls. Some new tub butter has come forward and has found sale in every case where it is choice. Store tubs are not in demand and the supply is light, the stock that has any hope of selling being that packed from large rolls of the winter make, very little of which remained in storekeepers hands for packing. The accumulations of butter of current make do not yield an acceptable form of store tub. Choice dairy tubs would bring 15 to 16c. if they were to be had.

New cheese is worth 9⅞ to 10c. laid down here, and is jobbed out at 10½ to 11c. The supply of new is telling upon the demand for fall makes, which are now being sold out of dealers' hands at 11 to 11½c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES—Are becoming nominal, stock being hardly obtainable. Apples that are in request now will bring $4 and upwards per barrel.

BEANS—An improved tone is discernible at the moment. Under the influence of an export demand that has come into existence the market is much firmer, and stock is held by growers at $1 to $1.10. Jobbing prices range from $1.05 to $1.20.

DRIED APPLES—Some slight betterment in the local demand is noticeable since the supply of green fruit has run so low, but prices are as far down as ever. Holders cannot sell at more than 3½c., as jobbers have to be satisfied with 4c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—The price is worse rather than better, and 7½c. represents an extreme outside figure. Jobbers are generally selling at 7c. and buying at 6½c.

EGGS—The supply is good and prices are easy at 10½ to 11c.

HIDES—The market retains its old uninteresting features and its stereotyped quotations, green quoting at 4½c. for No. 1 cows'. Cured are 5 to 5⅛c.

HONEY—The approach of the season of replenishment does not strengthen prices, which have still too small support from the demand. Extracted is 8 to 9c., sections 13 to 15c.

HOPS—The finest domestic hops are 21 to 24c., with graditions downward for indifferent quality of last crop. Yearlings quote at 16 to 18c. The demand is steady.

ONIONS—The price is steady at $2.25 to $2.75 per barrel for native stock. Egyptian and Bermuda onions are now on hand. The former are $3 to $3.25 per bag of 112 lbs., and the Bermudas are $2.25 to $2.50 per crate.

SKINS—The supply is somewhat backward. Good sheepskins are $1.15 to $1.30, lambskins are 15 to 20c., calfskins 5 to 7c.

TALLOW—The price of refined is easier, buyers being unable to get more than 5¼ to 5½c., though they have generally to pay 5c. For crude the price is 2c.

WOOL—There is no trade of any moment between the growers and the merchants, but the latter are selling fairly freely from the

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

News of a disposition on the part of Newfoundland to end the trade deadlock its government had caused between itself and Canada have had a bracing effect upon the flour market here. If the duty imposed now by Newfoundland on Canadian flour were removed, Ontario millers would be able to lay down flour in Newfoundland at lower prices than United States manufacturers. This would afford some relief to the congestion of supplies at our mills, though it would have little effect on the price of flour. Some shipping is reported, though mostly in single car lots. Feed is quiet.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5; strong bakers', $4.50; white wheat patents, $4.80; straight roller, $4.40; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.50.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5.15; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.45 to $4.70; Ontario patents, $4.00 to $4.25; straight roller, $3.65 to $3.90; extra, $3.50 to $3.80; low grades, per bag, $1.00 to $1.50

MEAL—Oatmeal is $3.90 to $4. Cornmeal is $3.75.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is $4.50 per barrel.

FEED—Bran is $14 to $15, shorts $14.50 to $15.50, mixed feed $22 to $25, cracked corn $1.10, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 32 to 32½c.

HAY—is fairly active at $12.50 to $13 for No. 1 timothy and $10 to $10.50 for mixed.

STRAW—is steady at $6 to $6.50.

MONTREAL.

The market rules tame. There is no improvement in the demand for round lots and only a moderate trade in a jobbing way, transactions being confined to the filling of very small orders. The stock in store on Saturday last showed a decrease of 1098 barrels when compared with the week previous and a decrease of 6872 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote as follows: Patent spring, $4.90 to $5.10; patent winter, $4.60 to $4.90; straight roller, $4.35 to $4.50; extra, $4 to $4.10; superfine, $3.75 to $3.90; fine, $3.25 to $3.50; strong bakers, $4.45 to $4.70.

The demand last week was particularly slow, and there is to-day no business to report in excess of small jobbing orders to meet the current requirements of consumers. As a consequence the tone of the market is weak. The stock in store on Saturday last showed an increase of 150 barrels when compared with the same day of the week previous, and an increase of 5,046 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote:—Granulated, bbls. $3.80 to $3.90; Rolled, bbls. $3.80 to $3.90; Standard, bbls. $3.75 to $3.85; Granulated in bags $1.85 to $1.90; Rolled in bags $1.85 to $1.90; Standard, in bags $1.80 to $1.85.

The request is slow and the market does not vary as regards prices, bran being quoted at $14 to $14.50, shorts at about $16 and mouillie at $20 to $23.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Flour—There is no change in breadstuffs. There is very little demand and prospects are not bright for any improvement. Holders of stocks claim they are selling at cost. The present quotations are: Manitoba $5.70 to $5.75; Ontario high grade $4.90 to $5; Medium Patents $4.70 to $4.80.

Meal—Both oatmeal and cornmeal are reported higher, with only a fair demand.

MARKETS—Continued.

stock to the mills. Fleeces are 18c., pulled wool is 22c. for super and 25 to 26c. for extra.

PROVISIONS.

The trade is chiefly local and from hand to mouth. The interest of large dealers is kept in hand yet, so that the extent of the business in round lots is inconsiderable. The season will force the matter on the attention of traders very soon now, and the experience of last summer leads packers to expect a big call this year. Smoked meats lead in the demand that is now operating. Prices have not fluctuated in anything except hams and compound lard, which are lower.

BACON—Long clear is 7½ to 8c., smoked backs are 10c., bellies 9½ to 10c., rolls 8½ to 8¾c.

HAMS—Are steady at 10 to 10½c.

LARD—Pure is unchanged at 10 to 10½c. for tubs and pails. Compound is steady at 7 to 9c.

BARREL PORK—U. S. heavy mess is $13 to $14, Canadian $15. short cut $16 to $16.50.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef is 4½ to 5½c. in fore and 7½ to 8½c. in hindquarters, yearling lamb is 10 to 11c., Spring lamb is $4.50 to $6.50 per head, mutton 7 to 8c., veal 6 to 7½c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Warmer weather gives added life to the demand. Valencia oranges are higher at $6 to $7 and are scarce. Floridas are done. Messinas, Palermos and Catenas all quote alike at $4.50 to $4.75 in boxes and $2.50 to $2.75 in halves. Blood oranges are higher at $3 to $3.25 in half-boxes. Seedlings are steady at $3 to $3.75, and Navels at $4.50 to $5. Lemons are very plentiful and qualities can be had to suit almost any possible gradation of price between $2.75 to $4. Cheapness gives strength to the demand. Pineapples are abundant at 5 to 14c., bananas at $1.25 to $2. Sweet potatoes are steady at $4.50.

FISH.

Fish dealers report a very fair sale for seasonable kinds, at prices noted in Prices Current. British Columbia salmon is having a better season of it than it generally has, the price being 16 to 18c.

SALT.

Prices have not varied, though trade has declined somewhat. The sales of this week include 1 car of barrels at $1.20, and 2 cars of sacks at 70c.

DRY GOODS.

The dry goods trade is now in a state of stagnation, as sorting up orders have fallen off and the travellers are not at work upon any line in particular. Collections are very unsatisfactory.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, May 19, 1892.

GROCERIES.

This week has shown no marked improvement over last, although the volume of trade has been as good. Teas are still having good enquiry, especially in low grade Japans and although stocks are light, considerable sales have been closed during the week. Blacks also have a better movement, and the same remarks apply to Indian and Ceylon which seem to meet with favor at the consumers hands, for grocers report good sales in them. Sugar is quiet and with trade still cutting prices, this to a certain extent has a deadening effect on that trade as the rest of the honest wholesale grocers say they will not do business for fun. Rice continues in good demand and the same may be said of coffee. In green fruit business has been of a large scale during the week, and all the dealers are talking further business. Other lines of general groceries also meet with good demand, as the travellers are all sending in good orders. Payments are as good as last week.

SUGAR.

The local sugar market is still dull and unchanged, and it is reported that the prices at the refiners are a trifle easier. The wholesale trade say things are very quiet, as some of the trade are still selling at ⅛c. below cost, while others are not pushing sales at all, and say they will not if they have to loose money. One house here, that is not in the cut, say that they are not likely to sell sugar when the retailers can sell it to them at the same price they are asking. It is reported that one house is offering granulated at $4.30 and yellows at $3.30. We quote: Granulated 4½ to 4 9-16c.; yellows, low grade, 3½ to 3¾c., and yellows bright 3¾ to 4¼c.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The demand for syrup is still small and prices are still weak, and outside of a small jobbing sale there is not much doing on spot. American syrups are said to be offered very cheap at this point, but we do not hear of any large sales.

Molasses also remains quiet, with only a fair movement to note, and no sales of any size have been reported during the week. Prices at the Island are the same as last week, with prospects pointing to a large supply. A few sales have been made on spot of Barbadoes on a basis of 34 to 35c., and at 29c. to arrive. At the Island the price is 12c. We quote as follows:—Barbadoes, 35 to 38c., American 28c.; syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 40 to 45c. or choice, amber 40 to 45c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Maple product is still firm under light stock, and prices are not quotably changed in either line. We quote maple syrup in tins 60 to 65c. per gallon and in wood at 5 to 5½c. per pound. Maple sugar is quoted at 8 to 8½c. and fancy cakes at 9c.

TEAS.

The market has been very active in low grade Japans during the week, but stocks of the above here are now considered very light. High grade stock has only a fair movement. Blacks are also moving more freely this week, but sales have only been small. Advices from Japan report an advance of 1 to 2c. per pound on high grade Japans, but as yet no quotations for low grade stock have been received. The market there is also reported firm. Reports from Yokohama say this year's crop will not come up to expectations, but advices from other districts state that crops are good.

COFFEE.

Coffee has its usual fair enquiry, but outside of that there is nothing new to note. Prices, however, are the same as last week. We quote:—Rio, 18 to 20c., Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c.; Jamaica; 19 to 21c.; Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c.; Santos, 17½ to 19c.

RICE.

The demand for rice continues good and quite a few lots have gone forward during the week. One dealer here states that the demand from the west and lower provinces could not be better and that quite a few car load lots have been shipped. Locally the market is good, quite a business being done with the wholesale trade. We quote Standard $4 to $4.10, Japan $4.50 to $5, Patnas $4.50 to $5, and Carolinas $7 to $8 per hundred lbs.

DRIED FRUIT.

There has been quite a trade doing in dried fruit during the past week but it has been made up of small sales, no sales of any size have been reported. Holders are talking firmer, and although quotations are not changed they are firmer. We quote: Valencias, ordinary, 3½ to 4c.; No. 1 off stalk, 4½c.; layers, 6c. to 6¼c.; Patras currants, 5 to 5¼c; Vostizzas, in cases, 7½ to 8c.; provincial currants, 4⅞ to 5½c.; do. in half barrels, 5 to 6c.

NUTS.

Nuts still meet with a fair jobbing trade, and quite a few small lots have been shipped during the past week, which has been the best for some time. Locally the trade is good and prices remain firm, as follows:—Almonds Tarragona 13 to 13½c.; almonds, Ivica, 12 to 13c.; almonds, common, 10 to 11c.; almonds, hardshell, 7 to 8c.; walnuts, Grenoble, new 11 to 12c.; walnuts, French 10 to 10½c.; cocoanuts per 100 $4.50 to $5; filberts 9 to 10c.; pecans 16 to 17c.; peanuts 7 to 10c.

GREEN FRUIT.

The past week has shown a marked improvement in green fruit. Dealers here say that the business done has been of large dimensions. Valencia oranges have dropped in price, but with the continued good demand will no doubt stay where they are for some time to come. Large lots of all grades of oranges have been shipped this week, and on the whole dealers are well satisfied with the spring trade in all kinds of fruit. Lemons are also in big demand at unchanged prices, and now that the spring sales are all over local fruit men will no doubt realize on their recent purchases. The receipts of pineapples have been more liberal during the week, but prices for prime stock remains the same. This line also meets with good demand both for local and out of town trade. Strawberries are not very plentiful and prices remain the same as quoted last week. Bananas are having good call at old prices, and the fruit trade on the whole is booming. We quote: Valencia oranges $6 to $7; bloods in half boxes $2.75 to $3; Masenas $4 to $4.50; lemons $2 to $3.25; pineapples 7 to 15c. each, strawberries 25 to 50c. per box, bananas $1 to $1.50 per bunch.

APPLES.

Apples are scarce and prices are held high for prime stock which meets with fair sales at $4 to $4.50. Evaporated apples have met with better movement this week than for some time back, and quite a few lots have changed hands on the basis of 6½ to 7c. per pound. Dried apples also meet with good enquiry, and local dealers are satisfied with the state of trade in both them and evaporated. Evaporated peaches in tins, also have good sales at old prices. We quote apples $4 to $4.50 per barrel; evaporated 6½ to 7c.; dried 4½ to 5½c., and evaporated peaches 12 to 13c. per tin.

HOPS.

The local hop market remains the same as noted from time to time. Brewers claim to be well stocked, and if they are not it is their own fault as most of them stocked last picking time. One dealer here was offer a lot of 100 bales at 23c., which is equal to 24c. in Montreal, but he would not take hold of this offer, as he says he would have to keep them too long to realize any profit on such a deal. Pressed hops are only in fair demand, and although the dealers are still pressing them they claim their is no money in them, and that the only people that are making money is the jobber. We quote: Bulk 24 to 25c.; Pressed 16 to 18c.

FISH.

British Columbia salmon continues to meet with fair sales. Lake trout and whitefish are not as good as they might be and sales have been reported at 7c. Smoked Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.00 to $1.10; St. John's bloaters, per 100 box, 80c. to $1.00; boneless cod, large boxes, 6 to 7c.; do. small boxes 7c. to 8c.; finnan haddies, 7 to 8c.

PROVISIONS.

The general report of dealers as to the condition of the market is cheerful and encouraging. No very large business has been reported but the demand is gradually improving for pork and smoked meats and purchasers are willing to pay quoted rates. Lard remains quiet and prices are reported to be a little unsettled. We quote as follows: Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.25 to $16.50; mess pork, western, per brl. $14.00 to $14.75; short cut, western, per brl. $15.50 to $17.00; hams, city cured, per lb. 10c. to 10½c; lard, Canadian, in pails 8⅞ to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9 to 10c; lard, com. refined, per lb. 7 to 7¼c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The general impression is that the supply of creamery is likely to be large this season, it is having its due effect on city customers, and dealers find it difficult to dispose of even small quantities required for immediate consumption at more than 20c. Single tubs of Township dairy is bringing 19c., and western at 16 to 17c. Rolls are still hard to work off, but holders recognizing the necessity of forcing sales have pushed of a considerable quantity at 13 to 14c., as it will be difficult to get 10c. when the warm weather sets in. Cheese offerings on spot are so small that business is confined to a small local trade. Spot values remain as before, although 10 to 10½c. was paid for 700 boxes of white cheese at the wharf this morning. Colored is about ¼c. lower and easier, both here and in New York. We quote 10 to 10½c. as a fair range.

EGGS.

Receipts during the week have been liberal, but the demand seems to be the same. This caused prices to be held fairly steady, and 11 to 11½c. is about the figure.

GRAIN.

Wheat furnishes nothing, while the coarser grains, outside of peas and oats, furnish nothing. There has been some enquiries for the two latter at quotations.

There is a decrease of 3,801 bushels of wheat, 35,569 bushels of oats, 6,805 bushels of barley, 1,090 barrels of flour, and an increase of 27,128 bushels of peas, 419 bushels of rye and 150 barrels of oatmeal, compared with a week ago. Compared with the corresponding time last year, there is an increase of 314,377 bushels of wheat, 5,905 bushels of corn, 247,534 bushels of peas, 266,396 bushels of oats, 33,144 bushels of barley, 5,046 barrels of oatmeal, and a decrease of 574 bushels of rye and 16,872 barrels of flour. We quote as follows:—No. 2 hard Manitoba, 94 to 95c; No. 3 do., 83 to 85c.; No. 1 Northern, 92 to 95c.; peas, 70c. to 72c. per 66 pounds; oats, 35 to 36c. per 34 pounds; corn, 57 to 60c., duty paid; feed barley, 40 to 42c.; good malting do., nominal.

The stocks of flour and grain in store in Montreal on the dates mentioned were as follows:

	May 14, 1892.	May 7, 1892.	May 16, 1891.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., May, 19, 1892.

There is nothing to write of, as business has got into a rut, from which it seems hard to remove it. There is little buying of any amount to speak of, and less selling. Though some houses report an improvement in trade, it is not general.

Sugar—Some large lots have lately been placed on the market, and prices have eased off somewhat. Granulated is quoted $3.35 to $3.50. Yellows are 3¾ to 3½c., extra at 3⅝ to 3¾c.

Molasses—Barbados is selling at 31 to 33c.

Canned Goods—Every one is over stocked with canned goods, and prices are being cut so that there is no profit left to the jobber. New lobsters are being offered at about $1.50 per case less than last season. Tomatoes seem a little scarce.

Fish—Dry cod are selling more readily. Medlums are quoted at $4.50 to $4.60. Large cod $4.80 to $5. Pollock $2.40 to $2.50 Piskled herring, bay, $1.60 per half barrel.

THE TEA TRADE.

Tea is such a universally-accepted friend and comforter to our mortal race, that those of us who have hitherto been accustomed to sip it morning and afternoon, whitout a thought, perhaps, of the vastness of the trade it represents, and the enormous capital involved therein, may be interested by a few remarks on the subject. The position of the tea trade at the present time is well worthy of attention, not only by the outside public, but by those more intimately connected with its production, importation, and sale here and elsewhere. There has been during the last few years a perfect revolution, not only in the public taste for tea, but in all that appertains to it, from the circumstances attending its plucking and manufacture to the time and manner of its being offered, either wholesale or retail, for sale on this market. The public taste has generally turned from the delicate-flavored China teas to the more full-flavored British-grown Ceylon and the strong, pungent Indian teas; for the latter are mostly of this description, although some fine, delicate invoices arrive from the Darjeeling districts. The general quality of the China teas has rapidly declined during the last five years, and the bulk of the imports remaining here, after the best chops have been selected for export, have been year by year more difficult to dispose of at profitable rates, until, during this past season, China teas may be said to have received their final coup mortel, and the average sales, especially of the medium and fine teas, have often shown very disastrous results to shippers. When last July and August imports have had to be realized, real losses of from 8d. to 10d. per lb. have not been uncommon experiences. The finest teas from Hankow twenty or thirty years ago were of rich, full Pekoe flavor, and delicious to drink, but they could not be sold under 2s. and 2s.6d. per lb. in bond, and, being in limited quantities, only reached a certain portion of the public in their pure state, the price being prohibitive. This class of tea has chiefly gone direct or been re-shipped from here to Russia, &c., the British public repuiring a much stronger drink and at a less cost. At the present time they can easily obtain this, very good to fine blends of Ceylon only or of Indian and Ceylon teas being procurable at from 2s. 4d. per lb. downwards, duty paid.

There are three special sorts of Ceylon teas —broken Pekoes, Pekoes, and Pekoe Souchongs. The leaf of the former is generally too small and the liquor too strong to drink alone, and it is, therefore, used almost entirely for blending with the two other leafy kinds, and with similar Indian or China teas. The Pekoe Souchong is generally too bold in leaf, and, like the common and medium grades of Pekoes, too light in cup for separate use ; but the finest Ceylon Pekoes, realizing now in the Mincing Lane auctions from 1s. 1d. to 1s. 4d. per lb. in bond, are mostly of delicate and choice Pekoe flavour, similar to that of the finest China Ningchows of days gone by, but possessing more body in liquor. These, again, are in small supply, and the public see little of them in their pure imported state, the general call being for something stronger, a want which is met by buying them blended. In 1882 the home cansumption of China teas was 114,462,000 lbs., and of Indian teas only 50.496,000 lbs. In 1886 the chief supply of tea to this country was still from China ; but since 1887 the importation and consumption of China teas, so far as this country is concerned,have steadily declined and during last year(1891)the total consumption of all tea was 202,500,000 lbs., of which 150,000,000lbs. were Indian and Ceylon, and only about 52,000,000 lbs. China. In 1891 the consumption of Ceylon teas alone increased 50,000,000 lbs., while that of China showed a reduction of 40,000,000 lbs. Whatever the cause, whether it is what has been termed by those only interested in China teas "the coarse taste of the average British consumer," or, more probably, the natural requirement of something more stimulating, the cry is more and more pronounced for Indian and Ceylon teas—which is highly encouraging and satisfactory to our British tea industries in those colonies. The change in the customs duty in 1890 from 6d. to 4d. per lb. has enabled grocers, and especially the principal blending firms, to give to the public by means of blending a much more useful flavoury tea than they were a few years ago able to provide. Formerly, when little else but China tea was used, the fine and finest qualities were too expensive, and the poor could only obtain the inferior sorts. Now, by this blending system, which has become of late a large industry in itself, the working classes can buy a very superior tea at much less cost than they paid a few years since for a very inferior sabstitute. The quoted prices one generally sees now range from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 6d. per lb. for good useful to medium, and from 1s. 9d. to 3s. per lb. for better to finest blended teas. When this fact, which is already attracting attention, is still more fully recognized, we shall, without doubt, see a further marked increase in the consumption of an article which, being so largely produced by British enterprise, has the good wishes of all interested in British industry.

To give an idea of the enormous extent of the tea trade here, it may be stated that about 1,250,900 packages of Indian (valued at £4,887,000), 756,000 packages of Ceylon (valued at £1,890,000), and 667,500 packages of China teas (valued at £1,223,000), were catalogued and sold last year under the hammer in Mincing-lane over and above the very large quantities sold by private contract. The auctions of Indian, Ceylon, and China teas are held, as a rule, in seperate halls in the Commercial Salesrooms, and a stranger entering during one of these sales would be scared by the thundering noise caused by some dozen or more men shouting at the very top of their voices all at once, each endeavoring to secure the attention of the selling broker to his bid first. Where a lot of low-priced tea is put up, the exact value of which is well known, the unanimous shout is like the report from a cannon, and the stranger might well come to the conclusion that the very last lot of tea available in this world were being competed for. These scenes, however, are of almost daily occurrence in Mincing Lane. It is not at all unusual in the busy seasons for some 15,000 to 20,000 chests and half-chests of a particular growth to be sold in one day, the sales generally lasting from 12 to 3 o'clock, or later. The imports from June 1 to March 31, 1891-2, were of China tea 59,975,000 lbs., Indian 107,861,000 lbs., Ceylon 52,105,000 lbs., and Java 2,538,000 lbs., as against, during the same period in 1889-90, China tea 89,171,000 lbs., Indian 96,384,000 lbs., Ceylon 26,775,000 lbs., and Java 2,412,000 lbs. The total tea delivered for home consumption in 1891-92 was 150,971,000 lbs., against 129,581,000 lbs. in 1889-90.

The Chinese for so many years had the monopoly of our tea trade that they became utterly careless of the preparation or proper maintenance of their plantations, thinking anything they sent to this country, so long as it paid them well, would do for us. They regarded the rumor of competition from other countries with ridicule, and have only just commenced to learn, by sharp and painful experience, what it is. To allow a serious and steady decline in the quality of their staple export article was a costly error, especially at a time when our British-grown teas from both India and Ceylon were arriving in quantities sufficiently large for them to be widely spread amongst, and quickly appreciated by, the British public. India, it seems probable, may remain a good tea-producing country for many years to come ; but not so Ceylon—from the fact that the soil or climate, or both combined, quickly exhaust the good qualities of the plants. From observations during the past five years, it is evident that few, if any, of the higher-class tea-producing gardens maintain a high standard of quality after three years from their first bearing, and year by year they decline into producing only common and medium teas. At present new ground is continually being opened up, so a certain fresh supply of fine teas continues to come forward; but the common invoices largely increase month by month, many being from gardens conspicuous three or four years ago for the fineness of their teas. This being so, the Chinese, if they look out, may yet have another innings. They will have time to replant, modernise their workings, learn to use machinery, get free from export taxes; and in a few years hence, when, possibly, Ceylon teas may not be regarded with the favor which they enjoy to-day, the Chinese may be ready to bring some newly-grown young China leaf of fine quality and at reasonable prices to compete with their late formidable rivals.—Financial News.

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday's yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

JOHN BAKER EDWARDS, P.L.D., D.C.L., F.C.S.,

Public Analyst for the District of Montreal, and Professor of Chemistry.

CHEMICAL LABORATORY, MEDICAL FACULTY, MCGILL UNIVERSITY.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

This paper leaves the Toronto Post Office Thursday evening. Subscribers not receiving it promptly should write us at once. Their doing so will be considered a favor.

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

Laziness is the mother of invention.

Tinware manufacturers report an unusually strong demand this spring for milk can trimmings. The significance of this appears to be that an increased proportion of the milk produced on the farms of the country is finding its way to cheese factories and creameries. That will reduce the production of home-made butter. Whether the raw material is made up into cheese or butter, it will yield better returns to the farmers than if it were used to produce an excess of inferior bad-keeping butter of domestic make. Last year was a comparatively satisfactory one to butter makers and butter dealers, the market being kept fairly well cleared up throughout the whole year. An exceptional export demand was the cause. The exceptional, however, cannot be depended upon as the rule, and Canadians must look to the merits of their butter for any steady support from abroad. It is a sign of improvement that farmers are giving up more and more the making of butter in their own homes. The creameries will make a marketable product. They must, as they produce for direct acceptance by the market. There is no such intermediary between them and the market as the country merchant was between the farmers and the market. The position of the country merchant could hardly be classed as a market factor. It was not independent enough to be a real market influence. It could not adjust itself to the grades of quality, or the relation of the supply and demand, as a market interest should. The country merchant had to keep other objects in view besides the value of the butter; he had to consider the customer's patronage, temper, and the danger of a transfer of that customer's trade to a rival dealer. The creamery will remove all these embarrassing circumstances from the butter trade and will consequently have to depend on merit for the sale of its product. The quality is not always first-class even when produced by creameries. In that case there is no one to bear the loss for the creameries. Last fall there was quite a large stock of creamery butter put on this market, which did not command as ready sale as good dairy butter.

The shortage of fruit jars last summer was a cause of considerable annoyance and of some loss to the retail grocers of the country. Not only could they have sold many more jars than they did, but they could also have sold much more fruit and sugar than they did. It is unlikely that there will be so great a demand this summer, as the jars sold last summer will go equally far to supply the demand this year. They do not wear out in a year, so that it is likely few more will be needed than would have sufficed to fill up last year's shortage. There is no likelihood, therefore, that an exceptional run on glass jars will be experienced.

Soon the accessories of hot weather trade will be brought into requisition. No grocer can afford to do business without some of them, and for a trade of any magnitude it pays to have all of them. The refrigerator is a necessity in all grocery stores. Ice is cheaper than any perishable article of merchandise, and the saving through the use of it will soon pay for a refrigerator. Awnings are not only a protection from excessive heat and light, but they are attractive. Wire cloth doors, to let the air in and keep the flies out, mosquito netting to cover the shelf goods, sticky fly-paper to capture the fugitives that do get in, can be made profitable use of in the hot season. With the light properly subdued, the flies kept out, the floor kept cool and a fresh atmosphere maintained through liberal ventilation, the interior of the store will be agreeable to all the senses of anyone who comes into it. The impression that it makes upon the mind of the customer is favorable to buying. The whole psychology of the frame of mind which disposes a man to purchase goods is not always to be found in the comparative cheapness of the goods. A man will often buy because he is prepossessed with something in the salesman or the store. A store that is a grateful place to drop into on a hot day will not fail to have an effect on even the steadiest supporters of a rival store, as people are more often fickle than they are loyal, and in this fact, if he does his best to please, the trader can as frequently rejoice as complain.

Last summer there were a few sales of low grade butter from this market to makers of butter substitutes in New York. The duty, however, was an insurmountable barrier when the quality of the butter was much above the lowest, and the trade was consequently limited to grades costing here not more than 11c. A decision of Acting-Secretary Spaulding will be apt to cause a wider demand this summer, however, from the same source and for generally the same grades. By that decision, the manufacturers of refined butter made in New York are allowed on all their refined product that they export, a draw-back of whatever duty they have paid for any constituent of it that they imported. Since, therefore, they can recover on exports whatever duty they pay us on rough butter, it is likely we shall hear a good deal more this season from the New York manufacturers of refined butter substitutes and compounds.

THE FRESH FRUIT TRADE.

The trade in fresh fruit ought to be a very remunerative one to grocers if a profit is made upon all of it that they sell. It would be much more remunerative if a profit were realized on all they should sell. Oranges, lemons, bananas, pineapples have for several years past been very cheap, the cost and facilities of rapid transportation having greatly improved in recent years, and removed one of the greatest obstacles in the way of general consumption. The development of the orange groves on this side of the Atlantic—in Florida and California—is another factor that has had great influence on the side of cheapness in the price of oranges. Consumption in consequence has expanded extraordinarily in the last ten years. The consumer can get a dozen good oranges for the same money he would have paid for three a few years ago. Bananas, which used to find their way only to the leading cities and in small quantities, owing to the time, cost and risk of transport, are now abundant and cheap, the establishment of steamship lines, the opening of new railways and the development of proper carriage facilities having done much to bring about the change. The enormous consumption benefited the grocer, who for years past has had a growing summer line in these and domestic fruits.

But while consumption has increased and the value of the grocers' trade correspondingly expanded, there has been one drawback. Despite the precautions taken in the packing, shipping, carriage and storage of the fruit, there would be loss through decline in quality, and re-packing would necessitate the separation of culls from choice stock. For this of course there had to be an outlet. It was considerable in quantity and far from worthless. Some one had to take it and the pedlars offered the needed relief. Here the difficulty commences. The low grade fruit and the pedlars are to the legitimate fruit trade as bankrupt stocks and bankrupts are to the hundred-cents-in-the-dollar trade. The pedlars buy this fruit at low prices. It is better to sell it to them at low prices than to allow it to become utterly unsaleable. The pedlars get the fruit, hawk it over the towns and cities, and quote prices that put the grocers out of competition with them, if comparison be limited to figures alone, and that it usually is by the consuming public. A housewife is offered a dozen of oranges for 20c., and has been charged 40c. for a dozen by her grocer. She will not compare the oranges, but will compare the prices, and the grocer's quotations will, of course, by this test be found wanting. The waywardness of human nature in trying the grocer's value on this narrow ground may be objected to, but objection to it will not correct it or turn to the grocer's counter the demand that has been warped towards the pedlar's wagon.

It is probably a fact that the inferior fruit of itself is not sufficient to keep the army of pedlars stocked all season. Their supplies have no doubt to be replenished now and then from passably good lines, but that fact does not diminish the force of the advantage pedlars have in their monopoly of the stock of inferior fruit. They are the only ones who can make anything out of such a monopoly, as their system of forced distribution is the only means of getting it into consumption in time to save it. A sprinkling of better fruit will go far to give plausibility to the pedlar's representations that his stock is as good as the grocer's. But the inferiority of the fruit is not the only cause of its cheapness at pedlars' hands. Peddling is itself a cheap way of trading. The license is low, the pedlar need not lay much out on his cart, wagon, horse or what he wears. Usually an Italian, his wants are few, supplied at the lowest cost, as a colony of them will inhabit one tenement and subsist on the barest and rudest necessaries. The grocers, being a respectable body of traders, commanding sufficient capital to carry on business, paying taxes and heavy rents, and supporting manifold social expenses, bound to behave honorably by all, as they are always in the same place and aiming to deal with the same people, cannot do business on the slender margin of profit that suffices for the Italian pedlar.

The sanitary aspect of the peddling question was touched on in an extract published in this journal some time ago, under the title "Do Pedlars Disseminate Disease?" That is now to be looked into, so far as this city is concerned, by the health authorities, and it is understood that inspectors will investigate the state of the storage and ripening rooms used by pedlars. The fruit is often stored in the same room with a crowd of Italian men, women and children, not particular as to their personal cleanliness and often having one or two sick persons breathing the atmosphere in which the fruit is kept.

Thus the health department may do something to raise the status of the fruit peddling trade, and thereby second or supersede the influence of the Markets and Health Committee. The wholesale trade cannot be expected to do anything in the matter. It is their business to sell in quantities, and if there are classes or conditions of fruit that cannot be got out of stock through the regular trade demand, it has to be sold through some other channel, and the peddling trade affords that channel.

INSOLVENCY LEGISLATION.

The draft of the proposed insolvency act, as submitted by the Montreal board of trade, is not meeting with favor in the west. The Winnipeg board has declared against the proposed act, on several grounds. It is claimed that it is not suited to Manitoba and the Territories, on account of the sparse population here, greater distances, slower means of communication, expensive nature of proceedings under the proposed act, etc. The simple and inexpensive act which has been in force in Manitoba for some years, is held by the Winnipeg board to be superior to the proposed Dominion act, so far as this part of the country is concerned.

The Vancouver board of trade has also pronounced against the proposed act, as prepared by the Montreal board, for much the same reasons as those given by the Winnipeg board. The act, the Vancouver board says, "would supercede our present inexpensive and very effective method of administering the estates of insolvent debtors," while the expense of administering the proposed act, under the conditions prevailing in British Columbia, "would be so great as to leave but little for the creditors." The only advantages of the proposed act, in the opinion of the Vancouver board, "would be the obtaining of his discharge by an insolvent debtor; the inflictment of punishment upon fraudulent debtors; and compulsory assignment in cases where a debtor refused to make a voluntary assignment." The latter, however, the Vancouver board believes is open to abuse, as it "could be made to operate harshly against deserving debtors who might be temporarily embarrassed.—Winnipeg Commercial.

CULTIVATING TRADE.

The manager, the bookkeeper, the cashier, the entry clerk, the shipping clerk, the salesman, the office boy, the porter—everyone, in fact, who is in any way connected with a business establishment should bear in mind that there is such a thing as cultivating trade, and that they, as well as the proprietors, are responsible for a share of the firms, success. Because a man is hired to fill a certain position there should be no excuse for his hesitating to do any other work which may require attention. A bookkeeper might soil his fingers by reason of stepping outside the office and waiting upon a customer if occasion required, but he would not lower himself in the estimation of his employer through thus signifying a willingness to make himself generally useful, and anyhow the dirt will wash off. To make a business grow and make it pay should be the main object of every employe, regardless of position or conditions. The day is gone when business can be conducted successfully without the undivided and best efforts of those who are responsible for it. In days gone by a merchant might succeed in a measure by sitting down and waiting for trade to come to him, but not now. In our day and generation the most persistent and systematic efforts are essential in bringing about a satisfactory result. A progressive spirit and a capacity for pleasing customers will work wonders in any business.—The Bookkeeper.

NOTES TAKEN ON THE ROAD.

Fred. R. Smith, grocer, Windsor, N. S., will soon have to move into larger premises or the citizens will have to give up the sidewalk altogether, as Fred's. orders are thronging his space and his delivery service.

W. H. Payzant, grocer, Windsor, N.S., has been put to a great deal of inconvenience this spring by the property owners taking off part of his store to add vault room to the bank adjoining, and he is undecided whether to move into the bank's old premises or put up with his cramped quarters.

W. R. Logan, grocer, Fredericton, N.B., says his trade is good and he has no reason to complain. If the time a representative of THE GROCER spent with him is any criterion, his trade is certainly good. He is interested in the articles written in THE CANADIAN GROCER and thinks every grocer should take that journal.

Scott & Co., Halifax, N.S., having effected a compromise with their creditors, are again pushing forward with renewed hope of success in the near future. The creditors have shown great sympathy for Mr. Scott, his being an old business house, and at one time quite wealthy, his present trouble being brought about by leakages that will be guarded against in the future.

Randolph & Son, Fredericton, N.B., are large dealers in flour, etc., at that point. They do a large shipping trade by rail and the River St. John, supplying many of the largest lumbering camps in the provinces. They handle the best brands of Ontario Milling as well as Manitoba Flour. They have capacious store rooms and fine offices, built of brick, and fire proof.

The oldest grocer in Windsor, N. S., is John Lynch, who has been in business there twenty-five years. Mr. Lynch can see many changes in the trade of that town in that time. He was the first grocer to put on a delivery wagon, also his was the first store to have in a plate glass front. I venture to say if a few of the rich inhabitants, in which Windsor abounds, had shown the same enterprise that he has, Windsor would have had some much finer blocks and business places than it can boast of now. But Mr. Lynch has now given the active management of the business into the hands of his sons, John and Henry, whom he has admitted to partnership, and who would be a credit in any capacity as business men and citizens. The clean, tidy well-arranged store shows the interest they take in the work before them. The first remarks of the senior member of the firm on shaking hands with the representative of the CANADIAN GROCER will suffice to illustrate one lesson to them: "Yes, boys, pay for your GROCER, and don't fail to read it.

SAWING OFF PRICES.

Some men have a mania for cutting prices, and where the habit is strongest it is the least frank and open-handed, It condescends to trickery, and is in trade relationships what Judas Iscariot was in the councils of the twelve apostles. It is, of course, impossible to manipulate business morals on a pancake basis of even justice. It may have its revivals, but these are usually restricted to sales, and leaves the sinner still unregenerated. Saints are scarce both in churches and shops, and, if a pity, it is still a fact; and if Moses fails with the ten commandments, it is not reasonable to suppose any trade law can escape the usual violation. The evil however, is none the less for being too common, for it is to this spirit of rivalry and cupidity we find so many men making meat of their noses to spoil their neighbor's face. It is this frenzy that makes competition homicidal. It simply does a butchering business and fills the modern shambles with debtors and creditors, financial skeletons and busy sheriffs. This, of course, is foolish; but as fools seldom die when young, they have to be endured in whiskers. They are pratically immortal, and never die. They co-exist with the mosquito and the wart that spoils the beauty of a Roman nose. Everybody knows that two-thirds of our business failures, bad debts and ruined creditors are traceable to these unrepentant sinners, and that their delinquencies in the long run have to be balanced in the big clearing house of the public purse. All kinds of schemes are devised to limit this business evil. We cork it up in conventions, committees and organizations, and frame all kinds of affidavits to keep the modern Annanias from his old habit of going back on his veracity. Men travel hundreds of miles, frame constitutions and employ the national mails to distribute resolutions and schedules in printed forms, but still the cat gets into the pantry and the dreaded camel gets through the needle's eye. In fact, men who would adhere to living prices and save themselves from the sheriff are frequently compelled, by the law of self-preservation, to take to the water on a plank when the bottom is kicked out of the business boat. Competition keeps its knife on the grindstone and the trader's throat, with the criminals sitting before a ledger, and their names on the official roll of fair and honest trade. It may be safely said that it would pay, with a handsome profit, to give a life pension, with board and lodging and free rides on Sundays, to this class of men, who are strangling themselves and their neighbors by undue and injudicious competition.—Ex.

The clerks in the various stores of Hamilton, are agitating for a weekly holiday, on Wednesday afternoons, through June, July and August. The Hearld has taken up their cause in a sensible editorial.

WHERE THE JOKE COMES IN.

"Your husband is a man of wealth, is he?" inquired the judge. "He's worth about $75,000," said the applicant for divorce. "He owns a baking powder factory." "M—yes. You want a separate maintenance, I presume?" "A what?" "A separate maintenance—allowance—alimony." "That's it. I want my share of his alum money."—Chicago Tribune.

Fortune-teller—You will shortly inherit a large fortune.

Schmidt—Are you sure of it?

"There is no doubt of it."

"I'm glad to hear it. Would you—ah—mind lending me $25? I'll pay you $50 just as soon as I finger that what is coming to me."

Glanders—"It is said that paper can be used effectively in keeping a person warm." Gazlay—"That is very true. I remember a thirty-day note of mine once kept me in a sweat for a month."—Brooklyn Life.

Doctor—Well, my friend, what seems to be the matter with you?

Grogan—Shure, docther, there's somethin' the matter with me jaw; I can't domesticate me food.

"Does your pastor permit himself to make any jokes in the pulpit?" said one lady to another.

"Oh, yes!" was the apologetic tone; "but they are never very good ones."

A lady came into a well-known grocery store this morning and soberly inquired when the funeral of Mr. S., the proprietor was to be.

"Why he isn't dead," answered the clerk, seriously.

"Oh, yes, I think he must be," persisted the lady.

"But he was here in the store not an hour ago,' replied the clerk, who was nevertheless growing a little anxious, for fear some sudden calamity had overtaken his employer.

"Well, I have every reason to believe that he has passed to his final reward," calmly remarked the lady. "It was about ten days ago that he assured me he would send a barrel of flour, if he was alive. The flour has not come yet."—Portland Advertiser.

"Trust men and they will be true to you," says Emerson; but any ordinary grocer could have given Emerson points on that.—Somerville Journal.

"Beg pardon, sir, but haven't I met you before? Your face seems quite familiar to me."

(With a pitying smile for the other's ignorance.)—"It ought to be if you take the papers. I'm the fellow that was cured of the seven year scratches by Hunkerson's liver pills."

"Tommy," said his mother, "you surely don't mean to say that there's a quart of milk in this pitcher. Why, there surely isn't a pint." Tommy had been sipping the lacteal fluid on his way home from the corner grocery. "Well, mom," he replied, "perhaps he gave me condensed milk."—Philadelphia Record.

DON'T CARRY YOUR BUSINESS HOME.

The American plan of business, founded as it is upon rush and push, hurry and hurrah, is at best a grinding system, wearing away the lives of participants in it, and the question arises how can some relief be found from this constant taxing to the uttermost of the strength and ability?

In no country in the world are the people living in the mental and physical strain as they are here. In every other country the relief comes to the business man and the laborer in the shorter hours occupied; the few moments' respite enjoyed with companions over the glass and the lunch, when the forenoon is but half spent, and its repetition again in the afternoon just as the burdens of the day begin to be a heavy weight; in the holidays crowded with everything which would tend to drive from the mind the cares of the bread winning, gain getting struggle of life.

The American business man, as a rule, if he is what we term "up with the times," a "hustler," does not take any holidays, and he can be found at his work early and late, without an intermission. No dropping out for a social hour with him—it would never do, for to the American heart percentage and profit, exchange and barter, dimes and dollars seem to be the synonyms for every luxury and blessing which should make life worth the living.

The average American business man has a still greater fault, which comes as a necessary result, attendant upon his daily custom of attaching a secondary value to everything which does not carry with it a tangible profit in the shape of a dividend payable in gold, and this is the fact that owing to the overwork of the day he carries home his business disappointments and failures to be vented in a pleasure-destroying petulancy, which is sure to destroy the opportunity for the rest and home comfort which tired nature so much needs and craves.

We have to work at this universally adopted rate in order to keep up with the competition of the times in any line in which we may be engaged, but even this being true, can the business man not cultivate the habit of laying off the cares of his surroundings, as he does his office coat, and go into the atmosphere of home or society, forgetting the dark cloud of the day, trusting that a brighter to-morrow's sun may dispel it, or bring a clearer sky?

It can be done. We have in our mind a character of this description, who closes the doors on every troublesome difficulty when he closes his safe, and only opens them, to public view at least, when he begins the battle of another day. He makes it a rule to never mention in his home the doubts he may entertain, nor more than mention the anticipated successes until they are fully assured facts. His home-coming is sure to bring its ray of sunshine, and he has so schooled himself in the matter of confining business to business hours, as to find many a good night's sleep upon the pillow which would bring only fretful tossing to the ordinary man.

DON'T CARRY YOUR BUSINESS HOME.

Leave it down town; wait and meet its hardships to-morrow when you have renewed strength.

Don't meet your family with a flag of despair flying at half mast, and by word and act send a chill to the hearth and hearts of your home which will destroy every chance for them to help you by the loving tenderness they would otherwise extend. It is a hard matter to accomplish, we know; there are a thousand and one things to banish from your mind which it seems impossible to do, but it can be done.

Forget when you close your ledger that your bookkeeper made a mistake which cost you a hundred dollars; forget when you close your safe that the note you hold is yet unpaid, and the money you depended on to meet the claims upon you to-morrow is not there; forget all, banish the last disagreeable business talk as you leave your friend and step from the car at your home, and if you can't carry into it the brightest sunshine, don't bring a cloud by harping on failure.

Life is worth living if its pleasures are not murdered by the missapplication of things to time and place. Let your out-of-business hours drive the wrinkles from your brow, and strengthen your manhood for the effort the future will demand.—Merchant Sentinel.

WHAT ARE YOU IN BUSINESS FOR?

As the sole aim of every man engaged in business should be money getting, so the amount of money which may reward his efforts is the sole criterion of his ability as a business man and the true test of the degree of success that he may meet with. A business man may acquire a splendid requtation for honesty, courtesy and prudence, as well as for boldness, courage and shrewdness, yet if he fails to make money he is a failure as a business man. There are men engaged in trade who do not know the meaning of the word system; who have not a spark of originality, but tamely follow in the foot-prints of competitors; who are tied to no rules as to the keeping of accounts and the granting of credit, yet make money right along, while some of their rivals, with every aid that a sound business education and painstaking zeal can give, find it difficult to keep their heads above water and often fail disastrously. The trouble with these latter persons is, no doubt, that they lose sight of the object which they should constantly keep in view, namely the accumulation of money. They desire, perhaps, to impress their community with a sense of their ability as heavy buyers—with the magnitude of their operations; or they allow sentiment to interfere with business, and give credit to undeserving people, under the delusion that the sole end in view should be a certain amount of sales per annum. A wise man does not engage in a mercantile business for the purpose of simply selling goods; the sales are but the means to an end, and if by an increase in the volume of his business the sagacious dealer cannot increase the volume of his profits, he will rest content with a modest trade.

We can imagine some of our readers expressing disgust at the above statements of perfectly obvious facts, but has the suspicion never crossed their minds that some merchants are in business either for the fun of the thing, or for some other purpose than money getting? Take the case of any "out-and-out" cutter with whom the reader may be acquainted, and it probably will appear upon investigation that the end which he originally had in view has been lost sight of in a thirst for an increased patronage, regardless of profits. We have no doubt that much of the price-cutting which occurs in the retail grocery business and kindred lines of trade would disappear, if the members of these trades would always bear in mind the object with which they at first started out. A fruitful source of loss in retail trading is over-buying. Owing to vanity, which may have been adroitly fanned by the salesman, a merchant orders a larger quantity of goods than he can handle in their season, and even if he succeeds in paying for them, runs a risk of losing by their depreciation in value through changes in fashion, damage by becoming shop-worn, &c., while the locking up of more capital than he can spare, prevents him taking advantage of market changes on other goods. Such a risk ought not to be taken, because it endangers the realization of the prime aim in business. If the goods are novel in design and there is the least doubt of their popularity they should be handled very gingerly. The merchant is not in business exclusively for the purpose of pushing new goods; that is the manufacturer's province, and the former should not sink into a mere agent of the latter, because such a capacity lessens his chances of making money. There are other ways in which the end in business is forced out of sight. But the chief are those which have been just mentioned. If every retail merchant from this time forward will resolve to constantly keep before his mental vision the money-getting end, to the exclusion of all other objects, we believe the losses from bad debts, price-cutting and over-buying will rapidly and steadily shrink to nominal figures. If a business man has other ends in view than the common one, he may be warranted in adopting the role of a philanthropist where the granting of credit is concerned, or in testing the depths of human knavery if he is philosophically inclined and doubtful parties ask him to put his trust in them. Also, if he wishes to make a grand splurge and dazzle his neighbors with the extent of his business, there may be justification for him. But there are other callings in which such men can shine much better than in trade in which sentiment has no place, and to achieve success therein the fact that it is exclusively a money-making pursuit, and that without the money-getting condition no man should enter it, must not be lost sight of.—Merchants' Review.

THE RAPID INCREASE in the sales of our Hillwattee Tea show that the grocers and consumers appreciate a good thing when they get it.

We do not ask you to buy Hillwattee Tea because it has had an immense sale but for the reason of its superiority over other package teas. Try a sample half chest (50 lbs) and see how it goes. "Dozens and dozens" of Grocers have done this and are now handling Hillwattee only.

Hamilton grocers are to hold their pic-nic on the 20th of July.

Mr. Jas. H. Slaughter, of Point Edward, has opened a grocery and confectionery store in Sarnia.

Read Harry Herman's advertisement this week. He publishes a book on how to dress windows. Did you ever see one.

Nearly a carload of commercial travellers reached this city from Halifax on Saturday night.—St. John Telegraph.

Bean & Westlake's biscuit factory, Woodstock, Ont., suffered considerably from fire on Saturday night. It broke out shortly after 8 o'clock in the rear of the cellar.

The Whiting Cash and Parcel Carrier is being placed in the principal business houses throughout the Dominion, and is invariably giving satisfaction. See ad. in next issue of this journal.

A large quantity of salmon arrived up by the Intercolonial railway the other morning from Dalhousie and Chatham, N. B., en route to New York. This is the first salmon consignment this season and is the earliest to arrive for a number of years past. It almost filled a freight car.

Mr. J. Walter Allison, of John P. Mott & Co., Halifax, N.S., was in the city this week on a business trip. Mr. Allison's face is a familiar one, that receives a hearty welcome by the trade everywhere. He some years ago called on the trade regularly and has many friends in the west.

The Toronto Buiscuit and Confectionery Co., whose factory is immediately opposite us, have had the street blocked one day with C. P. R. teams handling a very large shipment for Winnipeg. This house has already secured an immense trade in Canada. They have been working over time for weeks. As we said before young blood with push and energy and a get there desire regardless of fatigue and obstacles is bound to win.

Gorman, Eckert & Co., coffee and spice manufacturers, of London, are obliged on account of the increase of their business, to move to larger premises, and have secured the building lately occupied by Stevens, Glass & Clark, known as Hyman's shoe factory, Nos. 144 and 146 Carling street. The building is very suitable for spice mills, and will enable Gorman, Eckert & Co. to add the machinery necessary to supply the increasing demand for their goods. They are men of energy, and their goods are fast becaming known to the retail trade from coast to coast.

An itinerant peddler visited a shop in Deseronto and purchased some tweeds, which were old stock that the firm could not dispose of very easily. He then sold this to consumers, persuading his victims that the cloth was the genuine Scotch article, which he had smuggled in free of duty and which he would sell at a sacrifice. The bait took and the goods were purchased for three times what they were worth.

The Brandon Times says: "J. L. Bucknal, produce and commission merchant, Winnipeg, has received an enquiry for Manitoba tinned butter, from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and has forwarded some samples of the article to that country. Mr de la Bodairre, of the St. Malo creamery, has been the first to put up tinned butter in Manitoba, and it is through the exhibition of his article at the Jamacia exposition, and at Paris, that the enquiry came from Brazil. New Zealand tinned butter is used in Brazil largely, but there is complaint that it is not up to quality. Mr. Bucknal has also contracted with parties at Hong Kong, China, to make shipments of butter to that distant port, by each trip of the China steamers from Vancouver."

MONTREAL TRADE CHAT.

Wm. Moody, the retail grocer, has failed again. Liabilities small.

W. F. Costigan, tea merchant, has just returned from a business trip to the Southern States.

Burglars broke into the fruit store of B. Schiel, St. Catherine street, on Friday night last and stole $60 worth of fruit.

J. D. White & Co. retail grocers on Sherbrooke street, state that since they have opened business trade has been fine.

The J. B. Page Tobbaco Company have been incorporated with a capital of $25,000. Their place of business will be Montreal.

The corner stone of the new Board of Trade building was laid last week in the presence of a large assemblage of people.

Geo. Graham, Walter Paul, W. H. Gravel, W. V. Gordon, all retail grocers, have been appointed justices of the peace for this province.

The Canadian Bankers Association held its first annual meeting in the board rooms of the Merchant's Bank last week Mr Geo. Hague presiding.

A. Dionne has sold out his Sherbrooke street grocery store. As soon as he gave it up Mr. Laverty rented it. It is one of the best stands in the city.

The following notice was on Saturday posted on the Board of Trade bulletin:—In reply to enquiries, J. B. McLea has this morning received a telegram from Sir William Whileway, Premier of Newfoundland, to the effect that the difficulties regarding tariffs between Canada and that place have been arranged.

M. P. Laverty has moved to his new store on the corner of Bleury and Sherbrooke streets. Mr. Laverty has been in the grocery business in Montreal for years.

H. C. McLean, manager of the J. B. McLean Publishing Company, (Limited), publishers of THE CANADIAN GROCER, is in town on his way to England.

The Hearte Manufacturing Co. have started work at their new place of business on St. Urbain street. They are now ready to supply the trade who wish to favor them with orders for their fine line of toilet soaps.

The next trade sale of teas to be held here will be one of the largest ever held in Canada, and, like the fruit sales, will be attended by buyers from all over Canada as well as the United States. It will take place in September.

The Grand Trunk Railway gives notice of the sale at Montreal on Wednesday, the 6th day of July, of a large quantity of unclaimed freight and baggage, consisting in part of glassware, groceries, hardware, machinery, drugs, household effects and other sundries.

Amongst the arrivals in port, at Montreal, on Saturday, was the sailing vessel Baarm, which left Java on February 2nd, with a cargo of raw sugar for the Canada sugar refinery. The Baarm had an eventful passage. While passing south of the Island of Mauritius, in the Indian ocean, a terrific hurricane struck the vessel, carrying away the upper main topsail yard. The vessel, however, succeeded in weathering the hurricane. While rounding the Cape of Good Hope a heavy breaker struck her and smashed the main hatch to atoms. The vessel suffered considerably from the damage done by the waves.

John Duncan & Co., tea merchants, St. Paul street, have received the following cablegram from their buyer at Shanghai, which will be of interest to tea merchants and tea drinkers generally. "Market in Hankon opened 8th inst. Settlements two first days 20,000 half chests. Quality inferior, with prices far too high. Ningchows brought 60 taels; Kintucks and Keermuns 45 to 50 taels; bonfas, 30 to 39 taels. Many lines smoky and tarry flavored, Russians doing all the buying." This news concerning the black tea trade is considered rather disappointing. The price is altogether too dear for the market, and the bulk of the crop will have to go elsewhere. Notwithstanding this fact, however John Duncan & Co. have made a considerable purchase of fine early teas. Hankon is known as the northern market where all the fine teas come from. The firm will not hold its first tea sale before September.

PUSH IN BUSINESS.

It is an assured fact nowadays that if you intend to make money, you must, says Finance, take hold of something, you must devote your work, your skill, your experience, and whatever money you have to something. Caution is, indeed, a great thing in investment; but as in everything else, there can be too much of it. The man who is too cautious in his business policy runs a greater risk of being ruined by missing golden opportunities than one who is seemingly reckless in his undertakings. Conservatism of the genuine sort should be the characteristic of every legitimate business man; aggressiveness, however, in every line of commerce, enlarges a thousand-fold the possibilities of success, while at the same time permitting of the employment of conservative methods. The genuine business man is a speculator; he is no gambler. He takes risks, but they are warranted by the necessities of his enterprises. He also often comes to grief, but his ruin often emphasizes the mistakes that should be avoided by others. Any man who wishes to invest has lots of good chances. But he must act; and by rightly acting he will win.

TALKING TO-----?

Many a salesman who, to-day, meeting his customers face to face, is more than fairly successful, would be a total failure were he condemned to sell goods through a telephone to unseen buyers.

The advertiser is a salesman calling through a telephone, too often utterly ignorant as to whether the right man is at the other end of the wire, or if indeed there is any one there. He is continually in danger of using upon Smith the arguments which would have been effectual with Jones, of arousing unnecessary difficulties in the mind of Brown while combatting the objections of Robinson.

The good salesman finds it necessary to know his customers, to study the very whims of each one, to adapt his arguments and his persuasions to individual peculiarities. The advertiser cannot do precisely this, but he can learn a lesson from the salesman's methods as to the necessity of knowing his audience.

Too much of our advertising smacks of the closet. The writing may be grammatically perfect, the sentences terse, clean, snappy, but the whole utterly ineffectual because the writer, knowing well what he was writing about, has had no definite idea of the persons he was writing to.

All mankind have very much in common, or, as some one puts it, there is a good deal of human nature in each one of us. The advertiser who will reach the general public must appeal to qualities common to all human nature. He whose wares appeal only to a certain class needs to know something of the mode of thinking of that class. He must know, too, what interests his particular public at any given time. There are times when the public is ready to be amused. There are others—not so frequent, however, when it resents anything in the shape of fooling. We New Yorkers all remember with what effect some of our advertisers utilized the piles of snow when all the city seemed disposed to treat "the blizzard" as a huge good joke. Suppose some one had advertised in the same spirit when the angry nation had just heard of Lincoln's death, or when, years later, the people held their breath as they watched Garfield's brave struggle with death!

The attitude of the public towards one's goods needs to be carefully considered. Smith starts in business. He has something to sell which he knows to be of value, but of which the public, as yet, knows nothing. In writing his advertisement he begins with the recognized public need and then shows how his article meets the need. The name of his article becomes a household word, and wherever it is seen calls up at once all that at first it was necessary to say about it.

Brown has at this time an article to put before the public. He is an admirer of Smith's style of advertising—the later style, which consists in keeping prominently in sight everywhere the name of that which he has to sell. Brown, forgetting that the name of his new thing means nothing to outsiders, essays the same style, makes a flat failure, and connot understand why.

And the moral of it all?

Let us get out of our shells, go out among the people, learn what they are saying about other people and about us, learn to talk to definite people—not simply to talk. Get hold of an actual average man—they are not hard to find—try our arguments, our persuasions on him; note their effect and then embody in the next advertisement, as tersely, as convincingly as we can, what we have found effectual.—B. C. Nevins in Printers' Ink.

VALUE OF HARD WORK.

Time is stock in trade. One man makes use of it, another allows it to waste away; one extracts from it wondrous wisdom, the other lies in the dust. It is also life's ladder, up which one is led to honor and immortality, down to depravity and obscurity. All of us have leisure hours between the time of ordinary business, although they may be short, irregular or fragmentary. Let all cultivate the habits of punctuality, promptness and dispatch, and they will find leisure hours that may be turned to golden account. The brief and broken periods of a man's life are more important than his business moments, and are the most potent for his welfare for time and eternity. The grandest genius is the genius of plodding and hard work. Genius never did much for the world, but furnished the fireworks. Plodding and hard work have solved the greatest problems of humanity.—Ex.

SOME HINTS ABOUT SUCCESS.

"No gain is so certain as that which proceeds from the economical use of what you have."—From the Latin.

Why do men fail? Is not the question answered in the majority of cases by the above quotation? How many young clerks to-day are making an economical use of what they have? They look at the merchant who has amassed an immense fortune, and say: "That man once was as poor as I am, and what is to hinder me from making the same fortune?" Much.

That merchant once was a clerk, and at a time when the hours of labor were much longer than they now are, and the facilities for making work easy and light not as numerous as now. Yet we venture the assertion that as a clerk he was as faithful in the discharge of his duty as though the store was his own. He didn't hang around the corner until it was time to go to work; nor begin an hour before to watch the clock, in order that he should not lose a single moment of the noon hour, and then return, taking five or ten minutes of his employer's time, and showing no disposition to make the same up at the evening hour. He wasn't forever letting his employer know how essential he was to the business, and how the house would collapse in case he should leave. Plain in his dress, frugal in his expenditures, with no vices whatsoever, he laid the foundation for the immense fortune he now enjoys.

A splendid illustration of this is in a large and prominent house in New York. Years ago two young men stood side by side in this house as clerks. Their chances for promotion were equal. To-day the one is junior partner in the house, and the other is a salesman. Why are not both partners? Something must have been wrong with the one. There was a screw loose somewhere.

Here is a young clerk, who when the store is closed wends his way to the comfortable lager beer saloon, and it is midnight ere his home sees him. Here is another who can save nothing, because all he can earn goes for stylish clothes, gloves and fancy ties. Here is another whose salary is being eaten up, because he feels he is popular, belonging to a large number of organizations and so on to the end.

There is but one, and only one avenue leading to sure and permanent success in this world, and that is steady, earnest and hard work. The knowing how to save money after it is once made. Money that is made easy goes easy, and there are many paths one can take for making it easy; but each and every one is thickly crowded with dangers, and life's pathway is crowded with the wrecks. Ward was called the Napoleon of Wall street. The young man astounded the world by his bold movements. But Ward was buried, so to speak, in Sing Sing prison for a number of years. His abilities devoted to a legitimate business would have made him a rich man in time. To-day he is ruined.

The opportunities this country offers the young man of becoming well off, are not equaled by any other on the face of the globe, and that men do not become such, is owing entirely to themselves in not starting right and then steadily pushing ahead.—American Grocer.

AGAINST THE METRIC SYSTEM.

The system of measures having the meter for its basis has been much bepraised as theoretically and practically well-nigh perfect. But Mr. E. Noel, of England, challenges it, and also the use of ten as a basis of notation. To begin with, the meter is an inconvenient unit. It is too long to pace and too long for architectural measurements. The foot is a much more convenient unit.

The value of the metric system is supposed, however, to lie in its decimality, or use of ten, and the consequent ease of calculation, and not in the particular length of the meter. But Mr. Noel gives reasons for considering the decimal the worst possible system of notation. The reason for its use, he thinks, is our having ten fingers, not its convenience. Ten is unhandy for divisions. The half of it is five—an odd number—and its fourth is not a whole number. In business and ordinary transactions we want to halve and to quarter things; also to divide into thirds. We rarely wish to divide anything first of all into tenths. The series half, quarter, eighth and sixteenth comes more naturally and usefully to the mind than tenth, hundredth and thousandth. A system based on twelve would be better.

Then we should have halves, quarters, thirds and sixths. In multiplying we get along too fast if we have ten to start with. Ten times ten is a big jump. In measures of area and capacity we find this inconvenient. We cannot apply the decimal system conveniently to many things in practice. We do not want ten or a hundred, but twenty-four hours in a day. A circle is better with its 360 degs., with 90 in each quadrant. The pound of sixteen ounces is vastly more convenient than the kilogram (2.2) pounds, which is 1,000 grams. Nobody wants so little as a thousandth or even the hundredth part of a kilogram of sugar. We find ourselves instinctively halving and quartering the kilogram when we use it. The terms heetogram and dekagram are not used in practice. The binary system, which prevails in India, admits of continual halving; eight, sixteen or sixty-four being taken as the basis.

The Romans used duodecimals, our words ounce and inch being derived from the Latin for one-twelfth of the as. "There are," says Mr. Noel, "three main systems of the subdivision—the decimal, duodecimal and binary—and of these the decimal is the worst." A proof of the inconvenience of the French system is that the French do not themselves use it fully. They do not use the decaare, or the milliare, while the square meter they call the centiare—the one-hundredth part of a square of ten times itself. The hectare is used, but not the kiloare or myriare. The liter, the unit of capacity, is too small, being the cube of the decimeter. The milliliter is, of course, too small for use, while the kiloliter is too large, being over four hogsheads. The hectoliter is merely a name for one hundred liters, not a cubic measure.

The dekaliter and centiliter are mere names, and are not in use. Practically the liter is the only real cubic measure in use. The unit of weight is the gram, which is ridiculously too small, being about one-twenty-eighth of an ounce. Hence the use of a thousand of it, the "kilo," for a practical unit, which is too large. Myriagram is not used. Beyond that the Greek prefixes fail, and one hundred thousand grams is called a quintal. Summing up objections to the metric system, we find that, being a system of pure decimals, subdivisions are too small; that it affords only one real measure in each series, and many of its measures are nominal; that its standards are of inconvenient size; that its measures of capacity are bad and unnatural; and, finally, that the scientific connection between its measures of capacity and weight is unsatisfactory.—Baltimore Sun.

"TREATING" CUSTOMERS.

The customer who is in the habit of taking solace out of the clay pipe, may experience a beatitude through a choice Havana cigar, which will allay discordant feelings and put him in good buying humor. But it must be handled cautiously by the traveler, and it must never appear that he goes about with a case full of the article intended expressly for the purpose of giving him an audience with the trade. The dealer is not to be bought, and if the offering of a cigar carries with it the remotest intimation of anything of this sort, the traveller had better pack his grip on the spot. Should he have the faculty of casually presenting the the weed, and with the same air of unconcern and good fellowship that he would unconsciously assume when he hands a cigar to a friend of the inner circle, the act would do no harm. But this is a hard thing to do, and the man whom you may possibly never have seen before, can hardly fail to suspect your motive when you deliberately hand him a cigar. This is especially apt to be the case when the gentleman is not a smoker. As a rule, therefore, do not attempt the cigar lay. An intimate acquaintance with the customer is, unquestionably, a very decided advantage, and the nearer the traveler can get to him, in a dignified social way, the more he enhances his chances of capturing his order. The acquaintance, however, must never degenerate into familiarity. Some travelers assume the familiar manner and think they have made substantial progress when they have reached the point at which they can address the customer by his given name. This is dangerous ground to tread upon.—The Traveling Salesman.

One thing in particular should be impres ed upon clerks—the necessity of careful attention to small customers

NEW SEASON FOR CHINA TEAS.

The news that the market at Kiukiang is on the eve of being opened, as reported by special telegram, reminds us that the period for the commencement of another season for China teas is drawing near, and that before they have advanced far into the present month the trade will be calculating the time when the first vessel with the new season's Monings will probably arrive in the Thames. But although it is formally announced, according to old-established usage, that the market for Chinese teas is opened so early this month for the year 1892-93, it does not follow that business will immediately begin, for, from what we hear, the Russians are nothing like so eager to operate as they were in 1891 or most previous years, having, on the contrary, determined to adopt very different tactics with the traders of the Flowery Land from what they did last year. Then the Russian houses made a grand demonstration in favour of the new teas, and paid as much as 2s. 2d. to 2s. 6d. and even up to 3s. per lb. for what they required—prices almost as high as the Chinese in their "hongs" were pleased to ask. This bold, not to say rash, action of theirs entirely spoiled the market for the English purchasers, whose instructions as to buying did not admit of their giving more than 1s. 6d. to 2s. per lb. at the outside for the finest chops, and the greater part of the first crop teas, as may be imagined, passed into the hands of the Muscovite merchants, who, in the excitement of the hour, no doubt fondly imagined that they had secured most, if not all, of the best bargains in new teas.

These fierce Russian operators, however, not long afterwards found out the mistake they had committed in buying hand-over-head at such extravagant figures as the above, and as the season 1891-92 progressed they discovered to their dismay that when the teas arrived at Moscow and other principal cities, and sales had to be pressed, the highest bids that could be extracted from local buyers were 1s. to 1s. 6d. per lb., or 50 per cent. below what the black and red leafs had cost in China some months back. It was generally remarked by those who held aloof that the opening rates for China tea last year were quite unwarranted, for, besides giving a deal more money themselves for the earliest shipments, the Russians not only "burnt their own fingers," as the saying is, in making their contracts, but also caused their rivals or competitors to do the same by sanctioning a range of prices which was injurious to all parties; and many London firms, wholesale dealers as well as import merchants, have had to rue the day when they rashly gave for choice Moning and Kaisow sorts quite 1s. per lb. more than they were really worth. In fact, the whole season may be said to have been wasted, so far as the European trade were concerned, by fruitless attempts to realise the 1891-92 teas at anything like remunerative rates, and a serious contraction of operations has been experienced accordingly. Instead of confidence prevailing, nothing but mistrust has been bred, and the new season for 1892-93 opens with a determination on the part of Western buyers not to purchase an ounce of tea except on pretty much their own terms. Nearly all bidders for the new teas at Hankow will now be seen playing a waiting game, as the English have already let it be clearly understood that they will not be the first to go in and buy; whilst the deplorable state of commercial affairs at home, through the ravages and distress occasioned by the rye famine last year, will prevent the Russians from taking the lead in clearing off the tea as it arrives from up the country to the shipping ports. When it is remembered that most of the China tea in London has been sold during the season now closing at marvellously cheap rates—10d. to 1s. per lb., and several pence under—it is not the least surprising to hear that the merchants this year intend adopting a strictly cautious policy, and will be careful not to plunge too deeply into engagements until other persons have satisfied their most pressing wants. This may not be until the second-crop teas come down for sale at such rates as would accord with the value here, which, at the utmost stretch of the merchants' limits, is not above 1s. 6d. to 1s. 7d. per lb. for the finest qualities; and offers on this basis will no doubt act as a great shock to the ideas of the "native Chinee," accustomed as he has been to receiving relatively fancy prices for his produce.

London statistics of China tea are favourable only has regards the quantity on hand, which is exceedingly light, and of Congou only 14,934,050 lbs., in contrast with 25,404,400lbs. last year, and 38,433,750lbs. at the end of April in 1890. Reckoning that eleven months of the 1891-92 season have elapsed, the landings of all kinds of China tea since the beginning of June last have not been more than 60,000,000lbs. in comparison with 69,497,550lbs. in 1890-91, and 89,771,100lbs. in the same period of 1889-90. The falling-off in the supply within two years is thus shown to have been no less than 29,771,100 lbs., which no amount of reasoning can prove to be otherwise than serious, especially as a great part of this deficiency is reflected in the deliveries. These in the past eleven months have shrunk more alarmingly than in the previous season, having been only 63,426,550 lbs., against 75,219,500 lbs., whereas the difference between that total and the corresponding one in 1889-90—when the delivery was 76,078,150 lbs.—was not more than 858,650 lbs. It is therefore to be hoped that the coming season will witness a recovery in the trade for China tea.—London Grocer.

It will be noticed in this issue that George Childs & Co., of Montreal, are now acting as agents for that district for Lazenby & Sons' pickles and other preparations, and have just landed a full assortment. They have got a "sure" thing this time, judging from the favorable reports that continually appear with reference to these goods.

H. N. Bate & Sons of Ottawa, with characteristic enterprise have taken the agency for the Ottawa district for Lazenby & Sons' pickles and other preparations, including the celebrated, original Bath olive biscuits, for which Lazenby & Sons are sole export agents. As the enormous trade for Lazenby's goods has grown entirely from the very superior excellence of their preparations, all consumers may rejoice at the opportunity of obtaining these goods so near at home.

THE OFFICE AND ITS WORK.

In first commencing a business, there is not only no necessity for, but it would be simple folly to provide, the elaborate arrangements to be found in businesses which are not only well established, but have been well developed. To provide separate accommodation for the principal, and also for a clerk, or clerks, is not necessary; indeed, except in rare cases, would be most unwise. What is needed is a place where private business may be transacted in a convenient and private way, with such accommodation as will produce the best results to all parties, yet not such as to tempt a neglect of business.

Such, then, will be the best office for a beginner as will answer to the following requirements:—

(a). Sufficient room for two persons, at least, to converse in comfort with one another.

(b). Provision for instantly converting the office from a purely clerical or booking department into a strictly private apartment, and vice versa.

(c). Accommodation for the use of—and, preferably, for the storage and safe custody of—all necessary books and papers for accounts, and for all catalogues, price lists, books of reference, etc.

It will be seen that these requirements, though simple, are pretty comprehensive, and may be extended almost to an unlimited degree. With the growth of a business this is not only natural but necessary; but at the outset of a new concern the more these matters can be reduced to a minimum the better, so long as efficiency can be preserved.

To be of real utility, an office must be handy to the front shop, and no arrangement will answer so well as when it commands a view of the latter. It is not always practicable to make this provision, but it is so great an advantage that some minor disadvantages as to size, shape, height, etc., may well be set aside in its favor. In after years, supposing the business to be successfully carried on, this office may be turned over to the tender mercies of a clerk or two, and the principal may seek a well-earned retirement to a more secluded spot. Even then, the nearer at hand such private office is, the better it will be for all. This is a matter, however, which need not be now discussed, as our business is only in its infancy.

So long as the office is to be used as a place for privacy, it should be capable of complete isolation, and herein many err by not having their offices carried right up to the ceiling, or, in very high-pitched shops, having them covered in at a lower level. Light, too, is a most essential point, and, wherever possible, the office should be lit by daylight, both for comfort and health's sake. Where this is obtainable, good ventilation can also generally be easily got, an advantage certainly no less than good light. Where practicable, it will be well to arrange some means of audible communication with those in the shop, thereby saving many journeys in and out. This may be provided for by a fair-sized pigeon-hole or sliding sash, generally to great advantage. It also saves leaving the office unattended when as will occasionally happen, the visitor is not to be trusted.

The demand for "Kent" bottled Pickles is continually increasing. The sales for this season are away ahead of any previous year. Their popularity is due, in a large measure to the great care exercised in their preparation, and the excellence of all ingredients which enter into their manufacture. The present stock being sent out is the finest in the history of their manufacturing.

GROCERIES.

A week is too short a time to observe any marked difference in trade under the present quiet action of the demand. It is like a time of slow vegetable growth, when the difference in the size of the plant in a given time is scarcely perceptible. As was last week so this week is, in the grocery trade. A moderate activity in general staples goes on. There is no revival in any line that was quiet before, if exception be made for a slight stiffening in the value of Valencia raisins. Sugar has not shown much response to the easier price and approaching midsummer call. Teas continue to grow firmer, as they usually do towards the end of the crop year. Canned goods hold their own. The holiday gave some check to trade. Little shipping was done on Monday, as nobody wanted goods for Tuesday. The travellers who came home on Saturday did not go out again until Wednesday. The street on Monday was nearly as dead as it was on Tuesday. All this made some difference between the trade which should have been done and that which was done. Of payments there is no complaint: money is apparently circulating better in the country than it was some time ago.

COFFEES.

The general tone of the market for all fine coffees is one of unaltered firmness, which stiffness in the primary markets and at leading centres of distribution is apt to maintain for some time. Common coffees are unchanged and without any decided features, prices of last week repeating exactly. Mochas are 28 to 33c. Old Government Java 28 to 35c., Padang 25 to 30c., Rios 17½ to 21c.

DRIED FRUITS.

There has been no cessation in the demand for off-stalk Valencia raisins, for which the movement this week has been good. It is having a healthful effect, which is reflected in the tone of prices, now much firmer than they have been any time during the dull period. The improvement had its beginning in New York where the prices of both off stalk and layer fruit has strengthened very materially. Canada has lent something to the influences which have caused that strength, and last week Canadian orders moved about 6,000 boxes off that market. The selling price here continues at the same figures that have been in quotation for some weeks, but the possibility of shading them as formerly is no longer implied in the quotation. Off-stalk are 3½c. upwards. Layers are 7 to 8c. Prunes are quiet at 4½ to 5¼c. in casks, and to 7½c. in cases. Currants have a steady call but without any change in prices, the bottom quotation heard being 4¾c

RICE AND SPICES.

No perceptible alteration in the volume of trade is to be noted. Common rice is quiet at 3⅞ to 4c., and Java is 5½ to 6c.

Spices have lost none of the sameness that has long characterized them, neither demand nor price having undergone any modification.

SUGAR.

The number of retailers who have placed orders for carloads so far is small. Some, believing that the market has nothing more in store for them in the way of further advantages, have contracted for the early delivery of car lots. Prices continue at 4½c. for granulated and 3½c. for yellow. Rumors of quotations ⅛c. inside of these are made and contradicted from time to time. The sugar trade, with all the influences in favor of activity in it, has so far been disappointing. The raw market continues in that state of uncertainty in which dependence upon the Sugar Trust of the United States has long kept it. The raw sugar carried in wholesale grocers' stocks on this market finds very limited sale, the cheapness of refined yellow having a depressing influence upon the sale of it.

Willett & Gray, New York, in their weekly "Statistical," say: "Total stock in all the principal countries, at the latest uneven dates is 1,478,086 tons, against 1,480,758 tons at the same uneven dates last year.

"Raws—The market holds its steady, even course, at the same quotations that have now been current for some weeks past. The fine weather in Cuba adds daily to the crop of that island, and hence there are no signs as yet of any disposition on the part of the planters to with-hold from the market that portion of their sugar which is ready for sale. Probably one reason for this is the fact that at present prices the Cuban planter is doing very well, and making a very good profit by reason of the extra production for this year. The beet fabricants are also quite well satisfied with the average prices obtained for the present beet crop. We sometimes

CANNED GOODS.

A sort of equation of supplies is kept up by occasional movements of car lots from the hands of jobbers who have plenty of stock to those of some others who have not. The smaller centres of distribution make calls every week for such round lots. A car this week was shipped to the west, its contents being assorted vegetables. As usual with such quantities, the sale was made on private terms. For ordinary jobbing lots prices hold at quotations now long current, $1.05 to $1.10 being the figures, according to quantity, for choice brands. Anything lower than this is paid for stock that is below first-class. The future business goes on at its usual unknown velocity, and may be well forward or not, nobody knowing anything more than relates to his own sales or his own purchases. It is believed to be as far on as it usually is at this season, though reserve in placing orders was naturally to be expected when the chances are shaping so much in favor of buyers as they appear to be this year; the number of new producers being a decided influence on the side of cheapness. As to other goods besides vegetables, they are not coming into prominence. Canned salmon is quiet from $1.30 up. Lobster is in low demand. Brokers have been offering salmon of the new pack.

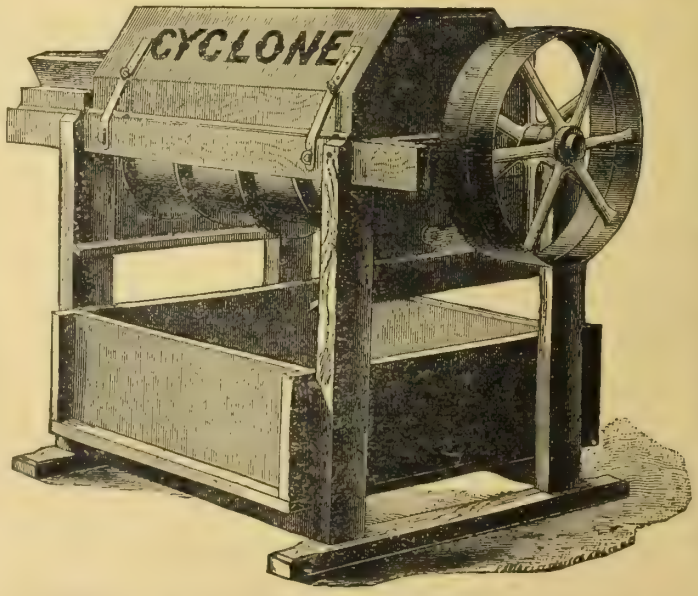
MONTREAL.

There is no change in the position of the canned goods trade since our last, which is dull but firm owing to green fruit being so plentiful at this season of the year. Baked beans and vegetables have fair sales locally.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Prices are being slaughtered in most all lines. Gallon apples, which cost $2.26 per doz. last fall are selling at 20c. per can now. Corn, which cost $1.05, retails at 9c. All other lines in proportion, and as a consequence several jobbing houses have decided to give up selling any canned goods at all. Tomatoes are quoted higher.

To Canning Men.-OUR CYCLONE PULP MACHINE



For making tomato pulp and preparing pumpkin and squash for canning is very well known to all the canners in the United States, and a few of them are in use in Canada. The high tariff has prevented their being used extensively heretofore.

We are now manufacturing these machines at Oakville, Ont., to enable our Canadian friends to obtain them without paying a heavy duty; but we shall make only a few of them unless ordered. Those who contemplate purchasing, should send their orders promptly to insure the saving of duty, as late orders will have to be filled from stock in the United States which will be subject to a 30 per cent duty.

MARKETS—Continued.

think that the profits to the producers of sugar are standing in the way of the improvement in prices which has been, and is, generally expected. It is difficult to account in any other way for the continued heavy receipts, and the readiness with which the importers dispose of their sugar at current prices. There appears to be no disposition on part of buyers to lower quotations, and we look for a steady continuonce of present prices.

"Refined—The market for refined sugar during the week has been steady and firm, and a somewhat increased demand is perceptible, partly owing to a decrease in the rate of freight to certain points westward, and partly to the increased consumption naturally expected at this season. Small fruits are beginning to be more abundant in the market, and with the commencement of our hot and dry season, we look for the consumption to increase up to last year's level at least. It is to be hoped that this will prove true, as refiners are now carrying larger stocks than usual of both raws and refined, awaiting this increased demand. Probably at no time last year was there less sugar in the hands of grocers than at the present moment.

NUTS.

The New York Commercial Bulletin says: Tarragona almonds continue to show a hardening tendency. Further sales have been made at 14c. but in most instances today 14½c was quoted as an inside price. The bulk of the stock is under good control. Ivica have further advanced, and are now held at 12c. Grenoble walnuts continue to improve. Inquiries for stock revealed 10½c as the idea of most holders, this position being taken in consequence of the strong advices received from Marsilles, where the stock is said to be very nearly exhausted.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.

Syrup makes its way into the demand very slowly, and at the moment has small support on this market. Consumers never had so good a chance to buy low as they have now. Prices begin at the same low starting point, 1¾c. per lb. The trade in grades quoted in the neighborhood of 3c. appears to be the largest.

Molasses has had no sale of any consequence this week. Quotations are steady at 30 to 45c. for West Indian, and 26c. upwards for New Orleans.

No sooner was a circular issued by one of our wholesale grocery firms offering Barbadoes at 30c to arrive, than his competitors sent out another circular offering to sell at 1c lower, namely, 29c, although it is claimed that it costs 29.10c laid down here. It is said that wholesale houses do not expect any profits on sugar and molasses, as they look to place these articles at about cost in order to obtain orders for goods such as tea, coffee, etc., which yield liberal margins above cost. —Montreal Trade Bulletin.

TEAS.

The firmer value of Japans noted last week is well maintained. Medium teas are going up at all points of distribution and are very scarce on spot. Low grades do not by any means favor the buyer so much as they did awhile ago. The price of Pekoe Souchong Ceylons has gone up ½d. to 1d. in London, and is much firmer here in consequence. Indian teas are active and unchanged.

The London Produce Markets' Review says of Indian tea: A firm tone has prevailed in the Indian tea market, and prices generally show an upward tendency. The medium descriptions have been fairly represented in the public sales, and are distinctly firmer, at prices ranging from ¼d. to ½d. higher than in the previous auctions. This has not, however, checked the demand. which continues active, particularly for good class Pekoe Souchongs and Pekoes, while Broken Pekoes, which are not too plentifully offered, meet with an increasing inquiry at enhanced values. Finest kinds are now in an exceptionally small compass, and the few brought forward were eagerly competed for at extreme rates. The common sorts, owing to smaller supplies, have on the whole shown firmness, with an occasional slight advance, and it is not improbable that prices may harden with the prospect of decreasing quantities to come forward. The last advices from Calcutta point to a later season than usual, and that the first public sale there of new season's tea will be held on the 19th instant. At the auctions 13,863 packages were offered, and only 1,635 withdrawn. The bidding throughout was brisk, at higher prices in most cases.

London statistics of China tea are favorable as regards the quantity on hand, which is exceedingly light, and of Congou only 14,934,050 pounds in contrast with 25,404,400 pounds last year, and 38,433,750 pounds at the end of April in 1890. Reckoning that eleven months of the 1891-92 season have elapsed, the landings of all kinds of China tea since the beginning of June last have not been more than 60,000,000 pounds in comparison with 69,497,550 pounds in 1890-91, and 89,771,100 pounds in the same period of 1889-90. The falling off in the supply within two years is thus shown to have been no less than 29,771,100 pounds, which no amount of reasoning can prove to be otherwise than serious, especially as a great part of this deficiency is reflected in the deliveries. These in the past eleven months have shrunk more alarmingly than in the previous season, having been only 63,426,550 pounds against 75,219,500 pounds whereas the difference between that total and the corresponding one in 1889-90–when the delivery was 76,078,150 pounds--was not more than 858,650 pounds.—"Grocer."

The hint given in our last of a proposed sweeping up and concentration of desireable black teas is fully verified by results, and we have direct information of about 13,000 pkgs Formosa handled in execution of the deal. Some of these teas were evidently taken for speculative investment, but a very large proportion goes into the hands of regular operators who want the supply for legitimate trade purposes and are stimulated to invest by the apparent strong character of the situation.—N. Y. Commercial Bulletin.

An Interesting Sketch of The J. B. McLean Publishing Co., ltd.

"There is a tide in
"the affairs of men which taken at the
"flood leads on to fortune."—Shakespeare.

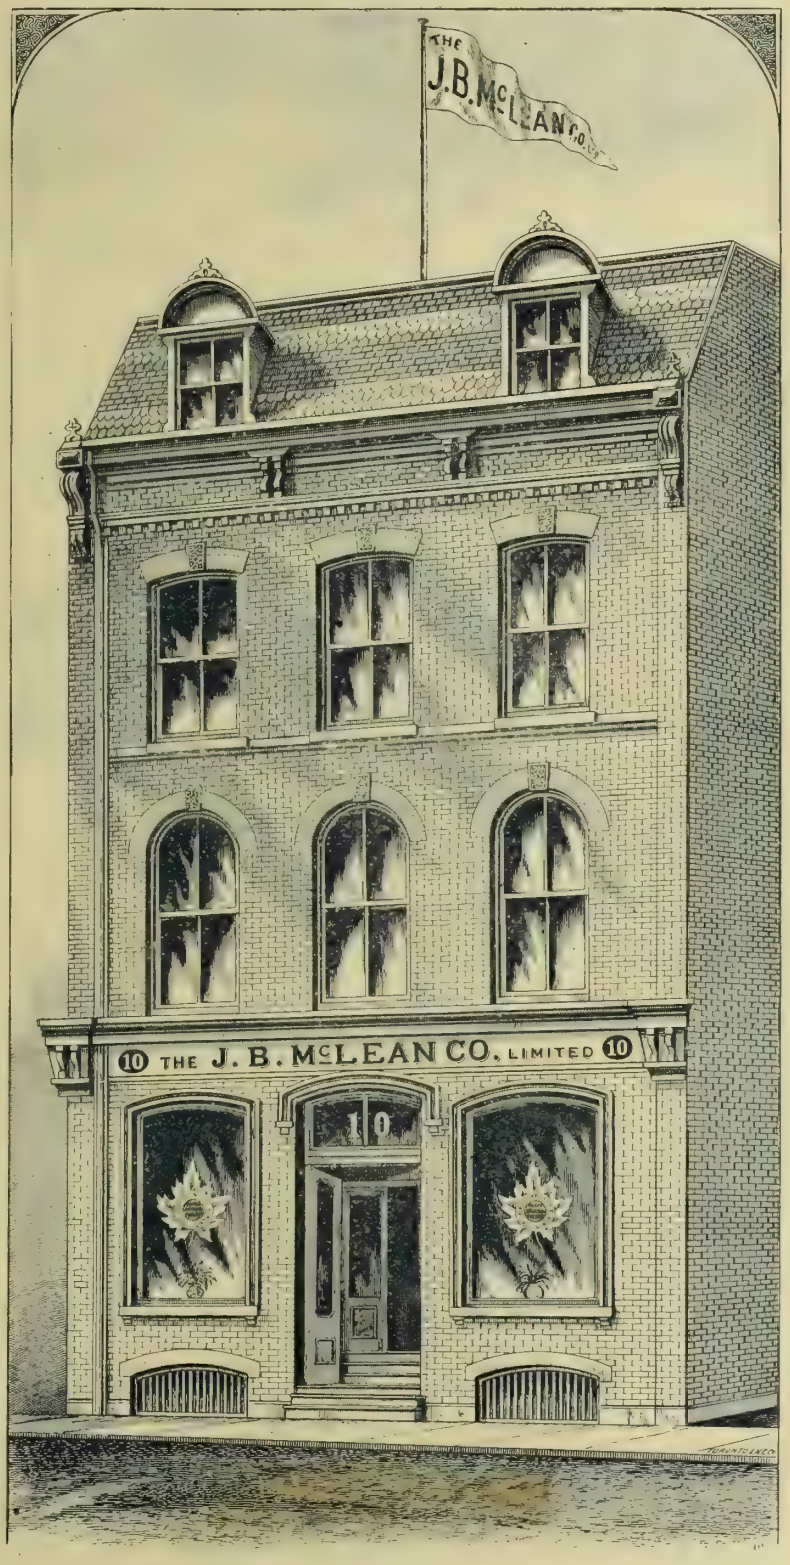
The acknowledged wisdom of the great masters finds verification in the origin and success of The J. B. McLean Publishing Co. (Ltd.), of Toronto. Two country merchants one day in the month of August, 1887, were discussing in a Front Street whole- sale grocery, the very unsatisfactory and in- adequate market reports then furnished by the daily papers, particular- ly deploring the scarcity of items relating to gro- ceries. Mr. J. B. McLean, then Commer- cial Editor of "The Mail," happening to en- ter the warehouse the matter was discussed more fully in his pres- ence, and the idea of a journal devoted exclu- sively to the interests of the Grocery and kindred trades immediately sug- gested itself to him. With him to think was to act.



Within two months of the date of discussion the first number of The General Storekeeper and Canadian Grocer and a monthly periodical, made its appearance as that were sent out to and the 10,000 copies general storekeeper in every retail grocer and it was the intention of the Dominion show that the merchants of Can- the new concern to give ada a proper vehicle for the conveyance of reli- able trade information and market reports. It must be confessed that the appeal for support that accompanied the initial copy met with anything but encourag- ing success, one solitary subscriber being the re- sult of the mountains labor. Nothing daunted however, Mr. McLean, having set himself a goal, with that sturdy pluck and persistence characteristic of his race and feeling sanguine of ultimate success, set himself more firmly to work. The next two issues consisted of 10,000 copies each, sent broad- cast over the whole Dominion with probably a little better success, though anything but encouraging. It might be stated that at this time the staff consisted of Mr. McLean only, who occupied the multi- farious positions of pro- prietor, editor, adverti- ing solicitor, book- keeper, office-boy, and general utility man; a veritable Journalistic Pooh-Bah without that distinguished Celestial's emoluments; and the office where this new aspirant for journalistic honors issued occupied the modest space of a 9 x 12 room at No. 5 Jordan St. After the November and Decem- ber issues had made their appearance it was felt that a monthly paper was of very little benefit to the trade and a weekly issue was decided on, the first of which appeared on January 6th, 1888, since which time it has regularly made its appearance, brighter, newsier, more interesting and artistic than ever, and it is safe to say that no periodical on this Continent has made and is improving the standard of excellence set itself by its ambitious and enterprising management. About this time new blood was enfused into the concern by the entrance of Hugh C. McLean, a brother of the inceptor, a practical printer with some years experience as a business manager in this country and in New York, Boston and other American cities. . A joint stock company was formed under the style of The J. B. McLean Publishing Co. (Ltd.), with large additional capital and with Mr. J. B. McLean as President and Mr. Hugh C. McLean as Sec. Treas. and Manager, enabled the concern to increase their staff of writers, canvassers &c. and open branch offices. The ideal set themselves by the brothers was to take the lead with their publications, to conduct their business on honest business principles, to give their clients the utmost value, to gain the confidence of the trade, to live up fearlessly to their convictions and to be independent of any clique, house, association or other guild, and to allow no one to dictate the policy of their papers, to give subscribers and advertisers adequate value and impartial attention, and to resort to no schemes or use undue influences to secure advertising patronage. It was their intention to be in business for a life time and not for a day, and the confidence of the trade was desired as a permanency. To this end efforts were put forth which resulted in increased advertising patronage and large additions to the subscription list. Canvassers were sent through the whole Dominion, and thousands of dollars spent in giving the merchants of Canada a reliable guide to business and its requirements. Although their advertising rates were higher than other papers, and it was an uphill struggle against low rates and so-called trade or private papers, the new and excellently carried out ideas of advertising implanted into the firm by Mr. Hugh C. McLean,—who made that department a special study, looking after all advertisers' interests as if they were his own, the desired aim being to make the advertiser's space, no matter how large or small, profitable, ultimately a continuation of all advertisements,—at last received recognizance, and as an evidence of the proper appreciation of these ideas one need but glance at the advertisements of the largest and shrewdest business men that appear week after week in the columns of their publications. They felt that cheap advertising did not pay the advertisers, and every true business man must recognize the wisdom of this conclusion. Another point in their manner of doing business is that if a subscriber wants his paper stopped, which by the way seldom occurs, his wish is promptly complied with. Promptness and punctuality have always been one of their main attributes, and they point with pride to the fact that The Canadian Grocer has never lost a mail in over four years. This fact is commendable in itself to the country merchant, who oftentimes is at considerable pecuniary loss through lack of market news. To-day The Canadian Grocer stands at the head of trade journals, acknowledged as the most trustworthy guide for Grocers and General Storekeepers in Canada, and if the progress of the paper keeps up its remarkable growth, the merchants of Canada may well congratulate themselves on having such a reliable finger-post to point them aright through the devious ways of Trade. So much for The Canadian Grocer.

Mr. J. B. McLean
President

In 1888 the Company purchased "Books and Notions," the official organ of the Canadian Book, Stationery, Fancy Goods, Music and Wall Paper trades. Owing to the ill-health of the former owner of the paper it had been allowed to run down to almost a mere pamphlet, but the new proprietors infused into their acquisition the same push, energy and merit as was given The Grocer and to-day it is a credit to themselves, an ornament to journalism and a satisfactory index for its patrons. It is a monthly publication. -:- -:- -:-

As a great many of the subscribers to The Canadian Grocer were general dealers, and as such handlers of hardware and dry goods, and frequent representations were made to the management for information regarding these two important branches of commerce, it was decided to accede to the demands of their patrons. The courage of such a step is apparent when one reflects upon the comparatively few exclusive dealers in hardware and dry goods in Canada and that their next venture "The Hardware and Metal Merchant" at once met with appreciation and success is another evidence of the foresight and business tact and ability displayed by this young firm. The first number appeared as a monthly in February 1889, this was its only appearance as such as on March 29th, following, it came out as a weekly and is so continued. -:- -:- -:

These additional publications necessarily involved an increased staff and more commodious premises, as the small office on Jordan Street had become too crowded, consequently new and larger quarters were engaged at 6 Wellington Street West. The Hegira took place in April, 1889. Success seemed to follow them into their new home and the demands from their subscribers for information on dry goods and kindred subjects continuing to be made on them they decided once more to satisfy the requirements of another section of their clientage and on January 1st, 1891, the first copy of THE CANADIAN DRY GOODS REVIEW made its first bow. This journal, a model of typographic art, is the organ of the dry goods, hats, caps and furs, millinery and clothing trades, and the instantaneous approval and flattering reception it received confirmed the publishers in their belief that such an organ would serve a useful purpose. -:- -:- -:-

One might presume that the goal of their ambition had been reached when the entire general trade of Canada was supplied by them with their trade papers, but their fame as successful publishers had become so widely recognized and the merit of their work acknowledged by even the most reluctant and carping critics that they were recently urged by resolution of the Canadian Press Association and by members of the Toronto Employing Printer's Association to publish a journal in the interests of the printers and publishers of Canada. The first number of this latest deserving venture, THE CANADIAN PRINTER AND PUBLISHER, made its appearance in the early part of May of this year. -:- -:- -: -:-

The new publication, the acme of printers' art, issues from their new quarters at 10 Front St. East, next door to the Board of Trade, right in the centre of the city and of trade.

It was found that the accommodation at 6 Wellington Street West was too limited for their requirements and constantly growing business, and a glance at the cut of their new premises and offices will convey a fair idea of the concern.

MR. HUGH C. MCLEAN
Manager

A few words retrospectively. Starting in October, 1887, in a room 9x12 with a staff of one, now in May, 1892, the large and commodious, well-equipped establishment with their very large staff they have branch offices in staff. Besides this large home and in Montreal, Que., their canLondon, England, in New York covering the Dominion from Bras' vassers are constantly on the road, the principal Canadian cities their D'or to Victoria, B.C., while in patrons posted. The success atspecial correspondents keep their men is remarkable and an evidence tending the efforts of these young that "Concentration is the secret of the truth of Emerson's words TRADE, in short, in all the of strength in politics, in war, in It is concentration of ideas, efforts management of human affairs." in the race of trade journalism and and push that has placed this firm and most influential trade publishthe controllers of one of the largest tinent. It is their confidence in ing houses on the American conthemselves and the worthiness of their intentions and high goals that has made them so successful. "Self-trust," says Emerson, "is the first secret of success," and self-trust is the motto of the J. B. McLean Co. After reading the above, one not conversant with the amount of work and detail involved in issuing one journal, let alone five, might think that it was simply luck that placed them where they now are, and that the trades in Canada had been clamoring for years for these journals, and that as soon as issued a rush was made both by advertisers and subscribers to help the journal along. Far from it, the exact opposite was what occurred. They were not wanted, particularly by probable advertisers. Not only did thousands of dollars go out before a single dollar returned to the pockets of the publishers, but obstacles and disappointments that would have driven other men to utter despair had to be overcome. They had absolute faith in themselves and in the ultimate success of their enterprise as a beacon light which burned brighter and brighter as each fresh obstacle and each fresh disappointment was surmounted and they kept pressing onward with redoubled courage to the goal of success. Without having passed through it no one can conceive of the immense labor and worry involved in starting a journal, outside altogether of the financial aspect of the question. They have toiled unceasingly and spent their money freely in popularizing their journals, confident in a rich and bountiful return and in a brilliant and successful future.

Why it Pays to Advertise in Trade Journals

"Successful men are always safe Guides"

There is not a man in the manufacturing or wholesale business to day, of any experience, who will deny that advertising pays. We all agree on that point; except perhaps those who go on the principle that because they are an old house that everybody when they read their firm name knows all about them. When, in fact, there are lots of people who never heard about them or what they make and have to sell. Take the leading hardware, grocery, dry goods and printing trade papers of the world, and in their pages will be found the advertisements of millionaire concerns. Who thinks that these advertisers want to "create a demand" for their products? The question is "how and where to advertise?" There is no doubt about it that the trade journal is the only true medium, because every reader is a probable buyer and you can talk direct with the trade. There is no lost circulation, every copy issued carries its message direct to those who buy your goods; with daily and general commercial papers not one-quarter of their circulation is useful to you, the other three-quarters reach a class who are not at all interested in your goods. Another point is that the thousands who subscribe for their trade papers look there and there only for announcements of new goods, changes in prices and other matters relating to their trade. -:- -:- -:-

The trouble with a great many advertisers in trade journals is that they expect too much from that source. They expect the advertisement to do more work than their best travellers, whose expenses are as much in one week as the yearly cost of the advertisement. As a rule no attention is given to the advertisement except perhaps a change of wording once in six months. Imagine the big (?) orders your travellers would receive if they simply handed their card to a customer and said they would sit down and wait for an order. This is how the advertisement in the trade paper is treated. Why not change your advertisement every week or month? Speak to your customers through it the same as your traveller would talk to them, and you will soon discover that the trade paper is THE ONLY medium. The publisher of the best journal in existence can only sell you space and guarantee circulation among your probable buyers. He cannot guarantee that the advertisement will pay you. That rests with yourself. You must use the space to your best advantage and last but not least do not give your travellers all the credit for the year's business. Another mistake advertisers make is that they look too much for cheap advertising. When you are sick do you look around for the cheapest doctor? Or if you want to engage a lawyer do you look for the low priced and most obscure? Certainly not. The best evidence of the value of a paper as an advertising medium is its ability to secure and hold the best paying class of advertisements. Take a look through any of the Trade Journals published by the J. B. McLean Co. and see the class of advertisements that appear week after week and year after year. It is not what you pay for an advertisement, but what it pays you.

MARKETS—Continued

MARKET NOTES.

[Importers, wholesale merchants and manufacturers should send any items intended for this department so that they may reach the head office not later than Wednesday morning. The editor will always welcome such information.]

H. W. Northrup & Co., are offering canned lobsters, new at $6.25 per case, f.o.b., St. John, N. B.

There is a new Brand of Washing Compound on the market, put up by the Star Mfg. Co. of London, which is having a good sale.

A line of gallon apples was sold to the wholesale trade here at $1.60. Best packers say that choice goods cannot be put up for less than $1.70.

"Staminal," made by the Johnston Fluid Beef Co., Montreal, is having an extensive sale in Norway, Sweeden and Denmark. Although the last of the fluid beefs introduced into these countries it is having the largest sale.

The Star Mfg. Co. of London have made substantial reduction in the price of the Star Fire Lighters. They are now packed 60 5c. packages in a case instead of 48 as formerly. The price is now $1.75 per case, which now makes this article a profitable one to handle.

The new Soluble Cocoa put up in ¼ lb. tins by the John P. Mott Co., Halifax, is one of the latest specialties on the market. The fine quality and attractive shelf appearance of this line ably back up the guarantee that the name "John P. Mott Co." stands for on every label that bears it.

J. S. McIndoe is showing a very fine sample of fancy open Kettle New Orleans molasses for N. W. Taussig & Co., New York & New Orleans, which should be handled with profit by the wholesale and retail trade in Canada. It can be sold wholesale in barrels at 45c.

PETROLEUM.

The market loses none of its features, or rather acquires no features, the great distinguishing condition just now being an entire absence of features. Prices quote still at 14 to 15c. for Canadian refined.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.25 per barrel, Oil Springs crude $1.25½ per barrel, although a drop of a cent in crude values has taken place the past week, there can scarcely be said to be any noteworthy change in the situation in values, in fact there seems to have developed a firmer feeling the latter part of the present week, as for refined the volume of business has been larger the past season than it has been for years past, although there is a general complaint of the meagerness of profits, and the manufacturing industry is said not to be extra flourishing, but, on the contrary, in rather an impoverished condition.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

There is no want of butter now. Free arrivals continue to be the rule, and the kind of stock coming to hand is the same as ever, roll butter. There is more of it than dealers know what to do with at the moment, and easy prices accordingly are going. The range of quotations for rolls is generally 12 to 13c., and there is nothing better than this for any grade now coming into stock. Tub butter, if obtainable or if wanted, would probably quote at 14 to 16c., but there is nothing to call for even a nominal quotation just now. There has been enough rain and the weather has just been forward enough to enable the cows to thrive on pasture: hence the production of dairy rolls is large. The demand still is confined for the most part to nearly and local consumers, though sales of half ton lots are occasionally made to dealers at a greater distance.

Cheese is in moderate request, with new leading in the local demand at 10 to 10½c. Old quote at 11 to 11½c. The English market is very firm.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES—Such as can be had are taken at $5.

BEANS—Have sagged back into a state of stagnation, and car lots are offered under 90c. Jobbers sell at $1.05 to $1.15.

DRIED APPLES—Are worth 3½c. in round lots and 4c. in ordinary jobbing quantities.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Prices are unchanged and trade almost at a standstill, 6½ to 7c. being the quotations.

EGGS—Are in abundant supply at 10½c.

HIDES—Are rather scarce, but are no firmer, No. 1 green cows' being 4½c. Cured are 5c.

HONEY—Is still exceedingly dull and weak at 8 to 9c. for extracted and 13 to 15c. for sections.

HOPS—Quotations vary between 21 and 24c. for '91 stock. Yearlings are 16 to 18c.

ONIONS—Native stock is about done, and is nominal at $2.25 to $2.75. Egyptian are $3 to $3.25 per bag, and Bermudas $2.25 to $2.50 per crate.

POTATOES—The price remains 30 to 31c. in cars. Out of store it is hard now to get 40c.

SKINS—Sheepskins are rather scarce. Good ones are $1.25 to $1.40. Lambskins are 25c.; calfskins are 5 to 7c. for city inspected.

TALLOW—Rough is steady at 2c., refined at 5c., to re-sell at 5½c.

WOOL—Some new fleeces have come in at 16 to 17c. The factories keep up a quite steady call for super at 22c. and extra at 25c.

PROVISIONS.

The stock in packers' hands is for the most part confined to long clear bacon and smoked meats. Some have other products as well, but only some. The trade is hard to describe by any term, being somewhat desultory, now active and now dull. Prices are the same as ever.

BACON—Long clear is 7½ to 8c., smoked backs are 10c., bellies 9½ to 10c., rolls 8½ to 8¾c.

HAMS—Are steady at 10 to 10½c.

LARD—Pure is unchanged at 10 to 10½c. for tubs and pails. Compound is steady at 7 to 9c.

BARREL PORK—U. S. heavy mess is $13 to $14, Canadian $15. short cut $16 to $16.50.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef is 4½ to 5½c. in fore and 7½ to 8½c. in hindquarters, yearling lamb is 10 to 11c., Spring lamb is $4.50 to $6.50 per head, mutton 7 to 8c., veal 6 to 7½c.

GREEN FRUIT.

The damp weather has been rather adverse to trade, but the quantity of stock handled during the week has been satisfac-

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

It is too soon to see any good effect in the market as a consequence of the restored good feeling and friendly tariff relations between Newfoundland and Canada. The inquiry has been stronger, but no benefit to sellers in the way of a greater readiness to concede the prices asked is experinced yet. Trade is very flat, was never flatter, and everybody hopes it has got to and through its worst stage. Feed is little more active than flour.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5; strong bakers', $4.50; white wheat patents, $4.80; straight roller, $4.40; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.50.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5.15; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.45 to $4.70; Ontario patents, $4.00 to $4.25; straight roller, $3.65 to $3.90; extra, $3.50 to $3.80; low grades, per bag, $1.00 to $1.50

MEAL—Oatmeal is $3.80. Cornmeal is $3.50.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is $4.50 per barrel.

FEED—Bran is $14 to $15, shorts $14.50 to $15.5c, mixed feed $22 to $25, cracked corn $1.10, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 32 to 32½c.

HAY—is fairly active at $12.50 to $13 for No. 1 timothy and $10 to $10.50 for mixed.

STRAW—is steady at $6 to $6.50.

MONTREAL.

The only encouraging feature to note is the settlement of the Newfoundland difficulty, which, although effected too late to materially assist the demand this spring, is hailed by merchants with satisfaction. It is still hard to sell in this market notwithstanding the low prices asked. The better tone of foreign advices recently is not maintained this morning. The stocks in store on Saturday last show an increase of 2966 barrels when compared with the same day of the week previous and a decrease of 12,971 barrels, when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote as follows: Patent spring, $4.90 to $5.00; patent winter, $4.60 to $4.90; straight roller, $4.35 to $4.50; extra, $4 to $4.10; superfine, $3.75 to $3.90; fine, $3.25 to $3.50; strong bakers, $4.45 to $4.70.

Oatmeal is being pressed for sale and, although prices are nominally unchanged outside quotations are practically abandoned. The stock in store on Saturday last showed a decrease of 75 barrels when compared with the same day of the week previous, and an increase of 5,051 barrels when compared with the corresponding date last year. We quote as follows:—Granulated, bbls. $3.80 to $3.90; Rolled, bbls. $3.80 to $3.90; Standard, bbls. $3.75 to $3.85; Granulated in bags $1.85 to $1.90; Rolled in bags $1.85 to $1.90; Standard, in bags $1.80 to $1.85.

Feed is held about the same as last week, bran being quoted $14 to $14.50; shorts $16; Mouillie $20 to $23.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Flour—There is very little change in the flour market. It has a firmer tone, but no actual advance. Quotations are: Manitoba $5.65 to $5.75; High Grade Ontario $4.90 to $5; Medium Patents $4.65 to $4.80.

Oatmeal has advanced somewhat at the latest quotations, being: Rolled $4.15 to $4.25; Standard $4.15.

Cornmeal is considerably higher, millers' prices to-day being $2.85 to $2.95, and they will likely be higher.

Feed is quoted at $21 to $22 per ton.

MARKETS—Continued.

torily large. Prices keep pretty uniform with last week's quotations, Valencia oranges are $6.50 to $7.50, Messinas, Catenas and Palermos are $4.75 to $5.25 in boxes and $2.50 to $2.75 in half boxes, California Seedlings are $3.75, Navels are $4 50 to $5, Blood oranges are $3 per half box. Lemons are $2.75 to $4, bananas $1.25 to $2, pineapples are 6 to 20c., sweet potatoes are $4.50 per barrel.

FISH.

The fish market can easily enough discharge all its functions these days, there being little to embarrass it in the way either of excessive supply or demand. Prices are steady at quotations in Prices Current.

DRY GOODS.

The weather is too backward for any great headway to be made in the dry goods trade. Sorting orders are disappointing and fall business is being slowly worked up by the travellers. The complaints as to a scarcity of money are no longer heard.

SALT.

The outward movement draws no special character from conditions present this week. The sales comprise a car of barrel salt at $1.20, a car of sacks at 70c., and a car of rock salt at $12.50 per ton.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, May 26, 1892.

The week has not shown any material change since our last report. However, the cold snap which we have had this last few days has to a certain extent affected some branches of the grocery trade, but not to any alarming extent. Green fruits have been quieter this week, owing to the condition of the weather. Teas have their same good enquiry in all low grade lines. Sugar is quiet, although some houses are still cutting, others are not pushing sales in it. The travellers that are out, are all doing fairly, and all the houses say that things are in better shape now than they have been for some time. The French houses are still waging war on one of the English houses. Sugar and molasses are the implements used; every cut is met promptly; it is hard to say when it will stop as both parties are well stocked. Manufacturers' agents report trade good in all their different lines. Purveyors' agents have had a busy time of it, shipping spring goods that have been arriving here in large lots lately. They say business with them is good.

SUGAR.

The sugar market is still quiet, although there is not much change in price. The refiners are still said to be selling at 4⅜c., but some seem to think sugar could be bought lower for round lots. The wholesale trade are still cutting the price, especially some of the French houses, other houses say they are not trying to sell but they would like to see some of the cutters cutting their own throats. On the whole, the local feeling in the sugar market is not very friendly, and it will continue so till some arrangement is arrived at. We quote: Granulated 4½ to 4 9-16c.; yellows, low grade 3½ to 3¾c., and yellows, bright 3¾ to 4¼c.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There is not much doing in syrups outside of a jobbing trade. American syrup has a fair movement at steady prices, and on the whole there is not much change in the local market. Molasses is quiet, with only a few small sales at old prices. Quite a few small lots have been sold to arrive in June, on a basis of 29c., but outside of above there is not much doing in either of these lines. Advices from the Island is steady, 12c. is the price. We quote as follows:—Barbadoes, 35 to 38c., American 28c.; syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 40 to 45c for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

One firm here issued a circular, offering molasses to arrive at 30c., and no sooner than it was out, another firm offered it to arrive at 29c., although it is said to cost laid down 29.10. According to this some of the wholesale trade do not want to make profit either on sugar or molasses, but use the both to push sales in teas and other lines of groceries.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Maple syrup is still firm under much lighter stock, and prices are the same as quoted last week. Sugar is firm and the same remarks apply. We quote maple syrup in tins 60 to 65c. per gallon and in wood at 5 to 5½c. per pound. Maple sugar is quoted at 8 to 8½c. and fancy cakes at 9c.

TEAS.

The market is still active in low grade Japans, but these are only being sold in small lots to our local wholesale houses. High grade stock has only fair movement. Blacks in the low grade are a little more active than a week ago, but high grade stock is quiet. Indian and Ceylon teas have the same steady sales; the retail grocers say they are meeting with better enquiry every day. Advices say that prices are higher, but with the lower rate of exchange it pretty nearly evens things up. Mail advices from New York show a strong market for both medium and low grade Japans. The local market will not be affected by new arrivals for some time, as the fourth grade crop will not be in till October. The first arrivals here are expected in June, but they will be restricted to high grade stock.

MONTREAL MARKETS—Continued.

20c., Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c.; Jamaica; 19 to 21c.; Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c.; Santos, 17½ to 19c.

We have to report the continued good demand for rice from the west and other points, also a good local trade among our wholesale houses. The trade here report good sales, as quite a few car lots have gone forward since our last. Prices however remain the same. We quote Standard $4 to $4.10, Japan $4.50 to $5, Patnas $4.50 to $5, and Carolinas $7 to $8 per hundred lbs.

DRIED FRUIT.

There has been a fair movement in dried fruit during the week, and the demand for good quality is brisk. Stocks here in wholesale hands are said to be light. The general tone of the market is strong and prices are firmly held. We quote: Valencias, ordinary, 3½ to 4c.; No. 1 off stalk, 4½c.; layers, 6c. to 6¼c.; Patras currants, 5 to 5¼c; Vostizzas, in cases, 7½ to 8c.; provincial currants, 4⅞ to 5½c.; do. in half barrels, 5 to 6c.

NUTS.

The nut market is about the same as noted last week, with only a fair trade doing. Cocoanuts have droped during the week and are now held easier at prices below. We quote: Almonds Tarragona 13 to 13½c.; almonds, Ivica, 12 to 13c.; almonds, common, 10 to 11c.; almonds, hardshell, 7 to 8c.; walnuts, Grenoble, new 11 to 12c.; walnuts, French 10 to 10½c.; cocoanuts per 100 $4.00 to $4.50; filberts 9 to 10c.; pecans 16 to 17c.; peanuts 7 to 10c.

GREEN FRUIT.

The cold snap which we have had this last few days has materially affected the green fruit trade but not to any extent. Oranges have the same movement at steady prices but shipments this week have not been as large as last. Messina oranges have a little better movement than other kinds. Lemons are in the same steady demand at firmer prices. The local demand would no doubt be large if the weather was warmer but on the whole the trade seem satisfied. Owing to large recept of pineapples the trade have been pushing sales to some extent but at old prices for prime stock. The local demand for this line has been good during the week. Bananas have met with good sales since our last report and quite a few small lots have moved off, Strawberrie stocks here are still scarce and old prices still rule. We quote: Valencia oranges $6 to $7; bloods in half boxes $2.75 to $3; Masenas $4 to $4.50; lemons $2 to $3.25; pineapples 7 to 15c. each, strawberries 25 to 50c. per box, bananas $1 to $1.50 per bunch.

APPLES.

Stocks of apples on spot are very light and prices have advanced for prime stock, which are in good demand at $5 per barrel. Evaporated apples have about the same enquiry as noted last week, the same may be said about dried. We quote apples $4.50 to $5 per barrel; evaporated 6½ to 7c.; dried 4½ to 5¼c., and evaporated peaches 12 to 13c. per tin.

HOPS.

Hops are about the same, the only business doing on spot is for actual wants, this no doubt is owing to the brewers being well stocked. Prices are the same, 24c. being about the figure. Pressed hops are having a fair jobbing movement at 16 to 18c.

FISH.

British Columbia salmon still meets with fair enquiry at former prices, this is the only line in fresh fish that has much call. Smoked and pickled fish are quiet. We quote smoked Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.00 to $1.10; St. John's bloaters, per 100 box, 80c. to $1.00; boneless cod, large boxes, 6 to 7c.; do. small boxes 7c. to 8c.; finnan haddies, 7 to 8c.

We quote No. 1 herring, per brl., $4.50 to $4.60; lake trout, per half brl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.25 to $8.75; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

PROVISIONS.

The tone of the provision market showed a decided improvement, and dealers are beginning to feel easier. The demand for pork and smoked meats has shown a much better mark and purchasers seem satisfied to pay prices quoted. We quote as follows:—Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.25 to $16.50; mess pork, western, per brl. $14.00 to $14.75; short cut, western, per brl. $15.50 to $17.00; hams, city cured, per lb. 10c. to 10½c; lard, Canadian, in pails 8⅞ to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9 to 10c; lard, com refined, per lb. 7 to 7¼c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The butter market is quiet and easy this week, the only business doing is to supply local demand, even that is small. Factory men have been in town during the week offering their Fodder creamery at 20 to 21c., but the best bids they could get was 18 to 18½c. In dairy butter fine dairy is absorbed on arrival at 17 to 18c. Western is offering at 15 to 16c., but very little tub butter has yet arrived from the west. Sales of western rolls have been made during the week at 13 to 14c., and Morrisburg at 15c.

Cheese is quiet, but quite a few sales have been made for this week's steamers.

EGGS.

The egg market was steady up till a few days ago, when there were unmistakable signs of weakness and dealers found it necessary to make concessions in order to induce business. The receipts during the week were 5,984 packages against 8,690 the previous week. We quote prices nominal.

GRAIN.

The brokers continue to report that shippers are not taking the interest in the market expected at the time of year. There is no demand for wheat. For peas there is some enquiry, but bids not being up to holders' ideas of values little business results Oats are in some demand at quotations. No. 2 hard Manitoba, 94 to 95c; No. 3 do., 83 to 86c.; No. 2 Northern, 94 to 95c.; peas, 75c. to 76c. per 66 pounds; oats, 35 to 36c. per 34 pounds; corn, 57 to 60c., duty paid; feed barley, 40 to 42c.; barley, middling, nominal.

The stocks of grain and flour in store in Montreal show a decrease of 40,820 bush. of wheat, 54,862 bushels of peas, 16,403 bushels of oats, 2,966 barrels of flour, 75 barrels of oatmeal, and an increase of 4,047 bushels of barley and 635 bushels of rye, compared with a week ago. Compared with the corresponding time last year, there is an increase of 296,368 bushels of wheat, 187,931 bushels of peas, 350,878 bushels of oats, 72,124 bushels of barley, 17,138 bushels of rye, 4,973 barrels of oatmeal, and a decrease of 12,971 barrels of flour.

The stocks of flour and grain in store in Montreal on the dates mentioned were as follows:

	May 21, 1892.	May 14, 1892.	May 23, 1891.
Wheat, bush	644,665	685,485	348,297

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., May, 25, 1892.

There is very little change in our market or business since last week. The weather has been unusually cold, and as a consequence spring work is backward.

Sugar—Is without change, our market is well supplied, and prices are the same as last week. Granulated $4.40 to $4.50; extra C. 3⅝ to 3¾c., yellows $3,35 to $3.50.

Syrups and Molasses—Are selling slowly. There seems a good demand for the latter, and prices hold steady at 31 to 33c.

Provisions—American clear pork is quoted $17 to $17.25 per barrel, mess pork $14 to $14.50, extra plate beef $13.50 to $14.

Cheese—Is selling 11 to 12c. for new.

Butter—Is lower, at 18 to 22c.

Eggs—Are steady at 10 to 11c.

Beans—Are $1.25 to $1.40.

Fish—Dry cod, large, per quintal $4.85 to $5; medium cod $4.50 to $4.70; pollock $2.50 to $2.60; shad per half barrel $5 to $6; herring, bag, half barrels $1 65 to $1.75.

The early closing movement is progressing very satisfactorily in Nanaimo, B. C.

The Aylmer Canning Company are shipping two carloads of canned apples to London, England.

Mr. H. W. Waddell, of Dresden, was in Toronto, this week, on business for his firm, which does an extensive business in that section of the Province.

The Nanaimo, (B. C.) City Council has declined to grant a bonus in aid of the proposed establishment of a local soap factory, being opposed to the principle of bonuses.

The London Free Press says:—The City Council have arranged to let space under the market bazaar to hucksters and those who rent. These will be exempt from prosecution if they buy on the market. The Council has also allotted the space north of the Covent Garden market to the florists, and hucksters who do not rent are not to have any regular space or any of the privileges in the power of the Market Clerk to give, such as allowing sample bags, etc., on the ground. After being notified the hucksters went into their old places on Saturday. For this soon the P. M. will be asked to decide whether the city own the market or not.

The trader who pays his way must sell at a profit, and cannot afford to cut below others in the same line.

Credit is often too cheap and overbuying far too common. Don't be guilty of the one, and don't abuse the other.

Competition is keen and active, and the only way to meet it successfully is to buy from the best houses, and at lowest prices.

"SEEN IN THE PAPER."

The presiding genius of a large commercial firm in this city said to me the other day: "Within the past five years we have reduced our expenditures in newspaper advertising just about one-half. You remember, we used to be profuse advertisers in the public prints. Our reasons for retrenching in that line were owing to a system of circularizing that I invented, tried and found effective."

He then proceeded, under the promise that I would not divulge it, to explain the circularizing system which he devised and which is certainly very ingenious. But he did not convince me that he was making any more money operating thus than he did when he more liberally patronized the newspapers.

The day has gone by for circulars; at least for the kind that advertise patent medicine "fakes" and the thousand and one nostrums that the public has grown incredulous about. In some cases, doubtless, a neat circular may be used to advantage in these times, especially if it contains any announcement in which certain people are interested. On the other hand, how few there be who can spare the time to peruse every circular thrust into their hands, and how disgusted are those who, deceived by an attractive head-line and an illusory opening, wade through the dreary wilderness of hyperbole that usually is encountered in these gratuitous sheets.

A great deal is expressed in the oft heard phrase: "I saw it in the paper." It implies, first, that the matter, whether an advertisement or news, has been read; and second, it implies more or less confidence in what has been read.

How many stories are prefaced with these words: "I saw a good thing in the paper the other day"? In like manner the fair shopper enters a store and remarks: "I see by the papers that you have marked down your dress goods. I'd like to look at 'em."

All this illustrates that newspapers are deliberately read and their contents remembered. I have frequently overheard men discussing politics, theology or current affairs in some public place. As a rule, they repeat the views that they have read in their favorite newspapers, like so many parrots; for original thinkers do not seem to be wildly abundant in elevated railway trains and ferryboats.

Another thing is noticeable about newspapers, and that is that people read the advertisements in them with more interest than of yore. The evolution of advertising has been rapid within the past twenty years, and it now can be well termed an art—not perhaps the polite art by which we distinguish belles lettres, but still an art. Brains capable of producing enthralling romances and charming poetry are now engaged in writing "ads," presumably because the latter kind of composition is more lucrative. And advertisers have come to understand that there is a broad financial gulf between loosely constructed, ramshackle advertisements and those which are the very pink of perfection in arrangement and conciseness. And in order to place before the public artistic, attractive and effective advertisements in newspapers, clever thinkers and unimpeachable grammarians must be employed.

Can it be possible that in the Golden Age of our Republic the newspaper advertisement may have reached such a state of evolution that it will vie with the best news item or the most piquant bit of scandal in general interest?—L. Mead, in Printers' Ink.

THE ADVANTAGE OF FREQUENT SETTLEMENTS.

It is probably the experience of most retailers who keep a "running account" with customers that when a settlement is finally made, the customer denies the accuracy of the account and says he does not owe any such amount. Then comes a long dispute, and frequently ill feeling is engendered before the matter is settled.

A customer almost always underestimates the amount of his bill when he "carries the amount in his head." He may not intend to be inaccurate, but he cannot avoid it. But the blame should not all be upon him, for the retailer should insist upon frequent settlements so as to avoid just such difficulties.

Between retailers and wholesalers there is little chance for such disputes, for that wholesaler is a "rare bird" nowadays who does not send out his monthly statements; and if the accounts are not paid they are at least balanced, and the balance forwarded.

A good business man will insist on a settlement at stated periods, say thirty, sixty, or ninety days, and there should be a full accounting and settlement made by carrying the balance forward if the account is not paid in full. We have known retailers to have no settlement with customers for a year, and no statements rendered in the meanwhile. There is apt to be trouble in making such a settlement, and a full itemized statement might as well be made when such a settlement is undertaken. But running accounts should be shunned.—Grocers Bulletin.

A customer secured is a promise of greater salary in time.

WINDOW GLASS : [To find out what break any required size of pane comes under, add its length and breadth together. Thus in a 7x9 pane the length and breadth come to 16 inches; which shows it to be a first-break glass, i.e., not over 25 inches in the sum of its length and breadth.]

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

This paper leaves the Toronto Post Office Thursday evening. Subscribers not receiving it promptly should write us at once. Their doing so will be considered a favor.

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

Sell honest goods at honest prices and nobody will ask you what church you belong to.

The indefatigable secretary of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association is testing the strength of the early closing cause, by passing round a memorandum whose subscribers thereby bind themselves to close at a uniform hour or on Wednesday afternoon. He has had some success, but the main result of his visits on this errand is the discovery that the supporters of late closing have a good many excuses for keeping open beyond a reasonable hour. The bad faith of competitors who sign an early closing agreement, the need of every hour to make sale of fruit that would have to be carried over another day in case of early closing, the plea in behalf of workmen who can do no shopping apparently before midnight—these and many more similar reasons are assigned for the continuance of a practice that all its observers condemn. On Yonge street Mr. Corrie found but six grocers who would sign an agreement to close at eight o'clock in the evening or take a half holiday on Wednesday afternoon. On Queen street west he succeeded in getting all to sign an agreement to close at 9 p.m., instead of keeping open till 11 and 12 o'clock at night. From Pape avenue to the Don all have subscribed to close at eight o'clock from the first of June to the first of August. The secretary is continuing his canvass along the eastern part of King and Queen streets.

Salesmen or others who are agitating for an early closing hour ought to try what an appeal to popular opinion, as distinct from trade opinion, will do. It is difficult to get an arrangement on foot upon the joint promises of the trade to close at a particular hour, for those promises are hard to obtain, and when obtained they are hard to enforce. It would go a long way towards disposing the trade of any given locality to consent to a uniform closing hour, if they were presented with a petition from the majority of their customers asking that a certain hour be chosen for closing up all stores. The usual plea of late closers is that the people are late buyers to a considerable extent; if the people can be led to show themselves in favor of reasonable business hours, reasonable business hours will be the rule. Let the clerks organize and get up a concert or some other entertainment to which the public are freely invited, and unless their powers of pleasing are very limited they will be sure to enlist the sympathy of the people on their side, and may depend upon a strong vote in favor of early closing.

It is as well that retailers should take note of the fact from this till the potato crop is taken up, that Paris green is not to be handled like tea or sugar. A little carelessness about the sale of this article is likely to cost more than neglect to mark mixed coffee as compound. The law is offended every time a half-pound of Paris green is put up and sent out, unless the salesman is careful to have entry made, in a book kept for the purpose, of the following particulars: The date, the quantity bought, the purpose for which it is bought, the purchaser's signature, the salesman's initials. Disregard of this important matter is punishable by a fine, which may be $20, $50, or any intermediate sum, according to the discretion of the magistrate. Hellebore is not to be sold by grocers or general merchants. Druggists alone are licensed to sell it, and to them consumers must go to get this means of exterminating the pests on their currant bushes.

A line of goods that is causing some concern to holders just now is canned fruit. There is a very considerable surplus yet unsold, a great part of which is likely to be carried into next year's stock. The great advantage of factory production over domestic production, which previous to 1891 had caused a big shrinkage in the volume of the latter that was put up yearly, was offset a year ago by the unprecedented cheapness of sugar and abundance of fruits. The readiness of holders to concede a little on prices for the sake of making sales is moderated somewhat by the belief that this summer's pack will be a very light one, the last year's experience being likely to make the canners chary of going in to put up fruits on a large scale. This likelihood furnishes ground for hoping that a surplus carried over from this year will find a good market next year. The general feeling, however, appears to be that a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, and any chance of getting a customer now is not let slip if a few cents from the price will hold him.

One cause of cutting in staple groceries is the variety of grades or brands that are to be found in some lines. If there were but one standard in each class of goods prices would be found to be generally fairer. It is a rule with prices that they always assimilate towards that of the lowest-valued variety or grade in any line. If there were six grades of granulated sugar, and the lowest were selling at 4¼c., the higher grades would have to be quoted at figures approximate to this. Hence to-day prices rule low in Valencia raisins, sugar, canned goods, for the reason that the prices of the lowest grades are those kept most prominent by sellers.

THE VALENCIA RAISIN TRADE.

Already importers are beginning to cast their eyes across the interval between this and the incoming of the new crop of Valencia raisins, to take the measure as closely as possible of the prospects for the trade of 1892-93. Advices from Denia to hand on Monday report the promise of a fair crop, the vines now being on the point of blossoming and the weather so far favorable. The effect of the reduced consumption in the United States is expected to make prices moderate in the start-out of the season. The condition of stocks at the close of the current crop year is likely to be an influence on the same side.

The market course of the crop of 1891 has been peculiar. Prices never before ruled so low as they have done the past four months. Disturbing causes were (1) the large surplus of the Valencia crop of '90 held in New York and other centres; (2) the diversion of a great part of the United States demand to California raisins, which the abundance of the latter and the United States duty of 2c. a pound on Valencias caused; (3) the large yield of domestic fruits in all countries to which Valencia raisins are exported, notably Canada and the United States; (4) the full Valencia crop of 1891. These influences had a very depressing effect on prices, an affect felt quite early last fall and anticipated by some of the leading importers. There was therefore more than the usual degree of reserve in buying at the opening prices of the current crop year, notwithstanding that those prices were lower than the corresponding ones of a year previous. The consequence was that Canadian importations by direct steamer were 100,000 boxes less than they were a year before. The general expectation of lower prices made buying as backward on the part of retailers as of wholesalers, and the fall trade was of rather a hand-to-mouth character all around.

What tended still further to limit the quantity of our direct shipments was the fact that New York importers realized they had to sell without delay, and prices from that quarter early attracted our buyers. The surplus stock of the '90 crop on that market and the large stock of new raisins created a supply far in excess of the domestic demand, and prices went on giving way until our merchants were able to buy at as low as three-quarters of a cent a pound in bond, which made the price laid down here a little over 2¾c. per lb. Prices have recovered somewhat during the past fortnight, but they are still far below what they usually are at this time of year. These very low prices have created a greater business in the Valencia raisins between Canada and New York than was ever done in any corresponding time. Our indirect importations through that market were very large during the past winter and spring, and it was the Canadian demand that relieved the congestion in New York and brought about the betterment of fully a cent in prices that has been realized the last week or so. Heretofore our own direct importations sufficed to a greater degree than they did this year. As a rule the quality of the stock obtainable in New York has been below that called for by the requirements of the Canadian trade. The United States importers find little difficulty in getting rid of all the good fruit they bring in, and have nothing to spare for outsiders. This year the prices made the low grade stock more acceptable to our buyers.

Though the Canadian demand has been large since the opening of 1892, our consumption since the beginning of the crop year is probably not much above the average, as our merchants lost the sale of a large quantity of fruit in consequence of the prices that ruled in the fall at Denia. Since the drop, which became decided towards the end of February, the Canadian demand has counted as a heavy influence

A feature of this year's trade has been importing to keep down the average price. Thus a Canadian jobber who bought 1,000 boxes at 6c. and has that stock on hand when his competitors have got in some cheaper fruit, tries to mend matters by buying, not selling. He imports another 1,000 boxes at 5½c., aiming to be able to sell at a price obtained from the average of these to save himself from loss. This process was a continuous one this year, a firm often having the remainders of six different purchases, differing by a successive reduction of half a cent, the whole object of buying more stock before that on hand was done being to level down the average selling price by taking advantage of the latest give. It is said that there are some jobbers here who hold offstalk which cost them 6c.

The stock in Denia at about the beginning of April was 280,000 boxes, as against 20,000 a year ago. This surplus is being gradually lessened by a demand for distilling purposes, an application of Valencia raisins that their cheapness makes possible.

This has been an experimental year, so far as the United States is concerned, and the result of the experiment satisfies the trade of that country that they can depend on their domestic supply—the California yield—for raisins. It is therefore unlikely that we shall see again another year like this one, when the Canadian supply of Valencia raisins will be furnished so largely from New York, as that port will decline as a centre of distribution for Valencia raisins. Denia shippers count on it for very little demand during the coming year, and that fact makes them reasonable in their ideas as to prices. In 1890, New York took one-third of the Denia crop; in 1892, it is expected to take a very insignificant proportion.

HAVE A PURPOSE.

It is a pity that the determination to succeed in life were not as common as the hope or even the expectation of success. People have to become quite old before the early pictures of prospective wealth, fame, rank, etc., that fortune promises them begin to fade away. They cling long to the dreams of their youth. But while everybody has the desire to accomplish something for his own greater glory, pleasure or comfort, it is remarkable how few have a clearly defined object before them. There is a whole worldful of ideals, but there is a very small minority of them are objects of unflagging effort. It is the remnant who have an object in life A very inconsequential object, pursued with zeal, will do a great deal for the development of the worthier qualities, such as industry, self-denial, perseverance, temperance, patience and like virtues. All these are accessions of power, and are the strongest forces for the attaining of success, for the turning of an ideal into a real object.

A vague, shapeless notion of the work one is going to do in one's life time is not stimulating, and the man possessed of such a nebulous ambition is not likely ever to do much. Take any large business in which there is a division of labor, and let it be supposed that all but one man give the minimum attention necessary to an acceptable discharge of their duties. Let that one man aspire to some ultimate success, towards which he believes his own improvement and reputation are necessary means, and let him have the enthusiasm of that conviction. He will devote time, thought, attention and labor to his duty and will aim to outrun rather than simply keep even with what is required of him by his employer. Not merely his own department, but the whole concern will feel the good of such a man, no matter how subordinate his position may be. His example will show how much force there is in a man who is serious in his efforts to accomplish one little object. The private object may be to pay off a mortgage, to buy a little house, to become a proprietor of a business of his own, to own a railroad or to make somebody else happy. Whatever it is, if it operates upon the will of the man who is possessed of it, it is sure to make its power felt in whatever that man does or is connected with. It is hard to over-estimate the mainspring of a purpose that is at work in a healthy man's destiny.

And in the same way as the well-managed detail in a large house is felt beneficially in the whole business, so the little but persistent habit in a man's business practice will be far-reaching and probably momentous in its effects upon his prosperity. Let a trader make it a rule, for example, never to question a customer's word, and that one habit may be credited in a few years as a source of considerable revenue. Let a man resolve to note everything that he considers useful or necessary for him to keep in mind, and in due time he will evoke a system of note-book keeping that will be of great money value to him. One small purpose consistently followed up will expand and develop in power for the benefit of him who cultivates it. And it will be found the mere beginning of system, without which everyone works at a disadvantage, and with loss both of energy and substance.

ADVERTISING AS IT IS.

A person who picks up any Canadian local weekly will find in it a variety of methods of advertising. The man who begins his advertisement with "The Great Railroad Strike is now over, but this has not prevented us getting in two more carloads of that sugar," has not ceased to exist. He still lives. He changes his advertisement regularly twice a year, once in the Christmas season and once during some other season when he seems to have a new idea. When he sits down to write an advertisement he must first have some words about something that is happening or has happened, but which has no connection with his trade. War is a favorite topic with him. He is in the same weary class as the man who is always "selling below cost," or "at slaughter prices." The firm that always claims to be "the cheapest house on earth" still survives. Such talk must cause a loss of confidence in traders among their customers. In a certain local weekly in Western Ontario may be seen an advertisement of a photographing firm, which was dissolved some five or six years ago, but the advertisement still remains like an Egyptian obelisk as a memento of the past. Truly the editor must not read his own paper. Editors who would allow such a state of affairs in their paper cannot realize the duty they owe to their readers and their advertisers to always have all their advertisements fresh and crisp. In the issue of an Ontario weekly, dated May 27, the most conspicuous advertisement on the local page was that of a grocer whose carelessness in changing his advertisement was well marked by his latest production bearing the date February 25th.

But these are only relics of the barbarous past. Advertising has been making real advancement in the points of variety and excellence. Display advertisements are still predominant, and much ingenuity and taste are displayed both by printers and advertisers. But another kind of advertising is rapidly winning its way into favor among merchants. This is an advertisement one column wide, one-third or one-half column in length, the body of which is set up in pica type, with an appropriate display heading and firm-name. The wording for such an advertisement is generally conversational in its character, that is, it talks to the reader in a straightforward, but often natty, conversational way. The dealer speaks through it directly and pointedly to his customers. Very little bombast, very few rash assertions, but sound common sense and solid phrases, which are the opposite of meaningless—these are its characteristics. This kind of advertising was made popular by the Wanamaker firm, and now the leading retail dealers in Toronto and other Canadian cities use it either exclusively or for the greater part of their newspaper advertising. It is slowly percolating to the rural dealers, and it would seem that this is to be the future advertisement. It appeals to a matter-of-fact people, to those people who read advertisements because they are accustomed to go there for information. A great many who adopt this method embellish their advertisements with small artistic cuts, which the saving in space enables them to use without any greater outlay than in using a larger display advertisement.

To write a suitable advertisement for this method requires a certain amount of care, thought and brains. A good plan for a retail dealer would be to have a scrap book, and from the leading dailies to clip the best advertisements each day and paste them into this book, not for imitation, though this would not be wrong in itself, but as models or ideals, and for the purpose of suggesting like or other ideas to the advertiser. Then when an advertisement is to be written in a hurry the book suggests ready-made ideas. Some of the men who write these advertisements for leading houses are men who have long studied advertising, and their writings are worthy of study and imitation. To advertise properly, a man must know his stock thoroughly, and he must be always ready to advertise some article particularly. Advertisements are often too general; they do not speak pointedly to the reader. A good advertisement must be brisk, conversational, thoughtful, pointed and particular.

THE SALE OF TOBACCO TO MINORS.

The grocery and general store trade in this province must keep in mind the Act passed in the last session of the Ontario Legislature to prevent the sale of tobacco to minors. As it comes in force the first of next month, its provisions ought to be known to all traders concerned. The following is the wording of the Act:

1. Any person who either directly or indirectly sells or gives or furnishes to a minor under eighteen years of age cigarettes, cigars or tobacco in any form, shall on summary conviction thereof before a justice of the peace be subject to a penalty of not less than $10, or more than $50, with or without costs of prosecution, or to imprisonment, with or without hard labor, for any term not exceeding 30 days, or to both fine with or without costs and imprisonment to the said amount and for the said term, in the discretion of the convicting magistrate. And in case of a fine, or a fine and costs being awarded, and of the same not being upon conviction forthwith paid, the justice may commit the offender to the common gaol, there to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding thirty days, unless the fine and costs are sooner paid.

2. This Act shall not apply to a sale to the minor for his parent or guardian under a written request or order of the parent or guardian.

3. A person who shall appear to the magistrate to be under 18 years of age, shall be presumed to be under that age unless it is shown by evidence that he is in fact over that age.

4. This Act shall go into effect on the 1st day of July, 1892.

The traders who hold licenses to sell tobacco in towns and cities where such sale is subject to municipal regulation, are permitted by those licenses to sell to all minors over fourteen years of age. The Municipal Act gives to towns and cities the power to regulate the tobacco trade for minors up to that age. It will therefore seem that there is a collision of authority between the Provincial and the Municipal law, the former prohibiting sale to minors between fourteen and eighteen, and the latter permitting it. In the issue of Toronto licenses it is intended that a stamp shall be placed on each license stating the provincial law on the subject, which it will be advisable for the licensed trader to give the preference to. In places where licenses are not issued to tobacco dealers there is but one course open, and that is not to sell to anybody below eighteen years of age.

A by-law is now in course of legislation by the Toronto City Council to further regulate the sale of tobacco to minors under fourteen years. It is directed against automatic means of selling cigarettes. Some dealers evaded the by-law by placing cigarettes in one of those nickel-in-the-slot machines, and allowing the machine to do the business. This by-law brings that trade under the general city by-law governing the tenure of licenses.

THE TORONTO EXEMPTION BY-LAW.

The by-law passed last month by the Toronto City Council to exempt from taxation the machinery, plant and tools of manufacturers has been pronounced by the city solicitor ultra vires so far as school rates are concerned. It is improbable that this will cause the measure to be recalled more than to the extent of so modifying it that school taxes may be excepted from its provisions.

It seems the Municipal Act does not authorize a city or town council to exempt anybody from the paying of school taxes. It might be a good thing if the power of exemption were still more closely defined, so that it would be out of the hands of a municipal corporation to exempt industries from the payment of any tax. Exemption from taxation is a form of local protection not unlike the bonus system which has been put to an end in this province after it did a great deal of mischief. To impose a tax for a bonus is the same thing on a smaller scale as to exempt somebody from taxation and impose his burden on the remainder of the public.

AN ARTFUL DODGER'S DODGE.

————"Two well-known grocers of Hamilton were served with writs yesterday, the plaintiff in each case being Her Majesty Queen Victoria, and the defendants————. The actions are for penalties for the alleged adulteration of coffee, the fine for selling same and the cost of the analysis, amounting in all to about $94 in each case. The penalty for adulterating coffee is $50, for setling same $30, and the cost of analysis $14."—The Canadian Grocer, February 26th, 1892, page 4.

Say, mister, sense you're here again alookin' up more news,
Perhaps you'll ease my mind a bit—you see I've got the blues ;
There's somethings that 'r both'rin me, an' as I'm all at sea,
Mayhap you'll take a chair a bit 'n talk a while with me.

You know I've kep' a store right here for twenty year or more,
'N always done what I thought right, 'n done it to the core,
I've worked my business honest, sir, 'n paid each lawful debt,
'N never mixed poor stock with good, nor made my sugar wet.

I've had my share of troublous times, seen war 'n death about,
'N business down to nothin' sir, 'n most men given' out,
But through it all I've tried to do my business straight 'n square,
'N old Hank Smith has always dealt each man 'n child his share.

You're wondrin' what I'm drivin' at atellin' you this stuff,
Jest wait a minute 'n I bet you'll say I've quite enough
To drive a peaceful man like me to take up arms 'n fight
Agin such laws as now are made,—which never can be right.

One eve a gent came in my store 'n smilin' shook my hand,
Spoke cheerful words of trade 'n sich, 'n praised our fruitful land,
Looked 'round the shop 'n nodded like as if he thought it right,
Then asked my clerk for Coffee,—jest a pound would do to-night.

He got the goods, put down the cash, 'n with a smile 'n bow
Departed with the coffee (I see him grinnin' now),
I might remark here, my friend, I'd sold this coffee then
For something near like seven years 'n satisfied all men.

Now mister, there aint much to say about a thing like this,
For coffee's bought most every day, why shouldn't he buy his ?
'N it aint the pound o' coffee that brings this tale about
It's the "grounds," the "settlin's" of it, that makes me swear right out.

I'd most forgot the deal when Jim, our sheriff's clerk, one day
Called 'round 'n handed me a writ 'n said I'd have to pay
A fine 'n other charges, all set down black 'n white
Upon that slip of paper, with its V. R. to the right.

Thunderashun, mister, would you believe it, there I saw
The writ with all its charges, for a breakin' of the law
"For adulteratin' coffee, 'n for sellin' of the same
'N a charge for "ANNA-LIE-SIN' to find its proper name.

The figures, friend, most staggered me, a hundred all but six,
I couldn't catch my breath a while a thinkin' of the fix
I'd got myself into that day, though innocent of blame
When Jim wrapped up that coffee for the man without a name.

Paid ? Why, yes, of course I paid it, what can a feller do,
Agin such humbug laws as these,a shelterin' of the few
'N lettin' cost 'n trouble strike the harmless, honest men
While those who put the "Compounds" up,-compound and mix again ?

I tell you, sir, there's somethin' wrong about this latest law
To stop adulteratin' things 'n here's its greatest flaw :
It fines the man who buys the goods to sell them in his store
'N lets the schemin' packer off,- That's why it hurts me sore.

Why should they rob me, that's the word, why should they take my cash
For sellin' what I bought as good 'n paid for not as trash ?
Why should I be held liable for wilful fraud 'n cheat ?
- I didn't put the chicory in, nor yet the peas 'n wheat.

'N then I don't see what's the use of all this pryin' around
'N both'rin' people, playin' spy, 'n runnin' things around
I don't know what's less harmful sir, than peas 'n roasted wheat ;
If people want this coffee who'll stop them of their treat ?

I don't know nothin' of the law, on chemistry I'm dumb,
I buy what most my neighbors want, that's why they always come ;
I deal in goods as pure as sold 'n never cheat a man,
But I've the best of "grounds" to doubt the-coffee in the can.

Say, tell your boss when you're to home, we're much obliged to him
For writin' up this glarin' fraud, Keep at it with a vim.
That old Hank Smith of Johnsville knows coffee pure ,n mixed
When next a "stranger" calls for some. that stranger's end is fixed.

PROGRESS POINTERS.

The most successful business men are those who advertise the most in trade papers.

For those things which are of general need and use, the trade journal surpasses all other vehicles for reaching just the readers wanted.

If you have a good thing advertise it, first in the trade papers to familiarize the trade with it, and then judiciously in the family newspapers.

The independent newspaper, be it political or devoted to trade matters, is always on the safe side of business and has the best show to achieve popularity.

If a merchant would only consider how a single additional customer will more than repay for an outlay in advertising he would give this subject more attention.

The advertisers in a trade paper, as a general thing, represent the best business men, who are in the field to stay and who will give dollar for dollar in every trade made with them.

When a hen succeeds in hatching a chicken from a china egg, and a soldier kills an enemy at a hundred yards with a blank cartridge, then a merchant may hope to do a successful business without advertising.

The man who says he does not believe in advertising shows to the contrary by putting a sign over his door, by the use of letter heads and bill heads, and his address on the corner of his business envelopes.

The trade journal interferes little or none with the advertising patronage of the regular newspapers. There are successful business men who claim that it can be utilized so as to take the place of the travelling salesman.

The more humble the business the more effort should be made to sell your goods ; and there is no firm so strong, so well known that it cannot be benefited by judicious advertising—advertising in a class journal representing its business.

A trade paper advertisement may occasionally be overlooked by the reader, still it makes the name and business of the man familiar, and its presence in the columns of the paper inspires confidence in the stability of the enterprise.

If each house was to present its quotations to the buyers, and was to adhere strictly to those quotations, there would be less competition of a suicidal character. The more open we are in our methods the fairer will our business become.

Never mind how poor his harvet is, a farmer never thinks to economise by sowing less seed for the next year. Yet, if he did so, he would hardly be more foolish than the merchant who, when business is dull, curtails his expenditure for advertising.

Advertising gives character and standing to a firm. Go into any community, as an entire stranger, pick up the papers published there, look for their largest advertisers and you can invariably depend upon the fact that you have found the most reliable and desirable firms in that community.—Exchange.

BRITISH-GROWN TEA.

Messrs. Gow, Wilson, and Stanton, tea brokers, London, have issued a highly interesting circular in respect to the markets for British-grown teas. They point out that the crop of Indian and Ceylon tea for the coming season may be estimated in round numbers at about 210 million lbs. Of this quantity it is a sanguine forecast to suppose that Great Britain will consume more than 170 million lbs., and the object of the circular is to draw attention to foreign markets, in the hope that a great portion of the remaining 40 million lbs. may be absorbed by them, and that by this means a further shrinkage in prices may be avoided. From the circular, which contains two admirably prepared diagrams, we extract the following passages :—During last year about 20 million lbs. of Indian and Ceylon tea were taken by countries outside Great Britain. India contributed about 13 million of this amount and Ceylon about 7. The quantity taken in 1890 was only about 14 million lbs., being 9 million of Indian, and 5 of Ceylon. The annual consumption of all tea in Great Britain amounts to 200,000,000 lbs., and in outside markets (excluding tea-producing countries) reaches some 250,000,000 lbs. Why should not the bulk of this demand be supplied by British-grown tea? If in two years its use in foreign markets can be raised from 14 to 20 million pounds—and that at a time when prices were as inflated as during fully one half of last year—what is to prevent the chief supply of these markets being drawn from the dependencies of the United Kingdom? Aided by present low prices, British-grown tea is working its way more rapidly than in the past. It has now taken sufficient root in many countries to warrant the belief that its use must become permanent and that similar results will follow to those attained at home, viz., the gradual displacing of the poorer China teas by the richer and more economical teas of our own dependencies. Should this eventually prove to be the case, the time may not be far distant when planters will look back to the exceptionally low prices of the past six months as little short of a blessing in disguise ; for—with so large a quantity of tea taken outside Great Britain—the natural result would be a larger demand for Indian and Ceylon teas, if once a permanent foothold were obtained in foreign markets. Much thought, time and money have already been expended in efforts to open new outlets for our produce. Results have been sufficiently encouraging to justify us in still further prosecuting, with renewed vigor, our campaign in foreign countries ; but time, money and energy will be to a large extent wasted unless due regard be paid to the special requirements of the various markets. To flood them with unsuitable produce, as has on one or two occasions been done, is worse than useless. Growth can only be gradual, and may at first be extremely slow. Former experiences will doubtless be of great assistance in the prosecution of future enterprises. We are confident that with persistent and intelligent efforts, progress, though it may be gradual, will be sure. The following statistics show, as nearly as can be ascertained, the quantities of Indian and Ceylon tea taken in the undernoted countries during 1891, compared with their approximate total annual consumption :

	Indian.	Ceylon.	Total Annual Con'mptn.
	lbs.	lbs.	lbs.
Australian Colonies	4,440,000	3,211,000	30,000,000
Persia	2,400,000	500,000	.....
United States	900,900	744,000	80,000,000
Turkey	1,104,000	18,000	.....
Canada	680,000	410,000	20,000,000
*Germany	192,000	604,000	4,000,000
Holland	407,000	156,000	5,000,000
South Africa	114,000	111,000	2,000,000
South America	94,000	84,000	.....
*Austria	14,000	156,000	1,200,000
Arabia	130,000	.....	.....
France	43,000	65,000	1,200,000
Mauritius	2,000	69,000	.....
Russia	2,000	66,000	70,000,000

*Probably most of the tea sent to Germany and Austria was for Russia.

It is not surprising that Australasia should be so large a consumer. Not only are its people our own kinsfolk and countrymen, and have thus inherited similar tastes, but it was here that India made her earliest efforts at establishing a new market ; and she can now look back with grateful pride upon the work of those early days in the history of her tea industry. Here, too, Ceylon was eager in later years to find not only a near but important market—for Australians consume annually nearly 30,000,000 lbs. of tea—and her efforts have also reaped a rich reward. These colonies have now become the largest of all markets for British-grown tea outside the United Kingdom, although the demand appears still to be only in infancy. The Persian market is a source of surprise to many. It has grown and developed until it has attained its present dimensions. Its nearness to India may be one of the chief causes, but the favor in which Indian tea is there regarded is attributed by some to a preference in the locality towards the use of an article supplied by co-religionists ; and there may be some truth in the suggestion. The United States of America are so vast a territory, and the quantity of tea consumed so large, amounting annually to some 80,000,000 lbs., that it is curious so small a percentage of our teas should be used. Decided headway has been recently made, and prolonged low rates of the past few months have done much to popularize Indian and Ceylon teas. A very large amount of advertising has of late been done by the Ceylon Planters' Tea Company, who continue steadily pushing the sale of Ceylon tea, and the present demand may be partially due to their perseverance. Turkey has become an important consumer of Indian tea, and it is possible that the religion of her people may induce her to take the teas of a country which contains perhaps the largest Mahommedan population in the world. Ceylon tea is being gradually introduced and appears to be received with some favor. Canada is perhaps one of the most promising outlets. The consumption of all tea is nearly 4 lbs. per head of population, and the percentage of British grown tea is already considerable—even though little systematic attempt has been made to open up this market. Recent low rates have perhaps given the greatest impetus to the trade. Russia, although a market of considerable magnitude, and taking some 70,000,000 lbs. of China tea annually, takes but little Indian tea, and until recently Ceylons were almost unknown. During the last two or three years a distinct inquiry for Ceylon tea has sprung up, and considerable quantities are now disposed of in this country. Figures showing actual consumption of Ceylon tea are impossible to obtain, but probably the bulk of that which goes to Germany has its final destination in Russia. The work of Ceylon in pioneering this market appears to have created some demand for the finest and most flavory descriptions of her tea. Russia should prove most valuable as an outlet for high-class teas, and of much eventual assistance in maintaining, if not increasing, the value of teas with flavor and quality combined. Of other European markets Holland appears to be the most active, but there are reasons why Holland should be a tea-drinking country. She has herself fostered tea culture in her own colony of Java, and having thus acquired a taste for tea, is now one of the chief tea consumers in Europe. Germany also is likely to prove by degrees a useful outlet. Amongst those countries which as yet take but little of our tea, perhaps that of South Africa, with its rapidly increasing British population, offers the greatest encouragement for prospecting. In time this locality should naturally consume British-grown tea. South America is a consumer of British-grown tea, but the unsettled state of this continent is adverse to immediate development of the trade. Taken as a whole the export trade is in a more promising condition than ever before, and strong ground exists for anticipating a future which will go far to raise the Indian and Ceylon tea industries from the depression to which they have recently been subjected, and if only the golden opportunity afforded by the coming exhibition in Chicago be effectually taken, one of the greatest markets in the world may shortly be won over to the side of British-grown tea.

Gowans, Kent & Co., of Toronto and Winnipeg, present to our readers in their advertisement on back cover of this issue an illustration of a lamp burner, with "The Perfection Wick Trimmer" attached. It will undoubtedly be accepted by the trade as a good seller. Every merchant knows the objection their wives have to snuffing the charred end of a lamp wick with their fingers. This new attachment does away with this drawback, and being fixed to the burner is sold as cheap as those made without.

COMBINATION IN BUYING.

Every little while there breaks out in some large town or city the notion that a co-operative association of retailers can be formed for the purpose of buying goods. The idea is that the retailers can save the jobber's profit. As the net profit of the jobbers is only 1 per cent. on the volume of sales, one would think that their work as distributers would be free from the competition or envy of the retailers. The co-operative purchasing company cannot work any more cheaply than the regular jobbers, and must assume more or less risk in credits. This question is an active one in England and is not without interest here. A correspondent of the London Grocer asserts that the evils which afflict the large co-operative concerns in England are associated with a buying co-operative movement. He says :

Human nature is the same, whether you combine as industrial co-operators of trading co-operators, and young grocers will do well to think twice before risking money in plausible schemes to save themselves trouble. I know all the disadvantages of being a small buyer, and I can affirm that, with the advantage of being now a fairly large buyer, the proportion of profit to turnover is no better than when I bought in small quantities. Why is this? It is simply because when I was a small buyer I handled and sold all I bought myself, whereas what I buy now is handled by my assistants, and what I gain in buying is lost in transit to the customer.

The weak spot in a small trader's buying is often exactly the same weak spot from which the co-operative movement took its start, and I stated this some years ago in your columns when writing on the origin of the co-operative movement. The weak spot is this—in place of going to a first-class respectable dealer and purchasing in a small way on short credit, the system too often is to go to some second or third-rate place and run a long account. A big profit is placed on the article sold, and by-and-by the purchaser finds this out, and, rushing from one extreme to another, thinks to find salvation by joining a few others and employing some one else to do his work—for a young or old trader's work is, emphatically, to lay his own money out to the best advantage; and, speaking for myself, I have no hesitation in saying that any little success I have achieved may be ascribed to the fact that my actions have always been in accordance with the policy I advocate.

In many cases it is a positive advantage to buy in small quantities. Stock carried much in excess of nearby requirements means charges for carrying out of proportion to the extra discount gained by buying the larger quantity. Interest works night and day and Sundays, and so does insurance and depreciation. Even package goods, if kept, lose their look of freshness. Then the buyer in combination is apt to lose all of his saving through some one giving to the consumer the advantage gained, thus forcing his associates to meet a cut price.

Such co-operative buying is destructive of independence and individualism. It gives away too much of one's trade to competitors without corresponding advantage. Some are mean enough to use it to the discomfort and disadvantage of their neighbors by endeavoring to win away customers, saying, "I buy goods with him and just as cheap as he does, and I will sell them to you at a smaller profit."

The only possible advantage the advocates of the system claim is that money is saved. The question for each one to settle is whether the disadvantages are not so many and troublesome as to outweigh the saving, which is more imaginary than real, and frequently means getting a dollar at a premium.—American Grocer.

THE ADULTERATION OF PEPPER.

For some reason or other, which is not very clear, pepper for a considerable time past has been selected as one of the chief articles for direct adulteration. The price is so low, and the quantity used by any individual trader, and still more by any individual consumer, is so small that it is difficult to see what inducement there is for this practice. There can, at the same time, be no doubt of its prevalence, and indeed of its increase. We do not now speak of the inordinately large proportion of decorticated husks often mixed with black pepper, in order to lower its price, though that practice would require a great deal of defence. At the same time the addition of substances like ground rice to white pepper appears to be increasing, and is, of course, a distinct fraud upon the public. There is reason to believe also that some other substance is now being extensively added to white pepper in the process of grinding. What this substance is we do not know, but it is suspected to consist of spent ginger -that is, of the refuse ginger left after the fermentation of ginger beer.

In addition to this, an entirely new practice has lately been developed, and that is, dyeing pepper yellow, by the addition of turmeric, probably in the process of grinding. There is no doubt that a pretty yellow colour is obtained by the addition, but the question remains of why this tinge should be desired. The natural colour of Penang, Singapore, or Siam white pepper is not yellow at all, but greyish. Nor is pepper served at table in a manner in which a bright colour would be at all attractive to the consumer, that is, it is not seen in bulk at meals, as many alimentary substances are. Pepper is, of course, added to food mainly in the cooking, and if not, it is presented in a closed caster, and though this may be of glass, it does not allow minute shades of colour to be seen. The circumstance which has led to the staining of pepper, is the fact that parcels decorticated here have a somewhat yellow tinge, which has become associated in the minds of the grocers with the best qualities prepared in recent years. No doubt, therefore, it has occurred to ingenious people that it would be advantageous to dye the common qualities of pepper of a similar, or even of a richer tint, and thus enable a higher price to be obtained for what is really an inferior article.

All these objectionable practices are, it need hardly be said, not carried out by the old-established wholesale spice grinders of the country. Those who do enter into them are profuse in their guarantees of the entire purity of their wares, and in most cases they are careful not to offer their adulterated goods at a proportionate reduction in price. The grocers, therefore, are unaware of what they are buying, and are led to think that their purchases are really superior qualities. One test by which dyed pepper may be detected, is to place a little in water and to keep it for a few days when it will be found that the water in which the dyed sample has been placed, has become thick or turbid and that it has a smell similar to that of drugs, such as rhubarb. This dyeing seems to us to be entirely purposelesss, and it can readily be put a stop to, if grocers will set their faces against any artificial addition of the sort, for which there is no justification.

It may be asked what the public analysts are doing, while all these abuses are current. The reply, in London at any rate, is that so far as some of these adulterations are concerned, the vestries institute a great many prosecutions with successful results, but that the cases are not thought worth reporting by the newspapers. We are told that in some districts there are very numerous convictions for the sale of pepper adulterated with ground rice, and that hardly any of them are reported. So far as the addition of some substance at present unknown, but believed to be spent ginger, to pepper, the analysts, no doubt, having had their attention drawn to it, will take steps to find out what is amiss. The dyeing of pepper by turmeric is a difficult question, so far as the law is concerned, because the Adulteration Act allows staining or dyeing, unless the substance added be injurious to health, or unless the admixture is sold to the prejudice of the purchaser. If pepper dyeing be legal, the trade must defend itself, unless it wishes to be deluged with canary-colored parcels. The degree of yellow is simply a question of the proportion of turmeric used, for an infinitesimal addition, from the quantitative point of view, will be sufficient to dye pepper in the most brilliant way. On the other hand, the added coloring matter soon fades, and if dyed pepper is kept in stock it soon resumes more nearly its proper tint, but with an unnatural complexion.—Produce Markets' Review.

CUTTING IN MOLASSES.

Still further cutting is reported in molasses in Montreal, where it has been offered at 27½c. to arrive this month. The best it can be laid down for is 27.10, and that is not allowing for shrinkage, which would bring it to 29.30 or thereabouts. In talking about the cutting, one of our leading grocers says he wishes the Guild was broken, and then the best men would stay on top. Another firm that have never been members of the Guild say that if they were doing business with angels they would join, but not with such changeable beings as mortals. The outcome of the cut was a special meeting of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild in the board room of the Montreal Board of Trade on Friday last. The meeting was very stormy at times, owing to the members of one of our large French firms writing to say that if combine prices were not upheld he would leave the Guild. This seems to be the feeling of several of our prominent grocers who say they are tired of the present haggling over prices and would like to see them steady. One of our local brokers who has a lot of stock arriving soon, says he will auction it off, thereby giving all a chance to go into the fight. On the whole the market at this point for rice, sugar and molasses is very uncertain, as more or less cutting is being done in all these lines.

THE U. S. WHOLESALE TRADE AND THE SUGAR TRUST.

The wholesale grocers' associations of the United States are organizing for the purpose of sketching out a platform upon which the delegates they send to a conference with the Sugar Trust people on the 9th inst. shall represent them. A proposition suggested by a Mr. Imbusch of Milwaukee appears to find general acceptance as the basis of common action. These are its objects :

1. A uniform price for each day by all the refineries of the Trust.

2. Telegraphic advice of daily market to to every jobbing centre.

3. Equalization of prices for competitive points through a system of scheduling, or freight allowance to the retailer.

4. A rebate on monthly purchases contingent upon maintenance of the price of sugars as fixed by the schedule.

The plan proposes to establish a uniform profit at the various jobbing centres through a system of freight schedules.

The Southern Wholesalers' Association will be represented by five delegates who will attend the meeting with the following suggestions :

1. To insist upon an allowance of ½ of one cent per pound rebate.

2. That the plan as adopted, to apply with equal advantage to every point of membership of this Association as now existing, or that may exist at the time of its operation.

3. That in this movement the strength of this Association should be maintained as a unit, and its influence should not be given to any man or set of men without adequate return.

4. That the trade of cities which have not yet formally attached themselves to the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association should definitely define their position without further procrastination, so that we may know whose interests are to be specially protected by this Association.

5. That should the Imbusch plan be adopted, the expense of its operation should be borne by the Sugar Trust, or so arranged by it that no assessments for expenses should follow.

The Trust manifests some inclination to concede.

MONTREAL TRADE CHAT.

The advices from England report an advance in sago.

The retail grocery firm of Gordon, Hall & Co., have dissolved partnership.

C. H. Binks has returned from the Lower Provinces. He says business is good.

D. Hatton, of D. Hatton & Co., canned goods men, has returned from a trip to the far west.

Tom Frasier, the Bleury street grocer, will have to move soon, as the corporation is widening the street.

M. P. Laverty is well satisfied with his new grocery store. He says he is working up a better class of custom.

T. Brouville, J. C. Rousseau and Louis Brounelle, all grocers, have all been appointed justices of the peace for Three Rivers.

The partnership heretofore existing between Alphonse Lefaivre and Charles Langlois (Canada Liquor Co.), grocers, has been dissolved.

The Union Stock and Meat Packing Co., have moved into their new offices at the corner of St. Peter and St. Paul streets. The new company have fixed up in grand style and their premises really look fine.

The retail grocers had quite a lively time last week at the City Hall. This was owing to the temperance people wanting the grocers to run their liquor trade separate from their grocery business. Mr. Demers, president of the Grocers' Association, said that the grocers were not responsible for drunkenness, and that the grocers very rarely violated the laws and he did not see the necessity of the separation.

OF THE FIRST WATER.

"Godes-Berger" is the name of a natural mineral water that is the favorite of Her Majesty the Queen, and the only natural mineral water supplied Her Majesty under Royal warrant. This water is highly recommended for table use by some of the most eminent physicians in the land, and is endorsed by England's leading medical journal, The Lancet. Already in Canada the water has had a ready sale among the better class of trade, and most of our leading grocers and liquor dealers have the same in stock. In its appearance the water is as clear as crystal, with a very pleasant and refreshing taste, and will keep good in any climate for a number of years. The purveyors of Godes-Berger claim it to be superior to ordinary sparkling waters for mixing with claret, champagne or any kind of wine or spirits. The water is bottled at the spring, near the old castle of Godesberg, opposite the Seven Mountains of the Rhine, where it has been famous for its purity since the 13th century. James Lobb, 30 Wellington street east, Toronto, is the agent for Canada, and to him all orders should be addressed.

Pickle Manufacturer F. J. Ling is lying very low with inflammation at the Victoria Hotel, Hamilton.

The Wholesale Grocers' Association of Montreal held a meeting in the Board of Trade building last Friday afternoon.

London grocery clerks have organized a baseball club, and would be pleased to try conclusions with the shoe clerks on June 8.

Lake & Bailey, millers, now doing business at the corner of Market and Park streets, Hamilton, but whose lease will run out next December, intend erecting a four-story mill at the southwest corner of Rebecca street and Ferguson avenue.

Mr. Potter, of Potter & Ronald, left last week for England. Mr. Potter is one of the delegates from the Winnipeg Board of Trade to the Congress of Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, to be held in London in June.

A. G. Broad, of Glasgow, Scotland, representing the Directors, and E. Dowie the Manager, of the "Woodside" Refinery, paid a hurried visit to this city on Monday last. They report a satisfactory spring business, and look for higher prices in the near future.

"The latest addition to the mercantile interests of Brandon, Man., is the opening out of a branch of John Whyte & Co.'s pork packing establishment of Mitchell, Ont. Mr. John Whyle has been in the city and has secured premises in the market building to the rear of the city hall."

The Provincial authorities of Nova Scotia are to undertake the preparation of a display of the minerals and fruits of the Province for the World's Fair. The Government of Prince Edward Island has undertaken to make a very good display of the agricultural products of that Province. The fishing interests will also be represented. Quebec will make a similar exhibition.

The head-quarters of the Saint Croix Soap M'f'g. Co. is in St. Stephen, N. B. New offices have just been built by them, finished in black ash. The offices are large, airy, and bright, fitting head-quarters for "Surprise" Soap, which has gained such a reputation for itself all over Canada. The rapidly increasing business in Surprise Soap has necessitated many additions in the factory in St. Stephen, but they are now understood to be fully equipped for turning out a very large quantity of soap. It is really wonderful to see the rapid progress made by this concern.

There is considerable discussion going on in Montreal as to the early closing of saloons. A by-law was proposed, but is strongly objected to. The president of the Grocers' Association, Mr. Demers, told the committee which has charge of the matter that the proposed by-law would cause the grocers to separate their grocery and liquor business or to close their stores early, and pointed out that in the past the laws had scarcely ever been violated by the grocers, and their interests should be considered.

On the evening of the Queen's birthday Owen Tierney, of the firm of Tierney Bros., Brock street, Kingston, left the city with his family for a prolonged visit in the United States. For some little time he had been unable to meet his paper, but his credit being good his creditors were lenient with him. He meant to pay them every cent, but his business did not prosper in a way that would enable him to meet his liabilities, and he, finally becoming discouraged, threw up the sponge and left the city. He had sold his stock to his brother Patrick who was not a partner as the name of the firm implies. Patrick gave notes for a good sum, and is willing to carry on the business if of the creditors are willing. The transaction was bona fide, and not made with a view of defrauding any one. A statement of the liabilities was made out, and is now in the possession of Mr. Mundell. There are over twenty-one creditors and include Fenwick Hendry & Co., R. J. Carson, J. Tierney & Co., and many other citizins who gave accommodation notes. Other principal creditors are in Montseal. They are, Grothes & Co., cigar manufacturers ; Cortes, Galbraith & Co., Doherty & Co., Finlayson Hirsch & Co., Quintet & Sons. The sums owing run from $200 to the highest $500. He owes the separate school board sixteen hundred dollars and altogether his liabilities are $10,000.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE TOMATO

The tomato is by long odds the queen of the vegetable kingdom. It is the national vegetable fruit of this continent, and a popular favorite with all classes. The delicate and luscious tomato can hardly be called simply a vegetable, for it is quite as much, if not more, of a fruit. It occupies a peculiar position in the vegetable family, as not only can be eaten raw (and by many it is preferred that way), but it can be cooked as a vegetable, preserved as a fruit, or to suit the popular taste of the nation it is manufactured into that sauce of sauces, "Snider's Home-made Tomato Catsup" and Snider's Tomato Soup in cans. The tomato has here reached its acme of greatness, for it can be safely said that it will never be used to better purpose than when it appears under the label of The T. A. Snider Preserve Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Everyone knows what the tomato looks like, and all are, doubtless, equally well posted in regard to the appearance of the plant itself. The tomato plant is one of the most delicate and sensitive of all that class of the vegetable family. A puff of frosty air on the fragile stem of the little plant, when first it is set out, and withered away goes the sensitive little creature. The seed is invariably planted in a hot bed, where the plants are allowed to remain until they are about six inches high, when they are carefully transplanted to their future home. Taking firm and deep root in the soil (unless nipped by a forbidding frost) they rapidly grow, flourish and prosper as the proverbial green bay tree of old.

AROMA OF COFFEE.

The aroma of coffee develops especially during the process of roasting ; its fatty oil oxidizes, is burned, and is changed into essential oil, or caffeine, a species of ether that can be isolated by distillation, and which we can sometimes see with the naked eye on the surface of the ordinary infusion. But coffee, like many other natural products, such as wine, tobacco and cocoa, requires a certain length of time after being gathered before it reaches its full maturity. Experience has shown that the development of its aromatic principle is acquired by keeping it in a green state from one crop to another. But it is well known that for about the last half century the caffeine seems to be lacking in the infusion of coffee, which has no longer the exquisite qualities due to its aroma.

If now, on the one hand, we consider that the production of coffee is necessarily limited by the conditions of climate requisite for its growth, and that, on the other hand, the planter, in order to supply the demand which is constantly on the increase, is now obliged to deliver the crop as soon as it is gathered, we can do nothing but infer that the cause of the degeneration of coffee lies in the fact that it is supplied to the trade too soon, while it has not yet developed its constituent principles, and particularly its caffeine.

The inference from this is evident. If we wish that our coffee should regain the quality through which formerly it was considered such an exquisite beverage, we shall have to go back to the traditional process of only supplying it to the trade when the caffeine has acquired its full development, which can only be given to it by time, and by being kept in a green condition from one crop to the next.

We must not, however, expect that dealers are going to follow this rule, but, at any rate, consumers can do it for themselves, by only roasting and using coffee which they have kept in a green condition for at least a year.—N. Y. Herald (European Edition.)

Competition is keen and active, and the only way to meet it successfully is to buy from the best houses, and at lowest prices.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, June 2, 1892.

GROCERIES.

It cannot be said that there is anything erratic about the course of this market, which has preserved pretty much the same general features all spring. The incidents of this week and the general bearing of tendencies are in the same drift as ever. A common place run of trade is the report on all hands. Heavy groceries are singularly slow in getting into motion. The sugar trade is backward, orders in at this time being usually large and numerous in other years, everybody aiming to have his wants registered in time for early attention, so that there may be no dead-lock when the consumers begin their midsummer clamor for supplies. Tea has quite as good sale as it commonly has so near the end of the Japan crop year. Canned goods are active, Valencia raisins are active, but this term can hardly be applied to anything else. The weather has probably been somewhat to blame because things are not farther on, and roads are anything but good in country districts. Payments are spoken of rather favorably, but the complaint of them is that they are lighter than the wholesale trade like to have them, the sales, for which they are the remittance, being under the average spring volume.

COFFEES.

Advices from Rio state that former estimates of the new crop are now being curtailed in the reports of observers, that the consumption for 1891-92 has been the largest on record, and that if the new crop is delayed beyond July the shrinkage in the world's visible supply is expected to be a telling factor on the side of firmness. On spot the stock of choice Rios is still light, but the supply of common is quite equal to any requirements of the demand, the price ranging from 17½ to 21c. Java coffee retains its strong position and quotes at 28 to 35c. Mochas are 28 to 33c., and there is some rumor that an advance is to be made in Aden.

DRIED FRUITS.

The consumption of dried fruit appears to be on the increase, if the call for Valencia raisins be taken as an index of its growth. A good week's trade has been done in off-stalk Valencias, at prices ranging from 3½c. upwards. The attempt to take advantage of the rise in New York has so far not resulted in any marked advance in prices, the quantity of stock to be sold and the nearness of the season for domestic fruits both operating to hasten business. A very considerable movement of off-stalk fruit has consequently been made. The advance in New York has not caused any cessation of buying upon that market for Canadian account, and some thousands of boxes have found their way across the line since last report. It would seem that those purchases should give firmness to local prices. A considerable proportion of the stock of Valencias held in New York (40,000 boxes, it is estimated) is said to be of undesirable quality. Currants, though in fair demand, have not developed any new strength here, the price continuing to vary upwards from 4¾c. according to quality. Prunes are quiet at from 4½c. in casks, the lowest price being something of a drive. Nuts are steady at former quotations, which appear in Prices Current.

RICE AND SPICES.

Rice is coming somewhat more freely into request, the cheapness of currants and Valencia raisins tending to animate the demand. Ordinary is steady at 3⅞ to 4c.

Spices preserve their wonted tone of indifferent strength. The trade in them is also

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.

This market gains in activity and strength. Distribution is becoming concentrated, stocks in retail hands are low, and the demand is springing up from all quarters for the staple vegetables. It is easier to observe improvement now, for the reason that the supply being in much fewer hands, any increase in the call for stock is not scattered over a wide area of supply, and so is more easily perceived. Inquiry all the way from Vancouver is one of the incidents of the week's business, while a car or two have been made up also on westward account, and some good-sized parcels have been delivered by boat. Retailers have kept up their demand as well, and the bulk of the sundry invoices sent out have had their canned goods entry. The run from all hands is for assortments, but tomatoes and peas have been the largest part of the stock handled. The views of holders do not appear to have changed. They are firm at $1.05 for retailers' lots of choice brands, and though there is not much money in them at that price there seems no likelihood that they can or will be advanced. Fruits are being pushed on buyers' attention more prominently than at any former time since the last crop was put up, and as sellers are making the chief ado just now, the market must be reported in buyers' favor very decidedly. Plums, strawberries, and raspberries are being offered to jobbers at good prices. Prices Current show some changes in our quotations. Salmon is still virtually limited to one brand, which sells at $1.30 to $1.35. Lobster is quiet and steady at unchanged quotations.

The latest on American sardines says the New York Commercial Bulletin, is that packing operations on anything like a liberal scale will probably not be engaged in before July 15th. Prime quarter oils sold at $3.65 on the spot on Saturday.

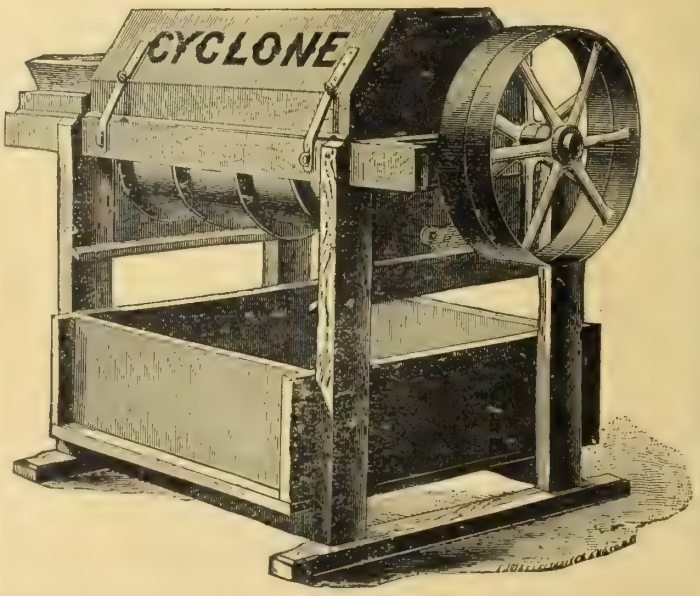
To Canning Men.-OUR CYCLONE PULP MACHINE



For making tomato pulp and preparing pumpkin and squash for canning is very well known to all the canners in the United States, and a few of them are in use in Canada. The high tariff has prevented their being used extensively heretofore.

We are now manufacturing these machines at Oakville, Ont., to enable our Canadian friends to obtain them without paying a heavy duty; but we shall make only a few of them unless ordered. Those who contemplate purchasing, should send their orders promptly to insure the saving of duty, as late orders will have to be filled from stock in the United States which will be subject to a 30 per cent duty.

very much of the same general character as ever.

SUGAR.

Accusations of cutting are still made in a vague way, both as to the extent of the alleged practice and the authors of it. The normal market price of granulated is undoubtedly 4½c. Any shading of this is for certain grades, as the product of the different refineries is not equable in quality, and so is quoted variably in some cases. There are houses which will not shade 4½c. for one make of sugar, who probably will do so for other makes. The quotation from Montreal is 4⅜c. Yellow is quoted here from 3½c. upwards. The price of sugar is now the lowest it has ever been. It would seem impossible almost for it to go lower, while all the chances are on the side of an advance. The chief chances are the large summer demand now approaching and the comparative shortage according to estimates in the beet root crop. The demand has not grown appreciably on this market since last week. One cause is, no doubt, the apathy of jobbers, who have little object in pushing business as compared with what they had last year. The seller's enthusiasm is lacking, and that makes a big difference in the volume of the sales.

Willett & Gray's Weekly Statistical says: Total stock in all the principal countries, at latest uneven dates, 1,482,967 tons, against 1,497,052 tons at same uneven dates last year.

Raws—The market is unchanged in price from last week, and transactions have continued to a fair extent. There is noticeable, however, more of a difference of opinion on sellers' part, for while many holders continue to meet the market, others think it for their interest to put their sugars into warehouses on a venture for better prices. In the meantime the weather in Cuba holds favorable for grinding, and stocks in the island are in excess of last year, notwithstanding the increased exports to date. Some damage has probably resulted to the Louisiana crop from the floods, but nothing like as serious as was anticipated at one time. Two regular steamers have been taken away from the West India line, shipments from some of those ports have been diverted to the United Kingdom to a larger extent this year than usual. Receipts in the United States are now running much behind last year, owing to the absence of imports from Europe.

Refined—A very notable increase in the demand is the feature of the week. Soft grades are oversold leading to a small advance. Meltings would have been increased but that deliveries of hards are helped out from warehoused sugars, which have accumulated some time ago. Grocers have preferred this season that refiners should carry the stocks until their busy season fully arrived, and now they are obliged to come into the market and rapidly renew their supplies. There is every indication of a very large business directly ahead, and to continue for several months. The National Convention of Grocers, referred to elsewhere will undoubtedly prove in the interest of an increased consumption of sugar and continued low and steady prices. No foreign granulated has been imported, and Scotch yellows only continue coming in small lots.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The trade in syrups is becoming like that in molasses on this market, and for some months has not counted for much either in volume or gain. A year or two ago each of the resident brokers used to sell three or four cars a month; now their sales are small in size and very few in number. Prices begin as low as ever, that is at 1¾c.

Molasses creates no interest on the part of anybody. The week's sales of New Orleans have been rather better than they were at from 26c. upward.

TEAS.

Green teas are very scarce and dear at all points, and the few grades necessary for business on this market are very firm. An evidence of the intrinsic firmness of this description of teas is shown by the fact that the New York people are buying some grades in London. Ceylons are very firm and in demand. Stocks of Japans above common are about exhausted and are firm. It will be from a fortnight to thirty days before any considerable additions are made to stocks from new crop tea. Jobbers have had a comparatively busy week of it in the tea trade. Values are not by any means so much in favor of the buyer as they were.

An exchange says the English market throughout the week has been a strong one, and competition has been brisk for all grades. Common kinds have been in better demand at harder rates, and all good liquoring teas are in request at distinct advances on late quotations. Pekoes above 9d continue scarce, and teas of this description realise full prices. The trade seems to confidently expect the present firm market to continue for some time.

According to the New York Bulletin, with fuller display and more careful examination of most samples of new crop Japan teas, the verdict is not quite so favorable as to quality, and parties who have preserved last year's samples say that so far as comparison will admit the goods range poorer. Nevertheless, there has been fair demand secured, and about 1,000 packages sold to arrive, mainly at 30 to 37c. with a few rumored somewhat higher, and one offering at 28 or 29c.

cans. This will ensure to lobster packers an absolutely perfect can, at a price no greater than the old stye " piece " one.

Sloan & Crowther are landing a full assortment of Lazenby & Sons preparations, including their celebrated pickles, which have gained such a favorable reputation.

Perkins, Ince & Co. received a letter from their Patras agent on Monday, advising them that the price of currants was much firmer in first hands and quoting equal to 4⅛c. for barrels laid down here.

Eby, Blain & Co. are offering to the trade "Sunshine" Soap put up by the Brewster Soap Co., Brooklyn, N. Y. This is said to be a superior article for all household cleaning purposes, especially sinks. bath tubs, metal ware, tinware, etc.

In this issue Lucas, Steele & Bristol, Hamilton, give a list of their canned fruits and vegetables, which will be found very full, and on which the firm are prepared to give excellent value. They will furnish quotations through their travellers or by correspondence. Their figures for assorted car lots are especially attractive.

Musson & Morrow, the well-known commission merchants and grocers' brokers in this city, have dissolved partnership. The business will be continued under the firm style of George Musson & Co., who will collect all outstanding accounts and assume all liabilities of the late firm. Mr. Morrow will carry on business in Montreal under the style John Morrow & Co.

In the fruit growing districts there is reported to be a splendid show of blossoms, and in some sections the raspberries have suffered from the winter's frosts, but strawberries everywhere are looking well. There is every probability that domestic preserving will be gone into more extensively than last year. This should be a hint to canned goods packers not to go as extensively into fruit as they have in the past. Remittances are slow.

PETROLEUM.

Canadian refined is steady at 14 to 15c. according to quantity and whether delivery is outside of or within the city. Trade is very quiet.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports : Petrolia crude $1.25 per barrel ; Oil Springs crude $1.25½ per bbl. With regard to the crude market no new features of any special interest have been developed since our last issue. The general tone of the business continues to have a quiet appearance with transactions largely in accordance with actual requirements of the manufacturing interests.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The condition of the butter market has not changed materially, the supply being still liberal beyond the urgent necessities of the moment, though not quite so excessive as it was a week ago. Buyers that make a specialty of select butter do not find the market over-supplied. The surplus is in grades that do not rank as choice. Rolls are the form in which the bulk of butter still comes to hand. The price runs from 12 to 14c., and the lots that bring the upper figure are usually small and always first-class. Some store tubs have got into stock, but they do not sell. Holders would gladly part with all they have at a shade under 12c. Good dairy tub would be at a premium if it could be got, but it is not forthcoming. Any of it would bring 14 to 15c. if offered.

New cheese sells at 10 to 10½c., in ordinary jobbing lots. On the track good colored stock brings 9¾c. Old cheese is getting into small compass, and is worth 11 to 11½c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—While the market is not essentially different this week from what it was last week, it must be noted that sellers are firmer in their ideas and refuse to accept less than $1.05 in cars even when $1 has been offered. Out of store prices are $1.10 to $1.20.

DRIED APPLES—Persist in their wearisome dulness at 3½c. in round lots and 4¼c. in retailers' lots.

EVAPORATED APPLES —Are very quiet at 6½c. for round lots and 7c. for ordinary lots.

EGGS—Are unchanged and plentiful at 10½c.

HIDES—The same quotations and the same general conditions continue, No. 1 green cows' being 4½c., and cured 5c.

HONEY—Few sales are heard of, and the price is weak at 8 to 9c. for extracted and 12 to 13c. for sections.

HOPS—A limited trade at 21 to 24c. for '91 stock has been transacted. Yearlings are steady at 16 to 18c.

ONIONS—Egyptian are $3 to $3.25 per bag and Bermudas at $2.25 to $2.50 per crate.

POTATOES—The market gets worse and worse. Cars have changed hands at 25c. a bag, and it is impossible to get more th 28c. on track, while the out of store price is 36c.

SKINS—The range is $1.25 to $1.50 for good sheepskins; Lambskins are 25c. ; Calfskius are 5 to 7c.

TALLOW—Rough is 2c,, refined 5½c.

WOOL—New fleeces are sparingly offered at 16c. Pulled quotes at 22c. for super and 25c. for extra.

PROVISIONS.

The market is very featureless. It has few transactions of moment to make note of, and prices are as steady as the movement.

BACON—Long clear is 7½ to 8c., smoked backs are 10c., bellies 9½ to 10c., rolls 8½ to 8¾c.

HAMS—Are steady at 10 to 10½c.

LARD—Pure is unchanged at 10 to 10½c. for tubs and pails. Compound is steady at 7 to 9c.

BARREL PORK—U. S. heavy mess is $13 to $14, Canadian $15. short cut $16 to $16.50.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef is 4½ to 5½c. in fore and 7½ to 8½c. in hindquarters, yearling lamb is 10 to 11c., Spring lamb is $4.50 to $6.50 per head, mutton 7 to 8c., veal 6 to 7½c.

GREEN FRUIT.

The weather until Tuesday was rather against activity in trade, but since then the sales have been generally satisfactory. The week's business has been productive of no material changes, if a stiffening in the valne of pineapples be excepted. Valencia oranges are steady at $6.50 to $7.50, Messinas, Catanias and Palermos at $4.75 to $5.25 in boxes and $2.50 to $2.75 in half boxes. California seedlings are $3.75, Navels $4.50 to $5, blood oranges $3 per half box. Lemons run at $2.75 to $4 acoordingly to quality,

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

The flour market has acquired no new features, the stagnation that has characterized it throughout the season being still a prevaling condition. Small orders and low bids from the east are all that can be credited yet to that source of the demand, while the large stocks held in store at the mills tend to co-operate with the efforts of buyers to hold down and further depress prices. Feed is in the usual rate of request, no new accession to the demand having developed from any quarter. Bran is easier, hay is higher.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are : Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5 ; strong bakers', $4.50; white wheat patents, $4.80; straight roller, $4.40; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.50.

Car prices are : Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5.15 ; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.45 to $4.70 ; Ontario patents, $4.00 to $4.25 ; straight roller, $3.65 to $3.90; extra, $3.50 to $3.80; low grades, per bag, $1.00 to $1.50

MEAL—Oatmeal is $3.80. Cornmeal is $3.50.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is $4.50 per barrel.

FEED—Bran is $12 to $13, shorts $14.50, mixed feed $22 to $25, cracked corn $1.10, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 32 to 32½c.

HAY—is fairly active at $13 to $13.50 for No.1 timothy and $10.50 to $11 for mixed.

STRAW—is steady at $6 to $6.50.

MONTREAL.

No large transactions are reported, although considerable enquiry for export is noted. We quote for local wants :— Patent spring, $4.85 to $4.95 ; patent winter, $4.55 to $4.85 ; straight roller, $4.30 to $4.45 ; extra, $3.95 to $4.05 ; superfine, $3.70 to $3.85; fine, $3.20 to $3.45; strong bakers, $4.45 to $4.70.

Western markets are firmer owing to an advance in oats, which gives a stronger tone to local values. We quote as follows :— Granulated, bbls., $3.90 to $4.00; Rolled, bbls., $3.90 to $4.00; Standard, bbls., $3.80 to $3.90; Granulated in bags, $1.90 to $2.00; Rolled in bags, $1.90 to $2.00; Standard, in bags, $1.80 to $1.90.

The feed market is fairly supplied with a good local demand and prices are firm. We quote : Bran, $14 to $14.50, shorts $16 to $17, and mouillie $22 to $24.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Flour –The market which last week showed indications of an advance, has sagged somewhat, and prices are unchanged. In some cases concessions have been made to effect sales. Manitoba is quoted $4.65 to $4.75; High grade Family $4.90 to $5; Medium Patents $4.65 to $4.80.

Oatmeal—Is unchanged, prices ruling steady at $4.10 to $4.25.

Corn Meal—The scarcity of corn has caused some of our mills to shut down. Prices are very firm since the recent advance at $2.85 to $2.95 with a good demand.

Oats—Are higher at 43 to 45c.

FEED—Is selling at $21 to $23 per ton.

MARKETS—Continued.

bananas are $1.25 to $2, the range for reds being $1.50 to $1.75. Pineapples are hard to get just now, and such as do come to hand are wasty. The price has accordingly gone up to 8c. as the inside figure, and from that the range is to 20c.

FISH.

Satisfaction is expressed by the fish men with current trade, which is fully up to the average expected at this time of year. The supply is limited to trout, whitefish and lake herring, of which the prices are given in Prices Current.

SALT.

Prices are steady, trade on the quiet side, and the indications point to the usual mild summer business. Quotations are given in Prices Current.

DRY GOODS.

Nothing materially affecting the market is the consequence of this week's business. Trade is getting into its midsummer quietude. In all lines prices are steady, and the reports of payments are unusually good.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, June 2, 1892.

GROCERIES.

The tone of the grocery market on the whole has shown an improvement during the week in all lines outside of heavies. Sugar is still dull owing to the cutting still going on, and unless some settlement is arrived at we fear the Guild will have to go. Molasses has been offered during the week at 27½c. to arrive, and with this state of things going on, business in such lines is flat as the majority of dealers are not pushing sales. In general groceries the trade say they are satisfied and that orders are showing up as good as at this period last year if not better. The French houses report trade good in their part of the country. Payments are met with promptness, and outside of the cutting the market is good.

SUGAR.

The local sugar market is still quiet, refiners claim to be still selling at 4⅜c., and to prove this, it is reported around town that one of them refused 4⅜c. less 2½c. for a 1,000 barrel lot. The wholesale trade are still selling single barrel lots at above figure, and with this state of affairs the market is not expected to improve till the wholesale trade arrive at a combined price. The feeling of some of the trade on the question is that it will soon have to be patched up or the Guild will not last. We quote: Granulated 4½ to 4 9-16c.; yellows, low grade 3½ to 3¾c., and yellows, bright 3¾ to 4¼c.

TEAS.

The local tea market has a fair movement in both Japans and blacks but most of the buyers are waiting for the new stock samples of which will arrive here in a few days. Advices from Japan state that the market is active and that owing to the rate of exchange the prices on Japans are a shade lower than last year. Dealers here state that the London market is dry and that it is hard to fill orders in either blacks or Japans. Advices from the same place state the market is firm on old stock teas. In the local market we have to note that a few lots of low grade Japans have changed hands at an advanced price. The steamer and rail freight this year will be 2½c. per pound and the sail and rail 1½c per pound from Japan.

MOLASSES.

The state of things in the molasses market is very unsettled and the cutting is still carried on with a vengeance, the last cut being 27½c. to arrive. The best possible figure it can be laid down for is 29.30c., that is allowing for shrinkage. We hear of a lot of some 500 puncheons having arrived at Quebec on the barque Florence; also that the first lot will arrive here on or about the 4th of the month. One of the brokers here to whom the first lot is consigned says he will auction off the first lot to arrive. Advices from the Island are that prices are firmly held and 12c. is quoted. We quote as follows:—Barbadoes, 35 to 38c., American 28c.; syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 40 to 45c for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Maple syrup and sugar have eased off in price during the week and is now held as follows under moderate business. We quote maple syrup in tins 60 to 64c. per gallon and in wood at 5c. per pound. Maple sugar is quoted at 7 to 8c. and fancy cakes at 8½c.

COFFEE.

Coffee still continues to furnish a fair jobbing trade, and quite a few small lots have changed hands during the week. Advices from New York still maintain the firmness noted in our last. We quote :—Rios, 18 to 20c.; Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c.; Jamaica, 19 to 21c.; and Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c Santos, 17½ to 19c.

DRIED FRUIT.

The tone of the dried fruit market has shown a decided improvement during the last few days, especially in Valencia raisins. The largest part of the demand is for old seasons stock which is scarce, and in consequence prices are firmly held, and it is unlikely that any decline will take place for some time. Stocks, in all hands, are pretty small and with the continued arrivals of fresh fruit an advance is not looked for in dried fruit. We hear of a lot of ordinary stock raisins being sold at 3c. We quote : Valencias, ordinary, 3½ to 4c.; No. 1 off stalk, 4½c.; layers, 6c. to 6¼c.; Patras currants, 5 to 5¼c; Vostizzas, in cases, 7½ to 8c.; provincial currants, 4⅞ to 5½c.; do. in half barrels, 5 to 6c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Since our last report the green fruit trade has shown a decided change for the better. Valencia oranges are in good demand at old prices and the same may be said of Messinas which are meeting with better enquiry. Lemons have advanced in price and are now selling at $2.00 to 3.50. The demand since our last has been good, locally the country enquiry has also shown a marked improvement. In pineapples the glut of the stock has at last been worked off, and a fair business is reported at old figures. The market is steady in strawberries and southern stock is meeting with fair sales at easier prices. Advices from the strawberry districts west, say the growers expect to have a good crop and that fine progress has been made during the past week. Bananas are firmer and meet with good sales. We quote: Valencia oranges $6 to $7; bloods in half boxes $2.75 to $3; Massinas $4 to $4.50; lemons $2 to $3.50; pineapples 7 to 15c. each, strawberries 18c. to 25c. per box, bananas $1 to $1.75 per bunch.

APPLES.

Under the present light stocks of apples are firmly held and only a fair business is being done on a basis of $4.50 to $5.00 per barrel for prime stock. There is no snap in the demand for evaporated and dried are on the same footing and prices are easier in both lines. We quote apples $4.50 to $5 per barrel; evaporated 6 to 7c.; dried 4 to 4½c., and evaporated peaches 12 to 13c. per tin.

HOPS.

The hop market remains dull but dealers are talking firm as the market will not be effected till the new stock arrives in the fall. Pressed hops have shown a decidedly better tone this week as quite a few small lots have been moved. We quote bulk 24c. and pressed 16 to 18c.

FISH.

In fresh fish the only lines that are having good call is haddock and salmon. Gaspe salmon is arriving more freely and sales have been reported at 20c. per lb. in cases. British Columbia is quoted at 15c. per lb. cod and haddock is selling at 3¼ to 3½c. lake trout and white fish bring 6½ to 7c. per pound. Smoked and pickled fish is quiet. We quote smoked Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.00 to $1.10; St. John's bloaters, per 100 box, 80c. to $1.00; boneless cod, large boxes, 6 to 7c.; do. small boxes 7 to 8c.; finnan haddies 7 to 8c.

We quote No. 1 herring, per brl., $4.50 to $4.60; lake trout, per half brl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.25 to $8.75; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

PROVISIONS.

There has been a fair demand for Canada short cut during the week, but the volume of business still continus slow at steady prices. We quote as follows :—Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.25 to $16.50; mess pork, western, per brl. $14.00 to $14.75; short cut, western, per brl. $15.50 to $17.00; hams, city cured, per lb. 10c. to 10½c; lard, Canadian, in pails 8⅞ to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9 to 10c; lard, com. refined, per lb. 7 to 7¼c.

BUTTER.

The butter market is dull and heavy. The receipts are still confined to fodder stock, so that export business is not noted, and the jobbing demand being small the tendency is heavy. Sales of creamery are reported at 18c., while Township dairy is held at 17 to 18c. Free offerings of roll stock are another depressing factor, as they are let go at all sorts of figures, and sales have transpired during the week as low as 13c. for fresh stock. We quote creamery at 18 to 18½c., Township dairy 17 to 18c., Western dairy 14 to 15c., and rolls 13 to 13½c.

CHEESE.

The cheese market is unchanged, the difference between white and colored stock being maintained. Business on spot, apart from the dealings at the wharf, was not important, but considerable variation was noted in regard to values. However, 10⅛c to 10¼c seems to be the idea for white, and the sales at the wharf were at 10⅛c, the offerings aggregating 400 boxes. Other sales in a regular shipping way were spoken of also, but the above range will cover them. For colored stock the feeling is easy at 9⅝ to 9¾c. Mail advices speak of strong markets in Great Britain, but for all that there are those who persistently talk lower prices. This is natural enough as the slump will have to come sooner or later, of course, but in the meantime business has to be done, and salesmen in the country naturally extract the last cent, it is quite likely, though, that some recent purchasers may lose money, and if precedent goes for anything the longer prices hold up the greater will be the decline when it does come.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., May 28.—There was an exciting board here to-day, ten buyers being present and were active bidders. Offerings were 1,698 boxee; 302 at 10 1-16c., 1,204 at 10c., 192 at 9 15-16c.

London, May 28.—Twenty-two factories offered 2,552 boxes May make. Sales, 962 at 9⅛c. 260 at 9 3-16c. 100 at 9¼c.

Canton, May 28.—At this market 400 cheese sold at 9 13-16c. 1,400 at 9¾c. and 350 tubs butter at 18½c.

EGGS.

Under heavy receipts and only fair demand the egg market continues very weak, and prices rule easier, 10 to 11c. being about the figure now. Packers are busy pickling, and find it hard work to keep their stores cleaned up.

GRAIN.

In grain there is some business in the coarser lines, but wheat is nominal. No. 2 hard Manitoba, 94 to 95c; No. 3 do., 83 to 86c.; No.2 Northern, 00 to 00c.; peas, 77c. to 78c. per 66 pounds; oats, 34½ to 35½c. per 34 pounds; corn, 57 to 60c., duty paid; feed barley, 40 to 42c.; barley, middling, nominal.

The stocks of grain and flour in store in Montreal show a decrease of 21,682 bush. of wheat, 3,858 barrels of flour, and an increase of 14,512 bushels of peas, 50,950 bushels of oats, 231 bushels of barley, 109 bushels of rye, compared with a week ago. and an increase of 220,681 bushels of wheat, 187,447 bushels of peas, 333,732 bushels of oats, 74,283 bushels of barley, 19,214 bushels of rye, 4,841 barrels of oatmeal, and a decrease of 16,766 barrels of flour, compared with a year ago.

The stocks of flour and grain in store in Montreal on the dates mentioned were as follows:

	May 28, 1892.	May 31, 1892.	May 30, 1891.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June, 2, 1892.

GROCERIES.

In spite of the fact that last week contained only five business days there seemed more activity among the jobbers than has been noticed for several weeks, there being a good demand for all lines of grocers. The lower grades of teas are in demand, sugars are unchanged, cornmeal is somewhat higher, rice is firmer and money is circulating more freely.

Dried Fruits—Currants are in fair demand the prices having sagged off somewhat the past week. cases are selling at 5 to 5½c. as to quality. Off-stalk Valencia raisins are selling at 5 to 5½c., layers at 6½ to 7c., prunes at 6½ to 7½c.

Rice—The market has a firmer tone, though without any actual advance 3¾ to 3⅞c. being the selling prices.

Teas—There is a better demand for the lower grade teas, and stocks are getting low. In the higher grades there is no change. Oolongs are moving slowly.

Sugars—Trade in sugars the past week shows a slight improvement, without any change in values. Granulated is quoted at 4⅜ to 4½c., extra at 3⅝ to 3¾c., yellows at 3⅜ to 3½c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Eggs—Find a ready sale at 9½ to 10c.

Potatoes—Are still a drug on the market. Present prices are 80c. to $1 per barrel.

Dried Apples—Are selling at 4½ to 5½c. Very few evaporated are selling; quotations are 8 to 8½c.

Onions—The kinds that are selling are Egyptian at 2¾ to 3c. per lb., Bermuda at $1.80 to $2 per crate.

Hides—Are rather weaker at 3 to 3½c.

Apples—Very few are offering. They readily sell at $3.50 to $4 for choice stock.

Butter and Cheese—Butter is lower in price at 11 to 20c. New cheese is 11 to 12c.

PROFIT IN QUICK PAYMENTS.

The question "Are quick payments profitable?" can only be answered in one way. They certainly are, both to the buyer and to the seller. For the buyer a saving of interest, at a high rate easy to be calculated, and for the seller a prompt settlement of the account. This cancels the risk, besides giving him ready money to use in his business. The interesting part of the question is, however, not whether such payments are profitable, but why we do not find more firms taking advantage of them. This opens up nearly the whole of the very large subject of general credits, if not of the conduct of business. At the present time I will undertake to discuss only that part of the subject which concerns the reason why discounts are not more often taken, rather than what is to be gained by so doing.

This, as hinted above, carries with it the discussion of methods of business. Lack of capital is, perhaps, more often assigned as a reason for inability to discount one's purchases than anything else, and this, to the man who sees no way of increasing his capital, appears an insuperable difficulty. Those persons, however, who have had the pleasure of seeing a large business grow under their hands from very small beginnings, have learned that there are other ways to practically increase capital without actually having ready cash put in from outside sources. This is, perhaps, the portion of the subject which will prove, if not the most interesting, certainly the most valuable to the ordinary retail merchant. Good collecting—the calling in of funds which have for a long time been locked up in outstanding accounts, perhaps some of them being due from what the merchant is in the habit of considering the best class of trade, and which he fears to make much of an effort to collect from, owing to the danger of incurring ill-will and perhaps losing patronage—good collecting, I repeat, is essential. He should remember that there is no money made on the sale until the account is paid, and that over it stands an interest charge which slowly but surely eats up the profit. Often in this best class of accounts are found those which for one reason or another drop into the lower class, and a fair proportion of them are never paid at all. The nearer the seller who has not an unlimited cash capital can arrange to do a strictly cash business himself, the more possible it will be for him to do his buying for cash.

Another method of increasing the ready capital at one's command is by turning old stock into cash. There are few stores, if any, in which goods do not accumulate which are not easy to sell. Changes of styles, broken assortment, to say nothing of actual mistakes in buying, all contribute to this end. A certain amount of stock must necessarily be carried, but no matter how carefully this part of the business is looked after, there are accumulated goods which originally cost money, but which it is hard to again turn into it. Every dollar of such stock that is sold furnishes the merchant with a dollar with which to buy goods which can be turned in a short time, thus giving him the cash with which to discount new purchases. Another cell in which is locked up many a good dollar is that of too large a stock. In these days when most of the business is done by travelling salesmen, who are selected in the main simply for their ability to sell the most goods, it is not always easy to confine one's purchases within the limit originally dictated by the best judgment. Added to this is the demand which every storekeeper has often had from people coming in every day and asking for an article which he has not on his shelves. It is easy at such times to think that if the wished-for article were only in his store an easy sale and sure profit might have been made. Everyone of our most successful business men has, however, learned that there are some sales which it is more profitable to lose than to make, very largely because the profit on an occasional transaction is more than compensated for by the interest on the stock of goods which he would be compelled to carry, and from which he would sell only at rare intervals.

These are only a few of the many methods of increasing an active capital which will suggest themselves to the mind of a man who gives the matter careful thought. The reward which comes to the merchant who conducts his business on a cash basis is so ample that it should stimulate an intelligent effort on the part of those who have heretofore thought it impossible to accomplish.—Ex.

An oatmeal mill is in process of erection at Westminister, B. C.

On the 31st, Trenton was visited by a disastrous fire, this time Saylor's block falling a prey to the flames. The origin of the fire is a mystery. The ground floor was occupied by W. Clarke, grocer. He is insured for $400. The building cost over $5,000, on which there was an insurance of $900 only.

We would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of the National Cash Register Co. on another page in this journal. This enterprising firm have over 40,000 of their "Silent Cashiers" in use in all classes of business, and their output exceeds 1,000 machines per month. Their cash register is becoming universally recognized as an absolutely necessary adjunct in a retail business.

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

JOHN BAKER EDWARDS, P.L.D., D.C.L., F.C.S.,

Public Analyst for the District of Montreal, and Professor of Chemistry.

CHEMICAL LABORATORY, MEDICAL FACULTY, MCGILL UNIVERSITY,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

Noise is not business.

The Toronto division of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild met on Friday evening. No very momentous question was before the meeting and the proceedings were routine and unimportant. There does not appear to be very unanimous belief in the Guild on the part of the members. Its relinquishment of the attempt to stem the tide of independence as to the price of sugars has deprived its doings of most of the interest that used to attach to them in the eyes of the retail trade. That does not detract from its usefulness, however. The regulation of credit, discount, settlements, etc., is an important function of the united wholesale trade, that can be better discharged now than it could before. There is not now cause for irritation against professed unity in support of prices, that formerly made everything the Guild did rather unpopular with the trade. An association of wholesalers may do nearly everything it ever attempts to do except fix prices, without rousing the animosity of the trade.

The effects of the little skirmish among the starch manufacturers last winter are beginning to appear among the retail trade. In that burst of generous emulation profits were foregone, not entirely for the sake of the retailers, but nevertheless to their ultimate and supposed sole advantage. But they are now admitting consumers to a participation in their bargains, and the story of retail price-cutting comes from various parts of Ontario at the same time. The experience of buyers who thus unduly loaded themselves against the future, because prices lost all their stay for the moment, points a moral, but does not particularly adorn the tale of speculative buying that goes with it. It shows what speculative buying leads to in the grocery trade now-a-days. The time was when the chief returns of the trade were derived from timely purchases of round lots. But now the secret of business is to turn over capital as often as possible, not to let it lie inert in a store of goods bought at a favorable moment. When any variation is made from this rule, it is in view either of a specially good season or a sufficient small jobbing outlet, that makes the recovery of capital a matter of short time and no uncertainty. The overladen purchasers of cheap starch have now a white property on their hands that is about as hard to push as an elephant, for who is going to buy starch simply because it is cheap? When people want starch they'll buy it; they will not be persuaded first to buy it and then want it, as they might be and frequently are in the case of sugar and other commodities whose consumption is limited by prices. But in the case of starch, the production would not be increased probably if 2c. were taken off the price. The cutting on the part of either manufacturers or retailers has not perhaps caused one man to shorten the interval between clean shirts, or made business any sprightlier at the laundries. The cut in Valencia raisins was a fertile cause of trade, but that in starch, with normal prices on the basis they were, never could develop an increase in the demand. Therefore, why do retailers not keep all the advantage of recovery to themselves?

The favorable reception which Indian and Ceylon teas have met in nearly all quarters during the past two years, is graphically and statistically shown in a circular issued by Gow, Wilson & Stanton, tea brokers, London, and handed to us by Steel, Hayter & Co. of this city. A pyramid of colored blocks on the first page exhibits the relative consumption of these teas in all the countries in the world that use them, with the exception of Great Britain, which consumes four or five times as much as all the rest of the world. Next to Great Britain last year were the Australian colonies which bought 7,651,000 lbs., considerably more than half of which were Indian teas. Canada stands fifth on the list, Great Britain being excluded, this country in 1891 having taken 1,090,000 lbs., of which 680,000 lbs. was Indian tea. In fact, in all the countries represented on this diagram, with the exception of Germany, Austria, France, Mauritius, Russia—and these countries are minor buyers—the heavy end of the consumption has been on the side of Indian, Ceylon tea not showing such large figures in any of the other countries, though in the above named it received by far the larger share of attention of the two teas. The total consumption in all countries, excluding Great Britain, was about 13,000,000 lbs. of Indian and 7,000,000 lbs. of Ceylon tea. This shows that about 20,000,000 lbs. of British grown teas were imported in 1891 by countries other than Great Britain. The year before, the quantity so distributed was but 14,000,000 lbs. This is taken as an evidence that the teas of India and Ceylon are doing in other parts of the world what they are in Great Britain, namely, displacing the poorer China teas. Large expectations are built upon the opportunity that the Chicago Exhibition will afford for introducing these teas in the United States, where their present foothold is inexplicably slight. A government grant and a liberal subscription in Ceylon have been made for a suitable representatation of that island's tea at Chicago Exhibition, but India has so far taken no steps towards making an opportunity of the same occasion. The estimated crop of Indian and Ceylon teas this year is 210,000,000 lbs., of which Great Britain is expected to take 170,000,000 lbs. Canada is looked upon as one of the most promising outlets, where the total yearly tea consumption is nearly 4 lbs. per head. The circular contains also a chromatic representation of the progress from 1890 to 1891, made by Indian and Ceylon teas in all countries outside of Great Britain. Persia, though not the largest in this list of consuming countries, made the most startling increase in its imports of Indian, having taken in 1890 not quite 700,000 lbs., and in 1891 having taken 2,400,000 lbs. All other increases, in both Indian and Ceylon, were more gradual.

CHEAP SUGAR.

If rumor errs not, there have been some very good bargains made in granulated sugar by a number of retail grocers who usually place big orders for the summer trade. The state of the local market appears to be peculiarly favorable to buyers of this calibre at the present moment. The initial cause may perhaps be traced to purchases, still in course of delivery, made by wholesalers as early as March last at 4 7-16c. and similar full prices. So far there is no sign that prices will immediately rise from the gentle declivity into which they gradually sank after that quotation had its day. Holders of contracts made then upon the expectation of an early advance have consequently to sell at current prices or not to sell at all. They cannot refrain from selling sugar if they want to do a grocery business, and this sugar, bought at 4 7-16c., is now selling at 4⅜c. This does not necessarily betoken unbelief in the prospects of better prices in the future, but means that the sellers want to be in business. Some special sales of sugar, along with other goods, are reported at very low prices, notably one at 4¼c. for a 50 barrel lot that formed part of a large mixed order. It is necessary to say of deals of this kind that the sugar is not equal in quality to the finest grades. The varieties of quality play their part in determining quotations perhaps fully as much as the quantity offered.

Sugar is sold these days for the sake of trade in other lines; if it were sold simply for its own sake it would generally be a source of loss. As in the times when the sugar clause was in force, jobbers frequently sold yellows at a loss or without a profit, in conjunction with granulated, on which they had to make a profit, so now-a-days they sell sugar with little regard to profit if they can make a little money on something else along with it. The sugar trade is making profits rather the resultant on lump purchases of balancing gains against losses than they ever were before. A wholesale salesman finds he can figure out a profit of say $50 on a composite order in which sugar is an element. It makes little odds to him how he gets at that result, whether by selling the sugar, as well as everything else called for by the order, at a normal price, or by selling the sugar at a cut price, and something else—tea for example—at a slightly advanced price. The equation of profits is what the salesman has to keep his eye on.

But while there is this means of redressing profits on a mixed order, there is nothing to help out the jobber's margin in the case of an order for sugar only, which must be taken generally without profit or let go past. One jobber may be able to buy 1,000 barrels when the market favors purchasers. His competitor may be able to take only 100 barrels then, or may have a lot of stock bought when prices were higher. But that is no reason why the latter should go out of business. He is going to sell sugar as well as he can, but he is going to sell it. To cease handling the leading staple in its most active season would mean withdrawal from business. The terms of competition on this market since the suspension of Clause 2 are a factor in favor of the buyer, which will be likely to continue on his side, no matter how much the fundamental position of sugar may change.

A FRUITFUL SUMMER LINE.

In a former article dealing with the relation of pedlars to the fruit trade, the great growth of that trade in recent years was incidentally referred to. It is a fact that the volume of the business done in this country has grown by bounds every year during the last decade. Transporting facilities have been extended and developed remarkably in that time, both at centres of production and over regions of distribution. Time, that speedy destroyer of all descriptions of unpreserved fruits, has been pretty well eliminated as a necessary condition of transit, competition and eagerness for business on the part of carriers has made freights low, careful picking and packing have enabled shippers to put sound stock upon markets two or three thousand miles from the place of growth, and all this has ministered to cheapness, this stimulated consumption, which in turn reacted upon prices and made them lower. The consequence of all this is that fruit which formerly rotted away on the trees and vines is now consumed, and orchards, groves and plantations have multiplied to keep up with the demand. Shippers have made it a rule to pick the fruit while it is on the green side, to pack it in a way that exposure to chances of bruising or other accidents is guarded against, the express companies have had special cars constructed for various kind of fruit, and all is done to put the distant consumer in the position of a native of the fruit-growing country, so far as means of getting fruit in perfect condition are concerned. A few years ago the banana shipments to this market were a matter of bunches, now they amount to five and six cars a week throughout the active consuming season.

The grocery trade is becoming every year a more considerable channel for the sale of both domestic and foreign green fruits. One store after another took it up, and none ever dropped it after once beginning it, unless to quit the grocery business. There is money in the fruit trade, and that fact has more than dawned upon the grocers, who not so many years ago looked on at the little confectioners of the country selling about all the fruit that was sold in stores outside of cities. If the grocers had not taken hold of it they would have seen those little confectioners wax prosperous with the results of a trade for the development of which there were so many agencies at work. The cheapening of sugar gave an immense impetus to the fruit trade, and doubtless gave the grocers some hint of the importance of it. Since they had so much sugar to handle without a profit deserving of the name, they might as well make a little money on the fruit for which this sugar was bought. At all events, those who took hold of it discovered its importance, and found that there was a big demand for fruits to be consumed as well as to be canned during the the shipping season. Naturally, when consumption had grown to such proportions the grocer would be looked to for stock. The lady of the house, calling at the grocery to buy her tea, coffee, sugar, etc., would think of the bananas, and other fruits that now are used on the breakfast table as generally almost or quite as is porridge.

Many leading grocers now declare that their summer fruit sales show more profitable returns for the money engaged, than anything else they handle. But these men make a special study of the business. They know that there is no other line in which they can turn over a hundred dollars so often, and every time with profit, in so short a period. But to do this with the maximum of benefit, it is necessary that a man shall know both how to buy and sell. One rule of buying is: Take only good fruit, unless you have a trade that you can depend on for the absorbing of inferior fruit. Some old well-established traders have such a connection, and can make a profitable specialty of trash or stock that tends to degenerate swiftly into that condition. But in towns and smaller places, it is wise to leave that grade alone. The loss is frequently not a mere percentage but the whole thing. You must see your customers ahead of you before touching it. The next point about buying is: Buy often rather than much. It is one of the results of the present state of transportation that a trader can do this. It is better to pay a little more and buy perishable fruit every day, than to buy twenty-four hours ahead of requirements for the sake of a discount. This is applicable to such fruits in particular as cherries, berries, plums, peaches, etc. Those traders who are so situated as to be able to see their fruit before taking it, as the majority of the grocers in this city are, have a great advantage that they cannot afford to neglect. Few of them do, as the throng to be found at the wharfs when the fruit boats come in attest.

The selling of the fruit calls for resourcefulness and care. The stock will not keep long enough for the slow man who is always going to fix up things to-morrow. It is the active man of the present moment who makes money out of fruit. He knows the value of assorting and displaying his stock. Untidiness has no place in his economy. Clean packages, nice, fresh, full fruit, with polished coats on his apples, the down on the peaches preserved as well as may be, are the rule with his shop front. Brilliant, artistic labels cannot for a moment compare with the fruits of nature, when they are fresh, for attractiveness of effect, if a skilful stock displayer has the handling of the latter. A customer's taste or appetite is captured and his purse opens. But keep in mind always the eternal fitness of things, and do not mate a cabbage and a pear, or put alongside of each other a bunch of onions and a basket of strawberries. Some who make a specialty of their fruit trade feel that it is better to afford a handsome tray upon which to pile a few peaches to bring them out in the full templation of their beauty. Others think an old tin pan answers the purpose quite as well, but they are wrong. A rule in selling that must be acted upon promptly is : Clear out goods that begin to depreciate in quality. On Saturday night prices have usually to take in a reef, but buyers in large centres know that special prices are expected by the public on that evening, and go in for cheaper stock for the occasion.

Traders in outside towns have a better chance to make some money out of summer fruit than city grocers have, because they are less beset by pedlars. In cities, the pedlars come in handy for the taking up of dead ripe fruit, of which there is a proportion in nearly all shipments. These they dispose of on the curb at prices that naturally stagger the grocer in the store, but the difference of quality in the fruit is fully equal to the difference in price.

THE FRUIT CROP PROSPECTS.

M. P. Clemes, of Clemes Bros., wholesale fruit merchants in this city, returned on Saturday from a trip that took in the leading fruit districts of Ontario. A summary of his observations, elicited in a short talk with him, is given substantially as follows :

The outlook in the Niagara district is excellent. The weather between this and ripening is of course an unknown factor, but there is nothing in present indications to bode shortage of yield. There is considerable curly leaf on the peach trees, caused by cold east rains and raw weather afterwards. It is not apprehended though that anything will come of this, if generally good weather holds for the remainder of the season. The apple bloom is very fine. The strawberry prospects have not been affected by the cold rains. It is only in the picking season that these chill showers can harm that fruit, as then they make it soft for shipping. About Queenston the berries are large and healthy. The first shipment is expected early next week. The strawberries in the Oakville district are making a very good show for a full crop. The raspberry crop is likely to be a short one in that vicinity, as a great amount of damage was done by frost, which is likely to reduce the yield about 50 per cent. The open fall caused a growth. The circulation of sap in these thin twigs was of course at the expense of the parent plant, and the fall growth not being hardy the sap was frozen in it and the vine was damaged. Pears. cherries and plums promise well. The grape fruit has not set yet, and while the vines are in fine condition, the farmers are worrying about the cold rains. Mr. Clemes makes particular note of the fact that the quantity of tomato plants set out this spring is enormous.

REFLECTIONS ON TEA AND MEN.

Men are like Tea. Some, like the coarse-leafed wiry Ceylons or Assams, are not very artistic in appearance, but when one gets to know them thoroughly, their virtues and strength and "draw" are as potent and impressive, and one always has a desire to meet them again and see more of them.

Others again are like a fine tippy Congou, very showy and pleasant to gaze upon, produce an agreeable sensation when coming into contact with them, but for all their pleasantness they haven't the draw that makes a lasting friend, they lack grit, snap, pungency, and require a good deal of coddling, "building-up" to make them enjoyable.

And then there is the coarse, very coarse-looking Formosa Oolong. How necessary one often finds the presence of such a rough-and-ready chap with his heart full of the milk of human kindness, an absolute necessity to one's existence, some one that puts a little aroma, a little fragrance into one's prosy, matter-of-fact, money-grubbing existence, who points out the pleasant things about us, the beauties of such things as would escape us in our scramble for the almighty sheckles. I feel that we all need more fine Formosa in our tea of Life, to bring out the fragrance that lies dormant in so many of our natures. Friend, try a little Oolong in yours, and see if you will not be a little more agreeable to your business associates, your family and your friends.

I never could work up any enthusiasm on these "fishy" Japans, except possibly it be the first May pickings, just coming in, by the way. They lack the lasting qualities of the friendly blacks, seem so insipid and too delicate for a Westerner's virile constitution. They haven't body enough to sustain themselves, let alone a human being with a good digestive apparatus. I admit the first pickings look very clear and pretty in the cup, and have a certain, fascinating new-mown-hay-sort-of-a-smell, but that is all. So with some men ; on first acquaintance they are very taking,pleasant and agreeable, and one could enjoy their company for weeks continuously ; their very "freshness" is agreeable, but let them cool off and they are very, very flat, and one soon finds them a bore. They stand absolutely alone, there is nothing one can do to bring back the old enthusiasm. Now I am not a broker for a "Lunnun" house,and therefore not financially prejudiced against Japans, and although I have several times had the pleasure of tasting some of the elite of the Mikado's tea gardens, as high as $7 per pound, I am sorry to say the most of them that reach this market are low grades, without caste (the cast-withouts, in fact) and seem to fluctuate around the lumber-camp price of 25 cents. They will not blend with anything so far discovered, except possibly it be Muskoka hay. I'll bet a dollar to a doughnut it wasn't a cup of Japan tea Cowper had in mind that "Winter's Evening" when he sang

Now stir the fire, and close the shutters fast,
Let fall the curtains, wheel the sofa round,
And while the bubbling and loud-hissing urn
Throws up a steamy column, and the cups
That cheer but not inebriate, wait on each.

One often finds men like these Japan teas, unbendable and unblendable. They won't blend with anything or anybody, they are pleasant, stylish, agreeable when new, but there is a something about them that forbids the approach of a vestige of a smile, or familiar, hearty greeting, they are very stiff, reserved and proud, veritable Dombey Seniors.

Now what I do like is a mixed or blended tea, a blended man, a man whose nature is many sided and whose characteristics individually are good, and whose entity is much better, a man who has about 4 lbs. each of the fine Pekoe Congou and choice Moning of good sound judgment, 4 lbs. of the Formosa Oolong of pleasure, enjoyment and amiability, 2 lbs. of the fine Ceylon Pekoe of backbone and manliness, 1 lb. of the fine Assam Pekoe of grip and staying power,and 1 lb. best Himalayan drawing qualities, in his composition. Friend, try this mixture for your trade, and if your tea business doesn't give satisfaction, I'm not a prophet nor the son of a prophet. And, by the way, are you blended in this way ?

HEC. SECORD.

A PLEASANT SAIL.

In response to an invitation by Smith & Keighley a large number of the members of the Board of Trade and their friends enjoyed a sail on the lake on the steamship Campana, which has been undergoing extensive repairs during the past winter. Shortly after three o'clock the Campana left Geddes' wharf on her trip, going through the western channel and into the lake south of the Island, those on board having a splendid view of the boats of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, which were out for a cruise. The improvements on the Campana's machinery have made the boat wonderfully steady, scarcely any roll or tremor being perceptible on Saturday. A lunch was served in the roomy cabin, which was greatly appreciated by the guests. It was intended that the Campana should leave for Chicago on Saturday night, but the contractors not having got through their work she did not start until Monday.

No young man can possibly have mistaken his calling who finds in it what the world wants done

NOTES TAKEN ON THE ROAD.

John Forsythe, Dartmouth, N. S., says his trade is good, and he thinks the trade of the town is still in a healthy condition.

A. S. Doyle & Co., Halifax, have opened a branch store on Lower Water street, which they have fitted up with a good deal of taste and with a full stock of groceries.

Mrs. Lawlor, Dartmouth, N. S., who has gone out of the grocery business, is not in robust health, and has considerable property in Dartmouth which needs her undivided attention, which is the cause of her selling out.

G. A. Orman, Dartmouth, N.S., says trade is fair. He keeps down expenses and does not feel a slack day like those in other places, who have lots of clerks and delivery waggons to keep whether they have trade or not.

C. W. Outhit, Halifax, is one of the leading commission merchants in that city. He handles all kinds of foreign and domestic fruits in their season, butter, cheese, eggs, etc. He says he has good trade for Ontario poultry in the fall and winter.

E. M. Walker, Dartmouth, N. S., has built a new store on the site of his old grocery stand, with large plate glass front, and all modern improvements, which make this one of the handsomest and most convenient places of business in Dartmouth.

Samuel Thomson, Dartmouth, N. S., now occupies the premises of I. Lawlor & Son, Dartmouth. Mr. Thomson is a natural salesman, and with his genial manners and pleasing attention, he will hold the late firm's trade and no doubt add many new customers to it.

John Wisdom & Son, grocers, Dartmouth, N. S., have bought out a dry goods concern, and now have two stores, the trade of which they can connect to advantage. Besides, it kept a large stock of goods from being thrown on the market, the result of which is demoralizing to the business of any town or city.

J. H. Nisbet, of the firm Nisbet & Drake, Halifax, has been confined to the house for some weeks by sickness, and he is not now fully in condition to be at the store, but his absence made them short-handed and he felt impelled to make the trial, for their business was crowding. It is to be hoped it will not prove an injudicious move on his part.

J. F. Courtney, Halifax, has a very desirable location for his grocery business, and the steady trade both permanent and transient, is very large. He carries a full line of standard and fancy groceries, canned goods of all kinds, fruits and confectionery, and being a business man, it is not surprising to find him well qualified to select THE CANADIAN GROCER as his trade paper.

The stock of teas on hand at the time of the Temple failure in Halifax, is being closed out by the British American Bank through John Mackey, St. John, N. B. Mr. Mackey has undertaken to close it out in a given time, and is giving some great bargains in teas through Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. He claims a Montreal traveller undertook to play the same role, and was warned by the bank against such misrepresentation, as Mr. Mackey had the sole charge and sale of that stock.

James A. Gass has admitted his son into partnership under the firm name of Jas. A. Gass & Son, and with that confidence in the young man's business ability, which his training has given him, he feels somewhat relieved of the responsibility which the conduct of so large a business as his has been to him. Messrs. Gass & Son carry a large stock of fine groceries in connection with one of the largest stocks of crockery, glassware, plated ware, etc., in the city. All this in the face of keen competition, by such firms as M. H. Ruggles & Co., who were located directly opposite, and who are now seeking to compromise with their creditors at 35c. secured, or 50c. on the dollar unsecured.

The assignment of J D. Ross, Truro, N. S., it is thought will be wound up without the usual detriment to trade that necessarily follows the throwing of a large stock of goods on the consumers at very low prices. The stock will be offered by tender, and no doubt the leading grocery men in town will take hold of and merge it with their own. This would seem to be a very wise move on their part, as nothing is to gained by having it closed out as a bankrupt stock at auction.

T. Gentle's grocery house, Dartmouth, N. S., is about 18 years old, having started that length of time ago to do business on business principles. It has been a success. The two brothers, who now carry on the business,pay cash for all they buy, and are thus able to make fair profits out of discounts and bargains offered to them for cash. This is a great advantage, as some grocery men are obliged to pay full prices because they must have the time, and such men are the supporters of banks and money lenders, and must in the nature of events be hard pushed at all times.

Another bad failure in Halifax is that of J. & H. Kent, dealers in tea, crockery, and light groceries. While it may be thought bad for some it has no doubt removed from among the better class of trade a source of great annoyance, for, like the Temple and Ruggles houses, they preyed on legitimate business, and very little sympathy will be felt for the wholesale houses that have fastened such rotten concerns right in the midst of some first class stores in the same lines. It would seem incredible that a note, given by J. & H. Kent as accommodation paper and endorsed by W.L. Temple, could be discounted in any bank in this city, but I learn this has often been done. In Temple's case there was some excuse for giving credit, as he had used his uncle's endorsement to the extent of $20,000 or more, but I cannot learn that this latter house ever had any backing. The original firm was Gladwin & Kent, the former selling out to the Kents, and he is now the preferred creditor for purchase money. The assignee can find no book accounts of bills payable, or notes payable, or much pretence of book keeping of any kind. Baldwin & Co. are large creditors of this firm.

D. Gunn, grocer, Truro, N. S., is pushing an enterprise in company with D. C. Slack, that will add much to the enjoyment of amusement lovers in that town, it being nothing short of a new opera house, which will be opened some time in August Applications have already been made by leading opera companies for that occasion. Mr. Gunn has successfully catered to the wants of the Truro population for the past fifteen years, and if his good judgment and taste are exercised in the selection of first-class entertainments for the new house in future as they have been in the selection of goods in the grocery line for his patrons in the past, the citizens of Truro will be more than pleased to give it their hearty support.

THE DUTY ON COAL OIL.

Dr. Mcdonald, M.P. for Huron, thinks coal oil is a burning question, and he wants some light on the subject with a view of securing more light, better light and cheaper light for the people of Canada. On Monday he moved for a return showing the quantity of coal oil imported into Canada from July, 1891,to May 1892. The total yearly consumption of coal oil in Canada is 15,000,000 gal's. of which 10,000,000 gallons is the product of our wells, and 5,000,000 is imported from the United States. The duty collected on the American oil is $364,000. Add to this the cost of inspection, barrels, profit of wholesalers and retailers on the extra outlay (over and above net cost of oil) and it increases the duty to the consumer to $783,000, or a duty of 15½ cents a gallon instead of 7 1-5 cents. If the duty were removed, a further saving of $700,000 would be effected by bringing down the price of the Canadian product to 7 cents per gallon, the price of American coal oil—or a total saving of $1,483,000. There are 270 men engaged in the coal oil industry in Canada at an average salary of $470 per year. The value of the tools and machinery is $516,000. It would pay the Canadian government to superannuate every person engaged in that industry, and give each of the 20 refiners a yearly allowance of $10,000, the 270 men their full salaries, and buy the tools and machinery at their full value, for it would still leave a balance of $647,000 to the good. Mr. Mcdonald favors a reasonable and equitable protection to that industry, so long as the National Policy is to be kept in force, but not a protection of 100 to 125 per cent, as is now the case.

[This department is made up largely of items from travellers and retailers throughout the Dominion. It contains much interesting information regarding the movements of those in the trade. The editor will thank contributors to mail copy to reach the head office Tuesday.]

F. S. Harrison's store and house at Portland, Ont., were destroyed by fire on the 1st instant

The wholesale grocers of Hamilton have decided to close at 5 o'clock during the summer months.

If our readers look at page 25 they will find a question that will be of some interest to them.

Mr. W. H. Weston, grocer, of Stanley St., London, Ont., has been appointed issuer of marriage licenses.

The Archat Warden reports that the experiment of shipping live lobsters from Arichat to Boston has proved a success.

Arthur P. Tippet, manufacturers' agent, St. John, N. B., and Toronto, is looking for some commodious offices in the latter city.

The Snow Drift Baking Powder Co. of Brantford has shortened its name, and henceforth will be known as The Snow Drift Co.

A fire took place in Oshawa, the other night, between 9 and 10 o'clock, in the rear part of Mr. Crysdale's grocery store. Mr. Crysdale's stock is very badly damaged.

The Whiting Cash and Parcel Carrier is being placed in the principal business houses throughout the Dominion, and is invariably giving satisfaction. See ad. in next issue of this journal.

A Kingston merchant makes a statement that there are only 25 per cent. of the men in business in that city who were there twelve years ago. The remaining 75 per cent. have died or left the city.

Harry Harman's address, as is noted in this week's change in his advertisement, is now Room 1204, The Temple, Chicago, Ill. There the clever exponent of art in the shop will give attention to all orders or inquiries that may be sent to him.

Another contemporary has appropriated the article on Badly Tied Parcels, written in THE GROCER several months ago. This has now been wrongly claimed by two journals and mistakenly credited twice. We cannot get our imprint on every reprint from our pages, but we humbly protest that we are entitled to the mention that courtesy usually allows in such cases.

Thos. Alton's store at Clear Creek was broken into the other night and the thief carried away upwards of $50 worth of goods. The till was broken open and loose change to the amount of $5 was also taken. The thief gained an entrance by breaking in the back storehouse door and then breaking in the door leading to the store proper. The burglar selected a good night for his work, it being dark and raining. Mr. Alton offers $25 reward for the apprehension of the thief.

What is society to do with offenders like Jane Cakebread, a wretched woman, sixty two years of age, who was charged with drunkenness at the North London police court the other day for the two hundred and forty fifth time? Disregarding Mr. Fred. Leslie's popular advice for once, we should say that instead of sticking to the whiskey she is used to, the victim to alcohol should try, say Godes-berger.—London Ev'g News and Post.

A new firm, Grant, Oxley & Co., composed of M. C. Grant and Harold Oxley, has commenced in the commission business in Halifax, N.S. Mr. Grant has just retired from the firm of Black Bros. & Co. and enters into his new relations with many years of practical experience, which will doubtless prove both beneficial to his firm and business friends. Mr. Oxley is a well-known and popular young man in the business community, and it is therefore a foregone conclusion that this firm will have a successful career.

J. P. Clemes, of Clemes Bros., met with an accident the other night from which he is suffering some painful but temporary injuries. He is fortunate in escaping more terrible consequences. During the night, some time after all the household had retired, the odor of gas led him to investigate to find out if any of the jets were open. He brought a burning match into the oven of a gas stove, and there the leak proved to be, for the instant the match was introduced an explosion followed, the flame enveloped Mr. Clemes' head and his face was badly burnt. We are glad to see he is about as usual again.

Says A. E. P.: A few days ago a boy walked to the counter of my shop and asked: "Have you any eggs?" "Yes," was my reply. "Please give me one to take home to show Grandma, as she wants to see if they are fresh." That egg stood the test to the old lady's satisfaction, and she sent the boy back for one dozen. But, alas! What must have been her humiliation and anger when she broke the eggs and found three with well developed chickens in them? Two were pretty well up in age, but the remainder were good. I must have struck a nest. The old lady herself gave us this information, and I cannot vouch for its accuracy.

At a meeting of the Toronto Board of Works a discussion took place on the areas by-law. It enacts that any person desiring to have an area under the sidewalk shall give a bond to indemnify the city against any claim for injuries sustained by persons who may receive such through faulty construction or any other cause under control of the owners of such areas. The discussion was confined to the question, "Shall the owners get this extra space free and the city run all risk for damages?" After considerable discussion it was resolved, on motion of Ald. Lamb, to exempt from the operation of the by-law areas used exclusively for light, and to insist on a bond being given for all other areas.

The merchants of Hamilton are up in arms at an order issued to the police by the chief constable, to the effect that all projecting signs must be removed without delay. It is true that a city by-law prohibits the hanging out of signs, but it has been more honored in the breach than in the observance in the past. Some years ago an attempt was made to enforce the by-law strictly on account of the petty jealousy which existed amongst some of the merchants themselves, who quietly informed on one another. As soon, however, as the grumblers found that the by-law was being applied to all alike there was a general flare up, and a not unreasonable cry was made that the signs were actual necessaries nowadays, and that their removal would be a hardship. This was the general feeling, and the efforts of the police were made in vain, as they are likely to be on the present occasion also.

MONTREAL.
RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

Montreal retail grocers will make a hard fight against the proposed early closing scheme, as well as the attempt to separate the liquor from the grocery business. A meeting was held in the Mechanics' hall the other night, when some thirty members of the Retail Grocers' association were present. The president, Mr. S. Demers, occupied the chair. The action taken to have the grocers close at 7 o'clock was commented upon to a great extent and the majority of the members present had their say in the matter, all condemning the project and expressing their determination to battle against it to the bitter end. After the discussion it was decided that every grocer belonging to the association should strain a point to be at the city hall when the question is brought up, to express their views and to fight against the intended separation of the liquor from the grocery trade. It is more than likely that the members will be there in force. The meeting also decided that the annual picnic should be held on July 27, and the selection of the place was left in the hands of the committee, with the understanding that the distance should not exceed one hour's ride on the railway. Last year Berthier was chosen, and, although the excursion was a most successful one, it was not convenient for the majority of those who took part.

AN INTERVIEW WITH A CHINESE TEA MAN.

"Well, Awai, what's the news, and how are prospects?" I inquired, as I took a proffered seat in the great teaman's sanctum.

"Allo, that tea news b'long welly bad, London market b'long wells culio, that Mincing Lane man have got that inferlenza, Loosha man no got lice (rather a bold statement, I thought), and Melican man welly sick along that silver pidgin. Plospix! no got plospix."

In such, not very encouraging manner did the Napoleon of the tea trade commence what subsequently proved to be a rather interesting statement of his views, or so much as he cared to disclose of them, upon the present position and prospects of a trade with which his name has been identified for the past thirty years, and of which he personally has been the burning and shining light for the last quarter of a century.

Here a preliminary eructation appeared to have the double effect of clearing his throat and freeing his ingenious thoughts of that pidgin English dress with which he usually delights to clothe them, and he delivered himself of his views of the situation, much as follows :—

"There is no doubt about it, that the China tea trade is in a bad, nay in a very critical position. It is fashionable at the present moment—but fashions happily change, or they wouldn't be fashions—to place nothing but Injun and Saylong teas before the London public. To decry China tea, in fact, to cry stinking fish, is the silly inspiration of the moment. And those most guilty of this defamatory practice are the very ones who have fattened and battened upon the profits of China leaf, for many a long year past.

"Perhaps there was never a time in the history of the trade when the public got such good value in China teas for their money as they are getting to-day; clean, pure, innocuous, and yet they prefer the coarse, strong, astringent stuff, which India and Ceylon turn out by the shipload. Well, if this isn't fashion, and a very culio fashion too, I should like to know what it is."

"But you don't think the British public will take to China tea, do you?" I asked.

"Can see, can savey. This year will present one of the last chances of reviving our trade. If we send but small supplies to London our fate is sealed. What is wanted is a large crop, not necessarily of very high quality, at low cost. The attempt must be made to undersell our rivals, and so re-establish ourselves in public favor. The weather all along favors the idea of a crop, certainly not smaller than that of last year, and exchange and freights will contribute to lay it down at an unprecedently low cost. Personally I don't wish to see high prices at Hankow, and I hope foreign buyers won't pay them."

"You said just now that China could undersell India and Ceylon. Is that a fact? I inquired.

"Certainly. I hear that the average cost of the Indian crop is 8d. per lb., and of the Ceylon 8½d. The average price paid last year in China was tls. 16, Shanghai sycee, or thereabouts, and that at 4s. 2d. exchange, and a possible 25s. per ton freight, would make the lay down cost 7d. per lb."

"Do you think there is any probability of a reduction of the inland burdens China tea is called upon to bear?"

"I hope so, but I don't think so. The mandarins appear obdurate (very strong stomachs were the exact words). We native teamen want to see the taxation lightened just as much as foreigners do, but the Tsungli Yamen does not hold the Guild in very high esteem, nor does it appear to have had much regard for the elaborate reports on the question drawn up by the foreign Chaszees some two years ago.

"At the risk of being tedious let me once again show you how China tea is handicapped. The first charge on the 'made leaf' is tls. 1.25 per picul, the shoffrage, in fact, exacted by the various local authorities. Then another, tls. 1.25 per picul, is the well-known Likin tax, levied to defray the cost of protecting the article in transport, and finally there is the Customs export duty of tls. 2.50 per picul. These make a sum of five Haikuan taels a picul, or 2d. per lb. So a clean, sweet, strong Keemun at Shanghai, tls. 18 per picul, relieved of these burdens could be laid down in London at 6½d. per lb., and tls. 10 Shantam at 2¾d. per pound. And if that wouldn't knock the stuffing out of Injun and Saylong, I don't know what would."

After this little flight of fancy on Napoleon's part, I asked him what sort of preparation was being made for the coming season.

"Well," he said, opening his press copy letter book, "this is the substance of what I have written to the sixty teamen with whom I usually do business: You must be prepared for very much lower prices than you got last year, and a slower market to commence with. If you don't fire your teas with proper charcoal, tar will develop, and you must look out for squalls. Tls. 60 per picul, which after all is only 2s. 1½d. per lb., will doubtless be paid for a few crack chops, and then begins the sheer descent. And these are my ideas of safety. I give you last year's prices paid and the laying down cost in Hankow, that you should not exceed this season.

"And do you think that your correspondents will confine themselves to your limits?"

"Well, they certainly ought to be able to buy the leaf in the country to give them a very good profit at my limits. If they exceed them, and grief arises, they will have only themselves to blame."

"As regards the size of the crop, what are your views?"

"Truly, I don't think that on the whole it will turn out to be any smaller than last year's and I hope it will be as big, to prevent our being crowded out by Indian shipments. There will be a falling off in the supply of Kiukiang teas, as only 250 hongs are opened in the Kiangsi districts against 358 hongs last year, and the falling off will be chiefly visible in the medium Ningchow kinds, which lost money heavily for both producer and shipper. The number of hongs in the Hankow districts shows an increase, but supplies will not much exceed last year.

"I look for a very large business in all teas costing from tls. 7 to tls. 17. These, then, briefly are my views; a couple of months will show how far I have been off the mark. Just tell me two things before you go, what are the Russian orders like, and how much China tea will London take this year?"

"I could well wish," I rejoined, "that you had asked me something easier. However, it is generally held that Russian orders will be for 30 per cent less tea at 30 per cent. less cost."

"Yes," he replied, "but telegrams can alter those conditions." And I was compelled to admit the possibility.

"As regards consumption," I added, "you had better keep your eye on the London Board of Trade figures. If you will look them up you will find that the year's deliveries were 233,000,000 lbs., made up of

Indian Tea.....	101,000,000
Ceylon	54,000,000
Java	4,000,000
China.....	74,000,000
Total.....	233,000,000

but as the Indian export is estimated at 120,000,000, and Ceylon 80,000,000 lbs. for 1892, unless home consumption increases, it will be a bad look out for China unless she can do the thing on the cheap. But tell me one thing more. Did the teamen lose much last year?"

"Why, of course they did, all along the line. I lost tls. 85,000 and am not afraid to own up to it."

This sum appeared to me rather a staggerer, and I dare say he observed a look of incredulity on my face, for he soon observed: "Some fiens had a little share inside that loss"—in fact I never doubted, for it must have been a cold day, indeed, when our good old friend Awai got left, I thought.

Opening a pint of the celebrated "Shun Fat," white seal, he invited me to drink to better times, and "largee chance" this season, and the general operation having been duly performed, he obsequiously bowed me out with a "smile that was childlike and bland."—North China Daily News (March 22.)

DRY GOODS.

Just at present the dry goods trade is not so active as usual, as in a few days the dating will be August 1st, and dealers are waiting to take advantage of this.

A great many of the houses have begun to receive shipments of goods for fall delivery, such as woollen underwear and flannels, consequently the houses present a busy scene to the onlooker.

Orders are coming in for October dating, and are quite encouraging and becoming increasingly so. They will continue good, if warm weather is experienced in order to allow the retailer time and opportunity to work off his present stock.

A prominent dry goods man maintains that in spite of the advance in cotton goods on account of the combination of the manufacturers, the goods being placed on the market from Canadian mills can compare favorably as regards price with the American cottons, quality and pattern considered.

Some people are complaining of the advance in colored cottons, and this in the face of a reduction of the duty on the raw produce. But it is doubtful whether the Syndicate can be condemned on that score, as the reduction on raw material was really trifling.

NOTES.

John McDonald & Co. have just received a large shipment of towels and towellings, which are of extra value.

Regatta prints in numerous patterns are being sold in very large quantities by John McDonald & Co. They are mostly used for ladies' blouses, which promise to be strongly in fashion this season.

Cashmere vests for gentlemen promise to be very fashionable this summer, and are shown in numerous styles and patterns.

The travellers of A. A. Allan & Co. are out with samples of fall and winter goods. Their range of stiff hats, gloves and furs is very large.

The hat dealers say that the sorting up for straw goods has not been equal to the trade in former years.

Wyld, Grassett & Darling are having a great demand for serges and light fancy worsteds.

Some very pretty novelties are being shown in French veilings by John McDonald & Co. The latest novelties are composition spot veilings and crepon-garuffie in the newest colors.

Drab is the prevailing color this season Fickle fashion has made her choice and the word has gone forth.

W. R. Brock & Co. are selling Hermsdorf's stainless hosiery and gloves in increasingly large quantities. They are exceptionally fine goods and are being sold at special prices. Each article bears a stamped guarantee.

The "Chic" dress lifter, which has been adopted by Royalty and by the best houses in Europe is a new device for ladies, which the modern fashion of semi-train and bell skirts has necessitated. It is a device for lifting and holding the back of the skirt. The retail price is about 45 or 50c. John McDonald & Co. have the sole agency.

We notice John McDonald & Co. show a new and improved rubber carriage rug. The improvement consists of the rubber proofing being turned over about 12 inches on the inside of the bottom of the rug, thus saving the bottom from the destruction which the feet and the wet have hitherto caused. They deal extensively in rugs of every description.

Clark's M. E. Q. spool cotton, 200 yds., 6-cord, has dropped in price from $3.80 to $3.55. This is due to the arrangements made by the manufacturers on the establishment of the central agency. When the sales of a certain line of cotton thread falls below the par line of sales, the manufacturer has the privilege of reducing the price, so as to allow the increased sales to bring the output up again to the par line of sales. This is what has happened with the M. E. Q., and some dealers maintain that this thread has not been up to the proper standard of quality, hence the lessening of the output as experienced by the manufacturers.

Wyld, Grasett & Darling report a very fair lot of orders for fall delivery, but do not expect anything unusual in regard to the fall trade.

Mr. P. R. Buchanan, of the firm of Messrs. Buchanan & Co., the well-known tea growers and importers of London, England, has been on a visit to Toronto, and has been the guest of Mr. Ross Hayter, of Steel, Hayter & Co. Mr. Buchanan's name is well-known for his philanthropical work in the East end of London, and as the originator of the workman's club, known as the "Tea-to-tums."

THE MODEL BUTTER CUTTER.

The Model Butter Cutter is an instrument for cutting pound rolls out of crock or tub butter. It will cut exactly one pound, at the same time shape it into a nice roll without mixing it. Its claims upon the buyer are that it cuts butter into exact pound-weights, and cuts it into shapely pieces, it saves the grocer the trouble of exercising such nice judgment as the want of such a cutter calls for; it also does away with scraps, the parings of excess guesses, the accumulation of which forms a melange that nobody wants. Rice Lewis & Son, Toronto, are the agents in this country. The Model Butter Cutter will be sent to any address on the receipt of $1.

GILLES CHAMPAGNE FOUNTAIN.

Painchaud, Squire & Co., Hardware Manufacturers' Agents, Temple Building, Montreal, are introducing the Gilles Champagne Fountain, herewith illustrated, for drawing all sparkling liquid from bottles in quantities as wanted without removing the cork. The fountain is elegantly nickel-plated with a fine white porcelain base, and is supplied with a special gimlet. It is stated that all sparkling liquids, can be preserved for months without any alteration with this fountain, thus being as useful in private houses as in hotels, clubs, and restaurants, and it is sold at a moderate price, which should bring it into general use.

BUTTER UNDER GOVERNMENT AUSPICES.

The Provincial Commissioner of Agriculture for Quebec announced in the Legislature the other day a scheme which the Government proposes to follow for the encouragement of dairying in that province. He proposed that all the butter and cheese factories of the province should enter into a syndicate, for which system he claimed a number of advantages. All the factories would be under the control of a Government inspector, so that their products would be articles of uniform quality and value. The formation of this syndicate would be under the control of 15 inspectors, all specialists; the defect of producing so many different qualities of butter and cheese would disappear, and the articles manufactured would command the attention of the English market. They would bear the Government stamp, not upon the box which held them, but upon the articles themselves. In urging the national importance of this subject, he estimated the annual return that it should bring the province at $7,000,000. His first aim was to have one silo, one cheese or butter factory and one farm student in each parish of each county of the province. He indicated the coming establishment of a school of dairy industry at St. Hyacinthe, where the students would be instructed in the art of cheese and buttermaking. If the active aid of the clergy and the members of the House went with the efforts of the Government, he was certain that in two years the products of this province would successfully compete with those of Ontario. He expressed the hope that outside of this House each member of the same would use his endeavors to bring about the general adoption of the system of feeding dairy cattle by ensilage, the various advantages of which had been so ably and conclusively established the other day by the learned an experienced experts who had addressed the members of the Agricultural Committee. It was his earnest hope that each member would work in his own county to secure the establishment of silos in every parish, and he announced amid applause that a prize of $20 would be awarded in each parish of such county for the best kept and best worked silo. He also urged that from each parish the member for the county, assisted by the cure and other leading people, should endeavor to select and send to the school farm of the county at least one suitable pupil, who would be taught on scientific grounds the true principles of good farming. He explained what would be the working of the school farms, and said pupils would be received at them from 14 to 18 years of age, so long as they were sons of farmers or of respectable families. The idea is very popular on both sides of the House.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, June 9, 1892.

GROCERIES.

This market has been somewhat busier the present week than it was generally throughout May, which jobbers agree in voting rather a quiet month this year. That fact is a reason, however, for an accelerated pace to trade to-day, and though there is more business there is very little more satisfaction, the increase being rather inconsiderable and far from up to the expectations that former slowness and the lateness of the season warrant. Profits have been meagre, the dulness disposing wholesalers to divide their margin with buyers for the sake of business. The sugar trade is in the state it commonly is on the eve of the midsummer rush. Buying is not more limited than usual in early June. The tea trade is reasonably active and profitable. Dried fruit continues to have good sale. Canned goods keep on in the even tenor of their way. The country trade would undoubtedly be better if the weather were warmer and the roads better. Freshets in several parts of the country have hindered traffic. In one case a carload of canned goods could not be moved because of damage through floods. Payments are not particularly bad, nor are they anything to boast about.

COFFEE.

Nothing to cause any relaxation or diminution in the interest that attached to this commodity last week has occurred, and buying has gone its usual course. Prices have remained at quotations continued for some time. The market abounds in common grades, and is as poorly supplied as ever with the finer grades, which are also as firm as ever in Rios, Javas, Mochas, Porto Ricos, etc. Rios are 17½ to 21c. Fine Java is 28 to 35c.

DRIED FRUITS.

Though undoubted firmness has succeeded the lax condition of prices that were current some time ago for Valencia off-stalk raisins, jobbers are still selling at 3½c., a price at which they could not now lay down stock from New York, where the market increases in strength every day. The demand here is good. A shipment of 1,000 boxes arrived on Monday. Another lot of 2,000 boxes layers was bought in New York late last week at 5¾c. Layers are 6¾c. upwards here, and selected off-stalk are quoted upon a basis of 5¾c. There are no Eleme raisins now in stock, the cheapness of low grade Valencias diverting the demand to the latter. Sultanas are in considerable request by bakers at from 9c. upwards. Currants are easy everywhere, 4½c. is the inside price here, and business is rather brisk in this fruit. Stocks of figs are pretty well exhausted, seven crown constituting the bulk of the stock on spot, and these sell at 13 to 15c. Figs are wanted now, though last year they could scarcely find sale at any price. Dates are in good demand at 5 to 5½c. Case prunes are scarce, and sell from 5⅞c. upwards. Casks are quiet at from 4¾c. The regular demand is maintained for peels, at 15 to 16c. for lemon, 18c. for orange and 26 to 28c. for citron. In nuts almonds have had good sale since the advance, which makes 15c. an inside quotation on this market for Tarragona. Peanuts are also selling well.

RICE AND SPICES.

The trade in rice is slowly gaining in momentum and volume. The season of greatest consumption is yet a month or more in the future, and jobbers are laying in supplies only against the present demand. Trade is confined for the most part to common rice at 3⅞ to 4c. Fancy grades are in limited request.

Spices have still an unimportant place in

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.

Prices do not gain anything with the advance of the season. Compared with those of last year they are low. The staple vegetables have sold very evenly ever since the opening of the market. Prices continue at $1.05 to $1.10 for assortments or separate vegetables, while a year ago they were fully $1.40 for tomatoes and peas. The real meaning of the difference is that the stocks this year are much larger than they were last, and while they are dwindling away at a fairly rapid rate of decline, they are still likely to last the season fully out. The low level of prices this year has been unfavorable to money-making on canned goods. Last year there was a good thing in them for those who had stock in spring that they had bought the previous fall, but it has been different this year. Round lots of vegetables have been called for quite freely this week for shipment to various points. It is only a very few jobbers in the country who have stock, but what they hold suffices for the needs of all. A car of assorted vegetables for Vancouver was among the sales of the week. The prospects for trade during the next crop year are not looked forward to with any degree of sanguine expectation, and jobbers generally regard it as a good year to be out of the business, the increase in the number of the canneries promising a year of over-production and sharp competition in prices. Business in futures is consequently said to be very light, so far. Farmers are generally reported to be putting in very large quantities of tomatoes. The prices of fruits are easy, but stocks in jobbers' hands are light. The canners have carried nearly their whole pack, and will have an undesirable abundance of it after operations on the new crop are due. These operations are expected to be on a very small scale, however. Canners would sell at very low prices now, but the trouble is, hardly anybody wants to buy. Easier values are quoted in Prices Current. Salmon is in small compass on spot, no stock of any consequence being held in any brand. Quotations for future are $1.12½ on the coast.

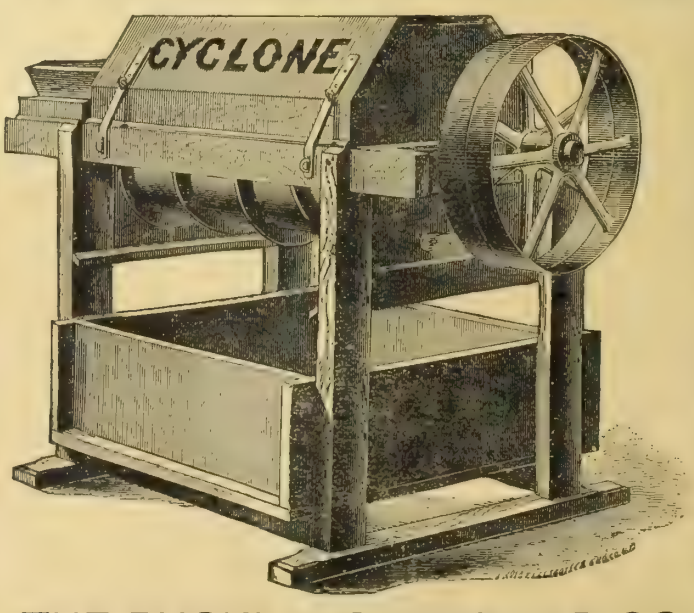
To Canning Men.-OUR CYCLONE PULP MACHINE



For making tomato pulp and preparing pumpkin and squash for canning is very well known to all the canners in the United States, and a few of them are in use in Canada. The high tariff has prevented their being used extensively heretofore.

We are now manufacturing these machines at Oakville, Ont., to enable our Canadian friends to obtain them without paying a heavy duty; but we shall make only a few of them unless ordered. Those who contemplate purchasing, should send their orders promptly to insure the saving of duty, as late orders will have to be filled from stock in the United States which will be subject to a 30 per cent duty.

MARKETS—Continued.

Jobbers here intend to follow different tactics this year and will generally refrain from ordering far ahead of the moment for necessities. The catch of lobster so far is reported short. Quotations for the new pack are moderately firm in tone, but no important transactions have been heard of.

The British Columbia Commercial Journal says :—Mail advices from London report an improvement in the market. Three weeks ago, there was a large clearance of the 1891 pack of British Columbia salmon which sold at from 20s 6d to 21s per case. This was quite a rise, as the market had previously been at 18s. Since then, cable advices adadvise no further operations, the market being again depressed by the arrivals of large quantities of Alaska fish which is being offered at 17s. Preparations for the season's pack are progressing favorably, and everything will be in readiness at the canneries when the sockeye run commences. On account of the agreement among the canners limiting them to a half pack on the Fraser river, the preparations there are of necessity lighter than for the previous year. Two charters have already been made for this season's pack. The Chili now on the way from London by Turner, Beeton & Co., and the River Ganges, from Rio Janeiro, by Findlay, Durham & Brodie. It is said that there will only be three charters for salmon this year.

MONTREAL.

The demand for canned goods during the week has only been fair. Meats, and fish are the only lines inquired after to any extent, and they are only moving in a jobbing way. It is reported that packers will lower prices, and all are anxious to sell. The run of salmon is light and the demand very good. Consignments are being solicited by New York houses.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Tomatoes are about the only kind that are selling readily, and as they are very scarce, the price is gradually getting higher, $1.25 to $1.30 per doz. Other kinds are in fair demand.

the demand. The very low figures at which pepper is quoted outside should make that spice an object of some interest, but as they have been very low for two years, nobody sees anything in buying now, though an advance while unexpected would not be altogether surprising.

SUGAR.

The condition of the trade upon this market throughout the week has been rather uninteresting to sellers. The volume of business done was fair but prices were not as a rule by any means full. Grades have to be taken notice of in granulated sugar more than they ever were before, because they are made more of for the purpose of shading prices than ever they were before. The best granulated is quoted at 4½c., and few confess that they sell for anything below that. But for grades below No. 1 prices are lower, and 4⅜c. was not an uncommon quotation this week. A stronger tone outside, incidental to the advance in beet of some days ago and the big purchases of cane made by New York refiners has stiffened the ideas of refiners here, and wholesale grocers have tried to get the price up a trifle. Instructions to that end have been given to travellers, and it remains to be seen what the issue of them will be. Any buying that has been done by retail grocers has been with a speculative object in view. The restriction of payments to 30 days and the summer needs being yet some weeks in the future, owing to the fact that native strawberries are not yet ripe, cause the rank and file of the trade not to be precipitate with orders for the sake of buying on a low market. Yellows are quiet from 3.45c. upwards, and probably sales at a price below this have been made.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

No trade presents a more unbroken level of dulness than does that in syrups. Nothing new is to be reported in this week's phase of the market. Stock is in store at prices as low as 1¾c., but seemingly it is not wanted.

In New Orleans molasses there has been some sale, but not a very large amount. The price goes from 26c. upwards. A grade in barrels at 30c., and in half-barrels at 32½c. is getting the largest share of attention. West India molasses is dull.

TEAS.

The event of the week is the arrival of the first shipment of new Japan, the early May pickings, which came in on Tuesday, the samples having preceeded them some days. There appears to be some dissent from the opinion at first expressed that the samples were equal in quality to those of last year. A lack of quality, style and flavor is charged. A few lots have already been sold at 30 to 40c., the range within whic prices vary for this shipment, which is no criterion of the crop, and of but limited market importance. The stock of old Japans is getting into small compass and is firmly held. Ceylons attract some interest by their firmness since the advance of ½d. in London. The Amoy tea market has opened in China, with prices beginning at about 20c. on sellers' quotations. These will not come forward till August or September. A deal in Montreal, whereby the ownership of 1,900 packages of Japans was transferred took place some time ago. The price paid was 10c., and the tea was resold at 12c. This 2c. advance was the result of the recovery that has recentiy taken place in these teas, but the purchasing price of 10c. indicates the settlement in prices that had previously taken place in Japans, this same tea having been bought early in the year at 15c.

canned lobster, in flat tins, and advancad prices 75c. a $1 per case, from the lowest point. Tall tins do not show a corresponding advance. Last quotations on flats were $9.50 to $9.75 per case f.o.b.

Eby. Blain & Co., report arrival of the first new pack of the celebrated "Thistle" brand flat tins Finnan Haddie.

W. G. A. Lambe & Co., this city, have completed arrangements for the sale of teas again among the wholesale trade on this market.

Thistle Haddies of this season's pack are now in the hands of most of the leading houses. This article is one of the most palatable form of canned fish packed.

"Hillwattee" brand of package tea for which Lucas, Steele & Bristol of Hamilton are selling agents in Canada, is meeting with a very large demand, the blend of both red and blue labels seeming particularly suited for the Canadian market.

W. H. Gillard & Co., wholesale grocers, Hamilton, are the sole first-hand medium in this country for the distribution of the widely-famed Mallawalla tea, having been recently appointed the head agency for the sale of that tea in Canada. Their advertisement in this issue of THE GROCER contains a picture from life on the Mallawalla tea plantation, made from the cut of a photograph taken on the spot.

One incident in the week's trade in fibreware furnishes a comment on the state of the trade in that staple. Two cars, containing 400 to 500 dozen pails and tubs, sent from the factory at Hull to Mr. Weldon, the representative of the E. B. Eddy Co. here, had to be delivered directly from the car, and then there was not enough to cover standing orders.

A cablegram from Bordeaux, France, states that drought has injured the pea crop and stopped canning operations, remarking also that supplies of the canned articles carried over are light and that prices are bound to rule higher. A good many orders were taken previous to the commencement of canning operations by various packers.

Letters from the provinces state that lobster canning will not be permitted after July 1. Last year work was carried on until July 15. This limit to the season, along with the delay caused by bad weather, seems likely to curtail the pack unless phenomenal work is done within the next 30 days.—New York Bulletin.

PETROLEUM.

The demand this week had a very ordinary support in the needs of consumers apparently, and orders were few and inconsiderable. Prices continue at 14 to 15c. for Canadian refined.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports;—Petrolia crude $1.28½ per bbl, Oil Spings crude $1.29 per bbl. While the enquiry for crude is decidely moderate and confined to a demand for small lots. it is about equal for the season of the year and the outlook on the Exchange for an early change is not very assuring. So far as the current figures show the situation warrants an improvement in the early fall, but, unless the unexpected happens, business in the raw material is liable to be rather slow till then. The range of prices the last few months has had a higher and steadier range than has occured for years past, which has to some large extent stimulated drilling operations and production which perhaps has been necessary to keep up the average output, but, the market appears to have drifted into a sort of dullness from which it is not easily extricated.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

While not over liberal, receipts have been sufficiently large to keep prices from making any start upward. Large rolls come forward rather less freely than they did a week ago, and still afford about the only source of supply there is. They bring from 12 to 12½c. for good table butter. For lower grades there are lower prices. Dairy tub is not yet forthcoming, and there is not much store-packed butter. Such as there is generally changes hands on a lower plane of value than is indicated by the prices quoted for rolls. A good-sized lot was sold on Monday at 11c., and the quality was accounted good for butter of this description. The scarcity of store-packed butter is deplored by nobody, but is rather exceptional for the time of year. It is owing to two causes. One is a change in the policy of country merchants, who are getting into the same rule for selling as they are for buying—that is, turn over capital often rather than in large amounts. As late as two years ago they were addicted to storing butter very largely in expectation of better future prices. when they should have a large stock to put on the market. They would therefore keep their large rolls, in due time assort or not assort them, and pack them in tubs. Now they believe in realizing as soon as possible, and the rolls linger but a short time in their hands. The pressure of short credit forces them to this course and it is a good one. Another influence favoring a fully stocked market in roll butter is the cool weather we have had so far. It is noticeable that the quality of the butter received this spring is above the usual average.

Cheese is offered freely. There is still some fall stock, held mostly at 11½c., though some extra fine is quoted at 12c. New is 10 to 10½c. The quantity of white offered is larger than in former years, and is not acceptable to the trade dependent for supply on this market, though it is made in deference to a demand that is strong in England.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—The time is past for this crop-year when any interest is taken in cars by individual buyers on this market, unless in exceptional cases, for which no allowance is called for just now. A car divides among many buyers now; hence quotations in cars are hardly called for. At point of shipment car loads are quotable at about 90c. to $1. Fair sized lots are $1.05, and they job out at $1.10 to $1.20.

DRIED AND EVAPORATED APPLES—The virtual exhaustion of green stock has revived a demand for these products. Sun dried are in some request at 4 to 4½c. Evaporated are more active at 7c

EGGS—The price is still 10½c. Nothing is heard of shipping to England. It may be resumed this summer, but the failure of two or three firms that tried it a year ago is supposed to act as a deterrent to export business this summer. Some claim that no money can be made unless the large eggs are selected.

HIDES—The market is sufficiently stocked

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

Long neglect has made the flour market take a weaker tone, and the few shipments, altogether two or three cars—that have been sent forward this week have been at easier prices. The moment is in favor of a rally in wheat, owing to the effect on the world's market of unfavorable reports of rust in the growing crops of the United States. There is a large quantity of flour in millers' hands, however, and this presses downwards upon prices more than forcasts of shortage in the next wheat crop press upwards. The Newfoundland demand appears to have been slaked for a while by supplies from the United States bought before the reconciliation between Canada and the former. Feed is easier and has fallen off in sale. Hay is lower, oats higher, straw higher.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5; strong bakers', $4.50; white wheat patents, $4.80; straight roller, $4.40; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.50.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5.15; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.45 to $4.70; Ontario patents, $4.00 to $4.25; straight roller, $3.65 to $3.90; extra, $3.50 to $3.80; low grades, per bag, $1.00 to $1.50

MEAL—Oatmeal is $3.80. Cornmeal is $3.50.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is $4.50 per barrel.

FEED—Bran is $12, shorts $14.00, mixed feed $22, cracked corn $1.10, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 32 to 34½c.

HAY—Is fairly active at $13 for No. 1 timothy and $10.50 to $11 for mixed.

STRAW—Is steady at $6.50 to $7.50.

MONTREAL.

Market unchanged. A fair local trade is reported, with enquiries for lower ports. A few small lots have been purchased for the latter. Prices are fairly firm as follows:—Patent spring, $4.85 to $4.95; patent winter, $4.45 to $4.75; straight roller, $4.30 to $4.45; extra, $3.65 to $3.80; superfine, $3.30 to $3.60; fine, $3.10 to $3.35; strong bakers, $4.45 to $4.70.

There is no change to note in oatmeal. Market quiet, with a fair local demand at prices within range of quotations as follows: Granulated, bbls., $3.90 to $4.00; Rolled, bbls., $3.80 to $3.90; Standard, bbls., $3.75 to $3.85; Granulated in bags, $1.90 to $2.00; Rolled in bags, $1.90 to $2.00; Standard, in bags, $1.75 to $1.80.

A fair local trade is reported in bran and shorts, mouillie is dull and slow of sale. We quote: Bran, $14 to $14.50, shorts $15 to $17, and mouillie $20 to $23.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

FLOUR—There is nothing special to report in reference to breadstuffs except a steady demand, with prices unchanged. Manitoba is quoted at $5.65 to $5.75, high grade Ontario $4.90 to $5, medium patents $4.65 to $4.80.

OATMEAL—Is very firm and likely to advance somewhat, as there is a better demand at the present prices, $4.10 to $4.25.

CORNMEAL—Has taken another upward turn, and is now quoted strong at $2.90 to $3.

OATS—Are steady at 43 to 45c.

FEED—Is quoted at $21 to $23.

HAY—Is higher at $15.50 to $16.

MARKETS—Continued.

with green and the outward movement of cured just suffices to prevent any congestion in the warehouses. The Chicago market is remarkably stagnant. In that city the tanneries have closed to bring up if possible the prices of their dressed products. Here the basis is 4½c. for No. 1 green cows'. Cured are 5c.

HONEY—There is no relief for the dull state of the market that over-supply has caused. Extracted is 8 to 9c. and sections are 12c.

HOPS—Conditions do not materially vary. Prices are 21 to 24c. for 91's and 16 to 18c. for yearlings. The demand is steady.

SKINS—Sheepskins are now very scarce, about done in fact, and quote at $1.25 to $1.50. Pelts are coming in and quoting at 15c., lambskins at 30c. Calfskins are 5 to 7c.

TALLOW—The supply is very liberal. Rough is worth 2c. Rendered is bought at 5c. and resold at 5½c.

VEGETABLES—Potatoes are a drug on the market at from 26c. in cars. They are getting worse as importations of Virginia new potatoes come to hand. Some of the latter are in stock to sell at $4.50 to $5 per barrel. Onions quote at last week's prices—viz., $3 to $3.25 per bag for Egyptian and $2.25 to $2.50 per crate for Bermudas. New cabbage are in and selling at $2.75 to $3 per case.

WOOL—In the fleece combing wool is worth 16 to 17c. and clothing wool is 20 to 21c. All coming to hand is of this season's clip. Pulled wool quotes steadily at 22c. for super and 25c. for extra.

PROVISIONS.

The provision trade is entitled to little notice in a market report, as it has no record of a single important transaction during the week. The functions of the market have seemingly been suspended so far as deals of any magnitude are concerned. Small purchases of smoked meats supply the links of continuity that bring the market over this week.

BACON—Long clear is 7½ to 7¾c., smoked backs are 10c., bellies 9½ to 10c., rolls 8½ to 8¾c.

HAMS—Are steady at 10 to 10½c.

LARD—Pure is unchanged at 9¾ to 10¼c. for tubs and pails. Compound is steady at 7 to 9c.

BARREL PORK—U. S. heavy mess is $13 to $14, Canadian $15. short cut $16 to $16.50.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef is 4 to 5c. in fore and 6½ to 8c. in hindquarters, yearling lamb is 10 to 11c., Spring lamb is $4.50 to $6.50 per head, yearling lamb 9 to 10c., mutton 7 to 8c., veal 5 to 7c.

GREEN FRUIT.

The trade needs hot weather for its full expansion. Even with the cool temperature that prevails, the movement is good and keeps the market from being clogged up by shipments from centres of production, though those shipments are numerous and large. Lemons are in a better position, an appreciable betterment having followed the removal of a lot of wasty stock, of which there was a plethora. That pedlars have helped this into consumption. Prices now quote as a consequence from a higher minimum, that is from $2.75. Fancy quoted as high as $4. Oranges are firm. California seedlings are about done, though they may still be quoted at $3.75 to $4.50. Navels are firm at $4.50 to $5. Valencias are selling at $6 to $7, and Messinas at $5 to $5.25 in cases and $2.75 in half cases. Palermo and Catania quote on the same basis. A good call for bananas is heard from. Yellows are worth $1 to $2, reds from $1.25 to $1.75. Sweet potatoes are $4.50. Pineapples, though plentiful in New York, are wasty, and acceptable stock is hard to get for this market at prices that pay for re-packing at the former centre. Jobbers here get 10 to 20c. now. They expect some of the sugar loaf variety in a day or two. It is a firmer class of fruit. Baltimore strawberries are selling at 15 to 16c. Domestic will be in stock by next week it is expected. Cherries and apricots from California were looked for to arrive before this.

FISH.

The demand begins to flag. It comes up sharp usually when strawberries are beginning to come into stock. The trade is altogether in white fish, salmon trout, lake herring and British Columbia salmon, all of which sell at unchanged prices, which are quoted in Prices Current.

SALT.

Trade is undisturbed by any new element on either side of the market. Its steadiness therefore continues. Quotations are as they were a week ago and as they appear in Prices Current.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, June 9, 1892.

GROCERIES.

The week has not shown much improvement in any lines outside of dried fruit, which are firmer and in better demand. Teas are quiet and will be till the new stock arrives, as all grade stocks are low on spot. Sugar is quiet, refiners are still selling on the 4⅜c. basis. In molasses dealers cannot boom business much as stocks here are very low, and the first direct steamer will not be in before the 18th. The wholesale trade claim to be doing a good trade in all lines.

SUGAR.

The sugar market is on the same footing as it was last week. The demand is slow and refiners say trade is very quiet, but they are looking for improvement in the near future. The wholesale trade are not pushing sales, and on the whole business is very flat with them in this line. The cutting is still being carried on and when it will be stopped we cannot say.

TEAS.

The local tea market has been very quiet for the last few days. The new samples have arrived and have been shown without success, and on the whole the Japan tea market is very quiet. The new stocks will be arriving here about the end of the week. Blacks have a little better movement than Japans, but they are also quiet without a fair trade doing. London advices report the market firm.

MOLASSES.

Molasses is about on the same footing as it was last week. The stock here are all sold out and dealers are waiting for the first boat to arrive, which will be in about the 15th of the month if all goes well. Wholesale grocers have been selling single puncheon lots at 33c. and sales of round lots are reported in Quebec at 31c. The stock that has arrived here so far has all come through Quebec, and all the stock that is left there is about 100 puncheons. The wholesale trade here are still offering molasses at a loss, and when the first boat arrives we think all the dealers will be in it, as one of the brokers here has about 1,000 puncheons he is going to auction off. We quote :—Barbadoes, 35 to 38c., American 28c. ; syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 40 to 45c for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Maple product is about the same under light stocks and firm prices. We quote maple syrup in tins 60 to 64c. per gallon and in wood at 5c. per pound. Maple sugar is quoted at 7 to 8c. and fancy cakes at 8½c.

COFFEE.

The only thing there is to note in coffee is a fair jobbing trade. Quite a few small lots have been turned over during the week. New York advices still continue strong. The local trade is steady in all lines. We quote :—Rios 18 to 20c.; Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c. ; Jamaica, 19 to 21c.; and Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c Santos, 17½ to 19c.

DRIED FRUIT.

The dried fruit market has shown an upward tendency, and although some of our quotations are not materially changed prices all round are more firmly held. Orders are coming in more freely, but they are not large as buying all round is being done cautiously. The local stock is dead low, especially in old fruit, which is about worked off. Raisins of any decent quality bring 3¾c. Currants are also firm. We quote : Valencias, ordinary, 3¾ to 4¼c.; No. 1 off stalk, 4¾c. ; layers, 6c. to 6¼c.; Patras currants, 5 to 5¼c; Vostizzas, in cases, 7½ to 8c. ; provincial currants, 4⅞ to 5½c.; do. in half barrels, 5 to 6c.

GREEN FRUIT.

The green fruit market is a shade better all round this week all lines having freer movement. Valencia oranges have met with fair sales but dealers are complaining of the poor quality and considerable waste is experienced in re-packing. Box fruit is still being worked of at steady prices. Bloods also meet with steady sales. Lemons owing to the continued warm spell have taken a spurt and quite a few lots have moved during the week. Pineapples have a steady demand some fancy Riply bring as high as 40c. per peice. Bananas have been moving in good quantities during the week under fair receipts and at steady prices. Southern berries meet with good sales under a little easier prices. Dealers here state that the western crop will be good despite the press reports that they were damaged by frost. We have to note the first arrival of Californian apricots the fruit is small and sales are reported $3 to $3.50 for half crate. We quote: Valencia oranges $6 to $7 ; bloods in half boxes $2.75 to $3 ; Massinas $4 to $4.50 ; lemons $2 to $3.50 ; pineapples 7 to 15c. each, strawberries 18c. to 25c. per box, bananas $1 to $1.75 per bunch, apricots $3 to $3.50.

NUTS.

The nut market has shown a better movement during the last few days both locally and out of town. Dealers here report freer enquiry under steady prices. We quote: Almonds Tarragona 14 to 15c. ; almonds, Ivica, 14 to 15c. ; almonds, common, 10 to 11c.; almonds, hardshell, 7 to 8c.; walnuts, Grenoble, new 12 to 13c.; walnuts, French 10 to 10½c.; cocoanuts per 100 $4.50 to $5.00; filberts 9 to 10c.; pecans 16 to 17c.; peanuts 7 to 10c.

APPLES.

The stock of barreled apples here is very light and dealers are firm as regards values, owing to the prices having advanced during the week. In evaporated apples the demand is only fair, a few sales having been made on the basis of 6 to 7c. The dried apple market is dull, with sales hard to make at the inside figures. We quote apples $4.50 to $5 per barrel; evaporated 6 to 7c.; dried 4 to 4½c., and evaporated peaches 12 to 13c. per tin.

HOPS.

A quiet trade for local wants is all we have to report outside of a sale of three bales of extra choice stock at 27c. We quote choice Canadian at 25c., yearlings 17 to 20c., old 6 to 12c., and pressed 17 to 19c., according to quantities.

FISH.

Gaspe salmon is beginning to arrive in large quantities, but prices vary from day to day according to receipts. The last sales we hear of were made at 14 to 16c. British Columbia salmon sells at 12½ to 13c., and to a certain extent keeps down the price of Gaspe. We have to note larger arrivals of lake trout and whitefish, which bring from 6 to 7c. Cod and haddock bring from 3 to 3¼c. Smoked and pickled fish is quiet. We quote smoked Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.00 to $1.10; St. John's bloaters, per 100 box, 80c. to $1.00; boneless cod, large boxes, 6 to 7c.; do. small boxes 7 to 8c.; finnan haddies 7 to 8c.

We quote No. 1 herring, per brl., $4.50 to $4.60; lake trout, per half brl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.25 to $8.75; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market is quiet, but business is up to the average for this season of the year. Prices are firm under a steady local demand. We quote as follows :—Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.50 to $16.75; mess pork, western, per brl. $14.50 to $15.00; short cut, western, per brl. $17.00 to $17.50; hams, city cured, per lb. 10c. to 10½c; lard, Canadian, in pails 8⅞ to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9 to 10c; lard, com refined, per lb. 7 to 7¼c.

CHEESE.

Cheese had a quiet market to-day, the easy tone still ruling, while the fact that it was a holiday in England, with no cables, made matters quiet. The only sales were those at the wharf, 1,600 "Blue Star" bringing 9½c., while the balance of the total of 2,800 offered sold at 9⅜c.

White cheese..... 9½ to 9¾c
Colored cheese..... 9⅜ to 9½c.

There was no public cable to-day.

Some people look for a change in colored between now and next week, that is in its position in relation to white. The great bulk of the receipts now coming in are white, and with the London boat sailing next week there is likely to be a call for colored that may place it at a premium over white.

OGDENSBURG—Offerings of cheese to-day were 2,500. Sales 900 at 9½c.: 880 at 9 7-16c. Balance sold on streets for best offers that could be got.

CANTON—Sales at the cheese board to-day were: 3,000 at 9¼c.; 200 at 9 5-16c.; 100 at 9⅜c.; 450 tubs butter sold at 19c.

LONDON — Thirty-five factories offered 3,694 May cheese. Sales: 180 at 9⅛c., 385 at 9c. 743 at 9 1-16c., 150 white at 9¼c. Large attendance.

BUTTER.

Butter is still quiet with only a fair jobbing trade to note. Locally the business is very good, quite a few small lots being moved to our retail grocers. We quote: Creamery 17½ to 18c.; Townships dairy 17 to 18c.; western dairy 14 to 15c.

EGGS.

The egg market continues very quiet, with large stocks receiving daily, and prices are therefore weak. We quote 10 to 10½c. for strictly fresh stock, the latter figure for single case lots. Sales have been reported as low as 9¾c. of older receipts.

GRAIN.

Wheat and the coarser grains were quiet. Peas and oats are the only lines moving, prices on both of these being steady. No. 2 hard Manitoba, 92 to 94c; No. 3 do., 83 to 84c.; No.2 Northern, 00 to 00c.; peas, 77c. to 78c. per 66 pounds; oats, 34½ to 35½c. per 34 pounds; corn, 57 to 60c., duty paid; feed barley, 42 to 45c.; barley, middling, nominal.

The stocks of grain and flour in store compared with those of a week ago show a decrease of 22,448 bush. of wheat, 6,622 bush. of peas, 8,591 bushels of rye, 1,080 barrels of flour, 322 barrels of oatmeal, and an increase of 646 bushels of corn, 1,773 bushels of oats, 52,757 bushels of barley. Compared with the corresponding date last year there is an increase of 187,277 bushels of wheat, 189,035 bushels of peas, 376,458 bushels of oats, 112,389 bushels of barley, 23,445 bushels of rye, 4,646 barrels of oatmeal, and a decrease of 19,172 bushels of corn and 16,293 barrels of flour.

The stocks of flour and grain in store in Montreal on the dates mentioned were as follows :

	June 4, 1892.	May 28, 1892.	June 6, 1891.
Wheat, bush	600,535	622,983	412,258

DRY GOODS.

The last few warm days has made a wonderful change in dry goods, all lines having fair call. Quite a few buyers have been in town from the surrounding country districts during the past few days. Light summer dress goods have had good call, and the same may be said regarding cambric and fancy lines of satins and prints. Late color cashmeres also have good sales.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June, 9, 1892.

GROCERIES.

There is not much change in the market here, except in beans and cornmeal, both lines have advanced. Molasses is reported easier and sugars are weak. Trade has been fairly active, though not quite up to expectation.

TEA—The tea trade is without any special feature, the demand being still mostly for the lower grades, though some quite large lots have recently been sold of the better qualities.

SUGARS—The sugar market does not seem to have reached bottom yet, as quotations given recently were lower than had been heard of before. The demand is fairly good, especially in granulated. Prices current are: Granulated 4⅜ to 4½c.; Extra c, 3½ to 3¾c.; yellows 3¼ to 3½c.

DRIED FRUITS—The demand is not quite up to what was anticipated, and prices are somewhat easier, more especially for layer raisins, which are selling at 6¼ to 7c. Off stalk are quoted steady at 5 to 5½c. Dates are 4½ to 5c. Prunes are 6 to 7c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

POTATOES—Are of very dull sale, prices are steady at 80c. to $1.25 as to quality.

EGGS—Sell readily at 10c.

BUTTER—Is gradually getting lower at 18 to 19c. for choice tub.

CHEESE—Is somewhat lower at 10¾ to 11½c.

MONTREAL TRADE CHAT.

E. Neveu's grocery store was broken into on Sunday last, but owing to the arrival of the police the thieves did not get much.

The gold medal awarded to this city for the excellence of its exhibits at the Jamaica exhibition has been duly forwarded from the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

R. L. Gault, Chas. P. Herbert and Alfonse Turcotte left for Quebec last week, to advocate the bill on behalf of the Board of Trade. The clause that the Board of Trade is particularly desirous of having adopted is that referring to the appointment of curators. The clause reads as follows: "That the Judge shall appoint as curator or curators, inspector or inspectors, the party or parties nominated by the majority in value of the creditors present or represented at the meeting."

D. Hatton, of D. Hatton & Co., returned home last week after a month's visit to the firm's oyster beds at Bay du Vin river. The firm leased the river last year for fifteen years and set on it a large number of seed oysters. Mr. Hatton says that the bivalves have not thrived as well as they should, owing to the cold spring, but hopes, with proper care to have a good oyster bed.

There has been considerable talk in the Quebec Legislature regarding beet root sugar. The following will show what two of the leading papers in the Eastern Townships have to say on the question :

Sherbrooke Gazette :—Mr. Hackett, in his place in the Legislature, denounced the proposed appropriation of $12,000 for the encouragement of the beet industry as a waste of public money. In giving utterance to these views he simply voiced the feeling of his constituents, for it must be admitted that all the attempts to incourage the beet root sugar industry here have resulted in failure. Mr. Hackett pretty accurately represented the views of farmers in this section, and deserves thanks for his courage in opposing useless expenditure.

The St. Johns News—We admit the force of a great deal that Mr. Hackett said; it is identical with the opinions expressed by many other sensible men; but if we are to believe the declarations of another class of men of equal intellectual eminence, who have given the matter a great deal more thought and study, the conclusions of the opponents of the beet root sugar industry are founded upon an imperfect knowledge of the question. The point is not simply whether beets can be grown and converted into sugar at a price which will enable the manufactured article to compete with cane sugar. If this covered the whole issue the advocate of the sugar beet would have to give up his case at once; but it is whether the indirect as well as the direct advantages of the cultivation of the beet are sufficient to warrant the payment of a bonus on this industry.

A TIMELY HINT.

The manager, the bookkeeper, the cashier, the entry clerk, the shipping clerk, the salesman, the office boy, the porter—everyone, in fact, who is in any way connected with a business establishment should bear in mind that there is such a thing as cultivating trade, and that they, as well as the proprietors, are responsible for a share of the firm's success. Because a man is hired to fill a certain position there should be no excuse for his hesitating to do any other work which may require attention. A bookkeeper might soil his fingers by reason of stepping outside the office and waiting upon a customer if occasion required, but he would not lower himself in the estimation of his employer through thus signifying a willingness to make himself generally useful, and anyhow the dirt will wash off. To make a business grow and make it pay should be the main object of every employe, regardless of position or conditions. The day is gone when business can be conducted successfully without the undivided and best efforts of those who are responsible for it. In days gone by a merchant might succeed in a measure by sitting down and waiting for trade to come to him, but not now. In our day and generation the most persistent and systematic efforts are essential in bringing about a satisfactory result. A progressive spirit and a capacity for pleasing customers will work wonders in any business.—The Bookkeeper.

SOMETHING NEW.

We have to thank the agents of Lazenby & Sons (A. P. Tippet & Co.) for a sample of Soup Squares, a most convenient form of putting up soups in condensed shape, and admirably adapted for camping, picnicing and kindred uses. Each square will make 1½ pints of rich soup and contains the soluble part of 1½ lbs. of beef, and a dozen squares take up less room than an ordinary tin of vegetables.

ALL OFF THE SAME HOG.

You may talk of spring chicken, and quail upon toast,
Or anything else of which epicures boast ;
But when you are hungry, and want something grand,
Try sugar cured ham of the Ryan brand.

First measure a thickness, and then as you cut
Through snowdrifts of fat as sweet as a nut,
You won't fail to notice the brand on the skin,
The letters W. R. which Ryan burns in.

Quick turn it and turn it, with many returns,
While melting fat merrily blazes and burns ;
Imparting rich flavors, red, juicy, and there
'Tis done, and by Ryan's smoked ham you swear.

Now catch it up quickly, and on a hot plate
Enjoy it at once, not a moment to wait ;
Acknowledge the truth, and then always be sure
To buy William Ryan's Toronto cure.

Question :--

Is there any question in your mind whether or not you are a first-class grocer, and handle A 1 goods ?

If so look on your shelves, and if thereon you see the above Brand of Matches, also our Telephone and Eagle Parlor, and on examination of WOODENWARE, WASHBOARDS and INDURATED FIBRE WARE you find the following :—

The E. B. EDDY CO.,

HULL, CANADA,

Then decide emphatically in the affirmative, and consider yourself a LEADER.

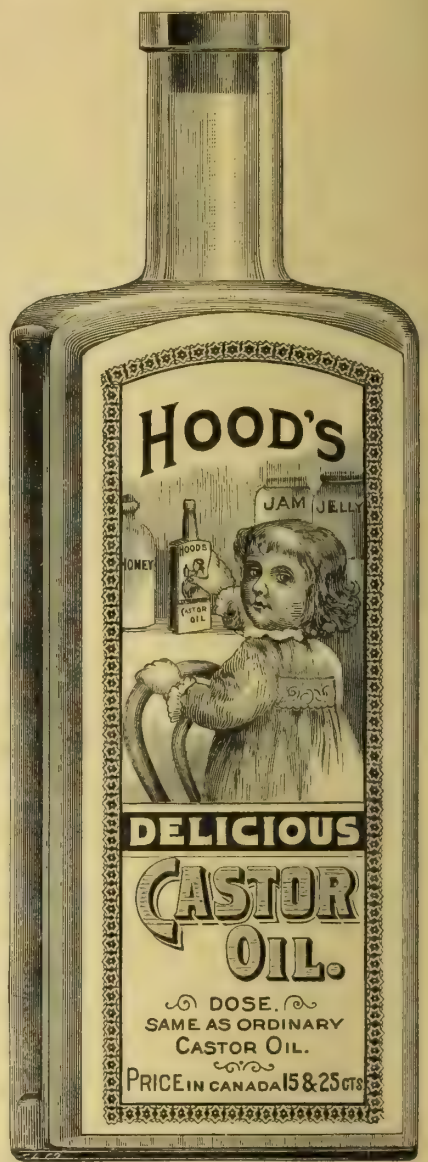
YOU

Have wished for something of this nature many a time, and we respectfully solicit your assistance in placing it before the public.

It will pay you to push Hood's Delicious Castor Oil.



What we claim for the above:

(1) As a cathartic for women and children it is absolutely safer and much preferable to any Patent Medicine or Soothing Syrup.
(2) It is virtually pure Castor Oil, as it contains 99 PER CENT. of the FINEST OIL PROCURABLE.
(3) No trouble to administer, particularly to the little folks, as it is just as the name implies, "Delicious."
(4) Contains no Chloroform, Glycerine, or any injurious ingredient.
(5) Recgnized and appreciated by the Medical profession wherever known.

Demand Rapidly Increasing.
Big Profits to Pushing Retailers.

Ask your Wholesale Grocer for it, or write direct to the Manufacturers for Samples and Quotations

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

He who goes a borrowing goes a sorrowing.

During the season 1891-92 the English market took about 4,000 tons of Australian and New Zealand butter. This immense trade would be more gratifying to the Australians if it had been more profitable, but the butter appears to have been bought by the importers at prices averaging about 3c. a pound below those paid for Danish butter. According to the Provision Dealers' Gazette, however, the colonial butter was equal in quality to that of Denmark, and the proof of this is established by the fact that English provision dealers were able to dispose of it to consumers as Danish butter, and to get the same prices for it. While the provision dealers made a big margin on it, the shippers were deprived of a fair profit and the butter itself was deprived of the credit that its large sale entitled it to. It was denominated Danish butter. That it was accepted as such by consumers is a tribute to its merit that ought not to be withheld from it because provision dealers want to buy it cheap. Canadian butter wants a chance too in the English market, and the best grades of it would probably pass for good Continental butter. While this would be very flattering to our producers, it would not be satisfactory to them to feel that all the benefit of such a conquest of the English market would accrue to English merchants. The butter would taste as sweet if called by any other name than Danish, and fair play requires that it shall be called by its own name. The butter does not need to be sold under the fraudulent cover of any established name, if it will sell for as full prices as the genuine butter of that name. The experience of the Australasian butter shippers draws the attention of butter producing colonies to the part that selfish produce dealers can play in determining the profits to be realized from exporting to the English market.

As was pointed out in our market report last week, country merchants are generally following the rule of shipping butter in its fresh state instead of storing it and putting it up in packages for sale later in the year. In this they are following a wise course, but it is doubtful if they are led to it entirely from choice, or from a conviction that it is the best way to deal with their butter. The fact of the matter is they cannot afford to let capital lie in the death-like trance in which all of it spent in butter used to be locked throughout the summer. That was a speculative policy. It never yielded any money, but it was repeated every year, and would perhaps be repeated yet if the agency that did away with speculative buying had not done away with speculative selling too to a very large extent. Even if butter did not decline in value through keeping, and a fairly good fall market were assured, it would be impossible for the majority of country merchants to hold their total purchases for the whole season. They cannot do so any more than they can buy large round lots of groceries several months in advance of needs, merely to anticipate an advance in price. The short time between payments has stopped all this. Goods have to be paid for and if the retailer has sold them for butter he must sell the butter to pay for them.

There is a demand for butter in British Columbia that should prove serviceable to Ontario producers and dealers. Manitoba makers find sale there for a good part of their spare product, and butter is imported also from some of the neighboring States. Makers in this province can get butter into British Columbia in good condition and at fair prices. There is no reason why butter makers here should not make some money out of that market. The sale of a lot of 6,000 lbs. to a British Columbia buyer by a Guelph creamery a few days ago, is an evidence that this market is receiving some attention here.

Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, submitted to the United States Senate the other day the minority report of the Democratic members of the Special Sub-committee on Relations with Canada. The following extract from it shows that the McKinley Act did not make our butter trade with New York buyers any worse than it was:—In 1890 we imported 54,000 pounds of butter from Canada; in 1891 we imported from Canada 351,691 pounds of butter. In the first year of the McKinley Act the importation of butter had increased nearly 700 per cent., notwithstanding the duty had been increased fifty per cent. It will scarcely be denied in view of the large export to the United States, that our market afforded the best outlet for Canadian butter, and in order that my honorable colleagues might know who paid the duty I addressed a letter upon this subject to the well-known firm of Stephen Underhill, of New York, the largest dealers in this country in Canadian butter. The response is as follows:

"In reply to your questions in respect to our trade with the Dominion of Canada in the article of butter, I beg to say that in the year 1891 we purchased largely in Canada and the prices paid ranged from 15 to 22c. per pound, the latter for extra creamery; and that in all cases we paid the duty, and charged the duty, costs and profits upon consumers here. (Signed.) M. W. CARR."

A POLICY OF CHANCE.

Credit is like fire : it is a good servant but a bad master. When it is well bestowed it is doubly beneficent—like mercy, that in the phrase of Shakespeare "blesses both him who gives and him who takes." It has also the same twofold power to destroy, and oftener does wreck both dispenser and receiver than it prospers them. Those who mete it out take risks between these two chances in probably nine cases out of ten, having moral certainty of getting full payment in the other one chance. They get full pay of course in more than one-tenth of the number of cases, but that fact does not diminish the risk they ventured on.

The risk is not solely in the admitting of a man to credit privileges. At that stage the giving of credit is a matter of choice with the trader. But it becomes a matter of necessity very often in later stages of the trader's dealings with a customer who has been allowed to get on a time footing. You may be a wholesaler or a retailer. You have mistaken a buyer's honesty, business ability or financial standing, or you have been too eager to make a customer of him, and you let him into you for a good-sized account. He pays you a small sum and wants more goods. You are uneasy about the debt he owes you, and dread giving him offence by refusing further credit, as by doing so you will estrange his trade and, put it out of his mind ever to pay you at all. You let him in a little further. If he comes along with a margin, and has something of the manner of being conscious that he has "got you," you'll venture a little further. You finally get to a stage, if you are a wholesaler, when you desire to sell him all the goods he buys, and for fear of his going to some other wholesaler you rather press him to buy, hoping, in the extremity of your distress, that when he comes to a state of bankruptcy there may be nobody to divide up his assets with, and that you may get them all. Not infrequently, as has been hinted above, the debtor sees his advantage and shows a little impudence, being disposed to swagger on the strength of his dishonesty as the physical bully is on the supposed strength of his muscle. Many a trader knows that when he has come to a certain pass in credit, giving he has to go on or lose all he has ventured. He plays a desperate game after that and commonly loses. When a man cannot keep up he had better be dropped with all that he has been able to secure of his creditor's substance, if there is no means of recovering it.

In such cases continued credit-giving is exactly analogous to stock-gambling. You pay your ten per cent. on a venture in wheat, corn or pork ; the market goes down, but you believe it will recover, and not wishing to lose what you have in you continue paying. You get after a while to a point where you have to stop, and your name goes to swell the long list of victims who started out in the flush of their conceit in their own cleverness. Progressive credit—giving is gambling. It can be depended on to come out right in about as many cases as gambling can. A sure loss is better than an uncertain gain of much larger size.

SELF-RESPECT IN ADVERTISING.

A class of advertising that is certain not to catch a good line of custom is that in which the trader constantly obtrudes himself upon public notice. Egotism is always objectionable, but it is never more vulgar than when it defaces the space that it takes up in business advertisements. Slang, and contemptuous epithets applied to rivals, are in vile taste. People of any sense find nothing more nauseating than a constant periodical succession of such announcements as "James Lightweight is still on deck," "The People's Friend is still on the trail of the Profit Grabbers," "We're Here to Stay," "We're in it," "Honest John is still on Top." Sometimes these advertisers pose as heroes, overcoming,single-handed, great odds in the competition they have to face ; sometimes they are martyrs to great principle, usually that of selling at cut-throat prices ; sometimes they are oppressed by a combine. Their trumpet blast is always the same, the key note of their advertisement is always personal, and therefore both in bad taste and unmanly. A trader should make what capital he can out of any genuine case of boycotting or of combination specially to thwart him, but he can do it in a becoming and self-respecting manner. He certainly will not extract the full benefit of such a situation by the use of advertisements that make himself ridiculous. A man is ridiculous who imagines his affairs are of great consequence to the people, who believes that they are all keeping an eye to his fortunes on account of the immodest and bombastic stuff he sticks into print about himself. A truly diplomatic man who has the rare advantage of being leagued against by opponents will know how to use it with decency. He knows that the public interest centres in his goods, not in himself, and he will so trim his sails as to make the most direct course into buyers' favor. To pose as Hercules in each separate act of the seven labors is not the role that befits him. People make game of a man who makes such a spectacle of himself.

The very funny, excruciatingly humorous fellows that do not mind making monkeys of themselves for the diversion of the public are not all out of business yet. Here and there in the pages of a country newspaper, and here and there in the handbills cast abroad by city retailers may be seen specimens of these antics' fine work. The jokes are usually crude, devoid of point, and forced hard into some application to the advertiser, who seems to think that is the sure way of clinching an impression that will multiply customers rapidly. A little decorum would do more good, and it is wise for a man to put his trust in a less frivolous mode of announcement. The advice suits this class as well as the other : "I pray thee, allay with some cold drops of modesty thy skipping spirit."

AS TO ADVERTISING.

The advertising—day by day it grows to be more important—is a department that requires all the talents which are necessary in the man as a salesman, and it requires still more than this, it requires the knowledge of how to say a good deal in a few words, and in such a way that the persons who read will feel that the advertisement is not put in the paper for the mere sake of seeing one's name in print, but that facts are stated and goods are as represented. The art of advertising, and advertising well, is not possessed by every man who is a successful business man. This is evidenced by the fact that most of the large houses employ men whose sole work is writing, arranging, and placing the advertising. Large salaries are paid to men who have demonstrated their ability to use English in such a manner that, "he who runs may read," and be benefited thereby.

The average advertisement may be made to pay 50 per cent. better when arranged as it should be, than when arranged by a person who does not appreciate the meaning conveyed by a page full of detailed description and cuts that are, in reality, blots. Quoting an authority on the subject, we have a few practical, common sense statements that may not be amiss at this point : "The average printer does not know how to set up an attractive advertisement. He is at it constantly, and from this fact alone he is the poorest person in the world to put an advertisement in attractive form. The fewer the different styles of type used the more effective the advertisement. Do not become possessed of the idea that if your firm name is in one-inch display, the body of the "ad" is of no importance. Your name does not interest the public, and if your goods do not, certainly your name will not have any effect. Don't try to give sizes and prices, details of manufacture, and the history of your house all in two inches. Use as much space, as few words, and as little display type for headings as possible. Have a catch or head line, and if your advertisement is to be used on a page full of cuts, do not use a cut ; your advertisement will stand out more distinctly in type alone, and vice versa. The best type you can use is the style that primers for children are printed in.

Glance through any of the monthly magazines and the strength of the foregoing remrks will be obvious. The departments of a business resemble the mechanism of a watch. The firm and the salesmen take the place of the main-spring and hair-spring ; the goods are the cog wheels, and the regulator is the advertising department, without which the watch, while it may run, will be such a poor time-piece that the public place no confidence in it, and will look elsewhere for their guidance.

SUMMER WINDOW DRESSING.

In a King street grocery store may be seen a model window, dressed for the summer season. The passer is struck with its extreme simplicity, yet very taking design, while a grocer would be struck with its suitableness to the season of heat and flies. Black flies are inevitable as a thunder storm, and hence the only remedy is preparation for their arrival. The grocer who dressed the window referred to may naturally be supposed to have been fully aware of the disgust liable to be engendered in a customer's mind when he or she notices a window half full of sugar, raisins, currants, teas and such articles, and the other half cloudy with flies. He thought much as does a Queen street grocer, who is accustomed to leave his window entirely empty during the summer season, with the exception of a few pots of flowers and an attractive sign.

But this window before mentioned was filled with such articles as packages of corn starch, small bright labelled boxes of starch, washing blue and such inclosed goods. Then these were fantastically and elegantly arranged. Severe forms were there, but these were relieved by the neglige parts of the window. In arranging such goods as these, the individual can follow his own tastes and display his ingenuity for arrangement.

It's mate was filled with canned goods. Their arrangement was very novel, and reminded one of the arrangement of the pipes on a large pipe organ, or rather several of these arrangements of various sizes and constructions. These windows were extremely simple and plain, but the goods were clean, in fact looked as if polished for the occasion. Altogether, the impression left on the mind was that the grocer was a tidy man, and was very careful not to shock the feelings of his customers. At the same time common articles in his ingenious hands could be made to assume a very pretty appearance.

THE UNITED STATES SUGAR TRUST AND REBATES.

The wholesale grocers of the United States east of the Rocky Mountains held a convention in New York on Thursday and Friday of last week, of which the object was to obtain from the Sugar Trust an extension to the wholesale trade of the whole country the rebate system that now exists by agreement between the Trust and the two associations of the east—the New York association and the New England association. Besides the widening of the range covered by the rebate, the convention sought an increase of it to ¼c. per lb. To the associations named it is ⅛c. per lb. The convention was unsuccessful. President Havemeyer informed the committee that presented the resolution of the convention, that the Trust would be willing to consider proposals for a uniform rebate to the entire wholesale trade east of the Rocky Mountains if that trade would form a national association. The wholesalers had coupled with their request the proviso that the trader should sell at Trust prices to be entitled to the rebate. This evidently was not a sufficient basis of support for the Trust, which plainly aims at enlisting the united wholesale trade as an ally for the upholding of prices. The convention adjourned without doing anything further.

NOTES TAKEN ON THE ROAD.

W. J. Hapgood, Halifax, N.S., says trade is good with him, and he looks for an increased business the present year.

G. J. McLeod, Truro, N. S. has been taking a vacation which his health demanded, and the Cape Breton atmosphere seems to have done him some good.

W. T. Harris, Chatham, N.B., carries on a general merchant's trade and handles the milling products of Ontario on a considerable scale. He is also a lobster packer, and has now 200 cases which he is offering on the market.

A. A. Clay, Trenton, N. B., keeps a well assorted stock of dry goods, hats, caps, men's furnishings, etc., as well as groceries. Mr. Clay is in the centre of the large manufactories in Trenton, and as the town grows his trade will grow with it.

The patent Dominion clothes pin, manufactured by C. C. Brown, Danville, Que., is having large sale. The pin is light and durable, and can be sold at a good profit by the trade. Mr. Brown solicits correspondence. See his advertisement in this issue.

J. A. Havival, Trenton, N. S., in locating near the large works of the Nova Scotia Steel & Forge Co. will succeed in building up a good grocery trade. Being a young man and in favor with the workmen around him, he can secure a large share of the trade that formerly went to New Glasgow.

W. Wilson & Co., Chatham, N.B., welcomed the representative of THE CANADIAN GROCER and paid two years' subscription to that journal as freely as they would have bought a sack of flour or a bushel of No. 1 hard Manitoba wheat. They say it brings its value every week.

James Kavanagh, New Glasgow, N.S., is prospering in the old stand of Ray & Lockhart. He bought out that firm's stock, and added much to it. He keeps full lines of fancy groceries, foreign fruits, confectionery, etc., and is fully alive to which is the best grocery journal to subscribe for.

D. Logan, Pictou, N. S., says trade is good with him, but there is no getting away from the fact that the farmers of Nova Scotia feel the McKinley tariff keenly, and while they can all feel that it will not starve them out, it would be just as well to have that market if they could get it.

G. R. Jones, Moncton, N. B., has been in the grocery business there for about a year. Being a young man with lots of push, his trade shows satisfactory returns for that time. This young man is alive to the benefits to be derived from his trade paper, and we venture to say his judgement and pluck will carry him safely through the present depression that seems to hang over the town of Moncton.

The firm of Hogg & Craig, Pictou, N. S., are doing a nice trade in the grocery line. The business was formerly owned by the confectionery firm of Hamilton & Son. Mr. Hogg is a large packer of lobsters and ships extensively to foreign countries. Mr. Craig is an old London, Ontario, boy. In that city he travelled several years for McCormack & Co. He and his partner have been in the business here two years, and have every reason to be proud of their success and prospects for the future.

The picture that meets the eye from the deck of a steamer in Northumberland Strait is one of grandeur, sublimely beautiful. As far as the eye can reach is seen one vast garden sloping towards the sea, its ploughed fields, its growing grass and grain, making as goodly a sight as the eye wants to rest on. The beautiful city of Charlottetown, the hub of Prince Edward Island, cannot get justice done it in these columns, for this is a hurried visit of a representative of THE CANADIAN GROCER, and he must see his numerous friends and return by the morning boat. Glad he is to find all of them busy and cheerful, and ready to welcome him. P. Monaghan was too busy to give more than a passing welcome, with an order to renew the subscription to THE GROCER, and a promise of more attention next time. T. J. Morris was much pleased with THE CANADIAN GROCER, and the many good articles he found in it, and trade questions. He would join in any movement looking to early closing, black-listing, half-holidays, pic-nics, etc, such as are reported to exist in the upper province. Any organization that would bring the grocerymen together in a social and business compact for the good of all he would support. George Rackham expressed himself much in the same way as did Mr. Morris. He said everything was favorable to an association prospering in Charlottetown, if the right man could be got to organize it. Mr. Rackham was very flattering in his remarks on THE CANADIAN GROCER as a well conducted journal in the interests of the grocery trade, and he cited several instances where the diagnosis of the market conditions of the different products had been taken advantage of by him and others with profit to themselves. W. N. Coffin buys farm produce and does quite a shipping trade. He has found Cape Breton his best market this spring. Beer & Goff do a large retail and jobbing trade. They import direct from Europe and other quarters of production. They carry the best brands of flour and cornmeal, and ship throughout the Island. W. Hutchinson is the leading confectioner of the town. Fruits, foreign and domestic, in their seasons with sweet goods abound in this store, and although tempted to linger here, our representative was obliged to hasten on and make calls on R. K. Brace, Jas. Kelly, and many others before the gangplank of the steamer was pulled in for the night.

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

The transactions at the regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association on Monday evening were, with the exception of an addition to the membership and the receipt of certain communications, rather unimportant. Notwithstanding that the membership has increased by over a hundred new names since the present secretary took office, the attendance on Monday evening was no better than ever. Though the members who attended the May meeting recognized the importance of being punctual and several promised to amend in this respect, the meeting on Monday evening was not opened till 15 minutes to 9. There was manifest a very general lack of enthusiasm, and the order of the proceedings was open to criticism at many points, some of the participants in discussion being inclined to be irregular and occasionally waggish. The hot weather and the absence of any real important question to engage the attention, had probably a good deal to do with all this. Whatever the cause, business was long drawn out.

The following members were present: The President, Mr. Booth, (who occupied the chair) Messrs. Clark, White, Sykes, Barron, Sinclair, Roberts, Mills, J. Doyle, N. H. Young, D. Perkins, J. McMahon, Mathieson, McCulloch, Williamson, Secretary Corrie.

The minutes were read and duly confirmed

NEW MEMBERS.

The Secretary submitted the names of the following grocers, who upon nomination were admitted to membership:

J. Beaton, King St. E.; J. Titterington, Northcote Ave.; J. Bond, Queen St. W.; Nicholson Bros., College St.; K. Frawley, Sackville St.; E. Boyd, Sumach St.; Frank Kelly, Yonge St.; W. Gray, Augusta Ave; A. Stirling, Eastern Ave.; —— Close, King St. W.; Gosnell Bros., Gerrard St. E.; —— Davison, Wilton Ave.; —— Squires, Church St.; W. H. Shields, Gladstone Ave.; E. Brown, Gerrard St. E.; —— Humphreys, Dovercourt; J. H. Mathieson, Bloor St. W.; T. Clark, Tecumseh St.; J. Doyle, Wellington Ave.; Chas. Hooper, Portland St.; A. N. Burns, Yonge St.; I. N. Kirkup, Yonge St.; —— Gilbert, Oak St.; Alex. Rae, Brunswick Ave.; —— Macdonald, Baldwin St.; R. Wellington, Gerrard St. E.; W. Thompson, Church St.; D. Radcliffe, College St.; T. S. Smith, Bloor St. W.; Gibb Bros., Yonge St.; F. Readman, King St. W.; J. French, Little York.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The Secretary read the report of the Executive Committee, recommending: (1), that Mr. Clark be appointed by that body its permanent chairman; (2), that certain accounts, of which the only considerable item was $55 for salary and commission to the Secretary, be paid; (3), that the Association do not get up a pic-nic or excursion of its own, but be recommended to join the City Travellers' excursion party to Niagara Falls; (4) that, to save time and labor, the night of the meeting be printed on the monthly forms sent out for the filling in of names for the dead-beat list; (5), that a summary of the law relating to the collection of debts be printed on the back of these forms; (6), that Mr. Gibson and Mr. Butcher, associate-trustees with Mr. Barron for the Special Fund, be asked to sign their names to the bond for this fund.

For the special committee appointed to look after the peddling question, Mr. Barron reported that nothing so far as he knew had been done, and said that he was not aware until he saw his name in THE GROCER, that he was on such a committee.

Mr. Mills said something should be done at once, as the change in the law relating to pedlars would come into force on the first of July.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Communications were received in reply to the complaint made to manufacturers as to cutting on certain brands of their soap. W. A. Bradshaw & Co., manufacturers of Ammonia soap, said they had been aware a certain retailer was cutting, but did not know that anybody else was. This retailer has been called upon by a representative of the company, and he has promised to desist.

Taylor & Co., manufacturers of Morse soap, said they had done their utmost to prevent cutting and had steadily avoided business with dry goods houses. They knew that Howell & Powell of College St. had been shading prices, but did not know of any one else.

The Pure Gold Co. were sorry to learn that their new process soap had been sold at the rate of 6 for 25c. They knew of no case where this was done, but would be obliged for information pointing to any dealer who did it.

With reference to this communication, the Secretary said, that in accordance with instructions given at the last meeting, he had given information when asked, in connection with these complaints, and had subsequently named the person who had cut prices of Pure Gold Soap.

A communication was sent by the London Retail Grocers' Association, which forwarded a resolution lately passed by that body declaring its intention to restrict its trade to houses which did not sell grocery lines to dealers other than grocers. The resolution further provided that all other associations should be asked to co-operate with the London body on these lines, and that with that object copies of the resolution should be sent to sister associations.

The Secretary reported but one reply to his request for answers to the list of questions drafted by the delegates who met here last fall. That reply came from Hamilton, and was to the effect that the Hamilton replies had been sent some time ago. The Secretary knew nothing of any replies to this list.

The foregoing reports and letters were then upon motion formally received.

THE EXCURSION.

The Executive's report having been received, it was decided to take it up clause by clause. Everything was assented to until the clause recommending that, instead of taking an outing of its own, the Association should attend the Travellers' Excursion to Niagara Falls.

Mr. Sykes wanted to know if the Travellers had given an invitation to warrant this recommendation, or if the Travellers had been consulted.

From the general tenor of the answers it appeared that the Travellers' mind on the matter was not known, and that there appeared no need for asking their consent to this arrangement. It was explained that the clause would not, even if passed, commit the Association to attendance at the Travellers' excursion, and in fact absolved the Association from doing anything to get up or take part in an outing, but simply suggested that those of the Association who wanted a good day's outing could not do better than attend the Travellers' excursion, as anybody who bought a ticket would be entitled and welcome to do. The Executive felt that it was acting in accordance with the wishes of the Association in not putting the work of a pic-nic or excursion upon members, and in waiving any chance to make money out of any such occasion.

Mr. Barron did not approve the idea embodied in the clause. Heretofore the Association had been able to get up successful pic-nics without joining with any other body. If any other body, such as the Travellers, desired to join with this Association, let an arrangement be adopted for a division of the proceeds.

Mr. McMahon suggested that the Association send a committee to confer with the Travellers' Association as to an arrangement for a union excursion.

Mr. Sykes thought a satisfactory arrangement could be made with the Travellers, and did not believe in paying out a lot of money for nothing. The 35 cents per ticket allowed by the boat company might be secured for the Association upon every ticket taken by grocers.

Mr. Roberts considered it wrong for this Association to disturb arrangements made by the Travellers months ago, as such arrangements had to be made months ago to get a boat for a day now. That was what stood in the way of the Association, and prevented it at this late hour getting a boat itself.

A motion was introduced by Mr. Williamson and seconded by Mr. Mills, to amend the clause by leaving out the words naming the Travellers' excursion, thereby leaving

In amendment Mr. White moved the rejection of the clause altogether.

It was shown however that the motion, and therefore the amendment to it, as an amendment, was not in order. The President then put the question as to the clause: Shall it pass? and upon the issue of a negative vote, declared it lost. There is therefore to be no Association sanction of a joint excursion with the Travellers. The rejection of this clause also cancels the resolution of the Executive that the Association shall have no outing of its own, and virtually declares in favor of one.

OTHER CLAUSES.

The next two clauses of the Executive's report were carried without discussion.

The last, recommending that the fellow-trustees of Mr. Barron for the Special Fund, should sign the bond for it, so that no inconvenience should follow any mishap to Mr. Barron, was adopted.

THE PIC-NIC AGAIN.

Mr. Sykes, seconded by Mr. Barron, moved that the Association have an excursion of it own, and go to London. This was defeated.

Mr. Roberts, seconded by Mr. Clark, moved that the Association have an excursion next year, and make early arrangements at the end of this year or the beginning of next to secure a boat. This was defeated.

REMARKS IN INTEREST OF ASSOCIATION.

Mr. White said we had been here two hours, and not a single benefit could be pointed to as a result. He thought the proceedings should be pushed through, and time taken up after routine business to discuss matters of interest to the trade. There was too much triviality and lack of order.

Mr. Mills was also of the opinion that the time ought not to be spent in idle talk. The Association could not blame absentees if the proceedings were not more useful than they had been to-night. He could say that he had gleaned nothing at this meeting. There were many things to employ their thoughts, for instance, he believed that information should be freely imparted among members as to bad debtors and methods of collection. The slips now sent out ought to be filled in by every grocer. The bad debtors will be named but the creditors will be unknown.

The President stated that he would endeavor to enforce the rules of the Association, and gave fair warning that members who departed from the proper order might expect to be sharply rapped over the knuckles for it.

Mr. Clark moved, seconded by Mr. Sykes, that the Secretary be instructed to get out small slips for noting the address, Christian name, occupation, etc., of undesirable debtors about whom these particulars were unknown, and that letter-heads be printed to aid in collecting. Carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON IN JULY AND AUGUST.

The Wednesday half-holiday has a large number of supporters in this city, as the names given below the following memorandum of agreement, to which they were subscribed, attest. These signatures have been collected by Mr. Corrie, the Secretary of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, and cover pretty fully the ground east of Yonge street :—

We, the undersigned grocers of Queen street, east of Yonge street to the Don River, do hereby promise to close our stores on Wednesday afternoon from the 1st July to the 1st September, 1892, until further notice.

This includes Church and other streets in the vicinity.

Above a week ago Chief McKinnon, of Hamilton, gave an order to the force to warn merchants having over-hanging signs in front of their premises to remove them, as the signs were erected contrary to the by-law established. So far not a single sign has been lowered, the merchants waiting one upon the other for the first movement. On Saturday over forty summonses were issued against those who disregarded the warning and the by-law.

THE ATTENTION OF THE PUBLIC

Is attracted by any new feature in newspaper advertising, but it must be strikingly novel if the advertisement is read a second time.

The display advertisements of retail merchants are artfully worded and appeal strongly to the economical housekeeper. Flat irons at seven cents and a Monday bargain sale in ribbons open the pocket books of the modern Mrs. Toodles.

The real estate agent with town lots for sale in an earthly Paradise, ten miles from the Court House, furnishes free transportation, a brass band and a free luncheon for prospective home seekers.

The railway companies do their share of contributing to the support of newspaper proprietors. Their time tables, showing arrivals and departures of trains, are paid for in cash, or in tickets which will enable the editor and his best girl to ride on the trains.

One railway company will advertise that it is a "short line to Omaha." A competing line then positively states that it is "a shorter line to Omaha than any other," and now the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway insists that it is "the shortest line to Omaha," and proves it.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Co. also says that it is the "best line to St. Paul and Minneapolis," with "electric lighted trains" and reading lamps in each berth so that one can read all night long if he has a book and don't want to sleep. It brags about the "finest dining cars in the world," with the best of meals served on imported china by the most expert and civil of colored waiters, at seventy-five cents, while the lines east of Chicago charge a whole dollar.

And—once more—the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway opens up a new through car line from Chicago to Denver, via Omaha and Lincoln, and it isn't long before the whole world says to itself that "shortest line to Omaha," that "best line to St. Paul and Minneapolis," and that "new route to Denver," must be the only first-class railroad in the western part of the United States, and what the whole world says must be true.

All Coupon Tickets Agents in the United States and Canada sell tickets via the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul R'y.

LAZY BRAZILIAN MERCHANTS

Next to indolence, the most impressive trait of Brazilian character, a correspondent writes, is morbid curiosity, and it is that which keeps him continually out of doors, perambulating a regular beat like a policeman, and which sends him to the station every morning when the train departs for Rio and every evening when it returns. Walk along any street in Brazil at any time of day, and you will observe that nearly every window is decorated with female heads and shoulders hanging over the sills, while their owners chatter with one another and minutely inspect all passersby—evidently quite as willing to be seen as to see.

Not only do women of the working classes spend most of their waking hours in this way, but the habit is universal—probably the natural outcome of the national characteristic of morbid curosity, enhanced by the Latin notion that for females "a little learning is a dangerous thing" that reading is not good for them, and that work of every kind should be left entirely to the servants. Thus, ladies of upper-tendom have not even the care of their own children to occupy their thoughts, and society ordains that they must not walk abroad unless accompanied by some male relative.

Therefore, without resources in themselves or cultivated tastes to gratify—nothing in the world to do but to eat, sleep and look as pretty as nature will allow—the poor things are driven to pass much of their useless lives lounging in balconies and hanging out of windows. The only alternative is religion and music, and in both distractions they indulge in excess without going very deeply into the whys and wherefores. Day after day, year in and out, one may hear them strumming over and over again the same lightest of French, Spanish and Portuguese operas, until the wonder grows that in crowded communities—the windows and doors being always open—the neighbors are not driven stark, staring mad; as, perhaps, they would be were not the noise partially drowned by that they are making themselves—the same airs being continually rattled on every piano all up and down the street.

Shopping in Brazil is by no means the pleasant occupation one may find it in New York. Everywhere in this country you will find the merchants blocking their own doorways, even during the busiest hours of the day, by standing in them, gazing into the street—not because they expect anything to happen, but merely from an overweening desire to see what other people are doing—the same instinct which impels them at the heatre to turn their backs upon the high-priced performance and spend the time staring at each other. If you insist upon buying something, and succeed in pinning the unwilling shopkeeper behind the counter, you cannot infuse into him any apparent interest either in your business or his.

He treats you with an air that plainly says your patronage is nothing to him. In reply to your inquiry for some desired article he is quite as likely to say he has it not, though it may be in plain sight; and should you point it out he will smile and elevate his eyebrows as if to say: "What persistent bores these foreigners are." Or perhaps, if you ask for a particular thing, he will direct you to the case or drawer where it ought to be and leave you to search for yourself while he hurries back to his street, gazing and gossiping.

No matter how much or how frequently you buy, there is never any discount, and if you object to an extortionate price the merchant smiles politely, shrugs his shoulders, and turns his entire attention to the cigarette he has all the time been smoking, as if glad to be rid of you on any terms. And then it is so exasperating to take a long walk in the broiling sun to find the shops closed, as they are about two-thirds of the time (always excepting Sundays), because it happens to be some saint's day or patriotic anniversary, or because the alleged business hours have not begun, or maybe they are over for that day, though the streets are yet thronged with possible customers.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

IS CHEAPNESS A BENIFIT?

All the staples which enter into the cost of living are selling today cheaper than ever before in the history of this country, and still the cry is for cheaper goods, from the halls of Congress and the homes of wealth down to the humble cottage and frugal fireside of the day laborer. From the halls of Congress it is the cry of the demagogue for the political effect; from the homes of wealth it is the voice of arrogant selfishness which thinks that the lavish dollars of wealth should have a greater purchasing power than the scanty dollars of toil and penury; from the humble cottage of labor it is the pleading of necessity. The universal trend of all business interchange is toward cheapness, and to-day there is scarcely an article of necessity or luxury that is not being produced and sold at less cost than ever before known in this country. A dollar to-day has a greater purchasing power in either the necessities or luxuries of life than at any time since its adoption as a measure of values.

Is this cheapness beneficial? Does it really contribute to the prosperity and comfort of the people? Does it really add to the prosperity of that class of our citizens who are supposed to be the most benefitted by it, namely, the consumers and laboring class? Is this nation as a whole, in a more prosperous condition by reason of this era of cheapness? We know that upon the impulse of the moment these interrogatories would be answered in the affirmative and that the negative proposition would seem almost a paradox yet we believe that the latter proposition would be the correct one and that the era of cheapness is being carried to too great an extreme at the present time for the good of the masses and the general business prosperity of the country at large. We believe that if profits were heavier and more assured in all lines of manufacture and business than they are at the present time that labor would be better employed and command a higher wage than it does now and that there would follow as a result a greater prosperity to all lines of business and to all classes of citizens than the country enjoys at the present time.

There is a distinction between cheapening cheapness. The former implies the lessening of price withot materially affecting the profit, while the latter indicates a lowness of price that affords little or no profit above the actual cost of production. The first may result from various causes, such as cheaper raw material, new and improved methods of manufacture, producing in larger quantities without a corresponding increase in labor and expense, etc. The second signifies the reduction of price by a reduction of the established cost of production and a sacrifice of reasonable profits. An article may be cheapened without affecting the price of the labor employed in its production, and is therefore detrimental to the prosperity of the people when its tendency becomes general.

Cheapness tends to inferiority, not only in the quality of the article produced, but also in the labor necessary to its production. It is this tendency to cheapness that has created the demand for Chinese, convict and pauper labor, and introduced child labor and the "sweating process" into the labor element of manufacture. This same tendency to cheapness leads the retail merchant to employ cheap and inexperienced help in his store, and the result is that cheapness in manufactured articles tends towards a general reduction of the price of labor.

Inferiority in the quality deceives and defrauds the customer and as a rule makes the cheap article more expensive to the purchaser, in the end, than the dearer article of better quality would have been. Cheapness always offers a premium upon inferiority and adulteration so that the consumer in the end is generally cheated more in the quality than he is benefitted in the price. Because of these results cheapness is not always desireable or beneficial.

The commercial trusts and monopolies of the present time are, we believe, largely the natural results of the tendency to cheapness that has permeated all commercial transactions.

We believe that to-day there would be a greater degree of prosperity among all classes of citizens, and a more vigorous and healthy tone to all branches of business, if the prices of all manufactured staples were not forced down so close to the actual cost of production. Cheapness may be a benefit to those who already have the dollar with which to purchase, but to him who has to acquire the dollar first, it is a detriment in that it lessens his opportunity for earning that dollar. As the latter class predominate in the citizenship of the country, therefore we take the position that cheapness is not beneficial.—Omaha Trade Journal.

N. B.—The old STANDARD BRAND of HORSESHOE CANNED SALMON still takes the lead, and affords the greatest satisfaction to both dealer and consumer, and for uniform excellence in quality and weight has no equal.

To the American Grocer we humbly make the amende honorable. That we do owe that journal some credit it is most true; true we did copy it, and by a rare omission left out its name. And it happened in this wise: The matter taken was a collection of notes, —very good notes too by the way; it proved to be rather lengthly for a given space, and being convenient for dividing was divided. The credit at the foot was lost sight of because the matter from our stopping point downward, the credit excepted, was deleted. Thus did we sin unwittingly, and thus do we apologize openly.

LONDON RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

This Association met on June 8.

W. H. Branton reported that he had waited on the market reporter for the Advertiser and was informed that he visited the market daily and tried to obtain as reliable a report as possible, and thought they were pretty correct.—Report received.

A communication from the Chatham Association was read, which stated that they approved of the action of the London Retail Grocers' Association regarding manufacturers and wholesale firms selling to others than the regular trade, to which these goods properly belong, and that they endorse the resolution.

A communication was received from the Secretary of the Western Fair board granting use of their grounds for holding the Grocer's Picnic, providing the usual regulations are complied with.

It was reported that some one or two manufacturers, in addition to those reported at the last meeting, were supplying their goods to parties not in the line of business to which those goods properly belong, and the feeling of the members present was that the resolution of May 11 be carried out, and that those manufacturers be notified of the same.

Moved by J. L. Fitzgerald, seconded by R. A. Jones, That the picnic be all day, and that the procession start from the Market Square at 10 o'clock a.m. Carried.

The question was asked, Are there any new names being reported for the delinquent list? It was felt that this important part of the Association must not be overlooked or neglected even on the eve of the pic-nic. The secretary reported that he had some names to report, and if the members present had any to add he would ask them to hand them in and the list would be issued immediately.

The meeting adjourned.

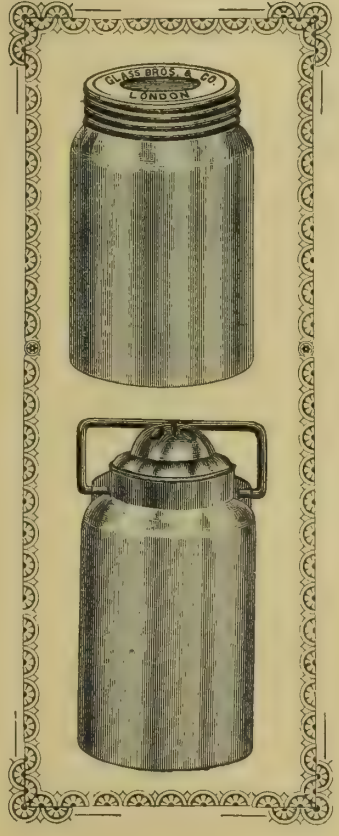
OUR NEW Fruit and Preserve Jar

(PATENTED JULY, 1891.)

These cuts represent our new Fruit and Preserve Jars which we are now introducing to the Canadian Trade, and in doing so, desire to draw your attention to the advantages they possess over those made of glass and other material.

The Jars are manufactured from a mixture of English and Pennsylvania clays, making a stronger and better article than can be produced from any other combination.

We use only a pure Bristol Stoneware Glaze, which is free from Lead or other Metallic substances readily attacked by all acids. We guarantee the body to be thoroughly vitrified and absolutely acid proof.



These Jars will be found superior to all other articles in use for the preservation of Fruits, etc. Being non-transparent, the action of light cannot fade the color or ferment fruits kept in them, as is the case where glass is used, and being a non-conductor of heat, preserves are kept at a more uniform temperature than in either glass or tin, and will be free from the unpleasant metallic taste so frequently noticed where tin is used.

They are made in various sizes and are for sale by all Crockery and Grocery Dealers in Canada.

DRY GOODS.

The sorting up trade has been quite active during the past week. The retailers have been selling their summer fabrics more actively than at any previous period during the season, due to the warm weather which has been prevalent this week. Novelties are selling well. The parcels have been small but very numerous; the retailers are still retaining the hand-to-mouth method of buying, and are trying to keep on the safe side.

Reports from the different mills engaged in manufacturing knit underwear, such as the Granite Mills, The Beaver Mills and Riverdale Mills show that these mills are running overtime in the attempt to fill their orders for woollen underwear, and the retailer who places his orders first for this class of goods is surest of having them filled, as the demand in September will undoubtedly be heavy.

During the past week a number of travellers for American trimming manufacturers, have been in the city and showing some very fine novelties in trimmings, which are equal in originality of design to any produced in France and Germany.

NOTES.

The trimmings for fall will consist mainly of silk braids, silk cords and heavy military braid. The varieties are numerous and stylish.

John Macdonald & Co. have just received a large consignment of men's neckwear for immediate delivery. Their stock is unexcelled in point of variety.

Caldecott, Burton and Spence have a large stock of the famous Sonnette corsets.

Gordon Mackay & Co. have passed into stock ten cases of their famous black worsteds, with a full range of prices.

The wide Windsors which ladies are wearing with blouses are having a very extensive sale. John Macdonald & Co. have had a very large trade in these.

Judging from its demand, the untearable silk glove sold by Caldecott, Burton and Spence, is becoming a universal favorite with the ladies for summer wear.

W. R. Brock & Co. report a large demand for navy dress serges and also for cravenettes, their waterproof dress goods.

John Macdonald & Co. have placed their prints with light grounds for sale at clearing prices. They have just received a shipment of flannelettes, art muslins and cretons.

In cream brown challies, all wool printed delaines and black and colored henriettas, Wyld, Grasett & Darling are having a strong demand. They have the newest patterns and their stock is excellent.

Gordon Mackay & Co. have made a large purchase of ladies Windsor ties and are offering exceptional value in this line.

John Macdonald & Co. are showing a beautiful line of new American crepe challies in sateen patterns, with light and dark grounds.

Gordon Mackay & Co. are clearing desirable lines of hot weather goods, yard wide challies, delaines, embroidered flouncing, etc., at heavy discounts.

W. R. Brock & Co. are showing some fine lines of lawn tennis flannels in spots, checks, and plains, also a new worsted fabric for summer suitings which is quite taking.

Among the coming lines for fall trimmings are gimps and French trimming braids. Caldecott, Burton & Spence are showing some beautiful lines in these. They have also an extensive line of jet trimmings which are being so widely used at present.

John Macdonald & Co. are showing a very large line of men's fancy drill vests of the dest English makes. These are very stylish goods.

A fresh lot of net veilings in black, cream and fawns are being shown by W. R. Brock & Co. They are also showing some beautiful lines of boating shawls and evening wraps.

An extensive shipment of muslin and cambric flouncing embroideries has arrived this week for John Macdonald & Co. In the narrow widths the patterns are good and the variety large, while in forty and forty-five inch flouncings they have some very beautiful goods. This shipment includes also children's flouncings in various widths.

Some special lines of Derby and Knot scarfs are being shown by Wyld, Grasett & Darling at $2.25 and $4 per dozen. They are also receiving some very large orders for fall delivery in umbrellas. There are many new novelties in handles this season, mostly in natural woods, the oxidized and horn handles have been retired from active demand.

BUTTER FOR THE BRITISH MARKET.

The Government of Canada resolved about a year ago to establish experimental dairy stations in the different provinces of the Dominion, the chief object being to effect an improvement in the quality of Canadian butter. For this purpose the premises of two cheese factories, one at Woodstock, the other at Mount Elgin, Ontario, were altered and specially fitted, and the farmers of the district have been giving their hearty support to the project. The chief part of the produce is designed for export, and the Canadian Government hope within a short time to see the trade enlarged until it equals that of the growing cheese industry. The first shipment of the winter-made butter, amounting to 10,000 lbs., has just been received by Messrs. Clement & Co., of Glasgow. The butter, which is light salted, is of good body and flavour, and is cleanly packed in handy little tubs containing about a stone weight and upwards.—London Provision Trades Gazette.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, June 16, 1892.

GROCERIES.

The most trite remark heard these days in wholesale houses is that there is scarcely anything made on any article that is sold. Prices on all lines are far below what they were a year ago, and a greater part of the shrinkage is borne by the wholesaler than by any other party to the previous handling of the goods. Sugar, tea, dried fruits, canned goods, spices, syrups, are all very low-priced, and the general consent of sellers seems to be on the side of keeping them down quite as much as is the policy of buyers. Trade may have its off and on spells, but prices have no variety beyond what is imparted to them by further ventures downward. The extent of the week's business shows that progress is being made in volume, at all events, as orders are freer and manifestly total up a larger aggregate than did those of last week. Sugar has sold better, dried fruit has held its own, canned goods have been more active and general groceries all around have had a better week of it. The improved weather has toned trade up somewhat, and low prices have not been without their effect as well. Nobody has anything unusually good to say about payments, and several pronounce them very backward. Partial payments and renewals are a feature of the week's experience.

COFFEE.

Good grades of coffee are very firm and not in sufficient supply to make holders uneasy about the chances of getting full prices for them. In New York the situation of these grades is strong. Rios here are worth from 17½c. upwards. A first class Porto Rico coffee is offering at 23 to 25c. Mochas run from 29 to 32c., Padang from 28c. upwards and Javas from 30 to 35c.

DRIED FRUITS.

A well-sustained demand for off-stalk Valencia raisins is as prominent a fact as there is in the market at the moment. Though prices have advanced in New York and are firm there now, and though the next two months are reckoned upon for a very large consumption, quotations dip as low as ever here, the range being from 3½ to 5½c. for off-stalks. For layer Valencias it is 6½ to 7½c. A very good movement of the latter is reported. Currants have no advance to their credit as a result of the week's business, grades being obtainable at 4½c. in barrels. Prunes are generally reported to be in a better condition and to be in rather limited compass as regards cases. The prices range from 5¾ to 7c. Casks run from 4½c. up. There is a scarcity on spot of candied lemon peel in 7 lb. boxes. Wholesalers are buying at 15c. to keep themselves going. Hence the price to retailers is firm at 16c. Orange peel is 18c., and citron is 26 to 28c. Valencia almonds are firm and likewise selling among the wholesalers, who pay as high to 13 and 14c.

RICE AND SPICES.

Rice is growing in importance as a selling commodity. Fair-sized and frequent orders come to hand now. There is no spur to buying in large round lots, as the market is tranquil and shows no sign of any excitement near at hand. "B" rice is worth 3⅞ to 4c. Japan rice, foreign-milled, is 5½c., and home-milled is 5c. It has very good sale as likewise has Java at 6½ to 7c. An advance of 1s. in tapioca is one of the week's changes in London, where the price is now 14s. 9d.

The spice market has had little added to its history by the course of trade this week,

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.

Nobody who has corn, peas, and tomatoes to sell can find fault with the buying, which affords a steady outlet to the market. Orders for sorting up lots continue to come in in good volume, and car lots occasionally vary the business, while for smaller round lots there is a good demand. Houses on the street buy from each other in lots of 25 to 50 cases, and there is a considerable amount of this business going on, owing to the few holders of quantities on the market. From the west a good demand comes daily. A car of assorted vegetables was shipped north on Monday, The price at which jobbers sell is fairly firm at $1.05. According to the views of some, corn and peas are in smaller supply than tomatoes, but it is not supposed that the stock of tomatoes will do more than fill out the remainder of the time before the new pack is due. Other vegetables, as beans, pumpkin, etc., are going out at the usual rate at unchanged prices. As to fruits, there is little to stimulate buying, while there is everything to stimulate selling. Buyers and sellers remain apart, though, despite the accommodating spirit of the latter, who only want a fair offer and they will cheerfully part with all they have. Glass goods are in small supply. Salmon is active, the supply is small in any one brand, and the price is steady at $1.30 to $1.40. Lobster has more active sale at from $1.35 upwards. The consumption of canned fish has improved since the weather became so hot.

The N.Y. Commercial Bulletin says: Sales were reported of new pack Province canned lobster at $9.75 per case f.o.b. at packing point.

The Vancouver News-Advertiser's Westminster correspondent says: The Syndicate canneries have commenced making cans for preserving the salmon pack of the coming season. The number finished in advance

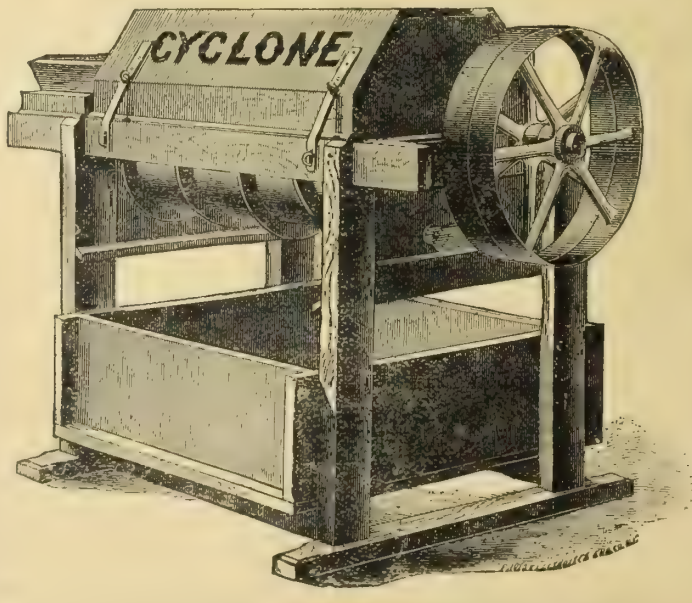
To Canning Men.-OUR CYCLONE PULP MACHINE



For making tomato pulp and preparing pumpkin and squash for canning is very well known to all the canners in the United States, and a few of them are in use in Canada. The high tariff has prevented their being used extensively heretofore.

We are now manufacturing these machines at Oakville, Ont., to enable our Canadian friends to obtain them without paying a heavy duty; but we shall make only a few of them unless ordered. Those who contemplate purchasing, should send their orders promptly to insure the saving of duty, as late orders will have to be filled from stock in the United States which will be subject to a 30 per cent duty.

will be from calculations on the basis of a poor year's anticipations.

The British Columbia Commercial Journal says: The canneries are all prepared for the season. The tins are all made, and some of the northern packers will commence this month, although the heaviest run of fish there is not expected until July. Word has been received of the arrival of the consignment shipped to London by steamer via Hong Kong. The fish arrived in good condition, but the freight rates by this route are too high to compete with sailing ship via Cape Horn.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

Certain lines have been in good demand, such as corn and peas at $1.10 per doz., tomatoes at $1.25, gallon apples at $2.10 to $2.25, and salmon at $1.45 to $1.60 per doz. These are ruling prices. Some brands will bring more, others less.

which closes with no change. In most lines there are always varieties of quality in ground spices that make an advance a matter of simple adjustment in quotations.

SUGAR.

An attempt to get up prices ended in failure and quotations stand just where they were, nominally 3½c. upwards for yellows and 4½c. for granulated, but really as close to these prices as it is possible to get. The number of refineries making sugar, the number of jobbers selling it, and the number of people who will want large quantities of it very soon, intensify competition and make full prices hard to get. The unsettling influence of variety in the grades of granulated sugar on the market helps also to make prices vary. The jobbers endeavor to get 4½c. here for granulated, or 4⅜c. ex refinery for car lots, but sales have been made at 4¼c. ex refinery and 4⅜c. here. While 4½c. is susceptible of shading for any grade of granulated if quantities are taken, the Moncton and Nova Scotia refineries' sugars are said to be especially so. The price of Moncton granulated at the refinery is reported to be 4.15c. Trade is still behind the expectations of sellers, who looked for quite a run for car lots by this time. There has been some business on this scale, but it was limited. The market needs the tonic of an advance or a sudden acquisition of firmness to accelerate the flow of orders and convince buyers that the present advantage is not assured to them till they have the sugar. Low prices may last, but it would not be surprising if they should suddenly take on a little deposit of advance. Nobody is making any money now to boast of. The refiners are not making any great things out of present prices, and it is not a time of smooth sailing with all of them, if the haste with which their drafts are presented, sometimes days in advance of delivery, is to be taken as an evidence. The coming in of domestic strawberries may give a start to trade and perhaps to prices.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There is enough syrup offering to supply a very large demand, the eastern refineries, the British Columbia refinery and United States houses quoting low prices and showing good value. But the quantity jobbing out is small. United States syrup is not selling, Canadian syrup being quoted at prices to meet those of the United States houses. A very good grade of British Columbia syrup is selling here at 2c.

Molasses is even duller than syrups. Brokers give little attention to business, because it is of so small account even when secured.

TEAS.

The new Japans did not get into the hands of all the importers here until pretty well on in this week, only one firm being reported to have received its shipment, though the whole lot came on the same vessel, the Empress of India. A few sales at from 30 to 40c. have been made. The market in Yokohama has fallen about 5c. Low grade Japans of the old crop are good stock and hold firmly at the higher prices of the last few weeks. A better demand for China teas has sprung up at prices from 16c. downward. Common green tea is firmer, having advanced 2c. in New York. Black is very low and offers some good bargains just now. Ceylons have advanced from ½d. to 1d. in London, and Indian have gone up from ½d. to 2d.

McMeekin & Co's. notes on Indian and Ceylon teas, give the following statement for the month of May.

Indian.—The offerings were 77,000 packages, against 32 packages in the same month of 1891. The teas consisted largely of odd remnants printed to close accounts for the season, and included a good number of second-hand parcels from dealer's stocks. Throughout the month the market was very firm for all descriptions, and any teas of useful character, either in leaf or liquor, were briskly competed for at, in many cases, a considerable advance. Even the common grades, which have been so long neglected, shared in the improvement, and were taken readily at an advance of ½d. to 1d. per lb. A good trade was done generally during the month, and the deliveries for home consumption and export show a very large total. The average of public sale prices for the month was 8½d. per lb. against 11¼d per lb. for the corresponding month last year. The imports were 416,000 lbs., and the deliveries 9,591,000 lbs., leaving in stock on 31st May 29,305,000 lbs. The auctions have opened in Calcutta for the new season and some teas of fair quality have been sold. It is estimated that the crop will show an increase of 10,000,000 lbs. available for shipment to the United Kingdom. Efforts are being made to secure an adequate representation of Indian Tea at the World's Fair in Chicago by a combined effort on the part of producers.

Ceylon.—The offerings were 100,000 packages, against 58,000 packages in the same month of 1891. The improvement in quality continued, and many very desireable lots passed through sale during the month. A general advance in prices was established of ½d. to 2d. according to grade. It is evident that a satisfactory business has been passing to work off so easily the large offerings at advancing prices. The average of public sale prices for the month was about 9½d. per lb. against 9¾d. per lb. for the corresponding month of last year. The imports were 6,031,000 lbs. and the deliveries 5,997,000 lbs., leaving in stock on 31st May, 17,761,000 lbs. About 2,000 packages of Java sold, and some high prices were realised for teas raised from Assam seed. In China teas more business has been passing, and the lowest grades of common tea are now somewhat scarce.

MARKET NOTES.

[Importers, wholesale merchants and manufacturers should send any items intended for this department so that they may reach the head office not later than Wednesday morning. The editor will always welcome such information.]

T. Kinnear & Co. are prepared to fill orders for cask prunes at 4½c.

A. P. Tippet & Co., St. John, N. B., have recently made large shipments of Thistle Haddies to points West.

J. Cleghorn & Son have some fancy J. C. & S. lemons, November cut Messinas, that they can sell at good prices.

W. T. Harris, Chatham, N.B., dealer in general merchandise, offers 200 cases canned lobsters, also dried cod of finest quality.

Sloan & Crowther's line of English Breakfast Congou teas is having an exceptionally good run at prices ranging from 22 to 25c.,at which the teas are special value.

It is reported that the cocoa crop of Ecuador has failed again this year, and it is also thought that shipments of Guayaquil will be considerably reduced, owing to troubles caused by yellow fever.

Libby, McNeal & Libby have advanced their price for 2-lb. canned corned beef to $1.60 per dozen. Reports from the west state that the packing is comparatively light at present, owing to scant supply of stock.

Eby, Blain & Co., expect arrival shortly of the Cunningham & De Fourier Co., London and Paris, potted meats and game delicacies. These goods are now particularly seasonable for camping parties, pic-nics, excursions, etc.

The Daily Commercial Bulletin of New York says: official returns show that $1,407,676 worth of canned fruit were exported from the United States during the ten months ending April 30, 1892. The value of exports during the corresponding period last year is given as $755,241. The increase is large in California goods.

The new season's Japan teas received and shipped by Lucas, Steel & Bristol, of Hamilton, last week, are proving very satisfactory, liquor and make being excellent. This firm still offer the large assortment of canned goods advertised in THE GROCER for the past two weeks, with the exception of glass goods, which are now sold out.

P. C. Larkin & Co. are the wholesale agents for the Golden Tea Plot Blend of Ceylon teas, put up in in pound and half-pound lead packages to retail at 35 and 18c respectively. The demand has already outstripped the supply. In addition to being a surprisingly good tea for the money, it yields a liberal margin to the trade.

Golden Finnan haddies are claimed to be superior to all others. Attention is called to H. W. Northrup & Co's advertisement in another column. They are agents for these goods.

McWilliam & Everist, commission merchants, Toronto, send out a circular to the trade bespeaking consignments of home-grown fruits for another season. They justly point to their past record for the title to the full confidence of the trade. Each day that consigners ship the firm advise them what their fruit sells at and will send account sales with proceeds by registered letter weekly. They promise to use their best efforts to return all wooden berry boxes, so that the shipper may suffer as little loss as possible, but they strongly recommend the 24-quart basket crate or the one-trip 54-quart case, both of which are said to be coming into use and are not returnable. Shipping address labels are furnished on application. Traders are advised not to ship on holidays, as the fruit is sure to catch a poor market. Shipping on late trains and boats is also to be avoided. Morning and early afternoon receipts are the best. The firm's commission is 10 per cent.

PETROLEUM.

Trade is quite spiritless, there being little selling in a large way and prices being easy. The quotation on Canadian refined is 14 to 15c.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.28½ per barrel; Oil Springs crude $1.29 per bbl. The price of crude remains the same as last week and we might say is nominal, as very little business has been done.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The coming on of hot weather has been attended by a change in the character of the butter deliveries as well as in the quantity of them. The receipts of large rolls have fallen off very largely and very suddenly, as the heat made shipping in this form next to impossible. Good rolls, being much scarcer, are consequently firmer, and quote from 12 to 13½c. The place of the large rolls has to a considerable extent been taken by tub butter, which is now fairly plentiful, but mostly of the store-packed variety. Good select store tubs bring as high as 14c., but tubs of a lower grade, or in which uniformity of quality has not been kept in view, go at from 12½ to 13c. Dairy tubs can hardly be looked for yet, after so long a spell of free selling in large rolls. Good dairy tub is wanted and is worth 14 to 15c. Supply and demand balance each other very well at the moment, the difference, if there is any, being on the side of the demand. This is not likely to last long, however, but the good prices may be depended on by those who have good butter to sell. The deals taking place on the street these days are restricted in magnitude by the supply, and none are heard of in lots of more than 25 or 40 tubs. There appears to be a general feeling that a good export trade will be done this year.

Cheese holds its own but does not sell more than ordinarily freely. Some choice Septembers are held at 12c., the fall makes

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

Selling has not picked up materially, the demand keeping the same cautious attitude and closing no deals unless a concession is allowed. The condition of the flour market is thus unchanged. Feed is easier in tone.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5; strong bakers', $4.50; white wheat patents, $4.80; straight roller, $4.40; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.50.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5.15; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.45 to $4.70; Ontario patents, $4.00 to $4.25; straight roller, $3.65 to $3.90; extra, $3.50 to $3.80; low grades, per bag, $1.00 to $1.50

MEAL—Oatmeal is $3.80. Cornmeal is $3.50.

FEED—Bran is $12, shorts $14.00, mixed feed $22, cracked corn $1.10, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 32 to 34½c.

HAY—Is fairly active at $13 for No. 1 timothy and $10.50 to $11 for mixed.

STRAW—Is steady at $6.50 to $7.

MONTREAL.

The flour market continues very quiet; a few small lots have been shipped to the other side, and little trading is noted for Lower Ports account, outside of local wants; business is dull, stocks in store on the 11th inst. were heavier than the week previous by 2139 barrels, but compared with same date last year 12,362 barrels less. Prices as follow:—Patent spring, $4.85 to $4.95; patent winter, $4.45 to $4.75; straight roller, $4.30 to $4.45; extra, $3.65 to $3.80; superfine, $3.30 to $3.60; fine, $3.10 to $3.35; strong bakers, $4.45 to $4.70.

Values are nominally unchanged, but easy; outside of home wants the demand is small; stocks in store are a little less than a week ago, but show an increase of some 3,900 bbls. over same date last year. Quotations are: Granulated, bbls., $3.90 to $4.00; Rolled, bbls., $3.80 to $3.90; Standard, bbls., $3.75 to $3.85; Granulated in bags, $1.90 to $2.00; Rolled in bags, $1.90 to $2.00; Standard, in bags, $1.75 to $1.80.

A steady local trade is reported in bran and shorts. Mouillie is dull of sale. We quote: Bran, $14 to $14.50, shorts $15 to $17, and mouillie $20 to $23.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

A somewhat easier tone is noticed in the flour market. The demand is light, with nothing to indicate any immediate change. Manitoba is quoted at $5.65 to $5.75; High grades family $4.90 to $5; medium patents $4.65 to $4.85.

Oatmeal is firm at recent advances, with a fair demand at $4 10 to $4.20.

Cornmeal is steady and a fair demand. Millers' prices are $2.90 to $3.

Hay is very firm and in good demand at $16 to $16.50.

Oats are without change at 42 to 45c..

Feed is $21 to $23 per ton.

at 11½ to 11¾c., and new cheese at 10c. The stock of fall cheese is very limited. Thomas Nesbitt & Co's (London) last report notes a scarcity of old cheese in the English market, and that new cheese is in small supply.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS.—Holders of good hand-picked stock are not disposed to sell it at less than $1.05 in carloads, and though cars are not wanted by individual houses these days, it is at that price car lots of strictly good beans are divided up on the street. There are grades bought below 90c., but they are not of first quality. Out of store prices are $1.10 to $120.

DRIED AND EVAPORATED APPLES.—The favorable turn on which the market made a slight start a week ago has not gone on, and prices are as easy and business as low as ever. Sun dried are as low as 3½c. in round lots, and re-sell at from 4 to 4½c. Evaporated are 6½ to 7c. A London report notes a scarcity of evaporated apple rings on that side of the water, rapid selling incidental to low prices having cleaned out stocks. The export price continues low, however.

EGGS—Buyers find the supply adequate at 10½c. Seconds are quoted at 9½c. This class of eggs is simply the residuum after culling the large sizes for the English market, for which some shipments are now being made up.

HONEY—The quantity of extracted offering increases, and honey is a drug on the market. Some commission merchants are offering at as low as 5c., but cannot make sale. The price ranges from 7 to 9c. for the best grades, but this is rather nominal, and transactions could be effected with advantage to the buyer. Sections are easy at 12c.

HOPS—There is an easier feeling in the hop market, the result of brewers showing some independence and being able to make purchases below the ideas of some leading holders. Last crop stock is 21 to 22c., yearlings 15 to 16c.

HIDES, SKINS, WOOL, TALLOW.

HIDES—Depression in the hide market at all its centres makes any falling off in the supply a matter of satisfaction to buyers. The receipts of green are probably somewhat lower this week. The prices are the same, viz. : Cows' No. 1, 4½c., No. 2, 3½c., No. 3, 2½c. Steers are 1c. higher. Cured hides move out slowly at 5c.

SKINS—Sheepskins are becoming scarce. The quotation is $1.30 to $1.50. Pelts are plentiful at 15c. Lambskins are also in freer receipt at 30 to 35c. There is no change in calfskins, except that they are somewhat less plentiful at 5 to 7c.

TALLOW—There is an ample supply. Rough brings 2c. Dealers pay 5c. for rendered and re-sell at 5½c.

WOOL—Farmers are bringing in a considerable quantity of fleece wool, which quotes at 17c. for combing wool and 20 to 22c. for clothing wool. Pulled sells slowly at 22c. for super and 25c. for extra.

VEGETABLES

POTATOES—The market is altogether as buyers determine, for there is clearly an excess of stock and it is freely offered at 25 to 26c. in cars. Out of store prices are 32 to 35c. The small quantity of new Virginia potatoes that sell for fancy consumption go ar $4 per barrel.

CABBAGES—Are $2 to $2 50 per crate and selling quite freely.

CUCUMBERS—Are plentiful and easy at $2.50 per crate.

TOMATOES—Have a limited call at $3.50 to $4 per crate.

ONIONS—Native are done. Bermudas are easy at $3 per bag for Egyptians and $2 to $2.25 per crate for Bermudas.

PROVISIONS.

A rather more active demand for smoked meats has been heard from. Salt and dried meats are very quiet. Barrel pork is not in strong request. The quantity of new United States mess pork held here is considerable, some buying having been done on the eve of the budget, as a change in the duty was then expected. Prices are firmer on smoked meats.

BACON—Long clear is 7¾ to 8c., smoked backs are 10 to 10½c., bellies 10½ to 11c., rolls 8¾c.

HAMS—Are steady at 10½ to 11c.

LARD—Pure is unchanged at 9¾ to 10¼c. for tubs and pails. Compound is steady at 7 to 9c.

BARREL PORK—U. S. heavy mess is $13 to $14, Canadian $15. short cut $16.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef is 3½ to 5c. in fore and 7½ to 8c. in hindquarters, yearling lamb is 10 to 11c., Spring lamb is 13 to 14c. per lb., yearling lamb 8 to 9½c., mutton 7 to 8c., veal 5 to 7c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Lemons have gone up. All the wasty stock has been cleared off, and $3.75 to $4 represent the prices now going, with the probability of another dollar being added for next week. Oranges are in a very good position. Valencias are practically done, some few being still held at $6 to $7. Palermos, Messinas and Catenas are unchanged at $5 in boxes and $2.75 in halves. Riverside seedlings are getting into small compass and have ruled low in quality this season. They are $5. Navels are done. Blood oranges are $6 per box, $3 per half-box. The stock of oranges held here is very small. Maoris will be in soon. In pineapples the only kind offering is the sugar loaf. Extras are 15c., large 20c. Havana pines are about done. A shipment of 100 barrels came in the other day and only about 20 barrels were acceptable. There are no red bananas of any consequence. Nor in yellows are there any firsts. The quality in stock is the very best for shipping and for trade, however, being of "steamer run" average. The price is $1.65 to $2. Yellows are preferred by the trade because they run better count to the bunch for about the same money. The erection of banana flour mills in the United States stiffens prices. A few native strawberries have come in and sell at 20 to 22c. Maryland berries are 16 to 17c. California cherries are $2.50 per 10-lb. box, apricots $3 per 4-basket crate, peaches $2.50 per crate. New Canadian gooseberries have come in and sell at $1 to $1.25 per basket. They are small.

FISH.

The fish trade is more active, the hot weather causing a falling-off in the consumption of fresh meats. Stocks are quite full. Salmon trout and white fish are 6½c., lake herring $2, salmon 14c.

SALT.

The trade in salt is of smaller proportions. There is no change in quotations as they appeared in last week's Prices Current.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, June 16, 1892.

GROCERIES.

The continued warm weather has the effect of keeping up the improvement in almost every line of the grocery trade. Travellers out are doing a nice trade, and outside of the cutting in the heavies the grocery business on the whole has shown a marked improvement. Green fruits have met with good sales during the past week, and stocks in all lines are very light on spot. Teas have been a little quieter than usual but a fair trade is being done in them. Dried fruit is still held firm at prices quoted in our report. Canners and packers agents report good business, and say this year is better than the same period last year. Payments are coming in a satisfactory manner.

SUGAR.

The local sugar market is still dull. The demand is still slow and refiners report trade as only being fair and prices very low. It is reported that one of the refiners filled quite a few orders last week. Some of the wholesale trade are still said to be selling at low figures, while some of the houses are not pushing sales. We quote : Granulated 4½ to 4 9 16c.; yellows, low grade 3½ to 3¾c., and yellows, bright 3¾ to 4¼c.

TEAS.

The new stocks of Japans have arrived, but not to any extent, and nearly all that has come so far was sold to arrive. Old stock teas are nearly all worked off, and the Japan tea market on the whole has been dull during the week. Blacks in the cheap grade stock are very scarce in London, but some dealers say there is enough to fill the demand, which is small. London advices still report the market firm.

MOLASSES.

The arrival of the barque Spes will, no doubt, make a boom in molasses, as the old stocks are all cleared out. Dealers are waiting for the above boat, which will arrive here about the 18th inst. with the following cargo: —999 puncheons, 73 hogsheads, 79 barrels, half of which has been already sold and the balance, the broker says, will be auctioned off on the wharf. So with this outlook we may be certain of cutting next week. The market during the week has been quiet on above account. We quote :—Barbadoes, 29 to 31c., American 28c.; syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c. for medium bright, 40 to 45c. for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Maple syrup stocks in store are light and are being worked off slowly at old prices. The same may be said regarding sugar, of which stocks are very light on spot. We quote maple syrup in tins 60 to 64c. per gallon and in wood at 5c. per pound. Maple sugar is quoted at 7 to 8c. and fancy cakes at 8½c.

RICE.

Rice still continues in good demand, both locally and out of town. Quite a few car lots have gone forward during the past week. Prices are still unchanged. We quote standard $4 to $4.10, Japan $4.50 to $5, Patnas $4.50 to $5, and Carolinas $7 to $8 per hundred pounds.

COFFEES.

There is still a fair jobbing demand in coffees at former prices and quite a few small lots have changed hands during the week. New York advices still report strong market. Trade is steady in all lines. We quote:—Rios 18 to 20c.; Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c. ; Jamaica, 19 to 21c.; and Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c Santos, 17½ to 19c.

DRIED FRUIT.

The dried fruit market still continues to maintain a strong feeling and although the lots sold are only small, there has been quite a few cleared off. Valencia raisins are pretty well cleaned out at this point. The same remarks apply to currants. We quote: Valencias, ordinary, 3¾ to 4¼c.; No. 1 off stalk, 4¾c. ; layers, 6c. to 6¼c.; Patras currants, 5

GREEN FRUIT.

The green fruit market is still firm and most of the lines have advanced during the week. Valencia oranges are all sold out and the only orange in stocks here now is bloods and Massinas and they are very scarce and held at an advance. Lemons have met with big sales during the week at advanced price, one dealer says he sold 3,000 boxes in the last twenty-four hours and that other big sales have been closed by other dealers. Stocks here are light in above line and prices range from $2.75 to $3.50. Pineapples are getting scarce and prices are about the same for choice fruit. The only berries in so far are southern and they meet with fair sales. Advices from the Ontario fruit districts say that large crops are coming on. Sales of California apricots have been very small owing to the small size of the fruit. Bananas are very scarce only one car lot arriving during the last few days and most of the dealers are out of stock prices have advanced and are now quoted as below. We quote: bloods in half boxes $3; Massinas $4 to $4.75; lemons $2.75 to $3.50; pineapples 7 to 15c. each, strawberries 18c. to 25c. per box, bananas $1.50 to $2 per bunch, apricots $3 to $3.50 per half crate.

NUTS.

Nuts are about the same as they were last week with only a jobbing trade doing, and prices not materially changed. We quote: Almonds Tarragona 14 to 15c.; almonds, Ivica, 14 to 15c.; almonds, common, 10 to 11c.; almonds, hardshell, 7 to 8c.; walnuts, Grenoble, new 12 to 14c.; walnuts, French 10 to 10½c.; cocoanuts per 100 $5.00 to $5.50; filberts 9 to 10c.; pecans 16 to 17c.; peanuts 7 to 10c.

APPLES.

The stock of barrel apples here are light, and controled by one or two dealers. Prices during the week have advanced and are now quoted at $5.50 to $6. Evaporated and dried are about the same as last week. We quote apples $5.50 to $6 per barrel; evaporated 6 to 7c.; dried 4 to 4½c., and evaporated peaches 12 to 13c. per tin.

HONEY.

The honey market is very quiet, stocks are in excess of demand and prices are weak. We quote strained 7 to 8½c. per lb., and comb 9 to 11c. per lb.

HOPS.

The local hop market is still quiet, but prices are held firm, a small jobbing trade is all there is to report. We quote choice Canadian at 25c., and pressed 17 to 19c. per lb.

FISH.

The fish market during the week has only had fair movement. Gaspe salmon was 17 to 18c. in the early part, but owing to large arrivals prices are now quoted 16c. for round lots. British Columbia salmon is all cleared out of this market. Lake trout and white fish are still meeting with fair sales at 6 to 7c. per pound. Cod and haddock are arriving in fair quantities and selling at 3 to 3¼c. Smoked and pickeled fish are unchanged. There has been some business done in dry cod during the week at $5 to $5.50. We quote smoked Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.00 to $1.10; St. John's bloaters, per 100 box, 80c. to $1.00; boneless cod, large boxes, 6 to 7c.; do. small boxes 7 to 8c.; finnan haddies 7 to 8c.

We quote No. 1 herring, per brl., $4.50 to $4.60; lake trout, per half brl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.25 to $8.75; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products generally is fairly firm. A fair steady jobbing trade is reported in pork, especially in Canada short cut mess, which is held in a few hands. Smoked meats are in good enquiry for home wants. We quote as follows:—Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.50 to $16.75; mess pork, western, per brl. $14.50 to $15.00; short cut, western, per brl. $17.00 to $17.50; hams, city cured, per lb. 10c. to 10½c; lard, Canadian, in pails 8⅞ to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9 to 10c; lard, com refined, per lb. 7 to 7¼c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Cheese was irregular to-day, with values as hard to get at as ever. Some were talking at 9c. market and others 8¾c. to 8⅞c. and, no doubt, the latter is nearer the market than the higher figure. The easy tone is undeniable and private cables to-day, as well as the public, were on a lower basis. Around 44s. 6d. is now purchasers' ideas on the other side, expressed over the cable, and it is not near the present spot basis. The only available deals to-day on which to describe the spot position were the purchases of French country stock at the wharf. It was a mixture of May and June, numbering some 2,200 odd boxes. For the pick some 1,600 "blue stars," 8¾c. was bid for a certainty, but what the actual figure was could not be learned. However it was nearer 8⅞c. than 9c. without a doubt, and if the present hot weather keeps up a fraction less may have to be quoted before the Brockville board on Thursday.

LONDON—Twenty-eight factories offered 2,451 boxes May; sales, 48 at 8⅜c., 1,204 at 8⅝c., 639 at 8¾c., 125 at 8 13-16c., 120 at 8⅞c. Market active.

OGDENSBURG—Offerings to-day, 2,757 boxes cheese. Sales, 289 at 8½c., 342 at 8 9-16c., 2,126 at 8⅝c., all to Canadian buyers.

CANTON—Sales to-day, 2,200 at 8½c., and 1,200 at 8⅜c.; 100 tubs butter at 20c.

The butter market is still inactive, with only a small jobbing trade doing. Export possibilities are still an unknown quantity on the whole. The factories are said to be holding their June creamery for 18½c., avowing their intention to "stay" to the end of the month; but although there are reports to the effect that it has actually been made in some instances. we cannot learn so on any reliable authority. We quote: Creamery 17½ to 18c.; Townships dairy 17 to 17½c.; western dairy 14 to 15c.

EGGS.

The egg market is still weak. The stores here are well filled up and dealers are working day and night landing stock. The buyers in the country have been told to reduce their prices and lower prices are expected in consequence. The demand here is very slow and no sales have been made above 10c.

GRAIN.

In wheat the spot market continues a purely nominal one in the absence of quotations. Advices from the Northwest to-day speak of an easier tendency. In the coarser grains the western influence has operated against business, and there is little doing in either peas or oats, which are duller. No. 2 hard Manitoba, 92 to 94c; No. 3 do., 83 to 84c.; No. 2 Northern, 00 to 00c.; peas, 77c. to 78c. per 66 pounds; oats, 35 to 35½c. per 34 pounds; corn, 65 to 67c., duty paid; feed barley, 40 to 42c.; barley, middling, nominal.

The stocks of grain and flour in store show an increase of 14,529 bush. of wheat, 69,196 bush. of oats, 2,019 bushels of rye, 2,139 barrels of flour, and a decrease of 646 bushels of corn, 15,496 bushels of peas, 23,238 bushels of barley. 733 barrels of oatmeal, compared witha week ago; and an increase of 217,407 bushels of wheat, 156,241 bushels of peas, 89,973 bushels of barley, 24,497 bushels of rye, 3,913 barrels of oatmeal, and a decrease of 13,453 bushels of corn and 12,362 barrels of flour, compared with a year ago.

The stocks of flour and grain in store in Montreal on the dates mentioned were as follows:

	June 11, 1892.	June 4, 1892.	June 13, 1891.
Wheat, bush	615,164	600,535	397,757
Corn, bush	.....	646	13 453
Peas, bush	369,488	385,974	213,247
Oats, bush	582,028	512,892	133,341
Barley, bush	129,891	153,099	39,888
Rye, bush	33,183	31,164	8,686
Flour, brls	55,602	53,463	67,964
Oatmeal, brls	4,112	4,845	199

DRY GOODS.

Dry goods during the past week has shown a marked improvement over the previous one, all lines having better call. Travellers are out and doing well, and say all the retail trade report good showing, so stock with them must be low, this to some extent helps the traveller. Our local retail trade are doing a big business in all lines of light summer dress goods, and on the whole trade in dry goods has picked up wonderfully since the early spring.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June, 16, 1892.

GROCERIES.

The week has passed without any material change in values. Sugars are selling at prices a shade lower. Syrups in 2 lb. cans are in demand. Stocks of canned apples, tomatoes, and corn are rapidly getting smaller, and a fair trade is being done in flour, meal, etc. There still seems a scarcity of money, which has a depressing effect in all lines.

TEAS—In teas there is very little doing. All the jobbing houses are carrying full stocks, and as eveybody wants to sell there are very few buyers.

SUGARS—Granulated is moving slowly, and dealers say at ruinously low prices. It is quoted 4¼ to 4½c. Yellows are in fair demand. Present prices are: Extra at 3½ to 3¾c. and yellows at 3¼ to 3½c.

SYRUPS—There has been quite a call for 2 lb. cans, and the market is very bare, though well supplied with bulk syrup, which is moving slowly.

MOLASSES—No change in values. Barbadoes is selling at 30 to 32c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Are somewhat higher, 10½c. being obtained lately.

BUTTER—Recent large arrivals have caused prices to drop to 16 to 18c. for tubs.

CHEESE—Also is quoted lower at 10 to 11c.

POTATOES—Are somewhat fitmer at 80c. to $1.25. They are in fair demand.

FISH.

Bay is the only kind of pickled herring on the market at present, and sells at $2.75 to $3 per bbl. Drycod are lower. Mediums are $3.75 to $4, large $4 to $4.25 per quintal. Pollock $2.25 to $2.60. Shad, last fall's pack, are offering at $4.50 to $5.50.

The firm of Stuart & Herbert has been dissolved. A new firm has been formed by Stuart, Heibert and E. J. Herbert, under the same name.

Wm. V. Gordon, one of Montreal's oldest grocers, has gone out of business. Mr. Gordon was connected with the grocery trade here for years.

Detective Carpenter of the Citizens' League has seized a lot of root beer. The first bottle taken, labelled "Temparence Root Biere," was found to contain ordinary ale.

The hay and feed store of H. Rochon was burnt on Friday, the fire spread to the stable and burnt four valuable horses. Mr. Rochon's total loss will be about $6,000.

Vipond, McBride & Co., fruit merchants, say business this spring with them has been up to their expectations. Mr. Vipond, of the firm, has gone out of town with his family to his summer residence.

J. E. Steen, publisher of the Winnipeg Commercial and president of the Winnipeg Board of Trade, is in town on his way to England where he will attend the congress of the Boards of Trades and Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire.

ROYAL APPOINTMENT.

(Extract from Paisley Gazette of 28th May.)

"Our townsman, Mr. Alexander Cairns, of the St. George Preserve Works, Paisley, has been appointed, by warrant of date 14th instant, Purveyor of Marmalade to Her Majesty the Queen. For the past fifteen years Mr. Cairns has had the honor of supplying, by command, marmalade to Her Majesty at the various Royal residences which she from time to time was occupying. The recognition of excellence of manufacture which the warrant indicates is proof of the satisfaction which is felt by the Royal household in its use."

Messrs. Blaiklock Bros., No. 17 Common street, Montreal, are Mr. Cairns' agents for Canada, the Toronto agents being Wright & Copp, Wellington street east.

The Indian tea planters are at last taking active steps to have their industry properly represented at the Chicago Exhibition. Subscriptions are being collected, and it has been proposed that they should agree to levy a cess of two annas per acre on all gardens to meet the expenses.—London Grocer.

Question :--

Is there any question in your mind whether or not you are a first-class grocer, and handle A 1 goods ?

If so look on your shelves, and if thereon you see the above Brand of Matches, also our Telephone and Eagle Parlor, and on examination of WOODENWARE, WASHBOARDS and INDURATED FIBRE WARE you find the following :—

The E. B. EDDY CO.,

HULL, CANADA,

FAIR TRADERS.

Lady friend of my wife's wants us to "try her tea"! Seems she's started (with two other Ladies) as Firm of Tea Merchants in City. What are we coming to? Or rather, what are male Tea Merchants coming to? Mr. Registrar Brougham, most likely. In incautious moment—as I was out—wife promised to give her an order for a couple of pounds of her "best Ceylon Mixture."

Tried it. Never tasted such vile stuff! Wife agrees, and asks me to call at the Firm's Offices and see if they haven't got anything with more Ceylon and less Mixture in it. Don't much like the job. How can one blow up a woman whom one will have to meet in one's own drawing-room, calling?

Have looked in. Must say that Tea-dealeress is better than her tea. Really quite an attractive person. The three of them gave me afternoon tea in a little sanctum behind the shop, and chatted most pleasantly. My wife's friend the head of the Firm. Said the Ceylon Mixture was a mistake—really intended for kitchen use—but as they've only just started business, their stocks have got jumbled together. She hoped—quite penitently—that I would "overlook the error." What could I say? What I did was to order a whole box of their "Incomparable Congou," at four shillings a pound.

Wife (when I tell her of this) seems surprised. Says "she won't send me shopping again." But can one call this cosy—this tea-cosy—social visit to three accomplished women by the vulgar term "shopping"?

Wife incautiously mentions that she is "out of Coffee." Gives me an excuse to call on Firm again, and see if they sell coffee too. Yes, they do. Head of Firm more fascinating than ever. Asks me "if I would mind, as a very great favour, mentioning her tea to all my City friends? She knows I have great influence in the City." Says this with winning smile. Query—Is not Mincing Lane rather an appropriate locality for Lady Tea-dealers?

Later. Wife has forbidden my ever going to Mincing-lane again! Says the box of "Incomparable Congou" was mere "dust." So are my hopes!—Punch.

THIS WEEK'S MOTTO:

Live and let live.

Advertisers and Subscribers may have their correspondence addressed to the care of any of our offices and they are invited to use them at any time. At the Head office, Toronto, a place is set apart where they can see all the latest newspapers and the latest issues of trade papers from all parts of the world, where they can do their correspondence or obtain any information. Parcels may also be directed to the Head office.

It is probable that it will not be very long until letters will be carried for one cent from any point to any other point in the United States. That low rate of postage is being agitated, and the idea is of course popular. Two cents has been the rate for several years in the United States, and a penny has been the rate in England since the days of Sir Rowland Hill. Why is it that letters are taxed three cents in Canada? For a long time an agitation was kept up by Canadian newsdealers and booksellers to get the postage on periodicals reduced from 4c. to 1c. per lb., the latter being the price in the United States and that concession was granted the other day. But the reason that was made most of by the Post-office department during the time it contained that rate, was the necessity to make all the revenue it could from the carriage of such matter, to offset in some degree the heavy expense of carrying newspapers ever since they have been handled free of charge by the postal service of the country. Probably that reason would be advanced in support of a 3c. postage on letters. The postage account of any house that does a considerable business is a very considerable item in the year's expenditure, and would mean in many cases the saving of hundreds of dollars. It would take a very considerable burden off business if all the letters sent from both ends of the trade connections were sent at a third less than they now cost. The saving for the year ending the 30th June 1891, would have been $705,628, if all letters carried during that year for three cents had paid but 2c. The bulk of this would have been divided among a comparatively few, as the mass of the people do not send a very large number of letters; hence business correspondence would have felt the benefit very perceptibly. As to post cards, nobody uses them for any purpose that information is necessary to. The net revenue from the Post Office Department last fiscal year was $2,515,823.44. It would have been still close to two millions if there had been no more letters carried and the rate had been 2c. instead of 3c. on letters. It is probable that the revenue would have been increased, however, as the result of such a change, owing to the impulse given to corresponding by the reduction in the postage.

The postal service in some countries, notably in England and Germany, is an important distributing system. The parcel post of the latter country is both cheap and efficient, and bulky packages which would be considered out of all reason as postal parcels in this country are carried all over the land at a trifling cost. Delivery vans are provided by the Government in Germany for the purpose of carrying the goods right to the house of the buyer. Of course this is an extension of the postal system that is scarcely possible in a country where express companies exist and are willing to do business on a reasonable margin. And perhaps it is not desirable that postal carriage should thus compete with private carriers. Such a development of our parcel postage system would aggravate a result that the railways have already brought about to a considerable extent—namely, the concentration of trade at leading centres of commerce, and tend still further to draw business away from interior points. But a more liberal parcel post than we have would facilitate and cheapen the transportation of small parcels that the trader has now to pay full charges on. Many times in the year a retailer would send in for some little article if it could be forwarded at a reasonable rate by mail: whereas now he waits till he wants something else, or pays the express charges on the single article.

The member for East York, J. F. McLean, proposes an amendment to the Midland Railway Bill, defining the maximum passenger rate on that branch of the G. T. R. at 2c. a mile. Mr. McLean thus aims to get the thin end of the wedge inserted, and if successful in effecting the change on that line, he will follow up the advantage by moving that the amendment shall apply to every railway bill that comes before the House. He aims also to have the same clause incorporated in the bill now before the House for the amendment of the General Railway Act. Mr. McLean in his speech upon the 2c. postage question cites the experience of New York State and of England, and of course has a powerful argument in the record of the New York Central. It is undoubted that a reduction to a 2c. maximum rate would give an immense impulse to railway travelling and would benefit business. There would be much more going to and fro between country and city on the part of retailers, if the 2c. rate were generally adopted, and every trader knows it pays him well to visit the market frequently. Freights have fallen remarkably during the last score of years, and the result of every reduction has been a huge gain in the volume of the business done by the roads. The same effect would follow the lowering of the passenger rate by one-third, and a very material part of the advantage would accrue to mercantile interests.

The advantage of Chicago as a half-way stopping point for California green fruit in transit to this market, is that the bulk of the wasty fruit is stopped there and goes into consumption at that centre. The shippers' agents take advantage of re-shipping to sort the stock, choosing only what is in the most promising condition to come sound into the hands of Toronto importers. Herein is shown the value of an adequate peddling system. The fruit that is of the most doubtful keeping quality is disposed of at once to the pedlars, and in perhaps six or eight hours after getting into their hands is all in the homes of consumers. If it were not for this agency of swift sale, that class of fruit might be hard to get rid of in Chicago, and the condition of receipts here might be much less satisfactory than it is. Of course it is to the interest of shippers to forward good stock, but it is also to their interest to distribute good stock to the buyers at Chicago, and they are of immeasurably more importance in the matter of business than our buyers. Further, it was to the interest of California shippers to send us oranges in good condition, but did that fact guarantee us good fruit? Let the condition of some of this spring's shipments of Riverside seedlings answer. The pedlars of Chicago are the buffing apparatus between our fruit merchants and the shippers.

The honey market is in a condition of utter stagnation. Last year's business was unsatisfactory enough to most people who had anything to do with honey, and more of it was offered on commission than was ever so put on the market before. But this year's experience is still worse. There is more honey produced than ever before, and less consumed, both relatively and absolutely, than there has been for years. People are not less fond of honey than they ever were, and it is not therefore to a declining taste for the commodity that the decline in its sale is chargeable, but to high prices. Honey must follow the same rule as the staple sweets—sugar and syrups—and as the latter have gone down remarkably in the last few years so honey should have gone down for its sales to continue in anything like a constant relation to the sales of sugar and the preserved products of sugar, fruits, etc. But honey-raisers have kept up their prices, and in the last five years have varied little more than half a cent in their opening quotations, while sugar is three cents lower. It is impossible for the producers to make anything by the attempt to keep honey a luxury. Like everything else, it has most to gain by being made a necessary, and its producers should have endeavored to make it more of a staple than they have done. Some of the agencies that have cheapened the price of sugar have been at work on a small scale in reducing the cost of honey-production, and inventions and ideas in bee-keeping have done much to lessen the primary cost of honey. We have had good weather, too, so that loss through the perishing of hives has counted for little the last few years. Once honey is got on a parity with sugar, the market will become steady and sales will be larger, as there cannot fail to be a demand for this delectable article. This year's flow is reported good. The bloom is rich, the weather damp and warm—just what is required to be for abundant storage—and dealers are doing an immense business, according to their report, in selling supplies to bee-keepers. But prices must be quoted on a much lower plane if producers expect to sell their honey.

The quantity of bananas and pineapples handled on this market since the opening of the present season has been tremendous. For several weeks the receipts of bananas alone have exceeded fifteen car loads per week. The quantity of pineapples handled by one house in one day was greater than the same house handled in the whole of the season three years ago. Shippers show wisdom in selecting stock for this point, the bulk of the bananas coming in being of "steamer run" average, which is surer to yield better satisfaction all around than firsts. Reds are declining year by year, they being handicapped by their lower count, though the bunches weigh but little less, must therefore take up about as much car room, pay as much freight and cost about as much. Hence they are being left in the race, and fewer are seen here every year.

The Methodist conference, by the stand it took on Saturday early closing, out of regard for the better observance of Sunday, has put its influence on the side of the early closing movement to that extent. There is need of reform here. Saturday is a day of slavery to the majority of employes who serve in a store that does a business of any magnitude. The hours of labor are from 8 a. m. till 10 or 11 p. m., and often till midnight on that day of the week, in stores where they keep open on Saturday night. This is calculated to make of Sunday a day of rest surely, a day so wholly given up to physical restoration that there can not be time or disposition for anything else. Church synods, assemblies and conferences would do well to discourage this practice, as business can as well be kept within reasonable hours on Saturday as on any other day. The legislative committee of the Toronto Trades and Labor Council has endorsed the action of the Conference in this matter.

* * *

A man's good faith is not always to be measured by his readiness to put his name to a written engagement. There are people who will sign an agreement to close early, when their only object in putting their hand to such a compact is to induce competitors to do the same thing, thereby committing those competitors to a course which they feel bound in honor to follow, while the insincere signatories are all the time calculating on the big advantage they will reap by their repudiation of the agreement when all the rest are bound. This dishonorable stratagem,—if it can be dignified by a name suggestive of cleverness—is very frequently resorted to, the man who takes to it going on the supposition that he is the only unprincipled party to the league, and that he will be allowed to enjoy the fruits of his own bad faith. He never seems to reason that every other party feels absolved the moment an agreement is broken by one party to it. Hence everybody is free to close when he pleases as soon as one man elects to do so. That admits everybody to the privilege of trading till late hours and extinguishes the special advantage. Then what is gained by such disgraceful practices? The grocers of a section of this city had bound themselves in an agreement to close at a certain time, but when that time came one refused to close, and rather boasted of his "smartness" in leading everybody to believe him a man of his word. This is the kind of men who make it impossible in some districts for traders to come to agreement on any matter.

THE LABORER IS WORTHY OF HIS HOLIDAY.

The industrial dispensation we are living under at this end of the century makes an annual holiday a necessity with a very large body of workers. Half a century ago commerce might be said to wait on men : to-day it hurries men along, and waits on nobody. It is like a new physical force called into being and applied to the social system, a force gaining in momentum every year. The steam engine, the telegraph, the telephone, the wide extension of railroads, the progress of invention, have brought the forces of nature under man's service to minimize or almost nullify time and distance, and now man no longer fixes the pace, but the agencies that he has called into his service do so. Hence the pace is a stiff one, and he who keeps it up at any point where the pulse of trade is strong lives fast. All the labor saving devices that have been invented in recent times have been taken advantage of, not to save work but to multiply power to do work, and the amount of effort expended in industry to-day makes the total labor of the hard manual workers of a generation ago sink into insignificance. Men were slaves in those days, they did not spare themselves, but they had not learned where to place the fulcrum to do the most effective work. We do not tackle the same tasks they accomplished, but we have to submit to the high pressure that is moving everything around us. There has to be despatch in business nowadays, and it has to be kept up all the year round. We are out of the era when vessels took six months to go to China and return with a cargo of tea, and when the tea had to be paid for at prices agreed upon before it was grown. Storm and drought would have ample time to destroy a crop while vessels were making their slow way toward the shores of production in the days before steam became a force in navigation. Even after steam was in use for some time, the machinery was so crude that the quantity of coal necessary to be carried over long voyages made it impossible to carry very large cargoes of anything else. But the instrumentalities of production, distribution and commerce have undergone a revolution in the last quarter of a century such as the world never saw the like of before. It has wrought a vast difference in the methods of retail traders, who have to be on the alert to take every advantage of the commercial mechanism. Retailers can no longer content themselves with buying twice a year. They must be alive to every break in the market, and must never be hampered so as to be unable to take full advantage of it. Worry, unceasing work and constant study to run his business at a minimum of cost, keep the trader steadily engaged year in and year out.

The holiday is therefore a part of the system. It makes an opening in the year that is like the safety valve in the engine, and prudence requires that the force shall be blown off once in a while. A man must rest, or in other words diversify his occupation, once in the year, if he is an earnest worker and if he wants himself to last. Custom is bringing its powerful influence to bear on the side of holiday-taking, and that is good, for custom usually prevails more than reason. Nobody needs a demonstration of the value of a holiday for arduous all-the-year-round workers. They know it themselves. The employer should take a jaunt and spend the time as he wills, and when he returns should send away his assistant for a week or a fortnight. The pay that goes on during the time of absence does more good than if it were given for services rendered during the same time in the store. The same everlasting tread-mill sort of existence makes machines of people, unless they can get away from it once in a while to see life under some other conditions. Nothing so benumbs a man's faculties, so narrows and cramps his mind, and so unfits him to enjoy life and therefore do acceptable service, as unbroken and unvarying routine.

OVERHANGING SIGNS.

The police authorities in Hamilton started a crusade against overhanging signs a short time ago, and only stirred the depths of a commercial sentiment that looked smooth and tranquil, but turned out to be deep and strong. The traders cherished their signs as if they had been shrines, and no desecrating axe should be laid to the props which held them up. The old Covenanters were not more ominously quiet on the eve of resistance than were Hamilton's traders when the last straw just appeared about to be laid on the patient camel's back, and they were notified to hew down the abominations. The streets of Hamilton without their signs would be like the woods of Killingworth without their birds, and the stout burghers wouldn't like anything so desolate. Their sullen refusal to do away with their signs had its way, and the public find the spot still marked where each man sells his wares.

Overhanging signs may be dangerous and may not be picturesque, but they have a value in the trader's eyes that counterbalances all this. A merchant wants his whereabouts to speak up for itself, and therefore wants his sign to be seen from as many points of view and at as great a distance away as possible. A sign placed on the plane of his shop-front appeals to the eye only of people across the road, and perhaps is not seen from that standpoint if the street is narrow. The wide-awake merchant feels that his name must be prominently marked on his premises if he is to look for more than chance trade, and rightly studies how to make his sign read from all directions. A sign with but one aspect does not give the name all the prominence it should have. Where a customer can look down the street and see the name directing him, he will be certain to go there, if he has had previous satisfactory dealings there. The sign is a valuable property to a good stand, and civic by-laws do more than demolish so much wood work when they sweep signs away. They might as well attack a man's goodwill as suppress his sign. The signs are the ancient landmarks, and ought not to be removed without compensation to the owner.

The overhanging sign ought to be secure, however. The public have a right to protection, and it does not console a man to know that in case he is killed by one of those projections, damages can be collected by his representatives from the trader whose sign did the mischief. It is prudent for the trader to provide against the liability to be put in for such damages, and the best provision he can make is to put good strong braces and bolts in the framework of his overhanging sign. It is due to the people who have the use of the streets that they should not be exposed to danger to life and limb through any loose work in the hanging.

A QUEBEC EARLY CLOSING BILL.

A bill is before the Quebec Legislature which is a very thorough-going effort in the behalf of early closing. It is rather too much so in fact, and is a case of applying law where free will should prevail. It proposes to require that shops in cities and towns of more than three thousand inhabitants shall be closed every evening except Saturdays from 6 o'clock p.m. till 7 o'clock a.m. from the 1st of October till the 1st of April, and from 7 o'clock p.m. till 7 o'clock a.m. during the other months of the year. It provides for the imposition of a fine or imprisonment upon any merchant or clerk who, contrary to the proposed act, under any circumstances, sells any goods in any shop or its dependencies. There is no need of anything so drastic as this, nor anything so impracticable, for convictions under such an act would be certain to be reversed by the courts. Such laws as this savor of the days of paternal legislation, of times when the degree of legal encroachment upon personal liberty was a matter of tyrannical caprice. There is no analogy between such a measure and a factory act, or any law passed for the protection of employes. People must not put their faith in law for the amelioration of everything in their condition. It is desirable that an early closing hour should be established, but it is not desirable that law should take away the right of trading citizens to do as they please about conforming to an early closing hour.

A BANKER'S OBSERVATIONS ON TRADE.

In the course of his address before the last annual meeting of the Merchants' Bank, the General Manager, George Hague, made the following references to some features and phases of current trade :

"The day has gone by forever when almost anybody could make money or make a living by opening a store and selling goods. It can't be done. Men only waste their time and energies in carrying on the business of storekeeping without previous training. But even with this thorough knowledge of the goods he sells, the retailer often splits on the rocks of giving too much credit. After doing an apparently successful business for years, he finds himself brought to a stand because his books are full of uncollectable debts. The most successful retail merchants are those whose rule is to do business for cash, and who make credit an exception."

The axiom that, competition is the life of trade must be taken to refer to such as is legitimate. There is a style of competition both in general business and banking, which does not serve the public, but injures it. When there are too many traders in a given town or locality, their competition in cheapening goods generally leads to extravagance on the part of purchasers, or, if it leads to giving longer credit, to their customers getting deeper and deeper into debt. Many a private individual has been impoverished for years by this style of competition, and many a farmer has become overloaded with debt and lost his farm. Too many bankers in a given district produce a greater mischief still.

The result is a cheapening of the rate of money, which leads to extravagance in the use of it, undermines economy, introduces loose habits of business, and is responsible in many instances for bankruptcy.

When, under the influence of bank competition, extended credit is given to persons of small capital, they are generally induced to attempt more than they can profitably manage, to erect too expensive buildings, or to launch out into a speculative style of business, to the detriment of their prudent neighbors who trade within their means. There are localities in Canada which were almost ruined for a series of years by the lavish style in which money was spread abroad by bank managers, who were bent upon extending business at all risks. The losses of the banks from this style of competition have amounted to millions, and left traces of devastation behind them which have taken years of industry and economy to efface.

The experience of Scotland in this matter is worthy of consideration. Many years ago the evils of reckless bank competition were such that the banks were compelled to devise means to protect themselves and the community from it. After thorough discussion a plan was matured by which, under mutual agreement, a number of branches were closed in places where they were redundant and measures taken to prevent the establishment of unnecessary branches in the future. A committee was formed under whose regulations all the banks in Scotland have worked their business, from time to time, with uniform rates for deposits, discount, and exchange, according to the circumstances of the money market. This arrangement has been in force for years, and has given satisfaction. Its operations have been beneficial to the community. No man desires to go back to the days of unlimited competition, and it cannot be denied that the producing, manufacturing, and trading classes of Scotland are as prosperous as any community of similar size in the world. There is competition, but it is the competition, not who shall scatter the most money, or take the poorest securities, but as to who shall be the most attentive, courteous, and vigilant in carrying on his business. This competition benefits all parties concerned. But of the other kind Canada has had far more that enough, and has lost millions of money by it.

All our leading exports are in articles of prime necessity, and the expense of handling is small. The risks of the business are in the fluctuations of the market. In giving credit there is rarely loss. The masses of bills that we handle in connection with the export trade are almost invariably good. In the importing trade the fluctuations in the value of goods are slow, but the expense of selling them, as compared with the export trade, is probably 20 to 1, and is increasing. Then there is the never-ceasing liability to loss by giving credit. It is certain that the bulk of our wholesale merchants in the leading lines of imports, but especially in dry goods, have made slender profits in the past few years. It is increasingly true that no man can hope to succeed in the importing trade without adequate capital, thorough knowledge of business, close buying in the best markets, together with incessant industry, sharp economy in details, and above all, rigid supervision of credits. Every failure that has taken place of late years had its origin in neglect of one or more of these matters. The attempts made to curtail unreasonable credit are worthy of all support by bankers. But until we have such a continued scarcity of money as to compel heavy curtailment of discounts, we can scarcely hope that anything we can do will have much effect."

SHORT WEIGHT.

The ruinous cutting of prices which is unfortunately almost universal leads to all sorts of means being used in order to sell and still make a profit. And among these expedients is the sending out of short weight. Some firms are apparently in the habit of sending out a less quantity of goods than they invoice, and if any purchaser is sufficiently business-like to check the weight on receiving the goods and find fault, the mistake (?) is instantly rectified without any re-weighting by the seller. Of course mistakes can easily occur, but when a seller, on receiving a complaint of shortage in weight, at once sends an altered invoice without in any way standing by his own weight, or having the disputed figures tested, it appears very much as if he knew that a wrong weight had been invoiced and that he knew he was running the risk of being found out. His adoption of short weights of course injures honest firms who are above such meanness, and allows dishonorable firms to cut in with lower prices in the expectation that they may succeed in making up the price by fictitious weight. But it even goes further than this, and encourages a dishonest buyer to claim for short weights where they do not really exist. Very often these claims are allowed, even when the seller is convinced they are unfounded, because it is inconvenient to send a man to the purchaser's place to check the weight. One firm in the city has found a very simple way of avoiding such claims for short weight or inferior quality—they get a certificate of the weights from the public weigher who also keeps a sample of the goods. The result is that the firm has had no demand for short weight or inferior quality but what has been dropped. A New York firm purchased a large line of goods, and after receiving them sent in a complaint on the ground of weakness, accompanied by what professed to be the copy of an analysis, and charged the seller $5.00 for the latter. He at once wrote saying that sealed samples were in a public officer's hands, and he would have them analysed if they insisted on their claim. But instead of pressing their claim, the buyers sent a check in payment of the account.—Montreal Trade Bulletin.

SURPRISING FIGURES.

Pop corn is expected to yield a revenue to the World's Columbian Exposition Company of $217,000. This estimate may seem exorbitant, but it is made by Secretary Crawford of the ways and means committee, and is doubtless correct.

Mr. Crawford has based his figures on the receipts from this concession of the Centennial. In 1876 there were 8,004,000 admissions to the grounds at Philadelphia. Of those who entered the gates one in four purchased pop corn. The gross receipts were about $100,000.

The pop corn habit, remarks the Chicago Inter-Ocean, has grown upon the public as the years have gone past, and more than one in four will purchase next year. But in order that no over-estimate may be made, Mr. Crawford has clung to the old figures. It is estimated that at least 28,000,000 individuals will enter the World's Fair gates next year, and that 7,000,000 will spend 5 cents each for pop corn.

If these figures are correct, $350,000 will be expended for pop corn by those who visit the Fair. This will net the Exposition company $210,000, and that is why the members of the ways and means committee are happy.

Pop corn is not considered a standard article of diet. The concession was once offered for $20,000, and as it now brings ten times that sum there is general rejoicing.—New England Grocer.

The Popular Demand For "Hillwattee Tea" pays a grocer for keeping it. You can't argue against a brand now so widely known and which has stood the test of time.

PURE SPICES.

BRANTFORD, Ont., June 20th, 1892.

EDITOR CANADIAN GROCER.

SIR,—In your issue of June 3rd, you have an article copied from The Produce Markets Review on the adulteration of pepper. The statements in this article are so far from the facts, that we cannot allow it to go unchallenged, and ask the privilege of questioning and correcting these statements.

It opens by stating that for some reason, which is not clear, pepper is selected as one of the chief articles for direct adulteration. Our own experience is the very opposite of this. All goods sent out by us, unless ordered compound, are sent out pure, and adulterated goods are rarely asked for from us or our travellers. We handle tons of pepper, seldom carrying a less stock of the whole goods than from eight to ten tons, and after looking into this matter carefully there does not go out from our house one pound of adulterated pepper, either black or white, for every thousand pounds that goes out strictly pure. This article goes on to say there is no doubt of its prevalence, meaning its adulteration, and also that it is on the increase; our experience is the very opposite. The sale of adulterated goods has been rapidly decreasing with us, and has almost ceased. We know no reason why the experience of other manufacturers in this country should not be similar to ours. As manufacturers we simply supply what is asked for, and we prefer to sell straight goods, and have instructed our travellers to advocate pure goods only to the trade. What we have said in reference to the adulteration of pepper holds good in all other lines of spices; in fact the adulteration of ginger, cassia, allspice, cloves, with us is a thing of the past. This knowing writer also speaks of the dyeing of pepper with turmeric; surely he is drawing on his imagination. We have been in the spice business a good many years; we think we know something about it; we never heard of such a thing. We have asked others of experience; they state it is nonsense, and we are inclined to think this man has been writing of something he knows nothing about. He also states there are a great many prosecutions and convictions of the trade for selling adulterated goods, but the newspapers do not think them worth reporting. Are not newspapers only too glad to get such items for the spicing up of their paper? We would like him to give us the names and dates of a few of these convictions. Again, we are inclined to think this writer has been drawing upon a fertile imagination. The facts are that the generality of grocers buy direct from the spice mills and handle only pure goods, running no risk of being fined for selling adulterated food preparations.

There may be some snide houses in the country supplying this class of goods, but we think they are few, and that their goods go to the smaller concerns in our cities and towns and the country grocer. But it as a well-known fact that all first-class grocery men to-day prefer to buy their coffees and spices direct from reliable manufacturers, in which case they get exactly what they have ordered, and we take pleasure in saying ("and to their credit be it said") they order nothing but pure goods.

Our purpose in writing this article is to correct any misapprehension that may arise in the minds of the trade in reference to the character of the goods they are selling, and we trust our words may have this effect.

And we remain, yours, etc.,

DRY GOODS.

During the past week the sorting-up trade has been more active than usual. The sales are fairly large, especially the letter orders, and more numerous than usual. Light dress materials, collars, ties, and novelties have been in good demand, while staple goods have also had their share of attention. The orders received from travellers for fall and winter goods are far in advance of last year, some houses having nearly one-third of an increase in the volume of orders. This has created a very firm and decided feeling among the wholesale trade, and the outlook for the future is very bright Fall goods are being received, and shipping is commencing. The houses are mostly well filled with these goods at present.

There has been an advance on skirt and waist linings and silecias. It came somewhat unexpectedly on the jobbers, and the stocks were quite light. The advance varies from one-eighth to one-half cent, and was due to the Cotton Syndicate going out of the manufacture of this class of goods, and thus leaving the Montreal Cotton Co. in undisputed possession of the manufacturing field. Prices are now firm at the advanced rates.

The fingering and other yarns of domestic manufacture have gradually displaced the foreign makes. With the exception of the Baldwin, no other foreign brand has any very great sale, while there is a good market for domestic yarns.

The demand for jet trimmings has been enormous and still continues strong. The stocks in several of the houses is depleted, and this class of goods is hard to procure at present.

NOTES.

John Macdonald & Co. are handling a new article called the Twin dress stay: it is well adapted for the purpose and surpasses other kinds in quality.——They are also showing dress shields, for wearing under the arms, in stockenette and silk, both of domestic and French manufacture.——They have just received large shipments of Baldwin's fingering yarns, and in domestic yarns are selling Queen City and Standard, which brands can be readily distinguished by the Royal British Standard.——Among other recent shipments received by this firm are, 10 cases pearl buttons direct from Austria; and German and American curling irons; and they expect a shipment of jet trimmings in a few days.

In tweeds, John Macdonald & Co. have received some very extensive shipments of Canadian goods, also 54-inch tweed suitings, black worsted trouserings and 54-inch black and colored Italians.—This house is showing a splendid stock of Swiss lace curtains, and expect a shipment of a special line of Nottingham lace curtains, an imitation of Swiss goods, for which they have had a strong demand this season, and of which they disposed of all their stock.——They have also a new line of tapestry table covers which are very attractive and splendid value.

Perhaps the finest stock of black worsted trouserings ever offered to the trade is now being shown by W. R. Brock & Co. They have these goods at twelve different prices with a number of patterns and qualities at each price. The range is very extensive, the value is good and the stock is well worthy of examination.——This firm are having a large sale for their Swiss ribbed cotton underwear for ladies, also for lace mits, muslins, and flouncings.——The sale of woollen underwear and flannels for the fall and winter trade is the largest in the history of the firm.

A goodly shipment, consisting of 15 cases of black cashmeres, has just been received and opened by Gordon, MacKay & Co. The variety is immense, and they claim to have the best value offered to the trade. This house is also showing a very extensive range of the new brown Scotch suitings, which are going to be in strong demand for the fall trade. They should have a ready sale for these goods.

"There are geniuses in trade, as well as in war or the state, or letters; and the reason why this or that man is fortunate is not to be told. It lies in the man."—EMERSON.

SYSTEM IN BUSINESS.

Every storekeeper realizes the necessity of having a system, by which an accurate account can be kept of his receipts and disbursements. Various plans have been tried, the most general of which is that of keeping a book, in which the sales are recorded and the various amounts put down as they are paid out of the cash drawer. That such a system is not a good one, almost every merchant who has tried it will admit. Mistakes are constantly made, clerks, and even the proprietor himself, often forget to make the proper entries. The result is, in the majority of cases, the cash does not balance, the accounts cannot be made to come out straight, and, where the cash is short, as it frequently happens, clerks are unjustly suspected of dishonesty. A bill of $5 may be paid out of the drawer by a clerk when he is very busy. He intends to make an entry of it, but, starting to wait on a customer, forgets about it. When the cash is balanced that night there is a shortage. A customer may pay $10 on account. The clerk puts the money in the cash drawer, and, while he is about to credit this customer with the amount, is interrupted, called away perhaps, to another part of the store, and forgets the transaction. At the end of the month the customer is angered, when paying his bill, at finding that he has not been credited with the $10. From this one thing alone a storekeeper loses many customers. Then again, how often it happens when goods are sold on credit, that they are sent out of the store, and no account kept of them. The purchaser either does not remember that he bought the goods, or does not notify the storekeeper of the mistake in not charging them. Here the system is again to blame. It does not do what it is absolutely necessary that it should do, to make any system perfect, and that is, to force the clerk to make a record of every transaction. A system that depends upon memory to make it a success can be of no use. Memory is an uncertain factor. It is dangerous and cannot be relied upon. The human mind has so many things to take care of, that it many times forgets those that are of the most importance. It should not, therefore, be burdened with the task of remembering things where other and more reliable means can be employed. What, then, is there that can take the place of memory, and provide a perfect system? The answer is, "The National Cash Register."

WHAT IS THE NATIONAL CASH REGISTER?

The National Cash Register is a machine, made in either metal or wood, according to the taste of the purchaser, designed to take care and make a record of every possible transaction that may occur in a store during the course of a day's business. It records the amounts paid in, the amounts paid out, and makes a record of credit sales, money received on account, and the number of times the drawer has been opened to change a coin or bill of accommodation.

CONSTRUCTION.

A number of keys project from the front of the register, each key having a separate amount on it, these amounts ranging from 1 cent to $20, or higher, in case it is so desired. There are also keys for goods "charged," money "paid out," money "received on account," "no sale," and any other special key that a storekeeper may need. The "no sale" key is used when a coin or bill is changed for accommodation. At the lower part of the machine is a large and conveniently arranged cash drawer, which is automatically locked when closed, and which is thrown open when a key is pressed.

OPERATION.

When a cash sale is made, say of 25 cents, the clerk takes the money to the cash register, which is set in a convenient place and where everyone in the store can see it, and presses down the 25 cent key. As he presses the key, a metal slide, termed an indicator, comes into view in a glass opening at the top of the register, the cash drawer is thrown open, the bell rings loud enough to be heard by every one, and the 25 cents is added inside the register to the total amount of all sales previously made on that key. As the metal slide appears, the slide or indictor, which exhibited the amount of the previous sale, drops down out of view. The last indicator exhibited always remains in sight until the next sale is made, and cannot drop down, or in any way be disturbed until the next sale is registered. The clerk is forced to put the correct amount in the cash drawer, because the cash must balance or agree with the amount shown by the adding mechanism inside the register. This adding mechanism is accessible only to the proprietor or to an authorized person. A clerk will not make a mistake and register the wrong amount, because the indicator shows to the customer and clerk the amount that has been registered. The invariable rule, after every transaction, is to go to the register, and press the proper key or keys. Each sale is indicated and recorded as it occurs. By the old system of throwing money into the cash drawer, and paying some out without keeping a record of it, the storekeeper never knew whether the amount he found there at the end of the day was the amount that should be there. With the National Cash Register System nothing is taken for granted. The proprietor knows the exact amount that should be in the cash drawer, the amount paid out and to whom paid, the goods sold on credit and the persons purchasing them, the amount of money paid on account and the names of those who paid it, besides all other transactions.

IS THE NATIONAL CASH REGISTER IN EXTENSIVE USE?

Up to June, 1892, over 43,000 National Cash Registers have been sold. During May, 1892. 1502 registers were shipped from the factory.

SIZES AND KINDS OF REGISTERS.

The National Cash Register is made in many different sizes and styles. The uses for which the register is required determine the kind to be adopted. Full information regarding the various styles, with the manner of operating and using them, will be sent free of charge to any one making application to The National Cash Register Co., Dayton, Ohio, U. S. A.

THE WANT OF BETTER TRAINED MEN.

The Manchester Grocers' Review says: Glancing through a copy of our highly esteemed contemporary THE CANADIAN GROCER the other day, we came across a notion which arrested our attention by reason of its boldness and originality. It appears that across the water, as here, the tradesman is considerably harassed by the authorities in regard to the law bearing upon adulteration. A recent judgment seems to make it incumbent upon the grocer to judge of the purity or otherwise of the goods he sells, and, really, by means of labels and the like, to protect his customers against getting other than the absolute article they ask for. Into the fairness or unfairness of this decision we are not now concerned to inquire. The point which arises, and to which we invite attention, is that, noting the onerous duty thus thrown upon the grocer, and the necessity of his having a higher training than has hitherto been regarded as necessary, a gentleman named Clark, a member of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, has broached the idea of incorporating the trade, and instituting entrance examinations for those who desire to join the ranks.

It appears to us that we have here a considerable amount of sense, but mixed with a not inconsiderable leavening of something not far from nonsense. From a concluding paragraph we gather that our contemporary scarcely views seriously the proposition of incorporating a trade such as that of the grocer, and we ourselves think it may be dismissed without much consideration. But the cry for better trained and better equipped men in the trade is one that cannot be too loudly raised. Taken all round, the members of the trade are far behind what we should desire to see them, and what they ought to be. By all means let our young men aim at a higher standard, and not in one direction only but in many directions strive to make themselves better grocers and better citizens. But will they do this? Looking round at the singular and deplorable apathy which characterises our assistants, we feel almost inclined to despair of them. Young John should be a better man than old John, but, in homely phrase, he does not shape well. Again we urge them to earnest thought and action.

THE SUGAR INDUSTRY IN FRENCH WEST INDIES.

France as an out and out protectionist, fair trading, reciprocitarian, and "trading within the empire," country, has an elaborate system of encouraging the French sugar Colonies. A large bounty, some 6s. per cwt. is allowed on their sugar production, but it is, of course, necessary that it should be shipped to the mother country only, and in French ships: in which the latter freight is excessive, in consequence of the monopoly caused by the shipping bounty. On arrival there is only one customer, namely France, for French West Indian sugar, and that customer is already glutted with sugar produced at home, far beyond the natural demand, in consequence of similar bounties. Nor is the French consumer allowed to consume his sugar, on which he has paid such a price to encourage the production. On the contrary, a protectionist country has to protect its refiners also, and to recoup the £6,000,000 or £8,000,000 a year, given in bounties to home and Colonial sugar. The result is that a Frenchman has to pay from two to three times as much for his own sugar, as an Englishman does for sugar grown in France and exported here. So far as the French colonist is concerned, the result is disastrous; he pays dearly for everything he buys or uses, and his machinery and wages are dear, all because of Protection; while from the same cause he is compelled to pay extravagant freights, and to sell his sugar to a single buyer. This state of things may be recommended to the study of our own "Fair Traders" and "Empire Trading" leagues, both here and in the West Indies. The British colonists are free from all these restraints.—Produce Markets' Review.

Letters of Credit—I. O. U.

A canning factory is to be started at Port Elgin.

The contract for supplying groceries to the Kingston penitentiary has been awarded to J. Halligan & Co. The Rathburn Co. will supply the flour.

Chas. Hudson, grocer, of Belleville, claims $3,000 for damages sustained on account of a defective road between Thurlow and Sidney in May last.

The Ridgetown Canning and Preserving Company, limited, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000, divided into 1000 shares of $25 each.

A. P. Tippet & Co., St. John and Toronto, have removed to more convenient offices at 43½ Wellington St. E. Mr. W. H. Tippet will be the resident manager.

The creditors of O. Tierney, Kingston, have placed his stock of groceries and liquors in charge of the sheriff. The stock will be offered for sale by tender.

A new store on Front street, Sarnia, is being fitted up for the occupancy of W. Kirton, who will open out in it with a full stock of groceries, provisions and crockery.

The Empress of Japan arrived at Vancouver on Saturday morning having left Hong Kong June 4, and Yokohama June 7. She brings a full cargo largely new teas.

The Whiting Cash and Parcel Carrier is being placed in the principal business houses throughout the Dominion, and is invariably giving satisfaction. See ad. in next issue of this journal.

Travellers, take the train to Lindsay Francis & Co., Thornhill Village, where you can always get an order; also a first-class livery to take you to all points where the railway does not touch.

The Town Council of Whitby, Ont., has decided to deed the old town hall property to the Lowell Evaporating Works, on condition that they employ 65 hands every year for 10 years, and annually pay out $3,000 in wages, except when there is a failure in the fruit crop.

We are pleased to see the rapid advance made by Messrs Gorman, Eckert & Co., spice, coffee, and extract manufacturers. In their advertisement is shown a cut of their handsome new premises (formerly occupied by Messrs. C. S. Hyman & Co.) They have put in a complete spice plant, second to none in the Dominion. With the motto, pure goods of first quality, and satisfaction to their customers, continued success is assured them.

Daisy wafers, manufactured only by The Toronto Buscuit and Confectionery Co., are having a good sale. These take the place of sponge cake, to be eaten with ice cream. They are also tempting to excursionists and pic-nic parties. Every groeer should stock them.

The City Travellers have completed arrangements for their excursion. The date is the 27th of July, and the trip will be by boat to Buffalo and Niagara Falls. No pains will be spared to make it an occasion of genuine enjoyment, and it is to be hoped no conditions will be lacking to make the general cup of happiness full for every one of the pleasure seekers.

Since the recent meeting of the grocery jobbing trade to consider the matter of uniform prices for refined sugars, a step in the right direction has been taken by the American Sugar Refining Company. The "combine" have decided to bill goods from date of delivery, instead of date of orders as heretofore.

W. H. Rowley, manager of the E. B Eddy Co., was in the city on Tuesday on his way back from Banff, where he went to drink in health. His looks indicate that he has got that thirst pretty well quenched. Mr. Rowley needs a good measure of physical strength, for hisplace when he is at work is right in the vortex of affairs.

The Chatham Grocers' Association will take into consideration the fact that Mr. J. W. Burriss (formerly of London) is offering heliotrope toilet soap, made by the well-known Morse Soap Co., for nine cents a cake, or three for twenty-five cents. The Planet says :—"In consequence of this it is said that several soap houses have been boycotted by the grocers, and that extreme measures will be resorted to protect their interests."

John Cameron left last Tuesday morning for all points of Western Ontario, where he purposes for the next two months to push his canvas for THE CANADIAN GROCER of Toronto, with his usual energy. Already he has met with the most gratifying success, and so rapidly has the circulation increased, that the firm has it under their consideration to send him across the continent to British Columbia to represent their interest there. We wish Mr. Cameron every success in his work.—Durham Review.

The regulations for the salmon fisheries in British Columbia have been completed and the details have been decided on. They are different in a few important points from previous regulations, but so far as they concern the canneries are practically unchanged. Every bona fide fisherman, being a British subject, will receive one license. Canneries will receive 20 licenses each, and freezers will receive 7 licenses each. The license fee for each boat will be $20, and this fee will be uniform throughout the Province, the same on the Skeena as the Fraser River.

R. H. Cullis, London, is just settling down in his new store. It is a fine three-storey building.

J. Gauder, of Merritton, Ont., paid THE GROCER a call this week. He was in the city doing some buying.

The firm of Dawson & Co., of Brampton, are extending their business and opening a branch at 32 West Market street in this city. This firm was founded some 28 years ago by C. Dawson, sr., and have done a successful fruit and commission business in Brampton during these times. They solicit consignments in fruits, etc., and are open for correspondence.

An ingenius way of buying the necessaries of life is reported from the neighborhood of Berlin. A peasant woman with a large basket on her back entered the grocer's shop of that place. In the circular basket was a large earthenware jar. The woman bespoke about five dollars' worth of things, which she carefully packed in the earthern jar, then tied up the mouth, and asked permission to leave the jar in the corner. She would return in an hour, she said, fetch the things and pay for them. The grocer, having granted her wish, she carefully put the jar in a corner and retired—not to return. After many hours the shopman proceeded to examine the large earthenware jar. It had no bottom!

MONTREAL TRADE CHAT.

The Hon. S. H. Holmes, vice president of the Truro Canning Co., is in town staying at the Windsor. Mr. Holmes in talking of the canning trade says the company's business is increasing every year.

J. D. McKay, manager of the Truro Canning Co., is in Montreal on his wedding tour. Mr. and Mrs. McKay will not be back in Truro for about two weeks.

The Truro Canning Co. are putting a new brand of condensed coffee on the market, called the Reindeer brand. They are also getting up a new brand of condensed milk called the Beaver brand.

Frasier, Viger & Co., retail grocers, have got all their suburban teams running, and are now doing a big out of town trade.

The American brand of bird seed is selling well now.

Geo. Forbes, of Ransom, Forbes & Co., wholesale grocers, left for his ground on Monday evening.

Blacklock Bros. have been doing a big business in Cairn's home-made marmalade.

THE ATTENTION OF THE PUBLIC

Is attracted by any new feature in newspaper advertising, but it must be strikingly novel if the advertisement is read a second time.

The display advertisements of retail merchants are artfully worded and appeal strongly to the economical housekeeper. Flat irons at seven cents and a Monday bargain sale in ribbons open the Pocket books of the modern Mrs. Toodles.

The real estate agent with town lots for sale in an earthly Paradise, ten miles from the Court House, furnishes free transportation, a brass band and a free luncheon for prospective home seekers.

The railway companies do their share of contributing to the support of newspaper proprietors. Their time tables, showing arrivals and departure of trains, are paid for in cash, or in tickets which will enable the editor and his best girl to ride on the train.

One railway company will advertise that it is a "short line to Omaha." A competing ne then positively states that it is a "shorter line to Omaha than any other," and now the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway insists that it is "the shorteset line to Omaha," and proves it.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Co. also say that it is the "best line to St. Paul and Minneapolis," with "electric lighted trains" and reading lamps in each berth so that one can read all night long if he has a book and don't want to sleep. It brags about the "finest dining cars in the world," with the best of meals served on imported China by the most expert and civil of colored waiters, at seventy-five cents, while the lines east of Chicago charge a whole dollar.

And—once more—the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway opens up a new through car line from Chicago to Denver, via Omaha and Lincoln, and it isn't long before the whole world says to itself that "shortest line to Omaha," that "best line to St. Paul and Minneapolis," and that "new route to Denver," must be the only first-class railroad in the western part of the United States, and what the whole world says must be true.

All Coupon Tickets Agents in the United States and Canada sell tickets via the Chicago' Milwaukee and St. Paul R'y.

RUNDOWN'S BOARD OF TRADE.

The little town of Rundown lay sprawling on the plain,
A dust cloud in the sunshine and a mud lake in the rain ;
The little town of Rundown was a town of no renown,
For the little town of Rundown was a very rundown town.

But Rundown was contented, as all rundown places be ;
"What was good enough for gran'sir," said each man, "is good for me,—
Good for gran'sir, and his grand'sir, and his great-great-great grand-dad,
What upstart sacrilege, for me to say that it is bad."

There is a worthy kind of man, with cobwebs in his head,
Who lives in sweet communion with the ages that are dead :
Another says, "How happy my contemporaries be
That they happen to be living simultaneously with me."
A bold wight of this latter class, whom naught could make afraid,
Once shamelessly suggested they should start a board of trade.
So that Rundown rot no longer in its somnolent decay,
Firmly anchored to the graveyard, waiting for the Judgment Day.

Long and bitter waged the battle, epithets flew fast and free.
The dead past and the living present grappling for the mastery ;
But when to-day fights yesterday, it always wins the raid,—
And so decrepit Rundown organized its board of trade.

Then the Rip Van Winkle hamlet first began to stretch and yawn,
And above its drowsy mountains see the rosy steps of dawn ;
For the cemetery dawdlers were compelled to drop the reins,
Which were seized by modern live men with new eras in their brains.

They beckoned for the railroad, with its steeds of smoke and flame,
The railroad thirty miles away—they motioned—and it came,
And when the road came into town, with all its rush and roar,
The mediæval deadness of the place returned no more

For twenty men of purpose a town can recreate,
A hundred men in earnest can organize a state ;
And empires of wide renown have, like a seed, lain curled,
Within a single strong man's skull—then burst—and filled the world.

As new banks, the florid arteries the blood of wealth flows through ;
New papers, wise evangels of the modern and the new ;
New halls, new schools, new homes, indeed, a new and second birth,
The Rundown board of trade brought down a new heaven and earth.

And thus the town progressed apace and never ceased to thrive,
A witness to what man can do when he is once alive ;
Thus Rundown, it was rescued from its slow, decaying doom,
And in its place a city sprung the glorious town of Boom.

—[Sam Walter Foss in Yankee Blade.

A BROOM SPECULATION.

A six-foot Yankee, seated upon a load of brooms, drove his team up before the door of an establishment where he expected to find a purchaser. Jumping from his seat, he entered the store, and the following colloquy took place :

Yankee—Can't I sell you a load of brooms to-day, mister?

Dealer—No ; I don't want any.

Yankee—Better take 'em—sell 'em dog-cheap.

Dealer—Don't want 'em ; got enough brooms.

Yankee—I'll tell you what I'll do. If you'll take the lot, I'll let 'em go for $1 a dozen. You know they're wuth double that.

The dealer stroked his chin for a moment, as if in deep thought, and then replied :—

"Well, I don't want any brooms, as I told you, but I don't mind making a trade with you."

Yankee—What sort of a trade?

Dealer—Well, I'll take the whole load at $1 a dozen, and pay you one-half cash, you to take the other half in trade.

Yankee—No you don't mister ! You'll charge me with such an all-fired profit on the other half that I might come out at the little end of the horn.

Dealer—Oh, no, I promise you that you shall have the goods just at what they cost me.

Yankee—Wall, mister, that's what I call squre dealin'. It's a bargain.

And he commenced to unload the brooms in a pile on the sidewalk. When he got through he walked into the store.

"There you are mister ; 14 dozen, which I calcurlate makes just $7 comin' to me."

Dealer—Yes, that's right ; there's the money. Now what goods do you want for the other $7?

Yankee—Wall, I dunno. You see, mister, I hain't much posted in your other truck, so I guess I'll take brooms !

LET THE FROZEN LIQUID PAY.

There is no reason why the ice trade should be conducted at a loss ; and if, in places where competition has cut the life out of the trade, a profit can be made in no other way than by a consolidation of interests, or, at least, by local agreements on a price list which shall enable individuals to earn a reasonable profit in serving the public, it is the obvious duty of individuals to proceed on those lines, keeping, of course, the law relating to trusts in view. Self-preservation is a primitive law of nature, and in trade is as universal as common sense in men. There are, of course, plenty of men in this world, and in the ice trade, who are devoid of that blessing of nature or education, but the sooner they are rooted out of the ice trade the better for themselves and the business as a whole. The ice trade is no business for a man who is in business merely for his health—he ought to be sawing wood on a farm in the Canadian backwoods where "ozone" is plenty.—Ice Refrigeration.

GROCERIES.

There is a singular sameness in the reports of travellers of different houses, both on city and on country routes. They agree in voting this a season of small orders. All the conditions observable on the surface would warrant the inference that trade is just of the opposite tendency, and would be a matter of large orders. These conditions are: abundance of money, lower prices in everything than we ever had before, and the dawn of a strong season of demand. There is the money to buy, the goods are to be had unprecedentedly cheap, and they are about to be widely wanted. But the business is a matter of morsel-purchases because the money, though cheap and plentiful, is not in circulation. There is no real estate selling, no boom in building, no public works going on, no railway in course of construction, and capital has had an experience of many applications that makes it chary of venturing into new industrial or commercial schemes, and the money lies in the banks on low interest. Hence merchants are carrying accounts, their purchasing power is hampered thereby, and they cannot reach out very generally for advantages that must fade away when the demand begins to mass itself for midsummer wants. It is undoubtedly a good time to buy, but it seems a bad time to pay. As one traveller put it, "If you offer a favored customer a snap he won't take it." With all this reserve in the buying attitude, there is a very hopeful feeling in business, and as might be expected a general soundness that is assuring. Conservatism is a healthy element in the situation.

COFFEE.

No new factors have come into the situation. The scarcity of choice Rios is a more decided feature. Advices from Rio on Tuesday reported that the bulk of the stock at that part was of low grade, ranking for the most port in Nos. 7, 8, 9 and 10. Common Rios are worth from 17½ to 19c here, and nothing valued above this is in stock just now. Javas are exceedingly firm. Even greenish stock is unobtainable below 32c., good colory coffee is from 34c. up, while very fine Old Government Java is 36 to 38c. unroasted. Mochas are firm at 30c. upwards. The variations in the demand from week to week do not affect prices on this market, as there is just so much stock carried at a time, and as buyers know how to gauge the demand they are never troubled over a week of few sales.

DRIED FRUITS.

Valencia raisins are the central object of attention. They are moving freely and are picking up in tone. Since New York relieved itself of excess stocks and prices have stiffened there, a better feeling has been experienced here and is being influential now in strengthening values. Very few dealers will take 3½c. now, 3¾c. being the inside price with the majority, and not all are open to business even at that figure. It is foreseen that the next two months will call for a large stock, quite as much as the Christmas demand calls for, and it is felt that there will not be much to spare if those wants are to be filled. Hence the firmer tone. Though sales of off-stalk are large, not all are making money, as many jobbers paid full prices for a good part of the stock they are now dealing out at easy prices. The outside price for off-stalk is 5½c. It is reported that there are only 8,000 boxes of Valencias held for shipment in New York. There is nothing there now below 2¼c. in bond, and this minimum price is an advance of 1¼c. on what ruled six weeks ago. Opening orders for the new crop of Valencia raisins come in slowly, local representatives of Denia houses report.

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.

The market continues to discharge itself of stock at the same steady moderate rate it has kept up throughout the spring and summer so far. Though stocks are confessedly in a very controllable shape, owing to the few hands in which they are held, there appears to be a wise disposition to let well enough alone, and to do nothing to interrupt the present action of the demand which perhaps will need to have full play to clear the market for next year's pack. At this date a year ago staple vegetables were good for $1.40 to $1.50, and stocks were all but exhausted. Now they are $1,05 and though stocks are not well divided up they are plainly not near depletion. The demand has worked in calls for lots ranging form 2 to 40 cases in magnitude, and keeps up a running succession of these that in their aggregate volume make a fair showing. The condition of the market is about as fair as it is possible to be. Buying and selling are entirely uninfluenced by speculative views as to future possibilities. Opinions as to the supply and the demand frequently do more to give a turn or a spell of excitment to a market than the real relation of the supply and demand do. The canned vegetable market discharges its functions like a machine, entirely devoid apparently of speculative motive. The scarcity of canned salmon is getting near the vanishing point in many houses, and on Tuesday there was a general moving up of prices to $1.50 for the best brands, Horse Shoe being held at that figure as well as one or two other labels. Jobbers evince more interest in new pack salmon since the rapid disappearance of spot goods, and are further moved to buy as a result of reported firmness at the coast, consequent upon a great improvement in the English market and a good run of English orders. Shipments are being contracted for on English account at $4.80

MONTREAL.

There is no change in the position of the canned goods market. Tomatoes are still offering freely at low figures. A fair demand is reported for canned meats.

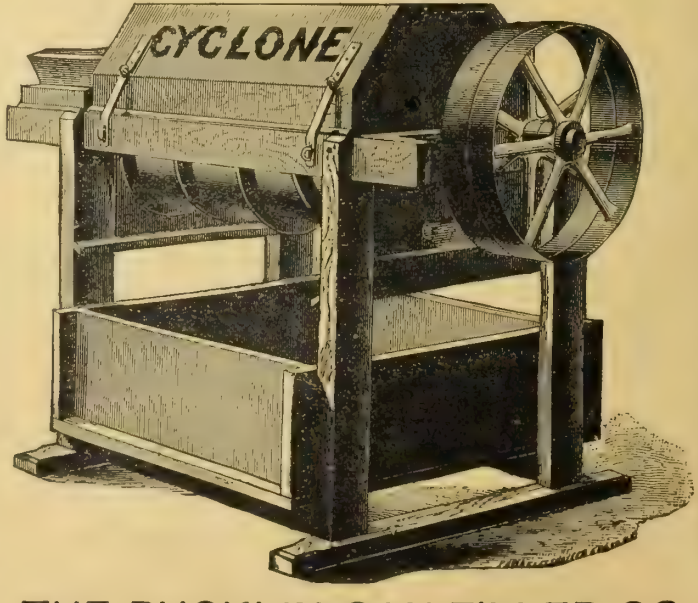
To Canning Men.—OUR CYCLONE PULP MACHINE



For making tomato pulp and preparing pumpkin and squash for canning is very well known to all the canners in the United States, and a few of them are in use in Canada. The high tariff has prevented their being used extensively heretofore.

We are now manufacturing these machines at Oakville, Ont., to enable our Canadian friends to obtain them without paying a heavy duty; but we shall make only a few of them unless ordered. Those who contemplate purchasing, should send their orders promptly to insure the saving of duty, as late orders will have to be filled from stock in the United States which will be subject to a 30 per cent duty.

MARKETS—Continued.

says : " The latest accounts of the French sardine fishing are unfavorable, both as to the smallness of the catch and the high prices paid at the opening of the season. These have varied greatly, say from 17 up to 60 and even 70 francs per 1.000 fish, which have been sold to local buyers rather than to the packers, who cannot afford to put up sardines at such extravagant figures. At one part of the coast a single boat sold its take of 1,000 fish at 70 francs, at another the price was 60 francs, at a third place it was 45, and at a fourth only 17 ; but the average quotation may be regarded as 25 francs."

ST. JOHN, N.B.

Apples, peas, and tomatoes are very scarce, and prices somewhat firmer. Other kinds are still plentiful, though the demand seems to be increasing.

Wholesalers had a surfeit of early purchasing last year, having dropped money on their early orders. Moreover, everybody expects low prices as a consequence of the United States being reckoned on as a non-purchaser. Currants display no strength or activity of importance. Stock as low as 4½c. is still to be had, but business is spiritless. Currants and Valencia raisins have just reversed positions since a year ago, when the former was feverishly active and the latter dull. Prunes are in small compass, many houses being virtually sold out. The demand as well has about exhausted itself. The price of casks continues from a basis of 4½c., and of cases from 5¾c. up. Candied lemon is still scarce at 16 to 17c., orange is steady at 18c. and citron at 26 to 28c. Valencia shelled almonds have advanced at the primary market equal to a cent on previous prices. The cause is a supposed shortage in the next crop, owing to frosts. Sicily shelled almonds are also reported to be higher in Messina.

RICE AND SPICES.

The demand for rice is held in abeyance somewhat till requirements get closer. Such business as is transacted is only of small moment. "B" rice is quoted yet at from 3⅞ to 4c., and Japan 5 to 5½c. The rice market is not in any state that may be considered transitional in any respect.

Spices have little claim to a market report. The persistence of long-established conditions is all that can be remarked on. Prices are very low in most descriptions. Trade is of about the dimensions of that done last week.

SUGAR.

There is no continuity to the demand yet. It makes an effort or is roused to make an effort, and then when the jobbers get themselves ready for a drain on their shipping facilities the thing flattens out. Now and then a start is made by the sale of a carload, but there the matter ends for the time being.

A fairly good number of these carloads have been sold during the last ten days, principally on western account, but it is hinted that every one of them represents a concession made on the professed price. That price is 4½c. for granulated and 3½c. upwards for yellows, but no one gets them on large lots without a good deal of negotiating. The lowest price admitted for granulated is 4.42c., but this is not the lowest alleged. It is certain, however, that some houses have refused good large orders at 4⅜c. It is not certain that all houses have refused such offers. The sugar market has undoubted elements of strength in it. Raw sugar which has all along been kept low in Cuba simply because there was but one buyer—the Trust—has firmed up with the appearance of European buyers. The firm position of the beet sugar holders has turned European refiners to the cane market, and has thus strengthened the position of the raw material of our refineries. Some considerable loss to stored supplies has also caused an appreciation in the value put on the raw in the West Indies. The sugar trade is also on the eve of its briskest season, which is strong circumstance in favor of better prices. These are the bearings of indications, whatever may be the issue of them.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.

Syrup takes no turn for the better. An odd sale of a small quantity now and then falls to every house sooner or later in the course of the week. The refineries have plenty of stock at attractive prices, and jobbers can sell from 1¾c. up, but that does not signify if buyers are not wanting the syrup, and it appears undeniable that they do not unless in a very small way.

Molasses has little selling power, and as nobody is loaded up with it the absence of demand is not seriously felt. New Orleans grades go from 26c. upwards, and West Indian from 35c. in barrels.

TEAS.

Common teas, especially of Indian or Ceylon growth, are dearer. All low grade teas, excepting in Congous, are firm. Congou teas are plentiful and still yield good value to buyers. There is consequently a fair amount of selling in them as well as in low grade Indian and Ceylon. Good Young Hyson teas, saleable at 15 to 18c., find ready sale Of the finer varieties of tea there is a scarcity, very few autumn-flavored teas being obtainable. The new Japan teas that have reached this market are generally voted about up to the average of first picking. They are selling at 30 to 40c., going for the most part in small parcels, a chest or two to individual buyers who make it a rule to have the season's pick in everything that's going.

Mail advices from Calcutta, May 19, announce the opening of the market with a small sale of 1,400 packages new season's tea, some of which brought extreme prices. Arrivals are now rapidly accumulating. Anticipations of a large crop seem likely to be realized ; first flushes have been successfully gathered, and there is little doubt the season's out-turn will be a very considerable one. The quality of such as has arrived is satisfactory, and the errors of last season in sacrificing quality to quantity being generally recognized, are not likely again to make themselves so apparent.

MARKET NOTES.

[Importers, wholesale merchants and manufacturers should send any items intended for this department so that they may reach the head office not later than Wednesday morning. The editor will always welcome such information.]

The apple orchards in the State of New York give poor promise of an average crop.

Warren Bros. & Boomer are the largest holders of Horse Shoe salmon on this market.

The sugar trade so far this year shows that yellow is receding in popular favor before the advance of granulated.

Tees & Persse are now the agents at Winnipeg of J. H. Todd & Son, canners of the Horse Shoe brand of salmon.

Warren Bros. & Boomer find the city call particularly good for a very choice line of Dargjeeling tea that they are selling at 60c.

Commission merchants report trade in maple syrup literally at a standstill, and some of them have returned lots to the owners because of the inability to make sales.

The pack of French peas in the Bordeaux district has been very small this season, and some canners who are unable to fill orders are paying 5 francs per case to have contracts canceled.

Perkins, Ince & Co. were advised on Monday that the first crop Moning Congous are estimated at about 80,000 half-chests below the yield of last year, and that the second crop will be about 58,000 half chests less.

The stiff price at which salmon is held on spot at the moment has been resorted to too late to do much good. The bulk of the stocks handled in this year's trade were sold off at little above bare cost, allowances for all charges being admitted.

The scarcity of lemons is very general, and is particularly marked in the West. Last week McWilliams & Everist of this city sold three cars to Chicago merchants. McWilliams & Everist had a large lot stored in Montreal since the spring sales, at which they were the largest buyers of oranges and lemons.

The London Produce Markets' Review says: The efforts that are now being made to push Ceylon growths in Canada, the States, and the Continent would be largely aided by growers packing their teas in half-chests of about 60 lbs. nett. It cannot be too clearly pointed out that the foreign buyer objects to chests, and will not handle them if he can avoid it, but takes naturally to the smaller packages equal in weight to half-chests of China tea, to which he has always been accustomed.

The following notes are from the New York Daily Commercial Bulletin: According to recently prepared official figures, the Trinidad cocoa crop of the past season, 1890-91, was the largest ever gathered, the total having reached 20,764,942 lbs. or 2,247,525 lbs. in excess of the highest figures on record. Taking the figures of the two quinquennial periods forming the decade, the average crop of the second period will be found to have been 17,607,502 lbs. as against 13,200.165 lbs. for the first period, or an increase of 33.4 per cent. During the second quinquennial period, 1887 to 1891, the chief cocoa customers of the colony have increased their trade with it in the following proportions: United Kingdom, 11 per cent; France, 46 per cent; United States, 86 per cent.

W. T. Harris, Chatham, N. B., dealer in general merchandise, offers 200 cases canned lobsters, also dried cod of finest quality.

The mail from England brings the following: "There are disquieting accounts concerning the mustard crop from south Lincolnshire, Tydd Fell, and other important agricultural centres, where the ravages of the mustard beetle are causing considerable anxiety. In the vicinity of Crowland a large portion of the crop has been well-nigh destroyed by the pests referred to, whilst the outlook all over the Fen district is far from encouraging to the mustard growers."

J. H. Todd & Son, writing to THE GROCER say: The salmon market on the Pacific coast, and especially in British Columbia, is very firm, and prices have advanced from 25 to 50c. a case in consequence of the strong demand and recent advance in England and Australia of from 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. per case for choice standard goods, also very large sales have been made and those who have bought early have bought well and should make good profit out of their purchases. The agreement as to limitation of lack is being relegiously kept, and will be to the end of the chapter.

PETROLEUM.

No acceleration to the pace of business for refined is to be expected when daylight is at its longest. Prices are remarkably steady at 14 to 14½c.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports:—Petrolia crude $1.27½ per barrel; Oil Springs crude $1.28 per bbl. No new features of special interest have been developed since our last report, and the general market continues to present a quiet appearance, with transactions largely in accordance with actual requirements. A little spirit of business during the past few days has served to stimulate the expectations of a few manufacturers of refined oil, and to lead them to believe that a better condition of things were at hand, but a little enquiry shows that the purchasing that has been done lately is simply to cover small requirements. There is no disposition shown to buy in a large way for a couple of months to come, yet on the other hand there is no anxiety among the stronger refining firms to take long running contracts for oil, at least so far as opinions have been expressed. There are several firms who are willing to take all the business they can get at certain prices, but their figures are a little above the market. For choice brands good prices can be obtained and very good orders can be had; for anything else there is a fluctuating demand. We must not overlook the fact that our refiners here to a certain extent are dependent on the Oil Springs crude to mix with our own for distillation. Oil Springs oil has and rightly should have a slight premium over Petrolia oil as it is a lighter gravity and is much clearer oil for distilling, yielding when run by itself a larger percentage of number one distillate.

Current wants are little more than met by current shipping. The storekeepers are forwarding tubs of their own packing and are

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

Business in flour does not pick up, and the ideas of buyers predominate in prices, as reductions in this week's shipping quotations show. The volume of trade since last week has been small. Feed has likewise show weakness, and has had a shrunken muster of orders to its credit.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5; strong bakers', $4.50; white wheat patents, $4.80; straight roller, $4.40; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.50.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $4.95 to $5.00; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.45 to $4.60; Ontario patents, $4.00 to $4.25; straight roller, $3.50; extra, $3.35 to $3.40; low grades, per bag, $1.00 to $1.50

MEAL—Oatmeal is $3.80. Cornmeal is $3.50.

FEED—Bran is $11 50 to $12, shorts $13 $14.00, mixed feed $22, feeding corn 50 to 52, oats 32 to 34½c.

HAY—Is fairly active at $12 to $12 50 for No. 1 timothy and $10.50 to $11 for mixed.

STRAW—Is steady at $6.50 to $7.

MONTREAL.

The flour trade outside of home demand is quiet. There is a slight improvement in export enquiry, but the close margins have, as yet, prevented its development into importance. Values remain nominally the same. Stocks in store on 18th inst. show an increase of some 2,800 barrels over the week previous. Quotations are as follows: Patent spring, $4.85 to $4.95; patent winter, $4.80 to $4.90; straight roller, $4.30 to $4.45; extra, $3.80 to $3.95; superfine, $3.25 to $3.50; fine, $3.10 to $3.35; strong bakers, $4.45 to $4.65.

Oatmeal remains quiet, with very little doing outside of demand for local wants. Returns of stocks in store on 18th inst. show some 3,964 brls. over same date last year. Prices are about steady. We quote: Granulated, bbls., $3.90 to $4.00; Rolled, bbls., $3.80 to $3.90; Standard, bbls., $3.75 to $3.85; Granulated in bags, $1.90 to $2.00; Rolled in bags, $1.90 to $2.00; Standard, in bags, $1.75 to $1.80.

Bran and shorts are in fair local demand. Mouillie is dull of sale. Quotations are unchanged. Bran, $14 to $14.50, shorts $15 to $17, and mouillie $20 to $23.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

FLOUR AND FEED—There seems a better demand for breadstuffs, which will likely keep good for a few weeks. Prices are unchanged except for cheaper grades, and they are quoted lower. Manitoba is quoted at $5.60 to $5.70, Ontario high grade $4.85 to $4.95, medium patents $4.60 to $4.75.

OATMEAL—Is in good demand. Prices rule steady at $4.15 to $4.20.

CORNMEAL—There seems no life in the cornmeal market. Whether the recent rise in prices caused a decrease in consumption or not is hard to tell, but the fact remains there is very little money. The price is $2.90 to $3.

getting 12½ to 13c., while dairy tubs of the right kind are good for 14c. in a few select cases. There is not much dairy tub coming in yet, though. Store and dairy crocks are numerous at from 12½ to 13½c., but large rolls have virtually ceased to come forward. The above-quoted prices relate to the grades that are deemed acceptable for table use. There are lower grades coming into stock and selling for 10c. These are rather plentiful. Any accumulations that collect in the warehouses are never allowed to become of more than a few days' standing, as there are offers always open for such medium-sized quantities. A considerable cleaning up takes place every now and then for western account, and then a moment of firmness succeeds. There is never enough stock on hand at once to figure largely in an export way.

Cheese is quiet, new being steady at 10c., while fall cheese is 11½ to 12c., the latter being for prime September, which is purchasable only in small quantities.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—Sellers are unaccountably firm in their ideas. An inquiry for a car at the beginning of the week elicited $1.15 as the inside quotation at Chatham for choice hand-picked stock. Less desirable, but still good bright stock, is held at $1.05. Lower quotations are made, down in fact to 90c., but there is nothing said as to quality. It is undoubted that stock is plentiful and the demand is not over eager.

DRIED AND EVAPORATED APPLES—The unsold stocks of sun-dried and evaporated are important enough in respect to volume to make holders take an interest in the growing apple crop, and to regulate their views as to value of stock on hand by their opinions of the green apple prospect Some bullish reports have already been circulated. But sun dried apples quote still from 3¼c., and evaporated from 6½c.

EGGS—Good fresh stock goes for 11c. and seems to have no trouble in exchanging for that. Seconds are quoted at 10c.

HONEY—The market is in the utmost dulness. Extracted quotes from 5 to 7c. and can hardly attract a customer. Sections are scarce, only second class stock being in store, and is held at 12 to 14c. The new flow is said to be very profuse.

HONEY—Some business has been done with the smaller up country brewers this week, a few sales of five and six bag lots being reported at 23c. Yearlings are 16 to 18c.

HIDES, SKINS, WOOL, TALLOW.

HIDES—Stock goes out about as fast as it comes in, but there is a very slender margin to anybody, green being worth 4½c. for No. 1 cows' and a cent off for each one of the two lower grades. Steers' are a cent higher than this scale of prices. Cured are 5c. in car lots, a car a day being the rate of shipment.

SKINS—There are no sheepskins. Pelts are up to 20c. Lambskins are 35c. Calfskins are 5 to 7c.

TALLOW—Rough is plentiful at 2c., and rendered is bought at 5c. and sold at 5½c.

WOOL—Combing fleeces are 17c., clothing fleeces 20 to 22. In pulled wool, super is 22c., extra 25c.

VEGETABLES.

Potatoes are demoralized, cars quoting 22 to 25c., and out of store lots 30 to 32c.——New potatoes are $3 to $4 per brl., and slow of sale on account of cheapness of old stock.——Cabbage is scarce at $2.——Cucumbers are $2 per crate.——Tomatoes are $2.50 to $3 per crate.——Onions: Bermudas are $2 yer crate, Egyptian $2.75 per bag, green are 8c. per lb.——Melons are 40c.——Lettuce is 15 to 20c.

The following letter is from one of the largest, if not the largest watermelon grower in Georgia. * * * "South Georgia melon shipments are now moving freely, but the stock is inferior, much smaller in size, on account of the severe drought, which has prevailed for nearly ten weeks. The average up to date is only 18 to 19 lbs., while in past seasons it has run from 23 to 25 lbs. Another calamity which has overtaken the melon crop is 'blight.' A large grower has lost fully 25 per cent of his crop from this cause alone, and some melon fields are now planted in corn and cotton. It is safe to say that Georgia shipments this year will not exceed one-half of last year's crop. A large proportion of the shipments thus far have been eagerly taken by buyers as soon as loaded at prices varying from $150 to $200 per car load of 24,000 lbs. Pelham, which is the largest shipping point in the melon belt, is now loading about 15 carloads per day. The receipts next week are expected to run about 30 carloads per day, and then we may expect better fruit and somewhat lower prices."—N. Y. Commercial Bulletin.

PROVISIONS.

Smoked meats are in request, but not in quantities, no sales of car lots being reported. Smoked long clear has had better sale so far this summer than it usually has. It sells at 8½c., chiefly for the coast trade. A half car was shipped one day early in the week. Long clear moves in case lots, but not otherwise.

BACON—Long clear is 7¾ to 8c., smoked backs are 10 to 10½c., bellies 10½ to 11c., rolls 8¾c.

HAMS—Are steady at 10½ to 11c.

LARD—Pure is unchanged at 9¾ to 10¼c. for tubs and pails. Compound is steady at 7 to 9c.

BARREL PORK—U. S. heavy mess is $13 to $14, Canadian $15. short cut $16.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef is 3½ to 5c. in fore and 7½ to 8c. in hindquarters, yearling lamb is 10 to 11c., Spring lamb is 13 to 14c. per lb., yearling lamb 8 to 9½c., mutton 7 to 8c., veal 5 to 7c.

GREEN FRUIT.

The weather has been decided in its temperature, and as it has been on the side of heat since last report the lemon trade has been active and prices threaten to go out of sight. They are now $4.50 to $5.50, and will be higher before they are lower. In all quarters the stocks are low. Some shipments have been made from this market to Chicago, and now we can spare no more, 3,000 boxes being estimated as the total remainder on this market. Oranges are getting into very small compass, Mediterranean sweets being the mainstay of the supply just now and selling at $5.50. Bananas are $1.40 to $1.85 for yellows and $1.50 to $2 for red. Pineapples are scarcer. A car load of small Key Wests came in the other day and are selling at 8 to 10c. The bulk of the supply is of the sugar loaf variety, which sell at 15 to 20c. In California fruits cherries are $1.50 to $1.75, apricots $2.25 to $2.50, peaches $2.25 to $2.50, plums $3.75. Strawberries made a sudden drop on Tuesday to 7c., having quoted at 17c. on Monday.

FISH.

British Columbia salmon at 14c., salmon trout and whitefish at 6½c., lake herring at $1.50 to $1.75, are moving rather slowly. The strawberry trade draws off attention from fish.

SALT.

The salt market has no new features. Prices and business are steady.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, June 23, 1892.

GROCERIES.

The state of trade in the grocery market is about the same as it has been for the past few weeks. Green fruit are firm, and stocks in all lines are considered very light. The orange season is about over; but lemons are plentiful and are selling at good prices. Teas are quiet and will be so till August. Dried fruit meet with fair sales in a small way and on the whole the state of trade is satisfying.

SUGAR.

There is only a fair trade doing in sugar, business being by no means brisk. The refiners, however, look for a good demand in course of a week or so, when the fruit preserving commences. The local wholesale market is also quiet, with a few sales at slaughtered prices. The wholesale trade are still cutting to induce buying of other goods. Advices from London report the market unchanged, while New York advices report an advance. We quote: Granulated 4½ to 4 9-16c.; yellows, low grade 3½ to 3¾c., and yellows bright 3¾ to 4¼c.

TEAS.

There is not much movement in teas on this market both lines being very quiet and brokers say the market will not improve till the August sailing vessels come in. Japan tea stocks on spot are confined to the new stocks that arrived the other day, these teas at the prices asked do not seem to meet with much favor. Japan advices report firmer market and higher prices this no doubt is due to the advance in rate of exchange. Remarks about Japans apply to blacks. Two sailing vessels from Japan on the 18th for this port, are expected here in 60 days.

MOLASSES.

Molasses, at this point, is dull and quiet, owing to the non-arrival of stock here as yet. Quebec has been favored with two boats and two were to have been in here on the 18th, and are expected every day. The wholesale trade here are still offering Barbadoes to arrive at 29c., and we hear of a Quebec house offering 2nd quality stock at 27½c. The best grade of this stock can be laid down in car lots is 29c. The two steamers that are expected here carry 1,000 puncheons each. We quote: Barbadoes 29 to 31c., American 28c.; syrups are quoted at 25 to 28c for medium bright, 40 to 45c. for choice, amber 40 to 45c.

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

Maple product is very quiet and stock at this point are almost cleared out. Prices, however, remain the same. We quote maple syrup in tins 60 to 64c. per gallon, and in wood at 5c. per pound. Maple sugar is quoted at 7 to 8c., and fancy cakes at 8½c.

RICE.

Rice is still in good demand, orders coming in freely from both Ontario and other points. We have to note the sales of quite a few carloads. We quote standard $4 to $4.10, Japan $4.50 to $5, Patnas $4.50 to $5, and Carolinas $7 to $8 per hundred pounds.

COFFEES.

A fair jobbing demand at unchanged prices is all we have to note in coffees. We quote: —Rios 18 to 20c.; Java, 23 to 25c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c.; Jamaica, 19 to 21c.; and Maracaibo, 22½ to 23c Santos, 17½ to 19c.

DRIED FRUIT.

There is a very small movement in dried fruit under light stock. Valencia raisins are about sold out, and the stock that is held here is all in jobbers hands. Stocks are lighter on spot now than they have ever been before. We quote as follows : Valencias, ordinary, 3¾ to 4¼c.; No. 1 off stalk, 4¾c. ; layers, 6c. to 6¼c.; Patras currants, 5 to 5¼c; Vostizzas, in cases, 7½ to 8c. ; provincial currants, 4⅞ to 5½c.; do. in half barrels, 5 to 6c. Prunes 5¼ to 5½c.

GREEN FRUIT.

The green fruit market is very firm under light stock in mostly all lines. The western strawberries are now arriving in fair quantities and meet with good demand. Southern berries are all cleaned out, the last lot which cost 25c. had to be sold at 10c. as they were in such bad condition. Oranges are very low here now and the demand continues good at prices noted last week. Lemons are plentiful and are being held firm under good sales, while pineapples are nearly out. Bananas are meeting with good enquiry, and when the two boats arrive they will no doubt take a drop, as each of the steamers carry 10,000 bunches. California peaches, apricots and cherries, which are high yet meet with fair sales. We hear of a few thousand boxes of lemons being shipped to the States. We quote: Bloods in half boxes $3; Massinas $4 to $4.75; lemons $2.75 to $3.50 ; pineapples 7 to 15c. each, strawberries 10 to 12c. per box, bananas $1.50 to $2 per bunch, apricots $3 to $3.50 per half crate. Cherries $1.00 to $1.25 per 8 lb. baskets, peaches $3 per box.

NUTS.

Nuts meet with fair sales both locally and out of town. Prices are held the same as that of last week at this time. We quote : Almonds Tarragona 14 to 15c. ; almonds, Ivica, 14 to 15c. ; almonds, common, 10 to 11c.; almonds, hardshell, 7 to 8c.; walnuts, Grenoble, new 12 to 14c.; walnuts, French 10 to 10½c.; cocoanuts per 100 $5.00 to $5.50; filberts 9 to 10c.; pecans 16 to 17c.; peanuts 7 to 10c.

APPLES.

The apple stock here is now about done and what stock there is on the market is held firm. Evaporated and dried stock has been very quiet this week. We quote apples $5.50 to $6 per barrel; evaporated 6 to 7c.; dried 4 to 4½c., and evaporated peaches 12 to 13c. per tin.

HONEY.

The honey market is lifeless, stocks are heavy and values weak. Prices are easier this week. We quote strained 7 to 8½c. per lb., and comb 8½ to 10c. per lb.

FISH.

Large receipts of Gaspe salmon has caused the price to depreciate, and sales have been made during the week as low as 10 to 11c. for case lots. Lake trout and whitefish sell at 6 to 7c. per lb., cod and haddock at 2¾ to 3c. In pickled fish we have to note a drop in the price of dry cod, which is now $4.75 to $5. We quote smoked Yarmouth bloaters, per 60 box, $1.00 to $1.10; St. John's bloaters, per 100 box, 80c. to $1.00; boneless cod, large boxes, 6 to 7c.; do. small boxes 7 to 8c. ; finnan haddies 7 to 8c.

We quote No. 1 herring, per brl., $4.50 to $4.60; lake trout, per half brl., $4.00 to $4.25; sea trout, per bbl., $8.25 to $8.75; codfish, green, No. 1, per bbl. $4.75 to $5.00.; do. No. 2, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; codfish, dried, per bbl., $4.25 to $4.50; salmon, B.C., per bbl., $13 to $13.50; do., Nfld., No. 1, per tee, $22.50 to $23; do. do., No. 2, per tee, $21 to $21.50; do. do., No. 3, per tee, $20 to $20.50.

PROVISIONS.

Hog products continue steady and firm, especially in Canada short cut mess, which is held in few hands. Smoked meats are in good demand for home wants. Lard quiet and unchanged. We quote as follows:—Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.50 to $16.75 ; mess pork, western, per brl. $14.50 to $15.00; short cut, western, per brl. $17.00 to $17.50; hams, city cured, per lb. 10c. to 10½c; lard, Canadian, in pails 8⅞ to 9c ; bacon, per lb. 9 to 10c ; lard, com refined, per lb. 7 to 7¼c.

CHEESE.

Cheese rules irregular, and aside from the purchases made at the wharf to-day, little was done in spot. The public cable was lower, at 46 to 48s., and private cables talked lower limits, but we allow our quotations to stand unchanged as yet. The offerings at the boat comprised 3,500 boxes, of which 1,700 "blue stars" brought 8¼c., values on the others ranging down to 8⅝c.

LONDON.—At the cheese market twenty factories offered 3,312 boxes. Sales : 342 at 8¾c, 678 at 8⅞c, 475 at 8 1-16c., 285 at 9c.

OGDENSBURG.—The total number of boxes offered 2,997. Sixteen lots, 1,502 at 8 11 16c; nine lots, 1084, at 8¾c ; one lot 64, at 8½c; all Canadian buyers.

CANTON.—Offerings to-day, 4,300. All were sold at 8⅜cents also 500 tub butter, at 20¼ cents ; and 400 tubs at 20 cents.

UTICA—To-day's cheese market was quite active and steady ; sales aggregated about 15,850 boxes, prices ranging from 8 to 8⅝c. with ruling price at 8½c.

LITTLE FALLS—Cheese sales to-day :—28 boxes at 7¼c. 78 boxes at 7½c. 2,473 boxes at 8c. 3,588 boxes at 8¼c. 609 boxes at 8½c. 1,570 boxes on commission, 830 boxes of dairy at 7⅜ to 8¼c.

BUTTER.

The butter market remains as before with very little doing outside of an ordinary jobbing trade. Factorymen have not been offering creamery to any extent since the transactions we noted on Tuesday. We quote : Creamery 18 to 18½c ; Townships dairy 17 to 17½c ; Western dairy 14 to 15c.

EGGS.

The local egg market continues weak. The demand being very fair, and as dealers have restricted their buyers in the country, stocks are being reduced, but the range is still held at 9½ to 10c.

GRAIN.

In grain wheat and the coarser sorts continue quiet on spot, with no change to mention.

The stocks of grain and flour in Montreal compared with those of a week ago show a decrease of 62,878 bush. of wheat, 43,383 bushels of peas, 12,460 bushels of barley, 12,448 bushels of rye, and an increase of 12,865 bush. of oats, 2,802 barrels of flour, 51 barrels of oatmeal.

Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 49,294 bushels of wheat, 275,316 bushels of peas, 537,198 bushels of oats, 20,735 bushels of rye, 79,146 bushels of barley, 3,964 barrels of oatmeal, and a decrease of 58,500 bushels of corn, 5,967 barrels of flour. We quote as follows: No. 2 hard Manitoba, 92 to 94c; No. 3 do., 83 to 84c.; No.2 Northern, 00 to 00c.; peas, 76c. to 00c. per 66 pounds; oats, 35 to 35½c. per 34 pounds; corn, 70 to 00c., duty paid ; feed barley, 35 to 40c.; barley, middling, nominal.

The stocks of flour and grain in store in Montreal on the dates mentioned were as follows :

	June 18, 1892.	June 11, 1892.	June 20, 1891.
Wheat, bush	552,286	615,164	502,992

DRY GOODS.

Dry goods during the week has been about the same as noted in our report of last week. Travellers are still doing fairly on the road, and on the whole the trade here are satisfied with the state of affairs. Our local retailers claim to be doing a good business in all light lines for summer wear. The gents furnishing houses are also doing a large business. Payments are the only thing that is not up to the standard, but the trade is not complaining.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June, 23, 1892.

GROCERIES.

A slight improvement is noticed in trade, which may broaden more during the next few weeks. Sugars are in good demand, though prices will be low. Certain lines of canned goods are very scarce. Eggs are scarce and higher. Butter is quiet and dull of sale. Cheese is quoted lower.

SYRUPS—Are moving very slowly. There is still a demand for 2-lb. tins, which seem scarce. Maple is in fair demand for small cans, and the stock is held by one or two houses.

SUGARS—There seems a better demand for all grades of sugars, and though the price is a shade lower it is only a matter of a few weeks before an upward move may be expected. Granulated is quoted at 4¼ to 4⅜c., extra at 3½ to 3¾c., and yellows at 3¼ to 3½c.

MOLASSES—Some say molasses is lower, but quotations given were unchanged. Barbadoes, 30 to 32c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Are scarce and prices somewhat higher, 10½ to 11c. being paid for choice stock.

BUTTER—Is without change. All are well supplied, and while roll is hard to dispose of, small tubs sell readily. Prices are 16 to 18c.

CHEESE—Very little doing. Prices steady. Will likely be lower. Now 10 to 10½c.

BEANS—Fair demand. Market firm at $1.25 to $1.40 as per quality.

DRIED APPLES—Dull sale. Prices are lower at 4¾ to 5½c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Fair demand at 8 to 8½c.

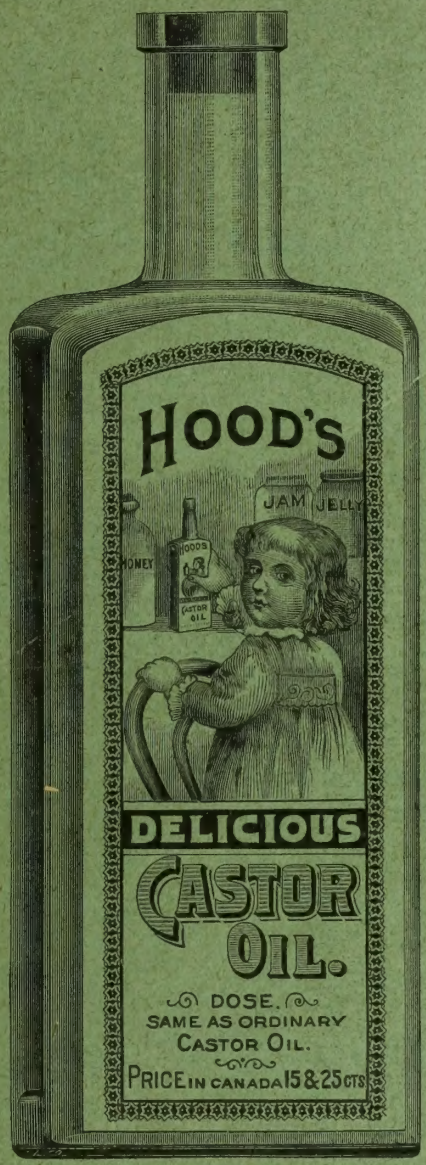
YOU

Have wished for something of this nature many a time, and we respectfully solicit your assistance in placing it before the public.

It will pay you to push Hood's Delicious Castor Oil.



What we claim for the above:

(1) As a cathartic for women and children it is absolutely safer and much preferable to any Patent Medicine or Soothing Syrup.

(2) It is virtually pure Castor Oil, as it contains 99 PER CENT. of the FINEST OIL PROCURABLE.

(3) No trouble to administer, particularly to the little folks, as it is just as the name implies, "Delicious."

(4) Contains no Chloroform, Glycerine, or any injurious ingredient.

(5) Recognized and appreciated by the Medical profession wherever known.

Demand Rapidly Increasing.

Big Profits to Pushing Retailers.

Ask your Wholesale Grocer for it, or write direct to the Manufacturers for Samples and Quotations

If you want a Good Lantern see the

"Crank" Tubular

"You simply turn the Crank"

BEST BECAUSE:

1st. Foot and Oil Pot drawn from one piece of Tin.

2nd. Tubes made of one piece of tin and bent at the corners.

3rd. The only Lantern on which top spring is seif-adjustable.

4th. Most easily lighted—Simply "Turn the Crank" and the Globe swings back.

5th. No burning of fingers. Crank never becomes hot. Slow dealers won't have it till next year. Live ones will write us at once.
